Second, the Governor desires that those who wish to make applications for positions with the incoming administration, perfect their applications before filing them. That is to say, that he hopes all those who wish to apply will make their applications in writing and attach to the application all endorsements before filing them with him.

After the election in November he will begin to take them up and grant audiences to those who wish to see him personally about their applications and such friends as may wish to accompany the applicant. He does not desire to take up any application or grant any audience concerning appointments until after the November election.

Marriage Licenses To 23 Couples In June

In spite of the proverbial acceptance of June as the "Marrying Month," records in the probate office of Chilton County indicate that the sentiment regarding June brides must have undergone a change. Only twenty-three couples applied for licenses during June.

They were: Buddie Mitchell and Miss Dottie Shepard; L. B. Pickering and Miss Evelyn Nell Suttler; Robert B. Johnson and Miss Bertie Grant; Phillip Foshee and Miss Mary Lee Pyron; Johnnie Wingard and Miss Marie Nation; J. E. Daniels and Miss Dorothy Reynolds; Bryce W. Reynolds and Miss Mattie Arant; John William Meherg and Miss Melvin Mims.

Roland Morrison and Miss Florence Powell; Alvin Smith and Miss Delene Davis; Herschell G. Parnell and Miss Arthella Friday; A. L. Collins and Miss Vera Holston; S. F. Street and Miss Louise Bates; Cecil H. Davis and Miss Meridian Edwards; Curtis Wilson and Miss Myrtle Gentry.

Hobson Jones and Miss Alice Giles; Lewis Henry Ballard and Miss Lossie Cleckler; W. T. Daniel and Miss Elizabeth Hubbard; Dolphus Lovett and Miss Alma Smith; Leon Murr and Miss Flora Mae Cleckler; George Popwell and Miss Elizabeth Tatum; Philip Cooper and Miss Mary Sue Blackmon.

Over the Hills and Far Away

WHEN Summer hums a gypsy tune, it inspires the urge to break away from the confines of every day life and take a vacation.

But it won't do to break away completely. Some touch must be kept up with the office and home to prevent needless worry.

Long distance telephone service provides the necessary means for a satisfactory voice-trip back home, at surprisingly low cost.

The "long distance" operator, wherever you go, will gladly tell you the cost of a call, and explain the different classes of service.

Vacation time, or any other time, you will find long distance telephone calls are quick, clear, effective and reasonable in cost.

Mr. Martin, who was raising the line, tripped and fell.

Ellison swam the short distance to the shore and clung to a bush until others in the party, who were on the shore reached him and pulled him from the water. Elon Cobb, who was a member of the fishing party, and young Ellison attempted to rescue Martin, but he let go his hold on the capsized boat before they could reach him.

Examination of his body at the Martin & Sons funeral parlors, where he was taken after being recovered from the water, revealed that he had suffered a severe bruise on the right cheek, but J. Mell Martin, coroner, stated that he did not believe that the blow, evidently suffered when his head struck the side of the boat, would have produced unconsciousness.

Martin, who was unmarried, is survived by his father, W. H. Martin, of Jemison; three brothers, the Rev. John T. Martin, of Centerville, A. W. Martin, and JiJm Lee Martin of Jemison; three sisters, Mrs. J. D. Sutley, of Jemison, Mrs. J. P. Cobb, of West Palm Beach, Fla. and Mrs. Gene Ellison of Texas.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon from the Providence Baptist church, Beat 13, with his brother, the Rev. John T. Martin, officiating. Burial was in the churchyard cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

Funeral services for Ernie Childress, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Childress, of the Pates Chapel community, who was killed about noon Sunday, when he accidentally shot himself while examining a small 22 calibre pistol at the home of an uncle, Isom Pate, who lived a short distance from the Childress home, were held Monday morning at eleven o'clock from the Pates Chapel church. Burial was in the churchyard cemetery.

The bullet struck the youth in the left eye. He lived about thirty minutes, but never spoke after he was shot, according to members of the family.

The youth picked up the gun from a shelf in the dining room and was examining it while he and several others who had attended church were making preparations to eat lunch. Pointing the gun toward his head, he is said to have told Burnie Watley and Irvin Pate, a cousin, to watch him. He then pulled the trigger.

Members of the family declared that they did not believe that he knew the gun was loaded, but had pointed it at himself in a spirit of playfulness, believing it to be empty. Coroner J. Mell Martin, who investigated the case, returned a verdict of accidental shooting.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Alf and Lee; and three sisters, Mrs. Mabel Leach, Mrs. Myrtle Scott, and Mrs. Melvin Maddox.

The Rev. M. Lockhart officiated at the funeral services. Martin & Sons were in charge of the body.

ALA. GETS MILLIONS

the millions in Federal funds recently made available to Alabama in President Roosevelt's recovery program and compiled by The Advertiser and the Associated Press:

Public Works Adiministration, approximately $4,830,000, for construction of schools, municipal waterworks and sewer, and other public buildings and projects.

Public Works Administration, $4,259,842, for road paving and construction.

Federal Emergency Relief Administration, $1,742,000 a month, an increase of $542,000 monthly.

U. S Treasury Department, $1,500,000 for new postoffices and new customs house at Mobile.

The vast construction program authorized by the Public Works Administration is expected to provide employment to thousands and give new life to the building and municipal utility supply industries, Dr. Davis said.

The program affects 39 cities and counties whose applications for loans or grants have been approved.

In only one city, Birmingham, has actual construction been started thus far, Dr. Davis said. This is on the $2,000,000 drainage project on which 283 men are employed.

First Towns on List

Dr. Davis yesterday authorized the following towns to enter into agreements with contractors that the construction work might begin as early as possible: Grace Allen, school building, $10,000; Talladega courthouse repairs, $10,000; Talladega, new jail, $60,000. He said he expected that work on these buildings would be started within the next month.

Meanwhile Dr. Davis said he has requested that plans be filed on 18 new construction projects recently approved by the Public Works Administration, and following approval of these plans bids will be sought. Construction should begin on these projects within 30 days, he said. They are:

Vincent, waterworks, $28,000; Millport, waterworks, $43000; Scottsboro, sewers, $59,000; Falkville waterworks, $29,000; Jackson, waterworks $29,000; Moundville waterworks and sewers, $41-000 Anniston, schools, $130,000; Brookside, waterworks, $24,000; Troy, gas plant, $68,000; Fairhope, street paving, $42,000; Jackson, sewers, $47,000; Castleberry, waterworks and sewers, $26,000; Lincoln, waterworks, $30,000; Fairhope, waterworks and sewers, $120,000; Jefferson County, schools, $260,000; Shelby County, schools, $46,500; Elmore County, schools, $162,000; Haleyville, waterworks, $35,000, and Marshal County, courthouse, $70,000.

Dr. Davis said that his office now has under examination specifications for projects in seven cities and these would be ready for calls for bids within a few days. They are:

Guin, waterworks, $79,000; Hanceville, waterworks, $20,000; Thorsby, waterworks, $28,500; Heflin, waterworks, $34,000; Sheffield, electric plant,$230,000; Tuscumbia, electric plant, 130,000, and Talladega, sewers, $28,000.

The Sylacauga waterworks project calling for an expenditure of $119,000 is now being advertised and bids will be received on July 9 on this project, Dr. Davis said.

Still Other Projects

Other projects on which construction is expected to start within 60 days are Sulligent, waterworks, $74,000; Tuscaloosa schools, $155,000; Irondale, sewers, $67,000; Waterloo, electric plant, $8,100; Stephenson, waterworks, $20,000; Springville, waterworks, $36,000, and Florence, electric system, $436,000.

Effect of the newly tapped money resources was also felt in Alabama in the allocation of $4,259,842 additional for expanding the State's $11,500,000 road building program and in the announcement of a public building program comprehending 10 new postoffices or extensions and improvements to old buildings in 10 Alabama cities, involving approximately $1,500,00.

The unemployed of the State were heartened ths week in the increase of their relief quota from $1,200,00 a month to $1,742,000, and additional allocations from the relief administration including $500,000 for rural rehabilitation; $7,650 special work training and $120,000 miscellaneous.

Numerous other millions—no one now can predict how many—were expected to be released in Alabama in loans for industry, and cotton benefit payments, funds guaranteeing bank loans for home building, and from some dozen or two other sources for as many or more recovery purposes.

Of immediate import to at least eight Alabama cities, was the announcement they would get new postoffice buildings or enlargement and improvement of old structures. Those favored under the new $65,000,000 appropriation and the estimated maximum construction cost, where already computed, follow:

Brewton $66,000; Anniston (postoffice and courthouse), $210,000; Gadsden, $85,000; Fairfield, $85,000; Tuskegee, Marion, Clanton and Russellville. The Treasury Department is now working out the approximate construction costs in the latter cities. Bids will be sought in the next few days.

Don't judge it by its contents this week only. However, if an idea strikes you, send it in. It may win the two dollars.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT AGAIN FOR CLUBHOUSE

Fine Swimming Pool Is Also Included In The Projects If County Helps

Again the possibilities loom bright for the erection of a modern community clubhouse and the construction of an up-to-date swimming pool at the Clanton Airport, according to information from W. A. Cone, local works director for the FERA, and others interested in securing these improvements to Clanton's landing field.

With the proper cooperation from county and city officials, these improvements can be secured with little cost to the county or to the city, Mr. Cone stated. Three thousand dollars has been allocated for the completion of the Clanton landing field it was explained, and this money can be used for materials for a clubhouse and swimming pool, provided the completion of the landing field is taken care of by local cooperation.

Less than $700 will be necessary to complete the field, Mr. Cone stated, explaining that if the city and county will

ENDURANCE DRIVER GETS A BIG HAND HERE

100 - Hour Non - Stop Drive Attracts Large Crowds When End Comes

Chilton County's first attempt at marathon performance was pronounced a huge success this week by its sponsors. Enthusiastic comment was current on every street corner during the past few days, when the subject of the 100-Hour Non-Stop Drive, which was staged in Clanton last week, was the chief theme of conversation.

Hundreds congregated and lined the street in front of the Hayes Chevrolet Company last Saturday afternoon to see the end of the drive in which Ocie D. Rutherford sat under the wheel of a 1934 model Chevrolet for one hundred hours of constant driving. The driver was taken from the machine and rushed to the Central Alabama Hospital in a Martin& Sons ambulance for a thorough physical examination before retiring in the show windows of the E. L. Klinner Furniture Company to get a few hours of much-needed sleep.

Weighing after the completion of the drive, Rutherford was found to have lost only two pounds. A physical ex-

Dr. DuBose Entertains Friends On July Fourth

One of the most impressive tributes paid a resident of Chilton County was shown Wednesday of last wek, July Fourth when over three hundred friends of Dr. F. G. DuBose gathered at his home in Maplesville and enjoyed the true Southern hospitality of this prominent doctor and citizen.

The large and beautiful grove in front of the comfortable and attractive home of Dr. DuBose was the scene of a barbeceue served picnic style by efficient servants and prepared by expert cooks. Among those guests were famous physicians and surgeons of Alabama, men and women prominent in state and national affairs, farmers, merchants, professional and business men, all who have learned in years past to love and respect the man who has spent the larger part of his life for the benefit of humanity, and who came to his home to show their esteem on Independence Day.

There were no long addresses on the program for the day, but friends of Dr. DuBose could not refrain from asking for a few minutes in which they might express appreciation of such a man. Congressman W. B. Oliver, in well chosen words paid tribute to this esteemed citizen, and Hon. F. T. Raiford, editor of the Selma-Times Journal read a poem dedicated to Dr. DuBose.

A large number from Selma were among those present. Dr. DuBose is the founder of the widely known Vaughn Memorial Hospital in Selma and served there for a number of years.

President Opened Program Telling Of Progress Of Dem. Work Done

Two hundred-fifty Chilton County women, members of the several home demonstration clubs in the county, gathered at the Chilton County High School building Tuesday morning to celebrate the first anniversary of home demonstration work in this county.

Representatives from every section of the entire county were present to speak their praise of the work and of Miss Ruth Pardue, county home demonstration agent, through whose efforts Chilton County women have learned to what extent home demonstration work may benefit a county and its citizenship.

The program Tuesday was opened with the Introduction by Miss Lena Downs, president, who told of some of the things that have ben accomplished in one brief year with this work. Following the introduction, the entire audience joined in the singing of "Oh, When We Are Together." Mrs. C. L. Wilkins gave the Invocation.

Mayor J. Lee Smith delivered the Welcome Address. Both Supt. Luther E. Little and Judge L. H. Reynolds delivered addresses. Mr. Little spoke of home demonstration work and its in-

LOCAL PEOPLE LEAVE CHICAGO AND VISIT NEW YORK CITY

A party composed of Mrs. Bill Fiquette, her two sons Frank and Ed, Miss Nelda Brown and Leslie Brown of Birmingham and "Chick" Fiquette of Clanton, who have been spending some time in Chicago at the World's Fair, left last Friday for New York before returning to Clanton.

Miss Brown, who is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Powers of Lay Dam, received considerable distinction while at the World's Fair, when she, accompanied by "Chick," was the two millionth visitor to the Ford Exposition. Her picture appeared in several large daily newspaper, with Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress. and a new Ford car was placed at her disposal while at the Fair by the Ford Motor Co. Miss Brown has many friends here, having visited in Clanton and Lay Dam several times. They expect to return today.

1935 Auto Tags To Be Green And White

Montgomery, June 27—Alabama automobile plates will be green and white next year.

The new tags will have white figures on a deep green background. Orders already have been issued to have 270,275 of them manufactured in the tag factory at Kilby Prison. Of the total, 120,000 will be "A" tags, 63,000 "B", 15,000 "C", 8,000 "D", and 5,000 "E" and 24,000 H-2 truck tags.

Tags go on sale Oct. 1st and tax officials agree that a considerably larger number of them will be sold this year than last, based on the increased gasoline tax collections during the year.

Supplies Arrive For First Aid Station

Supplies for the first aid station at Jemison, sponsored by the American Red Cross, were received by Samuel Martin, chairman of first aid and life saving of the Chilton County Chapter of the American Red Cross, this week.

Mr. Martin announced that the station, under the supervision of R. P. Bryant, assisted by Hugh Shaw, will be opened soon. The station, which will be one of three such stations between Montgomery and Birmingham, will be located at the New Deal Cafe in Jemison.

Another station will be located at Verbena, it was announced, but it is not known just when it will be officially opened. These stations will serve an important part in the accidents that occur on the highways, Martin stated, administering first aid and assisting in getting medical attention for the victims of these accidents.

ESTIMATE ON COTTON DRIVES PRICE UPWARD

State Planted 69 Per Cent Of 1933 Acreage, Says Government Statistician

The Government's cotton acreage report yesterday occasioned a snappy advance of 35 to 40 points in prices, the Montgomery market for middling basis closing at 12 cents, up 35 points, or $1.75 from Saturday's close. It was the most vigorous upsurge in several weeks.

F. W. Gist, Federal and State statistician, reported 2,215,000 acres planted to cotton in Alabama this year, which is 69 per cent of the 1933 acreage. Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Mississippi top the State in acreage this year, the Government report shows.

Futures in New Orleans were up Monday from 38 to 41 points and the market closed almost at the day's peak. The sharp advance caused little selling in this city, only 23 sales having been reported by the Montgomery Cotton Exchange.

The cotton markets were closed for about 20 minutes Monday, just before and after the Government acreage report was announced. Within a few minutes after reopening, the markets began a steady rise.

The reduction is fairly uniform over the State, except for the northwestern district, where the reducion was 40 per cent, and in the mineral district where it was 25 per cent, the Gist report stated.

North Alabama has planted 939,000 acres, or 70 per cent of last year; the Piedmont Section has planted 286,000, or 68 per cent of last year; the Black Belt has planted 488,000, or 67 per cent of last year, while south Alabama has planted 502,000, or 69 per cent of last year.

The acreage planted in the United States was found to be 28,024,000, compared with 40,852,000 planted last year, or 68.6 per cent. The reduction was fairly uniform over the belt except for the small areas in the far West and in the South Central States. The only increase in acreage was found in California. In Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia the decrease averaged about 26 per cent. The greatest decrease was found in Missouri, where it was 39 per cent, and in Oklahoma, where it was 36 per cent.

On the acreage planted it is interesting to note that the average yield will have to be 170 pounds of lint to produce 10,000,000 bales allotted under the Bankhead Act.

Democratic Women To Hold Important Session

Members of the Woman's Chilton County Democratic club are urged to attend the next regular session, which will be held Tuesday, July 17, according to Mrs. P. T. Hinkle, president, who stated that this is one of the most important meetings of the year.

The Women's Chilton County Democratic club, which was organized only a few months ago, is playing an important role in Chilton County politics. It has rapidly grown to be one of the outstanding political organizations in the county.

Jail Loses One, Gains One, And Jailer Johnson Gets "Inside Experience

Sam Johnson knows just exactly how it feels to hear jail doors clang behind one—to be on the inside looking out.

Mr. Johnson, you know, is the night jailer at the county jail in Clanton. For more than two years now, Uncle Sam has been familiar with the experience of being on the outside looking in.

But things are different now. He has a new slant on life behind the bars. It was last Sunday night when the jailer was the beneficiary of a bit of "inside experience." It was just a little after dark—time for the boys incarcerated in the "County Hotel" to partake of the day's last repast.

Jailer Johnson, with a loaded tray of food balanced at just the proper angle, sauntered into the jail, intent on providing the guests with service de luxe. So intent, in fact, was he on the task immediately before him he overlooked the all-important step of removing his keys from the door when he entered—incidentally the outside gate was unlocked.

A few minutes later, Jailer Johnson like Patrick Henry, was calling loudly for liberty.

And a few minutes later, flashlights were spotted here and there in the vicinity of the jail. The men behind those flashlights were staging a frantic search for Roosevelt Young, negro prisoner, but alas! They found only his tracks—Roosevelt had checked out, without his baggage.

When Jailer Johnson carried the tray of food into the cell, Roosevelt, who had secreted himself behind the door, quietly turned the key in the lock and went his way.

BANKHEAD COTTON PLAN HAS BENEFITS

Believed To Be The Salvation Of Southern Farmer In Coming Years

Preparations are being made by County Agent Fant and his corps of committeemen to measure the several hundred acres of cotton that is under government contract in Chilton County.

Meetings were held at the Chilton County High School in Clanton Monday and Tuesday of this week, when the fifty committeemen were instructed in measuring and estimating the acreage, and drilled in the scores of details connected with the work.

Last week, County Agent Fant and Earle Thomas, vocational instructor at the Isabella High School, conducted eighteen meetings in all sections of the county, acquainting the farmers with every detail of the provisions of the Bankhead Act and urging a wider planting of legumes. Mr. Fant explained the cotton program while Mr. Thomas spoke to the farmers regarding the advantages of extensive planting of legumes.

Mr. Fant estimated that more than 500 farmers attended these meetings.

LARGE NUMBER ARE ATTEND'G INSTITUTE HERE

Outstanding Missionaries Are On Program For Three Days Of Study

The three-day Missionary Institute held at the Clanton Baptist church this week by members of the Unity-Chilton Baptist associations got off to a good start Tuesday.

Two hundred-fifty enrolled in the several classes that were conducted. The purpose of the institute, it was explained, was to promote a better understanding among the members of the missionary work that is being conducted in almost every country in the world.

The program featured several of the most outstanding missionary workers in the Baptist field, including Dr. J. L. Moye, who has been doing missionary work in Chile for more than six years; the Rev. Collis Cunningham, missionary to Japan for the past seven years; Mrs. Troy Hopkins, who has lived in Mexico and the Canal Zone for many years, and several others.

Special efforts were devoted to the study of Japan, China, South America, and Mexico during the three-days session. Classes of all ages were instructed and it was reported to be one of the most successful institutes held in recent years.

Another outstanding lecturer on the program was Dr. F. P. Dennison, a former Catholic priest, who delivered daily lectures concerning the Catholic and Protestant religions.

Kiwanians Seek To Stop Trains 1 And 4 Here

Effort is being made by the members of the Clanton Kiwanis club to induce officials of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad company to make Clanton a regular stop for both fast trains, Number One and Four.

Pointing out that many other improvements are being sought for Clanton at this time, including the erection of a new city hall and a postoffice, the extension of the town's watermains, the building of a modern swimming pool and clubhouse at the airport, officials of the Kiwanis club declare that it will be a great advantage to have these trains make stops at Clanton.

The L & N has always cooperated to the fullest extent with every movement for the civic improvement of the town, Kiwanis officials stated, and declared that they are confident that railroad officials will again lend their cooperaton.

CEMETERY CLEANING AT SHILOH CHURCH JULY 18TH

All who are interested in the cemetery at this place are requested to meet Wednesday, July 18th, and bring tools to clean off cemetery and church grounds.

CLANTON WILL SEE A BOOM IN BUILDING SOON

New Employment Office Is Set Up To Take Care Of New Projects

Another definite step toward prosperity is visualized in the extensive work program that will soon be underway in Chilton County. With approximately $150,000 of federal funds allocated for the erection of public buildings in the county, the extension of the watermains in Clanton, the installation of a waterworks system in Thorsby, and the pavig of three miles of the Selma-Clanton highway, steady work for approximately 250 men will be afforded for the next eight or nine months, according to an estimate by W.B. Kelley, manager of the recently established National Reemployment office.

Mr. Kelley, who arrived in Clanton and set up his office Monday, stated that work is expected to begin immediately on the paving of three miles of the Clanton-Selma highway. Within the next 90 days work should be underway on the new Clanton postoffice, he stated. Advertisements are being run this week asking for bids on the Thorsby waterworks system; and it is believed by city officials that the refrendum, which will be held July 30, will be favorable for the PWA loan for the purpose of constructing a city hall and extending the watermains in Clanton.

These four projects will afford continuous employment for approximately 250 men for a period of eight or nine monts, was the expressed opinion of Mr. Kelly, who declared that only local labor will be used on any of these projects, where ocal labor is available. Contractors on any of these projects will absolutely be required to use only Chilton County labor whenever it is at all possible to find that labor in the county, continued Mr. Kelly.

Although employes for these projects are to be furnished by the National R-employment Office, Mr. Kelly declared that he wants it specifically understood that this office has no connection whatever with the relief department. "To get these jobs, the only qualifications are to register with this office and be capable of doing the work."

He estimated that approximately 200 men will be used on the paving work, which is expected to get underway within the next ten days. The Hardaway Construction Company, of Columbus, Ga., was awarded the contract several days ago, which calls for the completion of the project within 120 working days.

The next project to get underway will likely be the installation of the Thorsby waterworks system. Twenty-eight thousand dollars have been allocated by the Public Works Administration for this work and this week notice for bids is being run in the News. Mr. Kelly expressed the opinion that work will begin on the erection of the new brick postoffice in Clanton within less than 90 days. Bids for a site will be opened at the postoffice at 9:00 o'clock Monday, July 16, according to an announcement by Billy Smith, acting postmaster.

The minimum rate for labor to be used on these projects will be 30 cents per hour for unskilled labor and 40 cents to one dollar per hour for skilled labor, it was explained by Mr. Kelly, who said that the work on the postoffice and city hall will afford employment for many skilled men in almost every line of the building trade, including brick masons, carpenters, concrete men, electricians, plasterers, and other tradesmen.

This work should afford a payroll of above eight thousand dollars per week, which will be in cash and not groceries, it was explained.

A CORRECTION

In reporting the death of Jimmie Lee Cox in last week's issue of the News it was stated that according to information from witnesses that young Cox had become jealous because his wife had ridden with another man from a motion picture show Saturday night before he shot himself Sunday morning.

Mrs. Cox, widow of the dead man, states that this is an error. The Chilton County News regrets that it was misinformed on this score and is glad to publish a correction.

Simplicity Of The President

Anyone wishing to learn more of the art of impressing the minds and guiding the thoughts of others might profit by studying the methods of President Roosevelt, whose skill in such matters is perhaps as great as that ever displayed by an American statesman.

He is a pastmaster in the art of simplicity, and this is a gift possessed by few. Many public men appear to feel that large words and complex sentences convey the idea of erudition and that erudition is impressive, whereas erudition fills no dinner pails, lifts no mortgages, inspires no hope nor explains any complex problem.

Erudition is fine for scholars speaking to scholars upon scholarly topics, but it is a poor substitute for seasoned common sense when it comes to discussing problems that are vital in their relation to the material welfare of millions of persons. Here simplicity is the golden form of speech and President Roosevelt possesses it to a marked degree.

His answer to the charge that the fundamental principles of the American government are being changed and that the trend today is in the direction of radicalism, socialism or even communism, furnishes an impressive illustration of his gift of making clear by simple illustration the thing he wishes to convey.

In this connection he spoke of the alterations and additions to the beautiful old White House building in Washington, showing how these improvements, made to take care of the growing demands of the times, were in thorough harmony with the fine ideals of the founders, being made to keep pace with the expanding life of the people.

One doesn't have to be a university graduate to understand a word picture of that description or to realize exactly what is in the mind of the executive. And the same striking simplicity characterizes his suggestion as to how one may discover the degree of success being achieved in the recovery movement.

In this connection, the president did not resort to a great mass of confusing statistics, but simply called upon each of his hearers to consider his own condition today as contrasted to his condition fifteen months ago. And that is the meat of the issue; it is highly individualistic.

Thus throughout all his public utterances, the president speaks in understandable language, uses understandable illustrations, and makes himself understood by every element of the citizenship. And when a man achieves these ends by simple and direct methods, it is enough to warrant emulation.—Tuscaloosa News.

Death Of Mme. Curie

Few women have attained exceptional eminence in the scientific world, particularly in the field of original research. An amazing exception was Marie Sklodowska Curie, co-discoverer of radium, who died in France a few days ago, at the age of 66. She was unquestionably the greatest woman chemist and physicist who ever lived.

Mme. Curie was born in Warsaw, Poland, and was a pupil of Pierre Curie in Paris before their marriage. In 1898, while experimenting with radioactive substances in their laboratory they discovered an isolated the powerful element to which they gave the name of radium. For this epochal discovery the Curies were awarded the Nobel prize in physics in 1903. For achievements in chemistry Mme. Curie was again given the Nobel prize in 1911.

Her husband was killed in an accident in 1906, after which she succeeded him as chief professor of physics in the University of Paris. She visited America a few years ago and was acclaimed by scientists and the public.

During her years of experimenting with radium, Mme. Curie. like numbers of others who have worked with this powerful and dangerous substances, suffered from its effects. which contributed to the illness which caused her death.

Thus she joins that noble band of martyrs who have sacrificed themselves for the benefit of humanity.

A New Book

A new book has just come from the publishers—a volume that costains more different words than any other ever printed. It is the 1934 edition of the Merriam-Webster dictionary—the old reliable Webster's New International, 2nd edition, which has been given to the waiting world.

There are 600,000 entries, 122,000 words that can be found in no other general dictionary, 12,000 terms illustrated. It is the labor of 250 editors, including spicialists in all lines, and $1,300,000 was spent in preparation for the book.

The latest edition—before this very latest—contains thousands of words which this writer can't even pronounce, much less spell, and now comes a bigger and better, with more words.

The Merriams bought out the Noah Webster estate's interest in Webser's almost a century ago, and have been adding more words with every printing since—so there's a good reason for the title Merriam-Webster.—Greenville Advocate.

Governor-To-Be Already At Work For His People

Bibb Graves, Democratic nominee for governor, is giving the people of his state a fine demonstration of devoted service to their interests. Though not to be governor for several months yet, he could hardly be more active if he were actually in the governor's chair.

Without any publicity and without any rest from a strenuous campaign, Col. Graves slipped quietly away to Washington to spend a busy week finding out what Alabama could get from the federal government. Already many communities in Alabama are seeing tangible results of his visit.

On his way home from Washington Col. Graves stopped in Knoxville for a conference with TVA leaders to find out what could be done to bring greater benefits into Alabama from TVA activities.

Immediately upon reaching his home in Montgomery the nominee announced a meeting at which Chamber of Commerce officials throughout the state will be told how to secure loans for all types of business from a federal fund of $300,000,000. He also gave his endorsement to a movement sponsored by the Alabama Lumber & Building Material association which is seeking to bring about a reduction in the price of materals to encourage a building repair and modernization movement in the state.—Shelby County Reporter.

Who Owns The Railroads?

In a recent editorial, the Lansing, Michigan, State Journal answers the old question of "Who Owns the Railroads?"

The people do.

They own them in two ways: First through direct ownership of stocks and bonds by the banker, the butcher and the candlestick maker.

Second way is through indirect ownership. Life insurance companies, savings banks, universites and en dowed institutions of all kinds are among the largest holders of railroad issues. As a consequence, every person who possesses an insurance policy, a bank account, or is sending a child to school has a very real interest in the welfare of the rails. In the words of the State Journal, "Pretty much all of the best of American helpfulness and altruism is tied in with the railroads."

At the moment, the outlook for the railroads is more encouraging than in years—it looks as if they would be able to meet their fixed charges this year. But most lines are still a long way from earning an operating profit that would permit the resumption of normal buying, employment and dividends. They are faced with inequitable competition, made possible by subsidization and lack of regulation of other carriers. Legislation which will mend our transportation ills will be of benefit to every business, every investor and property-owner, every citizen.

When "Farm Relief" Succeeds

There is a growing feeling on the part of those in a position to know the facts that government farm relief measures have made their most conspicuous successes when they have sought to help the farmer help himself—and have come nearest to failure when they have simply tried to change a condition through legislative, judicial or executive fiat.

It's an old axiom that doing a thing for a person isn't nearly so worthwhile as showing him how to do it on his own hook, and that is as true of agriculture as anything else. When official agencies have worked to build and strengthen the farmer-owned cooperatives, which represent concentrated individual effort, they have produced excellent results.

The cooperatives have the great virtue of permanence. They are not subject to change as is an administration or a political party. They are immune to political consideration—they don't depend on votes for their existence. They can determine upon a policy, and pursue it one year, five years, or twenty years if it is advisable.

The soundly managed cooperatives, consequently, are getting somewhere. They are winning out a dozen fronts—winning in their fight for stabler markets, better prices, and a fairer break for the farm producer. They eminently deserve the great measure of agricultural, public and official support they have been given by those who understand their motives and their methods.

Blind Selfishness

A more complete misunderstanding of the essentials of modern urban life has seldom been seen than that displayed by the New York woman who sued for an injunction to prevent use of a public school playground, adjacent to her home, except at such time as school actually was in session.

In her bill this lady charged that prolonged use of the playground by children was "a nuisance and a menace to public health."

Someone who knows all about the facts of life ought to take this lady on a little trip some time. She should be shown how children have to play in the streets, when public playgrounds aren't available; and she should be shown the way in which the street breeds crime, degeneracy, and general all-around trouble for the community which forces children to play in it.

Then, maybe, she'd see a light, and realize that a constantly used playground is a lifesaver and not a menace. —Selma Times-Journal.

Distributing The National Income

During the last few years we have often heard it said that the main trouble with our economic system is that the great bulk of our national income goes to "capitalists," and that the worker gets only the leavings.

Now Henry I. Harriman, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, comes forward with the facts. In 1929, our income touched the high of $85,000,000,000. Wages and salaries accounted for $52,000,000,000 the farmer got $12,000,000,000 and $10,000,000,000 went to professional people. Only about $11,000,000,000 was paid as return on capital.

Does that look as if capital takes all the cream, while the worker gets only the skimmed milk? And what is capital but stored labor entitled to earnings?

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

An it came to pass that a certain woman had a pet dog. The little thing was an apt student and tried very hard to do everything that it saw is mistress doing. The canine saw its constant companion following the man of the house around, making a grumbling, growling sound, and one day the husband was very much disturbed by the little dog following him, snarling and growling at his heels. For a few moments he wondered at the strange conduct of the dog, but when he remembered that dog followed the example of the mistress of the house, he understood that there was no real danger. The dog was only doing as it saw its mistress doing. Verily, verily I say unto you that even a dog will catch the spirit of those with whom he lives.

Many men are meaner than Lot's wife. She was fleeing out of the burning city and stopped and looked around. As a result she was turned into a pillar of salt. The most of us have seen men stop and look around and then dart into a rum joint, a beer parlor, or per adventure, into a house of ill fame. It would be better for them and the rest of the world if such men would turned to a pillar of salt like Lot's wife, rather than to look around and then dart into a place of sin. We have seen men linger near certain places and then disappear almost like magic. They looked around and when they thought that no one was looking they darted in. Blessed is that town or city that has no place where men "look around" and then dart in.

I was sitting on the front porch of a certain home and we saw a new grandmother coming down the sidewalk. Someone remarked, kindly or unkindly, "Here comes that new grandmother and she is going to simply talk us to death." As luck would have it we had a man with us on the porch who had just received a new setter dog, and we introduced the two and left them to their fate. Coming out of the storm of words we could hear: "Baby, pup, and cute." A grand baby or a new setter pup will loosen the tongues of folks when the gospel makes a failure.

Not many days ago I stood at the root of a tree that had actually been blown into smitheriness by the lightening. The scientists tell us that this explosion is simple. The tree had crevices and wind shakes in its body into which the water seeped. When the bolt of lightening struck the body of the tree the current followed those moist courses and so suddenly heated the moisture and turned it into steam, that the tree exploded just like a boiler will explode when it has too much steam. It is the sap of the tree being converted into steam that blows the bark from the tree as the current of electricity dashes toward the earth. In like manner have we seen men and women blown into smitheriness by a sudden bolt of unexpected promotion, wealth or power. When such things come to people who have decayed spots of character the sudden uplift is sure to explode. It takes a firm, solid person to resist the currents of promotion, wealth and power when they fall. When wealth produces injustice, you may know that the current has gotten into a decayed place of the soul, and the finer parts of life and character have been exploded. Sudden bolts will not blow men and women into smitheriness unless there are wind shakes and decayed places of character.

Dolomite To Replace Sand In Fertilize

Following the advise of the Alaba Experiment Station, Auburn, and th United States Department of Agricul ture, fertilizer manufacturers will ne year furnish Alabama farmers wi non-acid forming fertilizers. This be done by the manufacturers subs tuting dolomite or dolomitic limest for the sand which is a present bei used for filler.

Agreement that this will be done w reached in Montgomery on June 2 when fertilizer manufacturers met w the State Board of Agriculture a assured the board that they will gla cooperate in producing fertilizers wh will not make the farmers' soil acid.

Under regulations passed by Board of Agriculture each sack of fe tilizer sold in the State will conta tag labeled "acid-forming" or acid forming." This will not only a ply to mixed fertilizers but to sup phosphate and other fertilizers direct to crops.

It was also agreed at the Montgom ery meeting that the Experim tion, the Extension Service and agricultural forces of the state will co tinue to urge that farmers apply stone to their land to off-set the aci which it may at present have due the continual use of acid-forming fe tilizers during the past.

BAYER

Bottles of 24 Tablets
NOW 25c

Get Real BAYER Aspirin Now at Lowest Prices in History!

So as to put the safety and quick action of Genuine Bayer Aspirin within the reach of everyone, the price you pay has now been reduced. Reduced so low that nobody need ever again accept some other preparation in place of the real BAYER ASPIRIN that you've asked for. 15c now for tins of 12 tablets. 25c now for bottles of 24 tablets.

And the big, family size, 100 tablet bottles have again been reduced in price. These new low prices are now in effect throughout the United States.

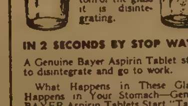
So—Always say "Bayer" When You Buy

And remember, when you ask for Bayer Aspirin at these new low prices it's unnecessary now to accept any other preparation in its place.

So—never ask for it by the name "aspirin" alone when you buy, but always say B-A-Y-E-R Aspirin and see that you get it.

Remember, too, that doctors advise it, for it DOES NOT HARM THE HEART. And that scientists rate it among the fastest known safe reliefs for pain. (See illustrations below.)

Why Bayer Aspirin Works So Fast



Drop a Bayer Aspirin Tablet into a glass of water.

By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH

A Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What Happens in These Glasses Happens in Your Stomach—Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablets Start "Taking Hold" of Pain a Few Minutes after Taking.

ALWAYS SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" NOW WHEN YOU BUY

PATES CHAPEL

Ernie Childress Dead

Mr. Ernie Childress of this community, age 19 years, accidentally shot himself Sunday, July 1st. Ernie was taking dinner with Mr. Ervin Pate and happened to see the old pistol upon a shelf and as boys will, he picked it up, and was pranking with it when it went off and shot him in the left eye. He lived only about 15 or 20 minutes afterwards, and passed away without saying a word. Ernie was the proud son of Mr. and Mrs. Filmore Childress, who have made their home around here since Ernie was small. He had a host of friends and relatives to mourn his death. Ernie was loved and welcomed everywhere he went and always wore a smile. He was an expert guitar and violin player. God bless the family and help them to live closer to Christ, so as to meet dear Ernie in that land where there is no sorrow or weeping, and I know the family wishes to thank everyone for their words and sympathy shown them during their bereavement, and especially for the beautiful floral offerings and may God bless each and every one.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cleckler and family took dinner with her sister in Jemison Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Y. Z. Dale spent the Fourth with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cleckler, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Childress of near Summerdale and Mr. Dan Hayes were visitors to relatives and friends of this community through the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Maddox visited Mr. and Mrs. Tom Foshee of near Cedar Grove Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rainwater were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Hayes and Misses Zemma Hayes, Zelma Hayes and June Hayes visited Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hayes Sunday afternoon.

Next Thursday morning as early as possible the churchyard cemetery will be cleaned off by the community.

Everybody remember that our revival begins the last Sunday in this month. Our pastor will do the preaching.

First AllRubber Seperator Adds Battery Power

The first battery seperator made exclusively of rubber is now in production in the Fireston Battery Factories at Akron, Ohio and Los Angeles, California. It is considered as great an advancement in batteries as the balloon tire was in the tire industry, for it is not affected by heat, cold, or acid, and yet so porous it increases power flow. It is used in the Fireston Extar Power Battery.

The Allrubber Separators are made up of millions of tiny balls of rubber joined together in such a way as to give extreme porosity, allowing quick flow of power. They have much longer life under adverse conditions—in fact they last the life of the battery. Separators of rubber have long been the goal of the battery industry. A number of separators have been brought out combining rubber with fiber, wood and rubber, etc., and though some obtained long life, they were considerably less porous and thus gave less starting power, especially in cold weather.

The battery of today must have greatly increased power. It is estimated that 600,000 cars were equipped with radios in 1933, and 1,000,000 more will be sold in 1934. More than a million cars now have hot water heaters which require electric power to operate. Gas and oil gauges, cigar and cigarette lighters, double stop lights, windshield defrosters, double horns and many other appliances are found on the modern cars. The 1934 cars have larger generators —30 ampere capacity instead of 20 ampere.

The Firestone Extra Power Battery with the Allrubber Separators furnishes more and quicker starting power—at zero it gives 30 per cent more starting power. It is especially superior for cars operating in severe service, and for commercial cars and light trucks.

"Now I'm the Picture of Health," Says Lady After Taking CARDUI

Here is how Cardui helped an Alabama lady. . . . "I suffered from pains in my back and sides," writes Mrs. A. G. Gray, of Cusseta, Ala. "I was so thin and weak, I read of Cardui and decided to take it. I noticed at once it was helping me. I kept taking Cardui until I had finished five bottles. I gained. My health was much better. Now I am the picture of health. My color is good and my weight increased." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

The NEW Firestone CENTURY PROGRESS TIRE

Ten Million People HELPED TO BUILD THE TIRE SENSATION of '34!

Beyond Comparison in Quality, Construction, Appearance and Price With Any First Quality Tire Made

THE way to create a TIRE SENSATION is to give the people what they want, and Firestone has done this with the new Firestone Century Progress Tire.

As millions of people visited the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year, we asked this question—"What do you value most in a tire?" They answered—"Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a moderate price." This was a big order, but Firestone has a habit of giving car owners what they want when they want it.

We knew there was only one way to build Quality and Value into a tire at a moderate price, and that was by volume production. We built the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. Car owners are profiting because we found out what they wanted and found the way to give it to them.

The new Firestone Century Progress Tire IS EQUAL OR SUPERIOR to any first quality tire built, regardless of name, brand, by whom manufactured, or at what price offered for sale.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY TO BOOST ALABAMA

Advertisements To Feature Points Of Beauty And Interest In State

In a series of advertisements to begin at once in this paper, and other leading daily and weekly papers throughout Alabama, the Standard Oil Company will feature the many spots of beauty and historic interest in Alabama.

One advertisement will feature Mobile and the Coastal region; other ads will feature the famous mountain sections of North Alabama, the many interesting things to see and do in middle and South Alabama.

In an interview at Birmingham D. H. Bohler, District Manager for Alabama of the Standard Oil Company, Incorporated, stated: "No state has more to offer its people in the way of spots of historical interest, or a greater variety of scenic beauty than Alabama. Whether you like to spend your vacation at the Coast or in the mountains; whether you like to swim, fish, golf or motor—Alabama can fill the bill.

"We feel that by calling the attention of the Alabama motorist to the many interesting things to see and do in every section of his state, we will be doing him a favor, and at the same time stimulate business this summer for Alabama hotels, resorts, and merchants in general."

SIDNEY NELSON PERFECT IN S. S. ATTENDANCE 5 YEARS

An enviable record has been made by little Sidney Nelson, 12 year old son of Mrs. Nelson here. For five years, Sidney has not been absent. At the Clanton Methodist church, where Sidney is a member of Mrs. Clara Mullin's class, he is spoken of as "the boy who never misses Sunday School."

Only once during the five years, has Sidney failed to occupy his regular place at the Clanton church—and Sidney went to Sunday school that Sunday. The Sunday following the storm, he was not present in his regular class, but he attended at Helena, where he was visiting. He is a carrier for the Birmingham News-Age-Herald and is known and well-liked by everyone in Clanton.

TIRE

Ten Million People HELPED TO BUILD THE TIRE SENSATION of '34!

Beyond Comparison in Quality, Construction, Appearance and Price With Any First Quality Tire Made

THE way to create a TIRE SENSATION is to give the people what they want, and Firestone has done this with the new Firestone Century Progress Tire.

As millions of people visited the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year, we asked this question—"What do you value most in a tire?" They answered—"Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a moderate price." This was a big order, but Firestone has a habit of giving car owners what they want when they want it.

We knew there was only one way to build Quality and Value into a tire at a moderate price, and that was by volume production. We built the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. Car owners are profiting because we found out what they wanted and found the way to give it to them.

The new Firestone Century Progress Tire IS EQUAL OR SUPERIOR to any first quality tire built, regardless of name, brand, by whom manufactured, or at what price offered for sale.

Millsap-Williams Wedding Was Event At Norwood Church

A wedding marked by beauty and simplicity was that of Miss Tera Dell Williams, of Norwood, and Whit Louis Millsap whose marriage was solemnized Sunday morning, June 23, at 8:30 a. m. at the Norwood Baptist Church, with Dr. Horace G. Williams, of Tuscaloosa, performing the ceremony, in the presence of many friends and relatives.

Palms and a background of greenery entwined in a white trellis over which at intervals burned white tapers formed an effective altar in the chancel. Branched candelabra and tall white baskets of pink gladiola and lilies were placed at both sides of the altar. Tall standards of gladioli marked the aisle pews.

Preceding the wedding ceremony several vocal numbers were sung by Miss Robbie Lee Douthit and E. O. Self, accompanied by Miss Mary Berl Reedy, who also played the wedding march.

The bride's attendants were her sisters, Mrs. E. Malone Parsons, who served as matron of honor, and Miss Jennie Williams, maid of honor. Mrs. Parsons was attractive in a yellow crepe ensemble with brown accessories and carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses and yellow snapdragons tied with ribbon streamers. Miss Williams was pretty in a pink dress made on similar lines. Her accessories were also brown and her flowers were pernet roses of deep pink and yellow snapdragons tied with ribbons.

The bride whose lovely brunet beauty was enhanced by a smart ensemble of dark blue crepe, entered with her father, J. L. Williams, who gave her in marriage. Her accessories were white and she carried an arm bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Stanley Millsap, brother of the groom was best man. Ushers included E. O. Daniels, Charlie White, Malone Parsons, brother-in-law of the groom.

Mrs. J. L. Williams, mother of the bride, wore a silk print frock of yellow with a corsage of pink roses, and the groom's mother was gowned in an attractive black crepe dress and wearing a corsage of pink roses.

Immediately followng the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Massey entertained members of the wedding party at their home in West End, at a breakfast. Later in the day the couple left by motor for Pensacola, Fla., and other points down the coast.

Mr. Millsap and his bride will be at home, in the Delmonte Apartments in Norwood.

Mrs. Millsap is a popular member of the young set and took an active part in students' activities at Howard College. She was graduated in 1932 and for the last year had taught in the schools of Clanton, Ala., having a host of friends in South Alabama. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Williams. The groom is a native of Jemison, Ala., and also attended Howard College. He is a young business man of Birmingham.

Among the out-of-town guests present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Black and Rufus Black, of Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Miss Gladys Williams and Jim Robinson, of Clanton, Ala.; Mrs. B. D. Williams, Birmingham, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Horace G. Willams, of Tuscaloosa.

Miss Gertie Fiquette Entertains Recent Bride

The home of Mrs. Durwood Teel, whose marriage took place June 20, was the scene of a surprise miscellaneous shower Tuesday afternoon, July 3, when Miss Gertie Fiquette entertained in her honor.

A color motif of pink and green was carried out in the decorations with roses and zinnias, which lent attraction to the living and dining rooms where the guests assembled. The guests arriving from three to four and from five to six, were invited into the dining room to see the beautiful display of gifts which had been persented to the honoree..

During the afternoon delicious ice cream and cake were served to about thirty guests .

Smitherman Family Reunion

—o—

On Sunday, July 8, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hayes were host and hostess at their lovely country home of the annual family reunion honoring Mrs. D. L. Smitherman's eightieth birthday.

Despite the fact that grandmother Smitherman is in bad health, her face radiated her joy and happiness at her loved ones presence.

Families from several different counties were present to help make the day a huge success.

At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread in the spacious back yard. The tables were loaded with good things to eat. Mr. W. G. Rasberry of Thorsby offered a beautiful prayer of thanks. Our hearts were saddened at this moment when our thoughts went back to our reunion last year when our friend and loved one, Mr. Dock Smitherman, offered prayer of thanks at noon. Mr. Smitherman was laid to rest in Antioch cemetery Sunday.

In the afternoon ice cream was enjoyed. The memory of this happy occasion will be stamped in our memories forever. We are indeed grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Hayes for their charming hospitality.

Those present were: Mrs. D. L. Smither man, Brent, Mrs. D. R. Jackson, Mrs. Lloyd Smitherman, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Smitherman, all of Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lawrence, Brent, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Smitherman, Montevallo route; Mr. Harvey Smitherman, Centerville; Miss Ivey Smitherman, Alabama College, Montevallo; Miss Roberta Lawrence, Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. R. C Moore and family, Sixmile; Mr. and Mrs. M. Z. Atchison and family, Clanton; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Nix and son, Jemison; Messrs. Gaston Lawrence and son, Tuscaloosa; Preston and Charles Lawrence, Brent; Donovan Hayes, Sixmile; Buster Sexton, Isabella; Vinson Veazey, Isabella; Roy Titus, Wilton; Mr. and Mrs. Earle Smitherman, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Smitherman and daughter, Montevallo route; Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Hayes, Thorsby; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hayes and daughter, Sixmile; Mr. and Mrs. Golman Hayes and family, Sixmile; Mr. and Mrs. Willie Hayes, Randolph; Miss Evelyn Nix, Maplesville; Miss Ruth Martin, Isabella; Miss Louise Davenport, Isabella; Mr. W. G. Rasberry, Thorsby; Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Stephens and Mrs. M. A. Halls, Montgomery.

All of grandmother Smitherman's children were present except Mr. Morgan Smitherman of Birmingham.

We wish for our aged loved one many more happy birthdays just as enjoyable as this one.

Policeman Loses 62 Pounds Of Fat

Mr. J. W. Frost writes: "I've used 7 bottles of Kruschen and reduced from 272 to 210 lbs. with no ill effects whatever. In fact I feel much better than I have for some years. As a police officer I recommend Kruschen to brother officers to keep in regulation weight and health."

Kruschen is the safe, healthy, sensible way to lose unhealthy, surplus fat —simply take a half teaspoonful every morning in a glas of warm water—you'll feel so good—so energetic. You'll gain in strength and ambition—you feel years younger and look it. By reducing excess fat you'll be apt to live years longer.

One bottle lasts 4 weeks. You can get Kruschen Salts at any drug store in the world.

Weogufka Girl To Direct EHFA Program

—o—

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Appointments of Miss Odelle Stewart, Alabama home economics worker, to direct the Electric Home and Farm Authority's program of cooperation with home makers at Athens, Alabama, was announced today by Miss Eloise Davison, EHFA electric service director.

Athen is the first Alabama municipality to distribute TVA power at TVA rates, and to be authorized for EHFA financing of retail sales of approved electrical appliances.

Miss Stewart is a native of Weogufka Alabama. She attended Alabama College, Montevallo, in 1926 and 1927, and graduated at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, in 1929.

Miss Stewart was employed at Birmingham successively by an electric refrigerator manufacturer, a refrigerator distributor, and the local power company. She was a teacher in the Wetumpka, Alabama, high school last year.

Black-Draught Brings Refreshing Relief of Constipation Troubles

Constipation produces many disagreeable sensations, several of which are mentioned by Mr. T. E. Stith, of Boonville, Ind., who writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught many years when needed for biliousness and other minor ills when a laxative was needed. I have a tight feeling in my chest when I get bilious. I get dizzy and feel very tired, just don't feel like doing my work. After taking Black-Draught, I feel much better. This is why I continue to use it when needed." . . . Thedford's Black-Draught is a good, purely vegetable laxative, obtainable for 25¢ a package.

Getting Started

To introduce this little feature to readers of this newspaper is like a Skeleton Man trying to imitate Mae West. But, nevertheless, we are here this week, and unless the Editor through his spectacles, sees a hint of Nudism in the lines to follow here and hereafter, we'll be here again and maybe again.

Stopping

The word stopping, if you say it over and over again long enough, will become a most unusual word. It will seem strange to you and you will find yourself wondering just what it means. And (pardon me) it is possible that some young ladies may be of the idea that some young men have been saying the word 'Stop' over and over again for a long time. But the point I'm trying to get at is, we may be forced to stop this column and that won't be as difficult as starting it.

Flash! Hot News.

People of the county will be surprised to learn for the first time in this column or elsewhere, of a romance that is springing up between two people whom we do not know. It seems that this has been going on and on so far that we have forgotten it. On inquiring of the two parties, we were informed that neither knew the other and that while they had plannned their wedding, they decided neither could wed, although the church they had selected had not yet been built. So, the situation composed itself into a very, very embarrassing one, except there was no one to feel the embarrassment at all. We talked with the minister who had been engaged by this couple we do not know, and although we could not locate him, not knowing his name or address, He stated that it was most regrettable. So, the story ends. Tell it to your wife for a bedtime story sometime—anytime. What difference does it make?

Keeping Awake

If at times you do not wish to go to sleep at your accustomed hour, we would like to offer some suggestions. Don't become sleepy, and by all means do not go to bed. If possible, always remain standing, when your accustomed sleeping hour arrives, and unless you feel some animal instinct, you will not go to sleep in that position. And by all means don't close your eyes. By the way, have you ever looked into a mirror to see how you look when you are asleep? That one should appeal to Eddie Cantor—or somebody.

Uncle Bud

Uncle Bud and His Boll Weevils played at the Wadesonian Theatre recently, and all in vain I looked for Aunt Dinah. Anyway, what is an Uncle Bud without an Aunt Dinah? At any rate Uncle Bud and his buddies are good so we'll hear them again when they come to Clanton.

Local

Yes, you guessed it, this column is local talent. We can't promise you that next week "we'll be seein' you" nor will we promise you that you will enjoy it as much next time as you did this week.

What's In A Name?

That is the question. We haven't a name. We didn't name this column, so don't blame the editor nor the printer for leaving it blank up at the top. And don't think that we are like this column, either—empty at the top.

Waiting For You

There's a couple of bucks (pardon me, dollars) waiting for the person who sends in to this column a name that suits me. No, don't misunderstand me—the name is for the column, not for me. Here's the proposition; I will receive until August 1st, suggestions for names for this column. They must be written. You may submit more than one suggestion and they must be mailed in, not brought in. Address to "The Column Without A Name" in care of The News, Clanton, Ala. The winner will be announced and two dollars will be paid for the name. And I know a lot of people who got a name cheaper than that.

RE-ROOF for all time

DON'T take chances with an old roof when it is so easy to have Careystone applied right over it. Made of asbestos and cement formed into shingle-shaped units, these roofs have all the advantages of slate or tile without the heavy weight, high cost and tendency to crack.

Permanent and Fireproof

Careystone is a permanent roof—first cost is last cost. And it is as fireproof as stone.

Roof Beauty

Careystone is made in five attractive colors. And at no extra cost you can have the "Weather-Age" finish—made only by Carey.

Low Cost...Free Estimate

Careystone costs much less than many roofs which do not approach it in appearance or durability. Let us give you a free estimate on reroofing your home. Call, phone or write.

FAIRVIEW DEM. CLUB.

The Fairview Demonstration Club met June 19, with Mrs. L. C. Keen. The meeting was called to order by Miss Pardue, as the president was absent. Roll was called and minutes were read and approved. Miss Pardue gave a very interesting talk on canning and gave a demonstration on canning a few vegetables. Miss Pardue also discussed the rally which made everyone more interested in preparing to go the the rally.

We had a large number present which we were very proud to see and hope every member will meet us at the hom of Mrs. Lee Billingsley, July 17.

The work we are doing now is very interesting and we want to do some outstanding work this summer, so let's everyone be at the next meeting.

Reporter, Mrs., J. D. Williams.

SINGING AT POOR HOUSE

There will be an all day singing in the Christian Harmony and Sacred Harp books at the county poor house on next Sunday, July 15th. Everybody come and bring a well filled basket and invite the old folks to take dinner with us, and everybody enjoy the day.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank those who assisted us during the illness and death of our loving son, and brother, Elbert. We especially thank the people of this community for their kind assistance during his entire illness. We shall always remember and appreciate their kindness and consolation shown Elbert. May God's richest blessings rest upon each and everyone.

—Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Chandler and family.

Now's the time to RE-ROOF!

Take advantage of present low prices and have the old roof covered with Careystone — the asbestos-cement shingles which cannot burn, rust or rot. These beautifully colored roofs, as fireproof and lasting as stone, are a splendid investment —they require no painting or other renewal treatment at any time.

Free Roof Inspection

If you think your present roof may need attention, we will inspect it free of charge. If it is in good condition, you will be so advised; if repairs or replacements are necessary, an estimate of the cost will be submitted. This service is yours for the asking—just call, phone or write.

Homecoming At Poplar Springs Set For July 15

Goodwater, Ala., July 8—There will be a homecoming at Poplar Springs Baptist Church, 15 miles Southwest of Goodwater, on the third Sunday in July. The Rev. W. A. Darden, of Hammons, Okla., will preach at 11 a. m., and the remainder of the day will be taken up in singing. Many former members of Poplar Springs will be at the homecoming. Dinner will be served on the grounds.

The Rev. W. A. Darden was ordained to preach at this church in 1900. After ordination to the ministry, he attended Howard College from which he graduated and later attended the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, finishing there in 1912. Before going west, in 1919, Mr. Darden held pastorates at Guin, Sulligent, Hamilton, Midland City and other places in Alabama.

Poplar Springs is among the oldest churches in the county, and has had many leading Baptist ministers of the State as pastors.

Traywick Reunion

The children of Mr. J. T. Traywick gathered at his home Sunday, July 8, for their annual reunion. They began to arrive about 9:30 o'clock and kept gathering until fifty-five friends and relatives were present.

All the children were present with the exception of Mr. and Mrs. Culp and family of Mt. Nebo community and Mr and Mrs. Leon Brown and family of Arab.

At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread out in the shade of trees with tea and lemonade as drinks.

In the afternoon ice cream was served to all and some of the boys rendered some fine string music.

The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Traywick and children, Marzelle and Aaron; Mr. and Mrs. Houston Traywick and children, Sarah, Jim, and Billy; Mr. and Mrs. Luther Traywick; Mr. and Mrs. Hannon Owen and children, Carlos, Willie Nell and Evelyn;

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Traywick and daughter, Gulma; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Wright and children, Earl, Herschel, Marie and Dewey Frank; Mr. and Mrs. Olen Bell and son, Winston; Mr. Herbert Traywick; Mr. and Mrs. T. L. McKee and sons, Thomas and Guy; Mrs. Alvie Mahan; the Rev. W. P. Lowery; Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Keen and children, Louise and Warren; Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Billingsley; Mr. and Mrs. Clem Billingsley and sons, Charles and Wilbur; Mr. W. J. Bice; Mrs. Ola Edwards and son, Charlie; Mrs. Pearlie Moore; Mrs. Willie Billingsley, Cleve Owen, Annie Mae Bice; Jewell Foshee and Louise Cox.

All went home with happy faces, hoping to meet again next year.

CARDUI FOR WOMEN

Hints On Washing Fabrics Of Silk

Auburn, Ala.—The secret of a well-groomed appearance in summer lies in the crisp freshness of clothing, says Dorothy Dean, clothing specialist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, who offer timely hints regarding the washing of silk fabrics.

Before a printed silk is purchased, a sample should be washed; if the colors show a tendency to run, a different print should be chosen. Running, however, may often be avoided by washing rapidly in lukewarm or cool water, with a mild soap. Most of the water should be squeezed out, not wrung, after the final rinse. Then the dress should be rolled between two turkish towels with a third inside the dress, to remove as much moisture as possible. The dress should then be shaken for a few moments until dry enough to iron. Rapid drying prevents running, because running almost always occurs after the fabric is removed from the water

To restore crispness and luster to silks that have become limp, a tablespoon of white vinegar added to each gallon of the final rinse water is often effective. Sleazy silks may be given additional stiffness if gum arabic is added to the final rinse. A tablespoon of gum arabic is dissolved and cooked for five minutes in one cup of water. The concentrated solution may be added to the rinse water in an amount determined by tests with a piece of the silk.

IN MEMORY OF WILLIAMS TWINS

Dear nieces you have left me,
And your smiles I see no more.
My heart is filled with sadness
For no time can heal the sore.
More and more each day I miss you,
Friends all think the wound has healed
But they know the little sorrow
That is in my heart concealed.
As their loved ones, broken-hearted
Stood aside to weep,
Safely in the arms of Jesus
The little darlings fell asleep.
They are gone but not forgotten.
Never will their memory fade,
Loving thoughts forever linger
Round the graves where they are laid.
Soft and bright the stars are shining,
Spreading o'er two lonely graves
Where lies two little angels I loved so dearly
But could not save.

—Their aunt, Mrs. J. D. Williams

Annual N. F. A. Conference Held

The New Farmers of Alabama held its annual conference at Tuskegee, July 6 and 7. The local chapter had as its representatives Clinton Calloway, Charles Calloway, Trizzell McKinney, William McKinney and Arthur James Benjamin.

This state-wide organization meets each year at Tuskegee where its members compete in judging farm animals as swine, dairy cattle, mules and poultry and such crops as corn, sweet potatoes and the identification of crop and vegetable seeds. In addition, they compete in an Oratorical contest. The subject of the oration this year was a "Live-at-Home Program for My Community."

The Chilton County boys came away with the highest honors winning more prizes than any other chapter in the state.

I feel that this organization is very important, vitally so. It affords an opportunity for boys from all sections of the state to visit Tuskegee Institute. It gives them new inspiration and aspiration to do better supervised practice work in their communities; it is educational and that something which makes better leadership. It is my eager desire to have all my N. F. A. Club boys attend the conferences and compete in the various activities each year.

fluence on education. Judge Reynolds explained how the work had been extremely beneficial in the administration of relief in the county during the past winter.

One of the outstanding features of the program was the organization of a County Council by Miss Ruth Dobyne, of the Auburn staff. The following were elected officers of the council:

Miss Lena Downs, president; Mrs. Mattie L. Crew, first vice-president; Mrs. Horace Popwell, second vice-president; Mrs. Charles Cooper, secretary and reporter; and Mrs. Lloyd Mims, treasurer.

The Mt. Pleasant club was awarded the prize for the greatest number of members present at the rally. Certificates were awarded to 20 leaders by Miss Blanche Tansil, a member of the faculty of Alabama College.

During the lunch hour, those attending the rally were conducted through an extensive exhibition of clothing, which has been a part of the work of the various clubs in the county.

Mrs. J. C. Jones gave an interesting talk, as a representative of the Clanton Music Appreciation club, and Mrs. John VanDerveer, representing the Clanton Study club, also spoke.

Plans for the county-wide picnic were discussed at the close of the program and the newly organized County Council was delegated to sponsor the preparation and serving of food at this county-wide function, which is scheduled for Thursday, July 26.

furnish him two trucks, a road machine and a tractor that he can complete work on the landing field, leaving the $3,000 for materials for a swimming pool and clubhouse.

A committee from Clanton conferred with Thad Holt, state director of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration last week, and he advised the members of the committee that it would be satisfactory to use this allocation for the purpose of constructing a clubhouse and a swimming pool, if the local authorities will cooperate to the extent of furnishing equipment for the completion of the airport. This will be of little cost to the city and county, it was pointed out since they already have the trucks and other necessary machinery. Labor for the completion of the landing field and the building of the clubhouse and swimming pool will be furnished by the FERA. The actual outlay of cash for these projects would be less than $300, it was estimated.

Plans for both of these projects have been sketched by Mr. Cone, who has sent them to Birmingham to have an architect make blue prints.

No action had been taken late Tuesday by either the county commissioners court, or the city council, but it is believed by several local business men, who are interested in securing these projects, that both the commissioners and the city council will give their endorsement and lend cooperation.

Present plans call for the construction of the clubhouse on a rustic plan, using logs from the trees that are being cut away around the edges of the landing field. By using these materials, it was explained, that the clubhouse can be erected at a minimum cost.

T. J. Arledge Goes To Morgan County

Resigns Position As County Engineer For Chilton

T. J. Arledge, who has served Chilton County for the past eight months in the capacity of county engineer, tendered his resignation at the meeting of the commissioners court last Friday to accept a position with the FERA as Works Director of Morgan County.

In his letter of resignation, Mr. Arledge stated that his resignation was to become effective immedaitely, but because of several projects necessitating his attention, he continued to work until Wednesday night.

He left Clanton Thursday morning for his new location. Before accepting the responsibilities of his duties as works director of Morgan County, Mr. Arledge will be located temporarily in Marion County, where he is to assist in formulating plans for the completion of the county airport.

Mr. Arledge stated that his headquarters will be at Decatur and he said that he will be glad to have any of his Chilton County friends visit him there.

The commissioners have not announced their intentions regarding the replacement of Mr. Arledge, but many citizens declare that the county road and construction will be greatly hampered without a county engineer.

amination by Dr. V. J. Gragg when he was taken from the car showed that he was highly nervous and suffering from an acute attack of sleepiness. Shortly after he had been awakened at the E. L. Klinner Furniture Company, Rutherford declared that he had suffered no physical discomforts from the drive with the exception of being nervous from the loss of sleep.

The Clanton drive was the third endurance drive made by Rutherford. Once in Florida he drove for 159 hours without sleep. Both Rutherford and Alec Callen, who promoted the drive, expressed appreciation to the police department and to many motorists over the county, who cooperated by helping to avoid traffic jams.

The car was inspected every day during the four-day test by Arthur Watson, mechanic at the Hayes Chevrolet Company.

In commenting on the performance of the new Chevrolet during the 100 hours of constant driving, Dick Hayes of the Hayes Chevrolet Company, was enthusiastic in his praise of the Chevrolet, declaring that this grueling test had revealed features of the Chevrolet of which even he had been unaware. A mileage record of little better than 20 miles per gallon of gas was chalked up during the 1,200 miles; no oil was added and only one glas of water was necessary to refill the radiator at the end of the drive, he stated.

The staff of the Teel Bros. Service Station, which supplied the fuel used during the drive, was equally enthusiastic concerning the gas and oil records. Refueling was accomplished while the car continued to roll. Only four stops were made during the entire 100 hours, according to Rutherford, who said that two stops were made because of tire trouble and two others were necessary to avoid accidents.

The Drive was sponsored by the following Clanton business firms: Hayes Chevrolet Company; Teel Bros. Service Station; The Dixie Cafe; The Exchange Barber Shop; The Clanton Cash Store; Upchurch Drug Company; Popwell Pressing Club; Alabama Harness & Shoe Shop; Farmers Hardware Company; E. L. Klinner Furniture Company; Wadesonian Theatre.

COFFINS FOR SALE

To you who die, if you want to sleep in a first class coffin, made by hand and of first class material, you may obtain such a casket at the Verbena One-Man Casket Manufacturing Emporium.

Why pay a large price for a showy coffin when you can put your loved one decently away in a coffin for fifteen dollars. This price does not include a box, but it does include a plank top.

These coffins are painted inside and out and are lined with white cloth. They have a white pad in the bottom and a white pillow. They also have handles and there is not a single nail-hole showing. Bring your truck or wagon to Verbena and your cheap coffin is on hand.

There is no reason for a child to die, but there are eight small coffins at Verbena for eight dollars per coffin. Let's be sensible. This is a recovery act and for the benefit of those whose income is meager.

NRA at Verbena means No More Robbers Around. God bless Franklin Roosevelt. 7-5-3tcG.

BOND ELECTION PREPARATIONS ARE COMPLETE

Mayor Smith Sees A Big Saving In Years To Come Approval Is Given

Preparations are being made for the special municipal bond election to be held in Clanton Monday, July 30, when the citizenship will be given an opportunity to express its sentiment regarding the proposed borrowing of $32,000 from the public Works Administration for the purpose of erecting a new brick city hall and extending the town's watermains.

Mayor J. Lee Smith stated Monday that special ballots are being printed for the convenience of the voters in this elction, one ballot for the city hall and another for the watermain extension. Two ballots, he said, will permit each individual to express his opinon of each project separately. He said that the administration will urge every legal voter of Clanton to go to the polls and, vote in order that their reaction may be obtained before making final arrangements for the loan.

With thirty per cent of the amount an outright grant from the federal governmen,t long term notes will not acrue interest to the amount secured in the original loan, it was explained. The loan is to be repaid in annual bonds of $1,000 denomination, with the first bond not due for nine years.

In discussing the advisabilty of the two projects, Mayor Smith explained

ANTI-RABIES SERUM TO BE GIVEN DOGS

Tuesday, Wednesday Next Week Designated As "Dog Days" Here

Next Tuesday and Wednesday will be "Dog Days" in Clanton.

The hound, the poodle, the setter, the bull, the collie, the airedale, the German police, the daschund—or what-have-you—will be there in all his glory.

On these days, all the pups in Clanton will be immunized against rabies, according to an announcement by Mayor J. Lee Smith, who said that both Dr. P. T. Hinkle and Dr. W. L. Parrish have been engaged to administer the innoculation.

This precaution is being taken, Mayor Smith said, to reduce the hazards of rabies during the hot months. Several rabid dogs have been reported in this vicinity and several other dogs were bitten, it has been reported.

Since the death of a victim of rabies at Verbena a few months ago, Chilton County is more on the alert to protect the lives of its citizenship and also the dogs by innoculation. Only a few months ago, several hundred dogs in the county were given the innoculation by Dr. Hinkle. For several years, the city officials of Clanton have given this protection to Clanton residents.

Dogs will be given the treatment both Tuesday and Wednesday, Mayor Smith announced. Dr. Hinkle will be located at the George McCain barn and Dr. Parrish will be at the Chilton County High School.

HINKLE URGES FULL SUPPORT OF DEMOCRATS

Corrects Rumor Reported Circulated Over County In Past Few Days

To the Voters of Chilton County:

Information has reached me that it is being rumored over the county that I will not support the full Democratic ticket in the general election in November. Anyone circulating this report is doing so without my knoweldge or permission.

Shortly after the first primary, I stated positively in my letter to the voters in the May 17 issue of the Chilton County News that I would wholeheartedly lend my support for a Democratic victory in November.

I still believe the best thing for Chilton County will be the election of every man on the Democratic ticket, thus joining hands with the National Democratic Administration in its efforts to restore prosperity to this country.

Following is my former letter:

"I am profoundly grateful to my friends throughout the County who gave me such a strong vote of confidence. The count of the county democratic committee gives me 936 votes. My campaign was carried on in the open, I spoke the truth at all times on every issue. I had nothing to say against my opponent.

"The first issue in this campaign is the good name of our County and State. I am a Democrat and believe in a majority rule, so each and every candidate may expect my vote in the Democratic election in November.

PICNIC DATE HAS BEEN PUT OFF FEW DAYS

CWA Workers Preparing Grounds And Program Is Taking Shape

The date of the county-wide picnic, which was scheduled for Thursday, July 26, has been indefinitely postponed, according to an announcement this week by County Agent J. W. Fant, who stated that it was not possible for several of the speakers on the program to be present on that date.

He said that the exact date has not yet been decided, but will be announced in next week's paper. Mr. Fant is making an effort to determine a date which will be convenient to the several out-of-town speakers who will appear on the program.

In the meantime, Miss Ruth Pardue, home demonstration agent, is continuing to map out a program for the participation of the club women in the county. At a recent meeting of all the clubs in the county at the Chilton County High School in Clanton, the newly elected county council of club women was delegated to be responsible for the food and refreshments at the county-wide picnic.

The Ben Sims Grove on the highway two miles north of Clanton has been selected as the site of the county-wide get-together, Mr. Fant stated. SALE OF PROGRESS BEGINS AT THE LEADER ON FRIDAY MORN

Entire Store From Front To Back Is Being Put In Readiness For Huge Event Of Drastic Price Slashes; To Be Closed This Afternoon

The Leader, truly recognized for more than a decade as one of Clanton's most outstanding leaders in merchandise values, is again coming to the front this season with such a store of bargains as even patrons of this establishment have never before heard.

In a gigantic "Sale of Progress," the management of The Leader is offering the patrons of this firm the greatest array of bargains assembled in Clanton in many moons, according to M. Lande, proprietor of the firm, and Marvin Marcus, who is assisting Mr. Lande in staging the sale.

Beginning Friday and Saturday, all roads in this section will lead to the doors of the Leader. For every prospective purchaser for miles around will not want this grand opportunity to pass him by. Almost every article from buttons to the highest grade men's and women's wearing apparel will be sold during this sale at far below the regular price.

Prices are fast advancing and this will perhaps be the last opportunity in years to come to avail oneself of bargains such as will be offered during this sale, Mr. Lande stated. Many of these articles were purchased when the market was at its lowest and are now being offered to patrons of The Leader at prices far below the regular market prices of today, Mr. Lande continued in urging his friends and customers to sale. Read it—study it, and don't fail

From a meager beginning in the fall of 1919, this store has grown to be outstanding among the leading merchantile establishments in Clanton. Today the stock of this store is one of the largest in Clanton, and most of it will be offered the buying public during the days of this gigantic sale at greatly reduced prices.

In this issue of the News will be found a large two-page advertisement, full of bargains that may be had during this sale. Read it—study it, and don't fil to be one of those who will thank their lucky stars that this opportunity knocked at their doors.

COTTON SETS NEW RECORD HIGH LEVEL

Cotton Farmers See Bright Days Ahead Under The Gov't's "New Deal"

In spite of the strikes and threats of other walkouts, cotton continued its upward march yesterday and set a new four-year level, middling closing at 12.75, an advance of 15 points over Saturday's final quotation. At one time the market was 10 to 15 points higher than the close. Large lots of cotton grading slightly better than middling would have sold yesterday for about 13 cents.

Since a week ago yesterday the local market has advanced 115 points, or nearly $6 a bale. Throughout the bullish period sales have been only moderate, although nearly 10,000 bales of cotton stored in Montgomery warehouses, are still in the hands of the producers.

The world visible supply of American cotton is nearly 1,250,000 bales less than at this time a year ago, according to figures released yesterday by the New York Cotton Exchange. The visible supply for the week ending July 13 was 5,561,000 bales against 5,664,000 a week ago and 6,822,000 at this date last year. The visible supply of American cotton decreased the past week 103,000 bales.

Exports of American cotton were smaller last week than in the corresponding week last year, the exchange's weekly report revealed. They totaled

REHABILITATION IN THIS COUNTY IS SUCCEEDING

Determination And Government Steers To Take Many Names From Relief

The clouds of the depression seem to be slowly lifting and that fear which has gripped the heart strings of the people for so long is gradually giving way to a more cheerful outlook on life—and the chances to succeed in life, is the expressed opinion of W. C Stokes, of the AAA, who is touring the nation to feel the pulse of reaction to the New Deal programs.

Mr. Stokes spent Friday of last week n Chilton County, and with a party composed of Works Director W. A. Cone, Glenn Sessions, R. M. Foshee, farm foremen, George L. Davis of the Montgomery Advertiser staff and a representative of the Chilton County News, visited several rehabilitation projects in this county.

In most of the cases which he has had occassion to investigate, Mr. Stokes stated that he has found that fear and disappointment is being largely replaced with renewed hope and a deep reverence for the New Deal which is making it possible for many families on rehabilitation to gain a new hold on that priceless heritage, faith in themselves and the future.

Mr. Stokes was enthusiastic in his praise of Chilton County and the part it is playing in carrying out the principles of the President's recovery programs. Rehabilitation crops in Chilton County were reported to equal the best in other sections, which he has visited. One farm he pronounced a monument to the new deal and to the courage and determination of the little family, who with government steers and other limited resources will be able to have their names taken from the relief rolls after the harvesting of this crop

This family, which lives in the Collins Chapel community, has one of the best little crops in the entire county. It was estimated by the farm foremen that the fifteen acres being cultivated in corn will produce approximately 200 bushels; the farm, too, will produce with proper seasons 100 bushels of sweet potatoes, 100 gallons of syrup, and plenty of peas for the family's use during winter months.

Two small boys, ages 13 and 15, did the plowing in this cop. The father is crippled with rhumatism and is almost unable to walk. The entire family was enthusiastic in its appreciation for the aid given by the rehabilitation program.

Seventy-five other families in Chilton County are indebted to the rehabilitation program for an opportunity to earn their livings and not be dependent on relief measures.

Although the program was not begun in this county until late in the farming season, Mr. Cone, Works Director, declared that he believes that much will be accomplished by the program this year.

INTER'ST GROWS IN CLUBHOUSE AND POOL HERE

City Council Will View Site With Commissioners In Near Future

Dreams of a modern clubhouse and swimming pool at the Clanton airport seem a bit nearer realization. Members of the Town Council in a meeting Tuesday night agreed to visit the project together with members of the county commissioners court within the near future and try to devise plans whereby the town and county may cooperate to acquire these improvements for the Clanton airport.

After Works Director W. A. Cone had explained to members of the council and others present that three thousand dollars which is available for the completion of the landing field may be diverted to the construction of a clubhouse and swimming pool, provided the completion of the landing field is taken care of by local cooperation. H. S. Shaw suggested that the council get with the commissioners court and visit the project.

It was explained by Mr. Cone, W. M. Wyatt, J. Mell Martin, Dr. V. J. Gragg and Percy M. Pitts that the State FERA authorities had agreed to permit funds allocated for the completion of the landing field to be used for these projects.

Mr. Cone explained briefly plans which he has formulated for the clubhouse and swimming pool, declaring that he believes that the maximum cost of completing the landing field will not be over $1,000 in money and equipment.

Vigilance Is The Price Of Safety

The annual report of the President of the National Board of Fire Underwriters comments on the gratifying decrease in fire loss that was achieved last year. Much of the drop, the report points out, was the result of the extremely low level of property values, but even when that is considered the total destroyed was well under what past experience indicated the waste would be.

Every American citizen should do his part to continue the good work that eliminates fires. No form of waste is more absolute—none is less necessary. Each year fire destroys factories that provide jobs and taxes and purchasing power—it destroys homes and farm buildings—and worst of all, it destroys, on the average, some ten thousand lives.

With the coming of summer, certain fire hazards automatically increase. Dry grass is among the worst, and many a carelessly dropped match or cigarette has started a disastrous fire. The great Berkley fire of a few years ago began in a small dry field. Look over your property, both house and grounds, for this and other hazards. And don't think one inspection will suffice for the season—constant vigilance is the price of safety when it comes to fire.

There is no room for economic waste in good times, and in bad times the crime of fire becomes the greater. Fire can be licked—but every person must aid if victory is to be won.

o-o-o-o

For The Common Welfare

The principal reason for the existence of the farm cooperatives is to benefit their members by stabilizing markets and raising prices to levels where producers are able to make a reasonable profit.

At the same time, the public at large obtains just about as many benefits from successful agricultural cooperation as do the farmers themselves.

No one gains when agriculture is profitless. The farm is the greatest single market in normal periods for the products of our factories—the great bulk of urban industrial workers can trace their emploment directly or indirectly to the farm consumer.

A constant supply of agricultural goods is essential to our national life—and when markets are disorganized, and prices are in the basement, the farmer is unable to efficiently keep the great machinery of production and distribution going.

The thinking public is solidly behind the cooperative movement, and a wide measure of the success it has achieved in the face of great obstacles, may be attributed to that.

Urban and rural groups have the same objectives, and they must pull together for the common welfare.

Make Friendship Genuine

How much of real friendship is there in your makeup?

You select as your friends those whom you think will benefit you most.

You choose those in the positions that you think will assist you.

You want your friendship list to raise your social standing.

Not often do you choose a friend occupying a humble position.

You excuse yourself on the plea that you want friends of at least equal standing.

But deep down in your heart there is a feeling that you want those who, in some way, can give you a boost.

Perhaps you know many persons whom you like and would enjoy as companions if they were in a position to add to your prestige.

But they are not—so your actions indicate that you are not anxious to enjoy their society or friendship.

You will never have he pleasure of true friendships until you reach the point where those you accept on intimate terms are persons you like because of what they represent as individuals.

Be more genuine in your acceptance of friendship and you will gain real comfort from your friends.—Mandy in Sherman Democart.

The Outlook For Mining

"Signs of the times point unerringly to the fact that metal mining is walking right into a boom period that nothing can stop," says the Mining Review. "We have been calling attention to this steadily expanding movement for months; we want to emphasize it now."

The word "boom" in his connection may be a trifle strong, but only the most pessimistic could hold fears for mining's future. There is a substantial amount of industrial expansion going on; public works are underway; greatly accelerated home construction is anticipated. Mining will share in all such activities—in this modern industrial age of ours we are vitally dependent upon the metals. We literally live surrounded by cooper, zinc, lead, etc. Practically everything we make or buy or use involves them.

Better times for mining would mean better times for farmers, workers of all kinds, store-keepers, professional people—inbrief, better times for everyone. Mining is normally a great employer a great taxpayer, a great creator of purchasing power. If it comes back, we will have taken a long step nearer to recovery.

Getting The State Together

Uniform traffic laws and ordinances in all states are vital to any movement designed to reduce the number of deaths and injuries as well as the economic loss chargeable annually to automobile accidents—a fact that was emphasized by the recent Fourth Nationl Conference on Stree nd Highway Safety.

With Secretary of Commerce Roper presiding, the Conference approved a model Uniform Vehicle Code which all states are asked to copy or adapt. First in importance in this Code is a Moel Operators' and Chauffeurs' License Act which requires examination or test before awarding certificates. Twenty-one states now have such a law. Four states give the license to priveate operators on application, and the other states have no license at all. All but six states have a minimum age requirement, ranging from thirteen to eighteen; seemingly, the six will permit anybody to grasp a wheel to run a car.

Other laws in the Uniform Code are:

Model MotorVehicle Administration; Regrestration and Certification of Title and Anti-Theft Act; Model Civil Liability Act; Model Municipal Traffic Ordinance.

Albert W. Whitney, Assocate General Manager of the Natonal Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, who was a member of the Committee which arranged for the Conference, said, in explaining purposes of the Uniform Code:

"As anyone can realize it is vital for a state to control those it permits to use its highways. It should have the right to say who shall drive in the first place, and then to penalize those whose driving practices are dangerous to the lives and limbs of others.

"The other acts of the Code are so reasonable as to recommend them to every driver."

The Criminal Is A Young Man

We were very much surprised to learn, according to Hon. Dixie Beggs, State Attorney of Florida, that the average age of the criminal of today is only 19 years.

This startling announcement reveals the fact that crime control should be exercised in the home. We are just a little young to advise people the proper method of controlling young boys in the home, but we suppose we have had more experience with boys than most parents in Opp.

Since we left the days of boyhood a few years ago, we have not left boys out of our life but have kept in close contact with them. We love them and like to associate with them. They are an inspiration to us, and we feel that it is a privilege to have their friendship.

It has been our personal pleasure to work with a group of about 25 boys in the boy's band of Opp, and these boys have gathered a liking for music which lends a helping hand to their appreciation of finer things in life and gives them employment.

Discounting whatever value actual music may be to them, we do not know of anything better for boys than good employment. We have noticed many parents who try to suppress their boys from entering unmoral and character lowering practices but do not offer a likable employment as a substitute.

We believe boys should be busy at all hours at something worthwhile. We do not believe idleness is necessary for even ten minutes during the day, but that a well rounded program of recreation, work and study will weed out any beginning of unmanly thinking and ungentlemanly acting.

The fact that the average age of the criminal of today is only 19 years should impress on all parents that the parents are largely to blame for the crimes of the country.—Opp Weekly News.

Somebody Blundered

Study of the statistics reveals that a majority of the 756,500 automobile accidents in the United States in 1933 occurred on straight, dry roads in clear weather, and involved cars in good condition driven by persons with a year or more of experience. Over 75 per cent of these drivers were persons of mature age—from 25 to 64. The majority of the 30,000 deaths and 850,000 injuries must be attributed to blunders.

A recent analysis by the Natonal Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters shows what the blunders were. There are eight in all.

1. Drove too fast for conditions—this accounted for approximately three-fourths of all mishaps in 1933 assigned to driving blunders.
2. Failed to slow down at intersections.
3. Failed to keep to the right.
4. Tried to pass another car going in the same direction when view was obstructed.
5. Failed to slow down on approaching pedestrians.
6. Passed on the right of a preceding vehicle.
7. Ignored important traffice control devices.
8. Parked at dangerous spots.

If drivers will obey the eight common sense rules suggested by these violations, the annual accident record can be reduced to a negligible figure.

More Abundant Life

It is slow, but it is inevitable. The forces moving toward securing more of the good things of life for the common man are making progress even while we look agast at temporary setbacks.

The most recent evidence of this tendency is in the new yearbook of the National Recreation Association, showing a large increase in public recreational facilities during 1933.

At the end of that year there were 7434 outdoor playgrounds, an increase of 444. Nearly 800 new baseball diamonds were built during the year, and 58 new bathing beaches.

More than 500 new recreation areas and centers were opened; in fact, almost all sports facilities were greatly enlarged except municipal golf courses and swimming pools, which showed a slight decline.

Federal aid made these expansions possible, as most counties cut down their recreation budgets.

More leisure, more sunshine, recreation, and fun in life for the average fellow. It's coming, slowly but surely. —Selma Times-Journal.

MORAL ECHOES

I was sleeping in my camp on the shore of St. Andrew's Bay adn in the early morning hours when the sun was still young in the East, I lifted myself from my pillow and looked across the waters toward the rising sun. It was shining in a cloudless sky and its reflection in the water created a bright path of glimmering lght that reached over the waters and touched the other shore. The nght had pased over my slumbers and now the morning had come and now I was looking down a bright path that pointed toward the king of day. As I lay there resting on my elbow I thought of another morning. Tha morning when the night of death shall have passed away and I shall open my eyes to behold the coming Son of Righteousness in the sky. When Jesus rises to shine on that morning there will be a bright light shining between our grave and the coming Son of God. O, my Lord, what a morning that will be; the angels will shout at the break of day, "Rise ye slumbering souls and see the coming Son of God", and we shall rise to behold the lighted path that reaches out toward Him.

We stood on the shore at our summer camp and watched a great ocean steamer as she went proudly by. The smoke curled from her stack, the machinery roared within her body and the watter rolled back on each side as her sharp bow cut its way through the waves. As this proud vessel of ocean travel swung around the land lovked channel she blasted her whistle for three times and she was gone. We had forgotten the passing of the steamer when angry waves started to lashing the shore. For a moment we wondered what was taking place and then it occurred to us that the waves from the ship had reached the shore and was lashing it into madness and confusion. The ship was gone but its influence was still being seen and felt along the shores. Many of us proudly move along the way of life. We think that we are not making impressions, but still our influence will be felt long after we have ceased to be seen. The influences we have created while we swept through that watrs of lif will rock othr boats many years ahead.

Our little cottage is across St. Andrew's Bay from aPnama City. There is a mile of water between. When the night comes on and the city turns on its lights, the rays seem to gather the speed of the electric curren and they leap the waves of the rolling bay and light up our shore with the glow of moonbams. It is charming to sit in darkness and look away to the shore that stretches for miles up and down the bay and that is all ablaze with the glow of a well lighted city. While sitting there in the shadows I thought of the heavenly shore that is lighted up with many a shining soul that comes back to this life wth the rays of heaven. There s much darkness all around us n ths world, but thank God we are living near enough to the heavenly shore to see the lights shining. Father's lamp is shining; mother's lamp is shining; companion's lamp is shining; baby's lttle light is shining. It is blessed to st n the shadows and look away to the dstant shore and see the lights of loved ones falling all around.

In fron of our cabin door on the Bay the fishermen have their nets rolled securely on a frame and there the nets remain unused for many days. Those nets are long and wide and they are made to be thrown around the schools of fish that visit the waters of the bay, but the fishermen sit around under he shade of the trees on the shore and rarely eved do hey unwind thir nets and go out for a catch. Their nets are their stock and trade and yet they are not in use more than one day out of ten. How like the church are those fishermen with their nets. The church has the equipment to gather in many lost souls every day, but for the most of the time the resources of the church are idle and the man-power of the church is idle also. How we do need to unwind our nets as fishermen for God and stretch our powers around lost men and women and bring them to God. While our nets are idle sinners are swimming on to death and ruin.

To sit by the waters of the Gulf adn listen t othe mocking bird on the shore and watch the restless, rolling waves, our very spirits become charmed and we can feel and inner surge of life that causes the soul to grow. Blesesd is th man who can sit by the sea in summer breezes and let his soul grow.

A BROKEN DOWN HORSE

Two years ago a wholesale grocer of Benton, Ill., took a fancy to a supposedly broken down race horse named Indian Runner and paid $3,000 for him. Maybe it was a mere whim or a gambler's hunch which caused the grocer, D. A. Woods, to make an investment which most turfmen would have considered unspeakably foolish. But see what happened.

After giving Indian Runner good care and a few weeks of rest Woods entered him at Lincoln Fields, where he broke the track record in his first race. Since then he has virtually monopolized the handicap stakes in the West.

On the 4th of July he won for the second consecutive year the Stars and Stripes handicap at Arlington Park, where he has also won the Inaugural handicap the last two years. His total winnings to date have been $45,000, not a bad return on a $3,000 investment. And he isn't finished yet.

All of which goes to confirm the old saying that you can't tell by merely looking how far a frog can jump or how fast a horse can run.

THE TIRE SENSATION OF '34

Sells on Sight!

TO SEE it is to buy it! That's the way extra value stands out in the new Firestone Century Progress Tire. We found out what car owners wanted most in a tire—then we gave it to them. Out of more than ten million visitors to the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year, we obtained this opinion: "Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a Moderate Price."

That was a large order, and the price part of it was our biggest problem. We said to ourselves: "Surely, if millions of people could get the tire they wanted, they would BUY!" We could see volume production . . . resulting in unbelievably low prices — and savings for millions of car owners who wanted the safety, long wear, and dependability of a first quality tire, at a price that would permit them to replace not only one tire but all four tires.

So we built the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. Then the wave of buying started—car owners from Coast to Coast bought — not just one or two tires — but complete sets!

Go to the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store in your community TODAY! See the new Firestone Century Progress Tire—just look at the broad, husky shoulders, massive flat tread, deep-cut non-skid and Gum-Dipped cords. Did you ever see so much tire for so little money? No wonder it's the Tire Sensation of '34 and Sells on Sight! Why not equip your car with a complete set—while prices are still at today's low level. And remember, you get the new Firestone Triple Guarantee

Progress

From a meager beginning in October 1919 we started this store with a small stock of dry goods and notions.

This business has steadily grown until today our stock is one of the largest ever assembled in Clanton. The growth of this business has been made possible not by the management and it sales-force, but by the hundreds of its loyal customers who have shown their faith and confidence in the policies of this organization and the quality of its merchandise handled.

For several years our sales have been offered in the face of declining market. Today all products are advancing in prices and we now have on hand an enormous stock of new marchandise bought on the bottom of the market. This merchandise is steadily advancing in price.

In announcing this Sale of Progress we feel that you will really appreciate the bargain opportunities we are offering.

An urgent invitation is extended everyone to take advantage of this sale for we honestly believe merchandise is lower in price in this sale than you'll have an opportunity to buy again.

We are especially anxious to call your attention to our different departments, and to inform you of the efforts made by us to take care of the needs of our customers for this "Sale of Progress."

Merchandising today is so revolutionized compared to old methods that a merchant without connections and consolidated buying power in quantity purchases is handicaped in pricing his goods Through our association with other large retailers we are able to make advantageous purchases that we pass on to our customers.

We wish to describe some of our departments helped by this buying:

Make up your mind now to attend this sale. You owe it to yourself and to your family to make your needed purchases at prices that will lighten the load of obligations. And we, too, want you to visit our new remodeled store and see the many changes that have been made as well as to gather new ideas, new inspiration, a new feeling of confidence in the future and to acquire a more intimate knowledge of what is going on in our store.

To Mention All the Many Bargains You'll Find in Our Store During This Sale of Progress Would be Impossible, so We Extend to You a Hearty Welcome to Visit Us and See the Real values That Await You.

Men's Clothing

In paying our clothing department a visit we assure you that every suit shown you will be of the newest fabrics and latest styles. We make no "wild claims." If you are tired of "wild claims" you will be glad to seek a pleasant repose in a clothing department where the wilder claims come from the customers and not from our salesman.

SHOES

A gain of more than 1,000,000 pairs of shoes shipped for the first five months of 1934 as compared with the same period last year was announced recently in a letter from Mr. Rand, president of Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Co., of St. Louis to the Compan's customers. This increase was shown in the face of almost half of the Company's nineteen plants being on a strike during the month of May.

Commenting on the figures released by Secretary of Labor Perkins showing an average increase of 26.2 per cent in factory wages over a year ago.

With a mere handful of shoes our Dept. was opened in October, 1919. Today we believe that our stock of men's women's and children's shoes, every pair all leather and purchased from one of the world's largest manufacturers, International Shoe Co., and shipped us through the Roberts, Johnson & Rand Branch—this stock we believe to be as complete as any to be found in Central Alabama. To say that we appreciate the faith shown in the style, quality, and prices of our shoes by the public, but half expresses our satisfaction and appreciation.

To those who have never worn our shoes we insist that you ask a neighbor or a friend as to their quality and we will rest the growth and success of this department upon the verdict of our past customers.

Put your foot down in smart fashion —wear Star Brand Shoes! They'll take you everywhere, see you through a busy day and play with you at night.

They are exclusively Star Brand Shoes and very moderate in prices.

Men's Shoes

Again our most popular groups of men's shoes offer an unusual and carefully selected assortment of styles. A few simple reasons explain the very increasing popularity of STAR BRAND SHOES. The Workmanship is standardized on a distinctly high plane. Only very fine leathers are used, and finally every economy possible through quantity buying is seized. Obviously, such a plan has produced a shoe value of unusual character. We suggest you select Star Brand for every occasion. We list all sizes, widths at amazingly low prices.

Ladies' Apparel

In the first sultry days of July there is a desire to discard the heavy Spring wardrobe and become interested in the new Summer (hot Weather) fashions.

During the last few weeks we have noticed a keener interest in the new Summer fashions than for several seasons, and our buyer, with the assistance of our New York buyer, placed more stress on our Summer selections than ever before.

There is a distinction in new fabrics and patterns that carries that deep, cool feeling most appreciated in those hot days of July and August. These Summer frocks, known as 'Nellie Don," designed by Mrs. Donnally (recently becoming the wife of Senator Reed of Missouri) and her slogan is "Just try one on."

The Leader has a delightful collection to suit your particular style, and pocketbook!

COTTON STILL SELLING WELL

Eyelet Batiste Frocks in Jacket Styles Popular

We mention here an article of Market news that may be of interest to our lady customers.

Cottons, which have been so successful this season in dresses for all occasions, are expected by retail buyers to continue to sell during the next few weeks of the hot weather.

Women have become so accustomed to the comfort, smartness and laundering qualities of cottons, that they will not want to discard them until the weather turns somewhat cooler, one buyer pointed out.

Eyelet batiste frocks in jacket styles are still selling well, particularly in white, navy and brown. Linen, seersuckers and ginghams are in demand for daytime wear. Dotted Swiss and voile in darker tones are holding up for street and afternoon wear.

Formals of organdie, net, lace and mousseline de soie are featured in pastel shades. Some models have jackets of matching or contrasting shades.

Shorts for sports have carried through the summer just as they were expected, and will no doubt continue during the hot weather. Blouses and skirts to match are made of gingham, linen, pique, seersucker and broadcloth in stripes, checks and plaids.

Ten Commandments Obtained By The Sales Force From Customers

1. No matter how hard up the husbands may be, most housewives have a lot of spending money in their pocketbooks.

2. In selling most articles, a minute of demonstration is better than a quarter-hour of cajolery.

3. Few women can appraise any article without feeling and stroking it.

4. In spite of the lures of the stylists, most people remain chiefly interested in only six things—Hunger, Thirst, Sex, Money, Shelter and Death.

5. A man customer never grows up, and will spend twice as much time choosing a trout fly as stair carpet or refrigerator.

6. People are steadfastly unwilling to skimp on the things they buy for their own children.

7. The great art in pricing is credibility; most people are just as much afraid of a price that looks too low as of one that looks too high.

8. No sales-talk, no matter how lavish, will cause people to buy what they don't want.

9. All women long to be beautiful and are eternally credulous about anything that holds out this hope.

10. Unless a store can satisfy most of its customers whenever they call, it converts them not merely into absentees, but into sharp tongued critics and destroyers.

Y. W. A. HEARS MISS EUNICE LONG AT MEETING FRIDAY

The regular meeting of the members of the Y. W. A. of the Clanton Baptist church was held last Friday night at the church, when Miss Eunice Long, of Montgomery, lectured. Those attending the meeting were:

Misses Tina Hyman, Weylena Harris, Janie Beth Johnson, Vivian Gray, Margaret Johnston, Ruth Hand Maurine Carter, Edith Hand, Annie Mae Foshee, Margaret Jones, Edith Mae Jones, Julia Ruth Hester, Gertie Fiquette, Gladys Williams, Carrie Foshee, and Mrs. Renfroe Mullins.

ANTIOCH CHURCH

The revival services start at this place the fourth Sunday in July and will continue through the week. On Wednesday of the week of the meeting we are to have a home-coming day. Everyone is invited to come—especially the old members.

REVIVAL AT TEMPLE CHURCH

Revival meeting at Temple church, three miles southeast of Clanton begins Sunday, July 22 and will run for at least two weeks, and will announce later if longer. The meeting will be conducted by the Rev. Bill Montgomery, son and family. They conducted a meeting here in 1931, and since that time they have been conducting meetings in the Middle West. His son is better known as "Sonny" Montgomry. We are expecting a great revival and everybody is cordially invited.

EASTVIEW

Miss Joyce Lohman is teaching a Bible school here. The school began on Monday with an enrollment of 21. Many more are expected to attend. The school is being taught free and the public has a cordial invitation to attend.

Rev. A. C. Nelson is spending this week at Mt. Springs where he is engaged in revival services.

There will be an ice cream and hot dog supper here Saturday night. Proceeds to go for the church.

Don't forget the revival meeting will begin here Saturday night before the fifth Sunday in this month and run the following week.

Slated For Clerkship In The Lower House

EDWARD F. TAYLOR

Edward F. Taylor, prominent Montgomerian, will be the next clerk of the Lower House of the State Legislature, according to pledges of support already received by him from a majority of the new house members. Mr. Taylor is a supporter of Col. Bibb Graves in the two recent gubernatorial primaries. With the backing of the incoming administration and the support already garnered by him from house members, his election is a foregone conclusion. With several years of legislative experience, the candidate is eminently qualified to fill the position to which he aspires, according to those closely associated with him.

LETTER OF THANKS

We, the Lunch Committee, of the P.-T. A. of Isabella school wish to express our appreciation to the patrons for cooperating with us on the Fourth of July. There was plenty of chicken, salad, etc., all because you responded to the call and did your part.

We hope to be able to respond likewise to your call when it comes your time to serve on this committee.

Signed, Committee: Mrs. Jeff Cobern, chairman, Mrs. E. Green, Mrs. Will White, Mrs. J. L. Connaway, Mrs. Earle Thomas, Mrs. Span Jones, Mrs. D. O. Manning, Mrs. O. Calfee.

Henry Cabel of Chicago left his bride-to-be waiting at the church with a note saying he was afraid to get married.

LITTLE MARTHA JANE HUDSON

Little Martha Jane Hudson 19-month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harr Hudson, died in a Montgomery hosp tal June 29 after a brief illness. Fu eral services were held from the hon of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S R. Hudson, Sunday, July 1st, at 10 a.m with Martin & Sons of Clanton in charge, Revs. Goss and Rogers of Marbury officiating.

Martha Jane was a beautiful bab girl and everybody that knew her loved her. We know that the lives in which she lived will be so lonely. Though all that is earthly of little Martha Jane has passed on, yet she will ever live in the hearts of those who loved her.

She is survived by her parents, one brother, Thomas Lee, grandparents, Mr and Mrs. S. R. Hudson and Mr. an Mrs. P. H. Connell and several uncle and aunts. Her uncles, Carey, and Frank Hudson, J. T. and Charles Connell were pallbearers.

HERE'S AN INSIDE TIP ON MOTOR CAR VALUE

DETROIT - the nation's motor capital - goes FORD V-8 three to one!

DETROITERS help to build most of the cars made in this country. They know what goes into them . . . and what their owners can expect to get out of them.

That's why Detroit's preference means something to car buyers in every other city in America.

This year Detroit's choice is three to one for the Ford V-8 . . . powerful evidence of the value these wise buyers know is built into this car. The truth is, that the more high priced cars you look at today, the more Ford V-8 features you'll see.

The only V-8 engine in a car under $2500 . . . torque-tube drive . . . improved clear-vision ventilation . . . dual down-draft carburetion . . . safety glass, and steel welded bodies.

Put this new Ford V-8 to your own tests, under your own conditions. Then you'll know why the men who build and know motor cars choose it.

Cardui Helped Lady For Nervousness and Run-Down Condition

"I have taken Cardui several times for weak, run-down condition and it has helped me," writes Mrs. Walter M. Coulon, of Forsyth, Ga. "I was nervous and suffering from a weak condition. There were days when I had to lie down during the day. I sent for six bottles of Cardui, as it had helped me before. Cardui gave me strength, stopped the nervousness and helped me in every way." . . . Cardui may be just what you need. It can't do you any harm, so why not try it? Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Ways To Control Insects Are Told

Auburn, Ala.—Control measurers for the fall webworm which has made its appearance in central and north Alabama are given by Prof. J. M. Robinson, Auburn entomologist.

The first generation, he says, is now spinning webs on pecans, hickory, and other deciduous trees. To reduce damage later, Prof. Robinson suggests that webs containing the worms be removed and burned immediately. The webs and worms may be destroyed by burning with a kerosene torch, being careful not to injure foliage and limbs of trees.

The Mexican bean beetle, he said, is unusually abundant this summer because of excessive rains but may be controlled by spraying on the under side of the leaves with a solution of 2 pounds of magnesium arsenate to 50 gallons of water.

Dusting is also effective if applied to the under side of leaves. One pound of magnesium arsenate mixed with 9 pounds of hydrated lime forms an effective dusting material. Dustings should be applied at weekly intervals until the beetles are under control.

Great damage to bean plants is caused by this insect as it feeds on the leaves, blossoms, and pods. Infestation is worst in central and north Alabama, Professor Robinson said.

Work Animals Have Shown Good Profits

o

The horse and mule business enjoyed more prosperity during the last 12 months than in any period since the war, says the Horse and Mule Association of America. Farmers, realizing horses are ultimate consumers of farm products, are depending more on animal power, it is claimed. And now saddlery interests are considering a drive to arouse interest in horseback riding. There are still over 15 million horses ano mules in herness in the United States, despite mechanization trends.

Meantime, county agents in Alabama are advising farmers to keep and raise colts.

News In Brief

Corn-hog contract signers are assured of accurate and rapid handling of their contracts for the issuing of benefit payment checks as they reach Washington after having been cleared locally and adjusted to state and county quotas

Termites, often known as white ants, eat out the inside of timbers in buildings, leaving eventually only the outer shell. Buildings heavily infested soon become unsafe for use. These tiny wood-eating insects are found throughout Alabama and cause considerable damage to dwellings in every county in the state.

A long time ago someone started false rumors that cucumbers contain a poisonous juice that must be soaked out in salt water. Cucumbers have no poisonous juice. And soaking them in salt water makes them limp, wilted and tough instead of crisp and fresh.

You can keep your dogs and cats away from flowers and shrubbery by spraying around your premises with a dilute nicotine suphate mixture. The spray is not only harmless to the plants, but actually helpful as it repels insects. Used so thinly that persons cannot easily smell it, it is still repellent to the sensitive noses of dogs. A gallon of water needs only 1½ teaspoons of the commercial nicotine sulphate.

THE TIRE SENSATION OF '34

Sells on Sight!

To SEE it is to buy it! That's the way extra value stands out in the new Firestone Century Progress Tire. We found out what car owners wanted most in a tire—then we gave it to them. Out of more than ten million visitors to the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year, we obtained this opinion: "Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a Moderate Price."

That was a large order, and the price part of it was our biggest problem. We said to ourselves: "Surely, if millions of people could get the tire they wanted, they would BUY!" We could see volume production . . . resulting in unbelievably low prices — and savings for millions of car owners who wanted the safety, long wear, and dependability of a first quality tire, at a price that would permit them to replace not only one tire but all four tires.

So we built the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. Then the wave of buying started—car owners from Coast to Coast bought — not just one or two tires — but complete sets!

Go to the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store in your community TODAY! See the new Firestone Century Progress Tire—just look at the broad, husky shoulders, massive flat tread, deep-cut non-skid and Gum-Dipped cords. Did you ever see so much tire for so little money? No wonder it's the Tire Sensation of '34 and Sells on Sight! Why not equip your car with a complete set—while prices are still at today's low level. And remember, you get the new Firestone Triple Guarantee

Bride Is Honored By Many Friends

Preceding her marriage on July 10th to Mr. W. N. Roberts of Pensacola, Miss Fannie Jo Scott of Verbena was the recipient of many delightful courtesies.

On June 8th, Miss Frances Gulledge entertained with a tea and kitchen shower. Misses Anna Stay and Carrie Gordon of Montgomery presided at the punch bowl, while several young cousins of the bride assisted in serving. About fifty guests called during the afternoon.

On June 20th, Mrs. James Fort and Miss Evelyn Buford gave a bridge luncheon and handkerchief shower at the home of the former in Auburn. Favors and high score prize were dainty pieces of petit point made by the hostesses.

On June 22nd, Mrs. Irby Deramus honored Miss Scott and Miss Elizabeth Hubbard, another prospective bride, at an afternoon bridge party. The honoree and Miss Mary Scott, who made high score, received dainty finger towels in pastel colors.

On June 27th Mrs. S. L. Gibson gave a lovely garden party. Assisting in receiving were Mrs. B. B. Comer and members of the wedding party. A bevy of the younger set, clad in bright organdie frocks, served ices.

On June 30th Mrs. John Ward and Miss Mary Scott, sisters of the bride, gave a seated luncheon. Attached to the place cards were rainbow-tinted bags filled with rice. Favors were purse pencils which were used after luncheon to write "telegrams" to the bride.

On July 5th Mrs. H. B. Oliver gave a large tea at her spacious home. On this occasion the bride displayed her trousseau to her friends. Punch and ices were served.

On the afternoon of July 6th Mrs. Barnett Deramus entertained. Co-honoree with Miss Scott was Mrs. Ed Gardien of Birmingham, sister of the hostess. After a series of bridge games, sandwiches and ices were served. Lovely prizes were awarded to the honorees and to Miss Bessie Gilmore who made high score.

On July 7th Miss Scott shared honors with Mrs. J. M. Jones of Atmore when Mrs. W. C. DuBose was hostess at a bridge luncheon. The color scheme of green and white was carried out in a very clever and artistic manner, especially at the beautifully appointed bride's table. The favors were tiny silver wedding bells.

Each honoree received a beautiful gift and Mrs. Barnett Deramus won the prize for high score.

Miss Lurline Harper of Birmingham is here spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. A. C. Harper.

Misses Annie Lamar, Mary Williamson of Verbena and Edna Williamson of Birmingham, who is visiting in Verbena were the guests of friends in Clanton Sunday.

Bankhead Act Will Be Effective Soon

The Bankhead Act which assesses a tax on all cotton produced in excess of 10,000,000 bales will be administered within the next few days.

Each farmer will make application and receive tax exempt certificates to sell a certain amount of cotton tax free. If he exceeds this allotment he will be required to pay 50% of the value of the cotton as a Federal tax.

Farmers who failed to sign contracts will receive allotment on the same basis of those who did sign contract. The difference being those who failed to sign will receive no rental and parity payments, according to County Agent Fant.

Black-Draught Good For Biliousness and Bad Taste in Mouth

"I have found Thedford's Black-Draught so good for biliousness, bad taste in the mouth and other disagreeable feelings due to constipation," writes Mrs. Mary Garner, of Burleson, Texas. "My mother used it for a number of years and we do not think there is a better medicine. I was pleased when I saw Syrup of Black-Draught advertised. I sent for it and gave it to my children (as a laxative) for colds and when they felt bad. Soon they felt fine." . . . Marriage Of Interest Is Solemnized In Verbena

The marriage of Miss Fannie Jo Scott of Verbena, Alabama to Mr. William N. Roberts of Pensacola was solemnized on Tuesday evening, July 10th, at the Methodist church in Verbena in the presence of many relatives and friends of the bridal couple. Dr. Stanley Frazer of Pensacola performed the ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion in a motif of green and white; ivy, banked palms and ferns covered a background of white; the altar and choir-lofts were outlined with white tapers.

Preceding the ceremony Mr. John G. Smale, Jr., of Berkley, California sang Grieg's "I Love Thee," Miss Frances Gulledge cousin of the bride, sang McDowell's "Thy Beaming Eyes," and Mr. S. L. Gibson played "O Promise Me" as a violin solo. The accompaniments were played by Mrs. Barney Roberts of Clanton.

The bridal party entered to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin.

Groomsmen were Clinton D'Alemberte, James Fort, Albert Boutwell, and Joe Carr Gibson.

The bride was preceded by her niece Miss Anne Ward, junior bridesmaid, who wore pink point d'esprit, and by her sister, Miss Mary Scott, maid of honor, who wore parchment lace and carried Talisman roses. Little Ellen Martin niece of the groom, acted as flower girl, and wore pink mousselin de soie.

The bride entered with her father, Mr. Samuel Scott, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his brother, Mr. J. M. Roberts, who served as best man.

The bride was a picture of youthful loveliness in her gown of ivory satin made with a yoke of rare lace. The veil of tulle was attached to a cap of lace and caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses, and wore an heirloom bracelet. Recessional was to the wedding march by Mendelssohn.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Scott, parents of the bride, entertained at an informal reception at which there were many out of town guests, in addition to the bridal party and relatives.

Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Roberts left for a wedding trip to Chicago, after which they will return to establish their home in Pensacola. The bride dressed for travelling in an early fall ensemble.

The bride, a graduate of Alabama College, has been a teacher at Pensacola High School for the past several years. Mr. Roberts is a member of one of the oldest families in Pensacola, and connected with the Muldon Motor Company in that city.

Here Again This Week

Now anybody would know that we are here again this week with this column without a name. It's really no problem to see that. Speaking of problems, we ran upon one the other day that has perplexed us to no little extent. The problem is to catch a butt-headed cow by the horns. Now figure it out for yourself.

Let's Not Forget

Which also reminds me that there is two dollars waiting for someone who gives us a suitable name for this column by August first. Believe you me, it is really two dollars in cash money with no strings of any color. We are fortunate, yes, very fortunate. Our plea for a name for this column has met with some response, but not enough. We are exceedingly pleased this week to publish some suggested names, received as per instructions last week, f. o. b. Here they are: Chilton Cup, Brim Full, Our Own, Bright Spots In Chilton, High Lights In Chilton's Spot-Lights, Chilton's Prize Box, Prize Box, Book.

Another Problem

Now the problem is beginning to thicken. We have the above group of suggested names, and in addition to that we have received these, Like It Or Lump It, We'll Tell 'Em, and What's New. Let's make this thing interesting, so send in your suggestions for a name for this column, and maybe we'll mail you that two dollars. Address it to "The Column Without A Name," care of the Chilton County News, Clanton, Ala.

Now For Some Action

What this world craves is action. It seems to be craving it so much that some guy may start a young war soon. but don't get excited on that. It is no special news. We've been talking and writing about wars since John Smith fell in love with Pocahontas. That is, if there ever was a John Smith and a Pocahontas.

This Business of Hell

Noticed in a daily paper the other day, or rather it was at night, an article from a fellow who wanted to argue a little about Hell. He went on at length to try to prove there is a Hell. Now, what gets me is what in the world does he know about it. I saw a social item in a paper not long ago which read like this, "The next meeting of the Womans Alliance to take up the matter of Cooperation will be hell on Tuesday afternoon." Now there may be something to that, you never can tell. Another news item appearing in a daily paper stated thusly, "The meeting of the pastors of the various churches was interesting and inspiring, and was hell at the regular meeting place Monday evening." So, the question arises, was it or was it? I'm asking you.

Going To Bust Wide Open

Some of these days, this town called Clanton and this county named Chilton is going to bust wide open for lack of room to expand. Right now the pressure on things is so great that if you pay much attention to it, you feel like busting wide open yourself. The postmaster appointment has simmered down to three, the post office building proposition is getting warmer every day, we have a bond election coming off soon, a building boom is approaching right in our face, the county picnic is taking shape, farmers are getting their government checks, business is picking up and on top of that we are going to have a big general political election in November. Yes sir, the tension is becoming tight.

Going To Chicago

Every day we hear of someone going to Chicago to see the Worlds Fair, and how we wish we could go. Now comes the Alabama Press Association with an "Alabama Special" train leaving Birmingham and for less than thirty dollars you can go all the way to Chicago and back on the special. Was talking to a fellow who went up there and he said, "I've been to Chicago, Ill., with emphasis on the Ill." It took me a long time to figure out what he meant, but when I learned he had tried to eat all the pop corn and drink all the red soda waters there I knew what he meant.

More Names Needed

I don't want to have to decide between two or three persons for that two dollars award for a name for this column, so send in your suggestions. If you don't believe we've got two dollars, just ask the Editor. But he wouldn't know. Anyway we've done put it in print so it's waiting for someone.

DEATH OF MRS. ARTHUR B. EDWARDS

On Wednesday evening, July 11, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Arthur B. Edwards and bore away the loving wife and mother to eternity. She was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson of Holtville. She had been in failing health for more than a year.

She was reared in Elmore and Chilton Counties, spending part of her married life in Georgia and Florida. She was 34 years of age. She married Arthur B. Edwards in 1920, and to this union was born 5 children.

There is a vacant place in our hearts that cannot be filled. Doctors, relatives, and friends did all that human hands could do but the Lord knew best. He needed another flower to bloom in heaven. She was ready and willing to go to that great Beyond where there will be no more sorrow and pain.

She is survived by her husband, Mr. Arthur B. Edwards; 5 children, Irene, J. B., Jack, Maybelline, Dorothy Lee, Edwards of Marbury; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson of Holtville; 5 brothers, Mr. Harvey Wilson of Columbus, Ga., Taft, Ivy, Leonard, Gaston and Melvin of Holtville; 4 sisters Mrs. M. D. Evans Mrs. Odis Adair and Miss Gertrude Wilson of Holtville and Mrs. Newel D. Roff of Verbena; also a grandfather, Mr. G. E. Wilson of Coosa River, and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held at the New Harmony church in Chilton County, Thursday evening, July 12, at 3:30 o'clock, the Rev. Dewey Evans of Marbury officiating.

IN MEMORY OF ELBERT CHANDLER

Elbert Chandler, age 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Chandler, died in a Selma hospital, July 5.

Elbert was a brave sufferer and bore his affliction with patience. Elbert knew no lack of parental care, love or affection. They were ever devoted to the interest of his health, and no effort was spared that could be put forth for his comfort. All was done that skilled physicians, nurses and friends could do until God in His all-wise power saw fit to call him to that Great Celestial City beyond where all is peace and rest. He is now with the greatest of all Physicians.

Weep not, dear loved ones, for the Lord Giveth and the Lord Taketh Away. So let us look to Him who is able to soothe our sorrows and heartaches, our heavenly father who is too wise to make any mistake; too great to be unkind. Grant us the spirit of reconciliation and submission and enable us to say, "Thy Will be Done."

IN MEMORY OF IMOGENE MIMS

Imogene Mims, the One-year-11-months-10 day-old daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mims, passed away on June 10, 1934, after an illness of about two weeks. All that medical skill and kind hands could do was done for her, but she steadily grew weaker until the kind Father above took her unto himself.

She was a patient sufferer, never complaining but bearing her pain with unusual fortitude. Many feverent prayers were offered by her parents and relatives and friends for her recovery but it pleased God to answer by saying no. He is too good to do wrong and too wise to make a mistake, hence we bow to His divine will. He needed her up there and we know that all things work together for good to them that love God. She leaves her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mims; one sister, Marie Mims; her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Madison Mims; Mr. and Mrs. Edd. Mims and a host of relatives.

The funeral was conducted at Oak Grove church near Cooper, Ala. The Rev. J. W. Hightower officiated, assisted by several friends. The text used was John 14:1.

that the rentals on the buildings occupied by the city amount to three or four hundred dollars per year, or thirty or forty per cent of the annual bond. Another saving by erecting a new city hall would be in reduced insurance premiums. The extension of the watermains would give service to approximately 100 families that do not have city water now, and would greatly reduce fire hazards and give fire protection to numerous homes in the outlying sections of the town. The plans call for approximately 11,000 feet of main.

Miss Lowe Marries Gordon Thompson

The marriage of Miss Edna Lowe of Clanton and Jasper, to Mr. Gordon Thompson, of Columbus, Ga., was quietly solemnized on Wednesday of last week, July 11th, at the bride's home, in the presence of a few relatives and close friends. Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist church, performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Thompson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Lowe, one of the oldest families in the county and well known in this section of the state. She is a graduate of the local high school and of the University of Alabama where she received two degrees. For the past several years she has been a popular member of the faculty of the high school in Jasper, Ala.

Mr. Thompson has quite a number of friends in this county, although the greater part of his time has been spent in Columbus, Ga., where he holds a responsible position with the United States government.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left for Miami, and other points in Florida for a brief wedding trip, after which they returned to Columbus where they will make their home.

ONLY FIVE TAKE TEACHER EXAMINATIONS THIS WEEK

Only five persons took the special examination given this week at the high school in Clanton for special teacher certificates. Luther E. Little, county superintendent of education, stated that this number is far below the number a few years ago, explaining that most teachers are licensed now by required work at colleges and other preparatory institutions.

Those taking the examinations which were held Monday and Tuesday were: Mrs. Laura Kilgore, Clanton, who made application for a first grade certificate; Mrs. Donnie Gray Mims, Clanton, first grade certificate; Edward H. Littlejohn, Jr., Lawley, first grade; Johnnie Plier, Clanton, life certificate and William H. Stroud Verbena first grade.

Killingsworth Reunion

An event of considerable interest of last Saturday was the reunion of the descendants of Peyton, Lyle, Felix and James (Jim) Killingsworth held in the oak grove at the home of Mr. Jim Killingsworth near Calera, who is one of the grandsons of Lyle Killingsworth. There were approximately 125 children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren present. The greatest number present were descendants of John Killingsworth, the oldest son of Lyle Killingsworth. A goodly number came from Birmingham, Calera, Montevallo, Thorsby, Jemison and Lomax. Many were unable to attend the reunion because of age, distance and illness.

Everyone enjoyed a bountiful dinner spread on tables under the shady oak trees. Mrs. Nannie Williams, lovely daughter of Mr. Jim Killingsworth, assisted by her two sisters, Mildred and Frances, served the lemonade.

The day was made more pleasant by music furnished by friends who were skillful players upon the violin, guitars and mandolin. The reunion was the first one held in 20 years. It was agreed that the reunion would be an annual event to be held the 2nd Saturday of July each year at the same place held this year unless otherwise notified.

"PETE" WILLIAMS, WELL KNOWN NEGRO, DIED TUES.

One of Clanton's well known negro men, Peter Williams, died in a government hospital Tuesday afternoon following a lingering illness. LEGIONNAIRES GO TO B'HAM. NEXT MONDAY

Wm. S. Pritchard

Birmingham, Ala.—Birmingham is draping itself in blue and gold as it prepares for the greatest invasion of the city by veterans since the World War. Legionnaires from the four corners of the state will advance on the Alabama Metropolis, Sunday, July 22 for the three day session of the 16th annual convention of the Alabama Department of the American Legion, which officially opens Monday, July 23rd.

Memebers of the Jefferson County Council of Legion Posts have been working for months to complete all arrangements for the convention and Col. Wm. S. Pritchard, general convention chairman now announces that the Magic City is ready to entertain its visitors as they have never been entertained before at a state Legion convention.

Col. Pritchard, head of the convention; Hugh Starnes, convention secretary; John P. Newsome, finance chairman; Miss Maude McLure Kelly, Auxiliary convention chairman and numbers of other committee heads state that all of the details have been worked out for the convention which is expected to bring 5000 visitors to Birmingham.

Each day as details of the various entertainments features are announced, it can be seen that the officials in charge have spared no expense to make the 16th annual convention the greatest in the history of the Alabama department.

The air show at the Municipal Airport will headline the array of entertainment features. Airmen from over the nation will come to Birmingham to compete in this show which wil be held Monday afternoon and to which the public as well as the legionnaires are invited to attend free of charge. Navy teams from Pensacola, Army planes from Montgomery, planes from Ft. Benning, Nashville and Atlanta will also be on hand to add to the event which promises to be one of the most spectacular in the history of the city.

Another feature will be the Formal Guard Mount to be engaged in by the 69th Coast Artillery and members of the Alabama National Guard at Woodrow Wilson Park, Tuesday afternoon. Many of the veterans have not seen this inspiring sight since their days in France and committee officials believe this will bring back many memories to the boys who served overseas in the years of 1917-18.

The official parade, featured by the appearance of the 69th Coast Artillery band, the Drum anl Bugle Corps, of Anniston, Ala., Post No. 26; the Drum and Bugle Corps of Alabama Post No. 111; the Gen Gorgas Post Band; the Avondale Mills Band; the Police Band and numerous other music producing units from over the state. The parade will start from Woodrow Wilson Park at 4:30 P. M. Tuesday.

Tuesday evening will witness the Old Timers Fddlers contest followed by the Grand Ball at the Municipal Auditorium led by State Commander W. A. Abranmson and State Auxiliary President Mrs. C. L. Salter. Mrs. William Henry Biester, Jr., of Philadelphia, National Auxiliary President will be in the reviewing stand and will acknowledge the leaders and their partners as they pass her in the grand march.

The Memorial services at Legion Field, with George Lewis Bailes in charge is a forerunner to the convention opening. This will be held at 7:30 P. M. Sunday. Convention headquarters of the Legion will be opened at the Tutwiler Hotel at noon Sunday and the auxiliary members will open their headquarters in the Thomas Jefferson Hotel at 3:00 P. M. Sunday.

The first official business session will be held at the Auditorium at 9 A. M. Monday with Commander Abramson calling the meeting to order. After the introduction of various guests and the welcoming addresses, Senator Hugo Black will address the gathering. Another feature of this session will be the introduction of Mrs. Chas. Miller, Little Rock, National Auxiliary Vice-Presdent.

John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of the National Legislative Committee of the Legion will be the principal speaker at the Tuesday morning session. Mrs. Biester is scheduled to arrive at noon Tuesday and will probably address the auxiliary in the afternoon.

The election of officers and selection of the 1935 meeting place will mark the concluding business session Wednesday morning.

Manager Bill Young of station WBRC plans to broadcast several of the convention sessions. His schedule calls for a broadcast of Senator Black's address around 10:30 A. M. Monday; broadcast of a portion of the Old Fiddlers Convention and the grand march Tuesday afternoon and the result of the election of officers and selection of next year's meeting place, Wednesday morning.

In addition to the principal convention features there will be a 4 and 8, 8 and 40 banquets; the dance of the One-Won Club; the Legislative and Unit dinners and the wrestling match at the Municipal Auditorium Monday afternoon to which official legion delegates will be admitted free of charge.

Atheletic contests will also be held in conjunction with the convention. The American Legion Junior Baseball tournament will be played at Howard College, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and a golf tournament for the Legionnaires will be held Wednesday afternoon. There will also be a swimming meet for the youngsters at the Birmingham Atheletic Club at 9:30 A. M. Wednesday and the city municipal pools and the Y.M.C.A. Facilties will be available during the three days by all registered delegates.

MORE CHECKS ARE RECEIVED FOR FARMERS

$50,012.02 Already Paid To Farmers Of County For Land Rent

The County Agent received 46 more checks for Chilton County farmers Saturday, July 14. Notices have gone to the farmers asking them to call for these checks.

The county has received to date $50,012.02 from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration as rent on land taken out of cotton production 1934.

The farmers have received payment on 2051 contracts. There are 589 contracts on which no payments have been received. Most of these contracts were sent back to the county for some reason or other and the errors cleared up and returned to Washington for approval. We hope it won't be many days until all farmers under contract will receive the first payment on the rent.

nate $50 to the project, and also the Legion Auxiliary will donate another $50. J. Mell Martin stated that several other private donations have been promised. He said that if the town and county will furnish the equipment, the other expenses can be raised by popular subscription.

Both Dr. Gragg and Mr. Wyatt discussed the water supply that is available for the swimming pool from the springs within the vicinity.

At the close of the meeting Tuesday night, it was indicated that Judge Reynolds will be asked to call a special meeting of members of the commissoners court in order that members of the town council may meet with them and make a more complete survey of the proposition.

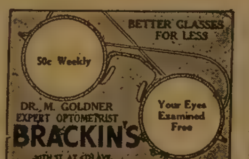
FIRE DAMAGES HOME OF J. B. ATKINSON TUESDAY NIGHT

Fire believed to have caught from the motor of an electric refrigerator damaged the home of J. B. Atkinson, in Clanton, Tuesday night.

Considerable water damage was incurred during the brief time before the blaze was extinguished by members of the Clanton Fire Department.

Loren Smith, chief of the fire department, stated that apparently the blaze had caught from an over-heated motor on the electric refrigerator, or from a defect in the wiring. The fire had gained considerable headway before it was discovered by Mrs. Atkinson. Mr. Atkinson was out of town, and no estimate of the damage was available.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Page and daughter, Peggy, and Mrs. C. E. Stapp of Selma are at Atlantic Beach, near Jacksonville, Fla., on their vacation.



Dr. Goldner, expert registered optometrist from Brackin's, will be at office with Dr. J. P. Hayes in the Exchange Hotel Building in Clanton

To all girls and ladies who are interested in a beautiful skin here are a few facts as told by Dr. Spiller, who has practiced medicine for 35 years and is an expert skin specialist:

If you have enlarged or clogged pores, oily or dry skin, blackheads, pimples, etc., nine times out of ten it is caused from face powder and rouge. Many diseases such as hay fever, bronchitis, erysipelas, even blindness, skin cancer, etc., can develop from cosmetics. Therefore everyone should really know what the cosmetics they use contain. Buying an advertised brand does not insure that pure ingredients are used because there is no federal law to prohibit manufacturers from using many poisonous things in making cosmetics, among them lead, orris root and starch. All these are harmful in ailments of the nose and eyes.

"Theo Bender" skin correctives are the only known cosmetics on the market today which have been accepted by the American Medical Board of U. S. and the medical department in Washington, D. C., as absolutely being pure and which will correct any skin disorder within a short time. "Skin Tone" is a creamy poultice which acts as a cleanser and is the only known product which will reach the sebaceous glands which is necessary to rid the skin of dirt, dust and all impurities. Therefore correcting, blackhead, enlarged pores, etc., which everyone desires, but has never found in most lines of cosmetics. A trial will convince you of its guarantee. To every customer buying one or more Theo Bender products we will give a free make-up showing you how it is applied and what results come from one treatment. This is an opportunity everyone should not miss if interested in getting a beautiful skin. Free make-up demonstration for a limited time.

COUNTY-WIDE PICNIC WILL DRAW CROWD

Next Thursday Brings Good Speakers Before People Of This County

Next Thursday, August 2, will be an important day in Chilton County, for that is the date when most of the county's population is expected to congregate in the Ben Sims oak grove north of Clanton for the annual county-wide picnic.

County Agent J. W. Fant announced Wednesday morning that he has definitely decided to have the county-wide get-together next Thursday. The date was orignally set for July 26, but Mr. Fant stated that several of the out-of-town speakers could not be here on that date so he picnic was postponed until a week later.

A varied program has been prepared this year, worked out jointly by Mr. Fant and Miss Ruth Pardue, county home demonstration agent. Members of the women's council of the home demonstration clubs are sponsoring the function this year, it was explained.

The program will begin at 9:30 a. m. when Percy M. Pitts will render a solo selection, followed by the Address of Welcome by Mayor J. Lee Smith and Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds. Mr. Fant stated that the speaker to deliver the response to the welcome address had not been selected this week.

At 10 o'clock, former County Agent C. E. Stapp will deliver an address. It was largely through Mr. Stapp's efforts that the county-wide picnic has become an annual affair. For several years during Mr. Stapp's tenure of office he sponsored this county-wide meeting to create a closer relationship among the county's citizenship. His address will be one of the outstanding features of the day's program.

Miss Ruth Pardue will be the next speaker on the program. She will explain the accomplishments of the home demonstration club work in this county during the past year. Miss Pardue is the county's first home demonstration agent and her work is receiving much praise from women in all sections of the county. Mrs. M. L. Batson, president of the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration clubs, will also deliver a lecture.

Congressman W. B. (Buck) Oliver will also be a speaker on the program. Congressman Oliver has taken an active interest in the agricultural development of Chilton County for some time. He has often been a visitor to this section and created a fund to encourage boys and girls in his district to take a keener interest in 4-H club work. The venerable statesman has appeared on the programs at several of the picnics in this county and has a wide following of friends in this section.

Pete B. Jarman will deliver an address on the subject "Purpose of the American Legion." In his race for a seat in congress, Mr. Jarman received a representative vote in this county and his address next Thursday will likely be received with great enthusiasm.

J. A. Beaty, general manager the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association, of Montgomery, will speak in the afternoon. Dr. L. N. Duncan, of the Auburn extension work, will also be a speaker on the day's program.

"Preacher" Salser, comedian member of the Birmingham Police Department, will supply wit and gaiety for the occasion, Mr. Fant stated. "Preacher" Salser has been kind enough to appear on several programs in this county and will be a big drawing card on the program Thursday.

Other features of the program will be: A dress Review; presentation of the 4-H Club Clothing Winners; a musical program under the direction of Lloyd Howard, of Thorsby; also a musical program by the Chilton County Ramblers; Hog Calling Contest; presentation of the Newest Newly-Weds, the largest family—all present, and the oldest-wedded couple—both present.

At the close of the program at the Ben Sims grove, a basball game will be staged at the Chilton County High School Park for the entertainment of those attending the picnic.

PIERCE CULVER IS NOW WITH THE YELLOW FRONT STORE

An announcement of considerable interest to many friends in this vicinity is the announcement that Pierce Culver is now connected with the popular Yellow Front Store of Clanton, in the grocery department. Pierce is quite well known in Clanton, having been employed here for several years. Much of his work has been connected with the grocery business, and the management of the Yellow Front Store is fortunate in securing his services.

Pierce declared to a representative of the News that he intends to really give service in his new work. He says that his friends will just come to see him and look over the merchandise he has to offer that he has no doubt he can please them.

'Twas Painful But Pups Took It With A Smile

Approximately 500 puppies in Clanton and older dogs, too, should be happy. It was a pain, put they took it with a smile—

Now there is no danger of them contracting rabies and endangering the lives of their owners and children playmates. They were given the anti-rabies immunization treatment Tuesday by Dr. W. L. Parrish and Dr. P. T. Hinkle.

Mayor J. Lee Smith stated late Tuesday afternoon that approximately 500 dogs had been treated during the day and because the supply of serum gave out it was necessary to quit before all the dogs had been treated. He said he did not know if another day will be set for the immunization of other dogs.

NEW OFFICERS FOR STATE FFA ARE ELECTED

Jemison Student Is Elected Head Of Organization In Alabama

At the annual F. F. A. meeting at Auburn on July 12-14, Ernie Lee Robinson a student of the Jemison High School was elected State President of The Alabama Future Farmers Association. With his election as presiednt of the State association Ernie Lee was conferred the highest honor that can be given an F. F. A. student. This association has a membership of 2000 boys.

There were 750 students in attendance at the annual convention.

Dr. L. N. Duncan in addressing the students said in substance, that Auburn looks upon this organization with the keenest interest for out of it will come Alabama's future agricultural leaders both in the services of the state and as leaders in their respective farming communities.

Mr. R. E. Camack, State Super visor of Agricultural Education and State F. F. A. Advisor was enthusiastic over the growth and development of the State F. F. A., and looks forward with optimism to the future of the association.

It was a distinct honor to Chilton County to have a boy selected as President. Ernie Lee Robinson in addressing the body outlined some of the objectives of the Association for the ensuing year, and the members feel that they have a capable and determined leader.

Clifford Manning, another Chilton County boy, of Isabella High School, was State reporter this past year and served this position with merit and credit to his school and to the State Association.

A complete list of the state officers for 1934-35 are: Ernie Lee Robinson, Jemison High School, President; Enie Young, Mt. Hope, Vice-President; J. P. Dodd, Walnut Grove, Secretary; Seales Menefee, Ramer, Treasurer; Sammy Pate, Columbiana, Reporter.

Chilton To Cooperate In '35 Relief Program

Assurance that Chilton County will share in the Federal Government's relief program during the year of 1935 was believed to be a certainty Tuesday afternoon, following the action of the county commissioners court in appropriating the equivalent of one cent of the county's three cent gasoline tax to be used jointly with Federal funds for relief during next year.

This action of the commissioners court made Chilton County the ninth county in Alabama to assure the Federal Government of its desire to cooperate in relief work during 1935, according to Judge L. H. Reynolds, who said that the proposal will be submitted to the State relief authorities.

Members of the court voted to appropriate the equivalent of one-third the county's share of the state gasoline tax after Judge Reynolds had explained that Thad Holt, Director Alabama Relief Administrator, told him Monday that only those counties which offered local cooperation will share in the 1935 program.

TWO MILLION DOLLARS TO BE SPENT IN STATE

Various Purposes Are Set Forth For Use Of This Huge Amount

Formal notice of a grant to Alabama of $2,000,000 of Federal funds to be expended for relief in this State during August, was received yesterday by Gov. Miller in a letter from Aubrey Williams, acting administrator of the FERA, this grant being made in accordance with the Governor's application forwarded to Washington on June 29.

The various relief purposes for which the $2,000,000 allocated to Alabama for the month of August is to be spent and the amount provided for each of these purposes follows: For general relief $1,371,985; for transient relief $46,000; for obligations incurred during July in connection with relief research projects $9,015; for rural rehabilitation $400,000; for educational programs $38,000; for professional work projects $45,000; for bringing in and distributing cattle from drouth areas $90,000.

On July 15 the Governor received and turned over to Thad Holt, State relief administrator, a check from the FERA for $2,492,450 to cover relief activities during July—this amount including $1,742,000 for general relief; $65,000 for transient relief; $78,000 for relief research projects; $500,000 for rural rehabilitation; $7,650 for financing a social workers training program, and $120, 000 for transportation into the State of cattle from he drouh areas tin the Northwest, and distributing them.

VOTE FOR A CITY HALL AND EXTENDED WATER MAINS

The time is drawing near when Clanton citizens will pass their verdict upon two very important proposed moves by their city government. Hon. J. Lee Smith, mayor, and the city council have made application to the PWA of the federal government for loans to extend the city water mains and to build a city hall. The applications have been approved, and now the matter is up to our citizenship to make the final decision.

So far as we know, no one is publishing much propaganda for or against these questions. City officials are letting the matter rest in the hands of the people. We know of no individuals who are taking very aggressive stands concerning the propositions. If this is an indication of calm, careful consideraton by the voters, all is well. The News, however, wants to make it a point to call attention to the election of July 30th and urge everyone in the Town of Clanton to vote on the questions submitted. We hope, too, that an affirmative verdict will be rendered, so that we can secure these needed improvements.

Unquestionably, those citizens who live within the city limits, but are located beyond the reach of present water system are justly entitled to the convenience and fire protection accorded those living closer in, as a reasonable return for the taxes they pay. It will mean a lowered rate of fire insurance, which will mean a considerable saving to property owners outside the present system. Another thing, if Clanton is to keep step in the march of progress, the extension of our water mains is an inevitable move sooner or later, and now seems to us an excellent time to do the job.

For a long time people have talked about building a city hall for the Town of Clanton, but not until now has everything been just right to actually build it. This matter also comes under the PWA program. Money will have to be borrowed, but it will be a long-term loan and the rate of interest will be low. Some, perhaps will object to borrowing money for this purpose, even though they might admit that a city hall would be a good thing. It is more than a nice thing, however. It is a good investment. For years the city has been paying rent for office space. Often as an economy measure adequate room for the transaction of court, room, etc., has been sacrificed. The town has no place to put its prisoners for safe-keeping and has to pay a turnkey fee when they are placed in the county jail.

The town, officially, has no place where its citizens can meet. Present plans call for a nice building and one large enough to take care of all reasonable needs. It would be something we could use to our benefit. The town's business could be conducted without cramping for space. It would be something we would all be proud of, and to which we would point with pride. True, it will cost some money. So do our paved streets. We will have to borrow the money, but it will be a good investment and save us money. We will have a long time to repay the loan, and rents, etc. saved will go a long way towards repayment.

Thirty percent. of this money, or above $9,000.00 on both projects, will be what is termed an allocation, and will not have to be repaid. It is not often, and very likely never again will we have a chance to obtain such a grant toward the construction of a city hall and water mains.

Another thing, these two projects will give employment to numbers of people in this vicinity, and we need to keep employment up.

Yes, we believe that now is the right time for Clanton to extend its water mains and to build a city hall.

FOR THOROUGH POLICE PROTECTION

Information has reached us that there is some contemplation of reducing the night police force of Clanton at the end of the next thirty days.

The News thinks that this is inadvisable and urges the city administration to use every means possible to avoid this step.

This is a protection with which the citizens of Clanton can't well dispense. Since an extra patrolman was placed on night duty, the number of burglaries has been greatly reduced. Past experience illustrates that it is impossible for one man to give satisfactory protection at night. It is too easy to note his whereabouts. This is not true when two officers are on duty.

If this step is being contemplated because of a lack of funds, we believe it would be wise to reduce expenses elsewhere, if that is possible, and continue this extra police protection. Merchants and business men should be willing to supplement the town funds if this is necessary in order that this protection not be hampered.

Brother Of Mrs. L. H. Reynolds Dies Satur.

Funeral services for James Z. Marshall, 76, brother of Mrs. L. H. Reynolds, of Clanton, who died early Saturday at his residence in Birmingham, were held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the First Christian Church in Birmingham. Burial was in the Elmwood cemetery.

Besides Mrs. Reynolds, Mr. Marshall is survived by his widow; two brothers, J. P. and W. L. Marshall; three daughters, Mrs. H. A. Stewart, Mrs. Vassar Redfern, of Birmingham, and Mrs. Walter S. Stallings, Jr., of Charlotte; another sister, Mrs. J. T. Saxon of Georgia; three sons, N. H. Marshall, of Texas, Homer C. and J. D. Marshall, both of Birmingham.

BANKHEAD ACT PLANS FOR THIS COUNTY NEAR

Plan Is Explained By The County Agent; Forms Expected Soon

Organization and plans for the administration of the Bankhead Cotton Act in Chilton County are rapidly being completed according to announcement of county agent, J. W. Fant.

Every detail that will help speed the work up when the necessary forms arrive from Washington is being attended to by the county agent and committeemen. These forms are expected daily.

When the forms are received and gotin shape meetings will be called at convenient points in the county where a headquarters will be established and cotton growers may come to make their applications for allotments and tax exemption certificates, more commonly called gin certificates.

Each 1934-35 coton acreage reduction contract signer will make application for all cotton grown on lands covered by his contract. In such applications all tenants and croppers will be listed and the gin certificates issued to each individual, cropper, tenant and landlord in accordance to the amount he is entitled to.

In case of cotton growers growing cotton on lands not covered by 1934-35 cotton acreage reduction contracts the following types of farmers will make applications:

1. Landowners.
2. Renters paying cash rent.
3. Renters paying standing rent in cotton.
4. Share-tenants or croppers operating an entire farm.

Letters are being received by the county agent from growers making application for gin certificotes. All these applications will be made on an official form furnished by the Government.

There are only two forms, one an application and the other for listing each farmer's equity on a given farm.

The plan is comparatively simple and can be speedily put into operation when the proper forms are received.

When applications are finished they will be sent to the Alabama State Allotment Board which will issue the gin certificates, forward them to the county agent's office to be distributed to the growers.

Applications covering all cotton growing on July 1st will be necessary if the grower is to secure gin certificates and sell any of his cotton tax exempt. The tax is half the average market price not to be less than 5 cents per pound. The tax rate will be set by the Secretary of Agriculture as the price varies from time to time.

Due to the large number of cotton growers in Chilton County and the large numbers of papers to be handled the committeemen and county agent emphasizes the importance of full cooperation on the part of every grower in the county in getting their applications properly made out in order that the work may be carried on as speedily as possible, and to insure the issuance of the gin certificates as soon as possible.

Crowds Attend The "Sale Of Progress"

"The Sale of Progress," which is being conducted by The Leader, popular Clanton mercantile establishment, is one of the most sensational sales ever launched in this section, according to Maurice Lande, manager of the firm, who stated that the sale has been a huge success to date.

Crowds were waiting Friday morning for the doors of the store to be opened —and at no time during working hours since the beginning of the sale has the store not been crowded with customers, eager to take advantage of the numerous bargains being offered during the sale, Mr. Lande continued.

Values the like of which are not likely to be had in Clanton again in many years are being offered during this sale. Prices are climbing and it will be impossible to repeat these bargains after this stock is unloaded, the genial manager of The Leader announced. "Much of our stock was bought before the higher prices became effective, thus we are able to offer these attractive bargains to our customers," Mr. Lande said

In this issue of the News will be found an advertisement, listing a few of the hundreds of bargains that may had at the Leader during the "Sale of Progress." Read this advertisement and visit this store

CITIZENS WILL DECIDE FATE OF CITY HALL

Special Ballots Are Prepared For Voters In Bond Election Monday

The fate of the proposal to build a new brick city hall in Clanton and extend the watermains will be decided next Monday, July 30, by the town's legal voters.

Approximately 500 voters in Clanton are expected to voice their opinions regarding the advisability of borrowing $32,000 from the Public Works Administration for the purpose of erecting a new city hall and adding approximately 11,000 feet of watermain to the city's water system.

Special ballots have been prepared which permits the voter to vote for either of these improvements without advocating the other, however, judging from the expressed opinion of many of Clanton's business leaders, there is little doubt that both proposals will pass with a large majority.

In discussions with a dozen or more of the leading business men, the concensus of expression was that "We can't afford to miss this opportunity to have a much-needed city hall and to extend the water system into sections of our town not having this service and protection."

With 30 per cent of the loan an outright grant from the Federal Government, many expressed the opinion that Clanton will not likely ever have this opportunity to secure these improvements.

In discussing the election next Monday, Dr. E. E. Upchurch declared that he can see no reason why any voter will not favor both the city hall and the watermain extension. These improvements, he continued, are badly needed and this opportunity to get them will not likely be available in many years.

J. Mell Martin, who is enthusiastically in favor of both improvements, said that it is an opportunity that the citizens of Clanon just can't afford to let pass them by.

Several other business leaders are equally enthusiastic for the passage of the bonds. Luther E. Little, president of the Kiwanis club, declared that he is heartily in accord with the movement and said that he would like to organize the Kiwanis to explain the propositions. Councilman L. E. Diefenderfer said that in his opinion it would be nothing short of tragic for voters of Clanton not to avail themselves of this opportunity to secure these improvements to their town.

J. Watts Moore, another member of the council, declared that he is in favor of the loan. He explained that the actual cost will not be nearly so much as the face of the loan. Thirty per cent will be an outright grant; those who are benefitted by the extension of the watermains will pay the $9,000 for that improvement in meterage in a period of years, and more than half the amount the city hall will cost will be saved in rents and lower rates of insurance.

J. Renfroe Mullins, when asked his opinion regarding the proposition, declared that all the members of the council are exceptionally capable business men and if they think it wisdom to make this loan that he is heartily in accord with them.

Former Clanton Resident Accident'ly Killed

William Gowan, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Gowan, of Brewton, formerly of Clanton, was killed almost instantly last Wednesday morning, when he accidentally grasped a live wire while repairing an electric sign for an oil company of which he was a local manager.

Young Gowan was a member of one of Clanton's oldest families. Dr. A. M. Gowan and his brother, Dr. Earl Gowan, developed the Gowan Addition in Clanton and were instrumental in the early development of the town. He is also a grandson of Mrs. W. I. Mullins.

He was born and reared in Clanton, but removed with his family to Brewton several years ago, where he was a prominent young business man.

Surviving him are: his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Gowan, a twin sister, Miss Mildred Gowan, and a younger sister, Sarah Frances, all of Brewton. He is survived by several uncles, aunts and cousins in Clanton.

Burial was in Brewton.

Benefits Of NRA

The outstanding feature of NRA", said E. A. Watkins, president of the Watkins Manufacturing Co., of Wichita, Kans., to the Beacon of that city, upon his return from an extended trip through eastern and northern industrial centers, "is that it has made many large corporation employers 'employee conscious.' Heretofore many employers have paid too little attention to the welfare of their workers, and they now freely admit it. But as a result of NRA, they say they have come to realize that their welfare is largely dependent upon the welfare of the men and women working for them."

In an extended interview with the paper of his home town, Mr. Watkins described "vast improvements in morale of employers and employees and in living conditions which only a short time ago had been almost unbelievable." What he had seen he said was a "veritable revelation and shows plainly the huge benefits brought about by NRA."

Referring to his own concern in Wichita, employing 1,500, he said his company had "recognized the fact that unless we have employment for our workers and at truly living wage, as the President advocated, we cannot have buyers for our own goods. The incomes we thus create are equally as much in our own behalf, because they are spent with us here in Wichita for what we have to sell. NRA benefits are traveling in a never-ending circle. More and more men are going back to work at living wages, and there is constantly increasing spending power. The inevitable result is increasing volume of sales. It has been and is being demonstrated. And we owe its continuance as wll as its inception to the impetus given industry by NRA."

Speed And Your Pocketbook

Excessive pressure on the accelerator has sent thousands of automobile passenger, drivers, and pedestrians hurtling to destruction, and is responsble for more than half of our 30,000 deaths and 850,000 injuries annually, according to the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters.

Thus far, humanitarian considerations apparently have not impressed drivers as reason for exercising greater care in regard to speed. However, recent investigations of Clarence P. Taylor of the Massachusetts Motor Vehicle Department, constitute a serious challenge to the driver's pocketbook, and may therefore bear greater weight.

It is vastly more expensive, Mr. Taylor found, to operate an automobile at speeds in excess of 30 miles per hour. The faster a car goes beyond that rate, the more gas it consumes per mile—at 75 miles per hour over twice as much gasoline is required to go the same distance as at 20 miles per hour. In addition, wear and tear on the tires and on the car mechanism itself is greatly increased, so that a motor vehicle habitually driven at high speeds wears out much quicker than a car driven at moderate speeds.

The subject of "safe speeds" is everywhere controversial, but it is agreed that conditions on the highway must govern acceleration. It is frequently as dangerous to drive slowly on an express highway as it is to speed through ocngested districts. Speeds in excess of 45 miles per hour, it is said, are almost always in the danger zone.

Driver, moderate your speeds to suit them to conditions on the highways. You will save money in gasoline consumption, repair bills, taxes and insurance costs—and, above all, you will save lives.

Out Of The Summer Air

All thought is like seed wafted upon the air, and borne by the breeze finds soil on which to grow. Sometimes it flourishes like weeds, and at other times remains obscure until some explorer interested in far-off places, goes in search of it.

Sometimes the most superficial, irrelevant remark that seems to have no bearing upon anything else, awakens a line of thought that gains momentum and weight as it goes along until it assumes importance and greatness.

Thought is not necessarily constructive, but in the long run this kind of thinking languishes and is sickly for lack of nourshment. Sometimes significant thought is lost for a generation or two for lack of proper understanding, which is its natural soil, but is certain to crop up again sometime, somewhere.

No expression of thought, whether verbal or written, or joined with thought from other mind remains barren. There seems to be some law in operation that rules over energy of all kinds that joined with some other produces something.

Everything has its use, no matter how obscure and humble it may seem at the time. It is our lack of understanding of the operation of all these laws that prevents us from making the universe, the Utopia that men, often in despair and anguish have dreamed it to be.

The things that grow in men's minds are far more important than the things that make this physical environment. It is with our minds that we make reality of our circumstances, and our will that ultimately rules our destinies. The forces in operation should not be stronger than man himself, although man in despair often proclaims them to be.

Although riches do assure comfort, they do not guarantee happiness, and it is happiness that man ultimately seeks.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Governor Miller's Financial Report

An interesting letter from Gov. B. M. Miller, dated July 30, and addressed to "The Senators and Representatives of Alabama" has come to our attention. With the letter is a copy of statement of Comptroller Hard, on the financial condition of Alabama during the first nine months of this fiscal year, October 1, 1933 to July 1, 1934.

Gov. Miller commends the legislators in adopting the Fletcher Budget law and of the voters of the State in placing it in the Constitution of Alabama.

Among other things he says: "The letter and statement reveal facts showing Alabama is living within her income, and during the same time there was $1,750,000 00 paid in retiring bonds."

He explains that there is now cash in the treasury sufficient to pay during the last three months of the year, when little general revenue is received, the necessary running expense of the government; and states that "Alabam can, and Alabama is living within her income."

Gov. Miller calls attention to the fact that the State's annual income is greatly reduced, but that in spite of this Alabama is "Living within that annual revenue, paying the principal and interest on its bonded indebtedness as it matures." Continuing, he very graciously gives the credit for these things to the legislators and to the voters.

Gov. Miller has guided the State of Alabama through a stormy season. He has been the butt of sarcastic remarks, jibes, organized and unorganized attacks, et cetera. Through it all he has maintained a most admirable calmness. His tenacity in sticking to his convictions in spite of "hell and high water" has been the subject of much condemnation by those opposed to his policies, but even his bitterest enemies have not assailed his motives.

Economy is a bitter pill to take whether it means a cutting down of our personal expenses or the whacking off of governmental parasites. In either case it usually has to be forced upon us, and at least during the process, we are more than likely to kick and buck.

Afterwards, however, there is likely to be a change of feeling. It seems probable that this more pleasant reaction is coming to Gov. Miller now, and that present prospects indicate he will go out of office far more popular than he has been during most of his administration.

Much good has undoubtedly been accomplished and the people of Alabama are bound to recognize it sooner or later. We are glad that it may come while this white-haired man of seventy years can enjoy the approbation of his fellow man.

For we doubt if Gov. Miller's administration has been pleasant to him a great deal of the time. In the passing of his wife he sustained the greatest loss which could come to him. Often, we imagine, it would have been far easier for him to have been more diplomatic. We would not say all of his actions or policies have been good, but unquestionably much of value has been accomplished.

And whatever history may record of his administration, it will never say that Gov. Miller failed to "stand by his guns."

Investing In Better Living

To buy a modern home, small or large, expensive or inexpensive, is to make an investment in better living.

Construction has stood still the past few years, ever since it tumbled to the depths with depression, but contractors, designers, builders and equipment manufacturers have continued to improve their services and commodities.

They have given us not only more comfortable, but more efficient homes—homes in which four or five rooms do the work that six rooms used to do. They have given us new ideas of heating, ventilation, air-conditioning, furnishing, designing.

They have given us mechanical equipment which can be adequately described only by the word "marvelous"—equipment which is more-than-human in doing work inexpensixely and quickly, that used to take back-breaking hours before a furnace or over a washboard.

And, to cap the climax, building costs are still well below normal levels. There are plenty of skilled and unskilled workmen. When we build we give men jobs and not only get a bargain for ourselves, but advance recovery by stimulating purchasing power and industrial production

There are few better slogans than "Build Now—Repair Now!"

A Texas "Sissy"

A man came into an Arkansas town driving two mountain lions hitched to a small rig and using a live rattlesnake for a whip. He drove up to the town hitching post, hitched his team, stuck the whip in his pocket, and walked into the general store and asked for a drink. "How about a coke?" asked the storekeeper. "Nothing stronger?" queried the tough guy. "Got some likker," said the storekeeper. The stranger again asked for something stronger. "Wal," drawled the Arkansawer, "I got some carbolic acid. You can take some sulphuric acid for a chaser." "Okay, pal, less see it," and Mr. Tough Guy downed three in the bat of an eyelash. "Stranger," asked the storekeeper, "where are you from?" "West Texas," snapped the stranger. "Why'd you leave?" "Got run out," again snapped the stranger. "Why?" Here the Texan fumbled his hat a bit and looking sheepish, answered: "Aw, they said they didn't want any sissies out thar."—Exchange.

Changed Railroad Policy Needed

It is an undisputed fact that the railroads pioneered the development of the West. Without the shining rails that, at great cost in money and labor and lives, were laid between the Pacific and Atlantic, there could have been no commerce worthy of the name, no important investment of capital, no high degree of western civilization.

In that connection, it is interesting to observe that more than 25,000 miles of main line railroad, including all the trunk lines that led in western development, could not have been built if the federal policies of the past had been like those of the present, according to Z. G. Hopkins. Around these thousands of miles of road has been built the vast transportation network that now serves all the western states.

In those days the railroads were allowed a wide measure of freedom in rate-making policies, which permitted them to make adjustments to fit new or changed conditions. They were not stringently regulated while their competitors were unregulated. They were not ruled in an iron-handed, inflexible fashion. And the result was that they progressed and went forward without wavering, to the benefit of the entire nation.

Mr. Hopkins makes the suggestion that the railroads be relieved to some degree at least from regulations which do not apply to their competitors—a viewpoint shared by Federal Coordinator of Transportation Eastman and others That is certainly reasonable.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

A car load of sportsmen from south-east Alabama went to the Dead Lakes in Florida for a season of fishing. A typical Florida darkey was employed to be master of all trades on the fishing jaunts. One of the men ventured to ask uncle Remus if he had any character. The old darkey replied "No sar, boss, I do not have de money to buy it wid." At the close of a day's fishing another member of the party ventured to remind Uncle Remus that the way he acted they had decided that he had no character at all. Then the man replied, "No sar, boss, I told de gentleman dis morning dat I had no money to buy dat stuff wid." Then he continued his information by saying, "De mos ob de white gentlemen's who come down here bring dey characted wid dem." Doubtless the old darkey thought that character was the stuff that was carried about in bottles. It is a fact that we have lots of folks today who are carrying their characters around with them in bottles. I warn you to give a wide berth to anyone who carries his character in a bottle.

My wife told me to make some tea for dinner. I had seen her take the tea and put it into an egg-looking recepticle and then dip it into water and make tea, and I proceeded to follow her example, but no tea was made. I sought advice as to why I had failed and she informed me that the tea had to be dipped into boiling water. The water was made hot and when I dipped the tea into the hot water I soon had a supply of good tea for the glass that was filled with ice. It took hot water to get the tea strength out of the tea weed. I have found the same thing to be true of many folks. It is just out of the question to get anything that is worthwhile out of some folks until you make it hot for them. When we dip dried up, sleepy, indifferent people into seething situations we are able to stir them to action that will produce things worthwhile. Make up your mind to make it hot for some folks if you want to get anything out of them.

In one of my services no one was present to play the musical instrument and I asked a man in the audience who had a feminine voice to raise a hymn. He made his selection and then pitched his song in a high note. He had not gone very far in his musc before he was shrieking like he was in agony. The notes of the song called for him to go higher and higher and soon his song had disappeared in agony of voice and sound. He cleared his throat and said, "I pitched her too high." It was useless for him to say that for we all knew it. He who pitches too high will not get through his song. Happy is that man who can strike the right key when he starts out to sing the song of life.

I was in a home where there were no flowers around the place. The mother was lamenting that the ground around her house was too poor for roses and other varieties of flowers. I thought to myself: My good woman that is no excuse for not having flowers. You could soon make it rich by bringing in leaf-mold and new soil. We look upon many lives every day that are poor and needy, and many such people lament that there is no hope for them. We hear them saying, "I would do this and that but I cannot, I am too poor." Much poverty of today in soul life is produced by an unwillingness to produce rich soil for soul growth." I can't be cheerful, I can't be sweet-spirited, I can't be forgiving", says the man, the woman. The beautiful roses of character can grow in any life where the person is willing to pay the price for rich soil in which they can flourish. Make rich the soil of your soul that roses may bloom in your life.

On our farm there was a kind of grass that grew in great clusters. It was known as "Tumble Grass." When the cool winds of October would come this grass would break from its moorings and the winds would blow it in every direction. North, east, south, west, the grass would roll. It was subject to the wind currents and would always roll with the wind. There are thousands of men and women in the world today who are "Tumble Grass" before the currents of this age. They respond to every wind that blows and are just as uncertain as the currents of the air. Stone Mountain has not moved in many centuries and it is there in spite of winds and storms.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 9— Appointment of Miss Odelle Stewart, home economics worker, to direct the Electric Home and Farm Authority's program of cooperation with home makers at Athens, Alabama, was announced today by Miss Eloise Davison, EHFA electric service director.

Athens is the first Alabam municapality to distribute TVA power at TVA rates, and to be authorized for EHFA financing of retail sales of approved electrical appliances.

Miss Stewart is a native of Weogufka, Alabama. She attended Alabama College, Montevallo, from Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, in 1929.

Miss Stewart was employed at Birmingham successively by an electric refrigerator manufacturer, a refrigerator distributor, and the local power company. She was a teacher in the Wetumpka, Alabama, high school last year.

FANT GIVES ADVICE ON PLANTING IRISH POTATOES

It is difficult to keep Irish potatoes from the spring crop during the hot summer, but if you plant fall potatoes about August 10th in this county on moist land, it is possible to make plenty of potatoes to use during the winter.

To grow a fall crop it is necessary to do one of two things:

1. Get Florida grown seed and plant the same as your spring crop, or (2) Treat your home grown potatoes with Ethelene Chlorhydrin.

To treat seed potatoes with Ethelene Chlorhydrin use one pint of Ethelene Chlorhydrin to 4 gallons of water. Cut the potatoes ready for planting and place them in the above solution. Leave in cool place for 10 to 12 hours; take out of the solution and plant.

Plant in deep furrows and cover with a scooter plow. List on this ridge with a turn plow in such way as to cover the potatoes about eight inches dep. Ten days after planting remove the ridge to within about 3 inches of the potatoes.

GAS MILEAGE DEPENDS ON THE DRIVER

Ford V-8 Tests Show How Greater Economy May Be Obtained

How many miles per gallon of gasoline do you get? Operating economy in a motor car depends as much on the driver as on the car, according to E. D. Bottom Atlanta Ford Branch Manager.

"You hear motorsits claiming high mileage and others maintaining that their cars are 'gas hogs.' Often there is a wide variance in these claims even when they involve the same make of car," he said, "and this usually is due to the fact that no two motorists drive alike. Some drivers have a habit of touching the accelerator while in neutral at a traffic light, just to hear the hum of the engine; others make frequent spurts with consequent waste of gasoline through flooding the carburetor. Continuous high speed, of course results in the excessive use of gasoline.

'Specific examples of the fact that operating econonmy depends largely on the methods of driving is contained in records secured by the Ford Motor Company from 53,448 owners of the Ford V-8 who had driven their cars half a billion miles. The records showed the average gasoline mileage to be 16 per gallon, but almost 25 per cent of these owners got very much higher mileage—from 18 to 20 miles or more per gallon.

Those records were made with the 1933 Ford V-8. This year's cars give even better mileage, for the use of dual down-draft carburetion and refinements in the engine have increased the operating economy of the new cars. This is conclusively shown in an accurate record of the cost of a 7,162-mile trip to the Pacfic Northwest recently made with a 1934 Ford V-8 by the principal of a Concord, W. V., high school. Although his road speed ranged from 50 to 60 miles per hour and the trip included hundreds of miles of desert driving, and climbing of many mountains, including Pike's Peak, he used only 380 gallons of gasoiine with an average of 18.8 miles per gallon.

"Motorists who compare the mileage of their present Ford V-8 with the mileage they got from the Ford cars of a number of years go, should remember that today they are driving very much faster than they did a few years ago. Today's cars, if driven at the speeds commonly used fifteen or twenty years ago, would give greater mileage per gallon of gasoline. As a matter of fact, today's Ford V-8 is the most economical car to operate that Ford has ever built. The economy that various owners get, however, depends largely upon the manner in which they drive."

LOW FIRST COST!
$505 and up, F. O. B. Detroit. Ford V-8 prices are at their 1934 low.

LOW UPKEEP COST!
The new Ford V-8 is the most economical car to run that Ford has ever built.

HIGH TURN-IN VALUE!
Year after year the record shows that Ford cars retain an unusually great per cent of their original value.

THE Ford V-8 would be a great buy even at a much higher price. It's the only V-8 selling for less than $2500. Ford alone has been able to put a V-8 engine in a low price car.

The first cost of a Ford V-8 is decidedly low. But that saving is only the beginning.

Ford V-8 valves never need grinding. Carbon removal is virtually eliminated. The new Ford V-8 consumes less gasoline and oil than last year's Ford which made such a great record for economy. And Ford V-8 parts cost from 23 to 54% less than parts for any other car.

In addition, on that distant day your Ford V-8 earns its honorable retirement, you'll find that it has a high trade-in value. The record of years proves it.

Newest Plymouth A Sure Winner

Special Six Has Gained Popularity With Dealers And The Public

Announced only a short time ago—the latest addition to the Plymouth line already has won popularity. The car is the Plymouth Special Six, which is now in full production and is on display at Polk Brothers Motor Co., Inc.

The Plymouth Special Six is "designed for motorists who want luxury features at the lowest possible cost, plus the latest in engineering and mechanical advantages." Models include a four-door sedan, two-door sedan; a town sedan, with built-in trunk; rumble seat coupe and a business coupe.

The Plymouth Special Six not only has unusual performance abilities, but also an array of new "deluxe" features.

According to Mr. George C. Polk Plymouth sales thus far this year more than double the same time last year, the introduction of the Special Six now gives Plymouth the most complete line of cars in the low price field.

In the interior of the car, the seat cushions have extra padding and upholstery. The instrument panel has an ash receiver and a glove box. There is a new attractive sun visor, adjustable to any position. In the rear seat are two recessed arm rests and two ash receivers. There is also a plated rail foot rest.

"Overall length of the new car is 181½ inches. With the new all-steel artillery wheels, the new radiator grille and the dua horns, the Special Six has a decidedly big car appearance. "The Plymouth Special Six, of course", said Mr. Polk, "has such typical Chrysler Motors features as four-wheel self-equalizing hydraulic brakes and a Safety-Steel body. Floating Power, first introduced in the Plymouth car and since adopted for all the Chrysler Motors products, is of course retained in this new model, insurinb a smoothness of performance and an absence of vibration that cannot be duplicated without this feature."

"The Plymouth Motor Corporation's low-priced line includes the lowest priced car with hydraulic brakes and the lowest-priced four-door six-cylinder sedan in the world. The Plymouth De Luxe Six, with 114 inch wheelbase, is the largest car of its type in the low price field," Mr. Polk concluded.

Musical Program At M. E. Church Here 26

According to information given he News by Mrs. Percy Pitts a very delightful musical program is in store for Clanton people next Sunday night, July 29th, at the Methodist church here. Mrs. Pitts is organist at this church each Sunday evening, and it is through her efforts that this program is being put on at this time.

Miss Beverly Hester, a talented former Clanton young lady, will preside at the organ, and Mrs. Roderick Beddow of Birmingham will render several vocal numbers. Miss Hester is well known here, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hester, and having finished garmmar and high school here. After completion of college and post-graduate work in music she has been music instructor at Judson College for some time.

Mrs. Beddow is quite well known in Clanton having taken part on several musical programs here before.

The recital will begin at 8:00 o'clock and take the place of regular preaching services. The public is most cordially invited to attend.

VERBENA BOYS TO MEET 'DADS' IN NINE-INNING DUEL FRIDAY

A gem in the field of sports entertainment will be the baseball game Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when the boys of Verbena will meet their "dads" in a nine-inning duel on the high school diamond.

This contest promises to be one of the most interesting feats seen in this section in many moons, according to an annoucement by S. L. Gibson, who is sponsoring the game.

Mr. Gibson urges everyone to attend and thus encourage the boys to take a keener interest in clean and healthy sports. The admission to the game will only ten cents, he stated.

DEVAUGHN CONCERT AT COURT HOUSE HERE SATURDAY NIGHT

Prof. W. M. Devaughn will present his singing school pupils in a concert at the courthouse in Clanton Saturday night, July 2th, beginning at 8 o'clock. This concert is the closing exercises of his school which he has been teaching at Thomas Jr. school building for the past three weeks.

The program will last for about one and one-half hours and will consist of chorus singing, solos, duets, trios, quartets, string music, etc. Prof. Devaughn assures his friends that they will enjoy the numbers on this program, adding that he believes his class at Thomas has been the best he has ever worked with.

An admission charge of 10 and 15 cents will be made. The public is cordially invited to attend.

THERMOMETER HITS ON HIGH OVER ALABAMA

Other Sections Feel Heat Wave With Many Reported Dead

With the mercury soaring well above the 100 mark in many sections of the north and northwest, the death toll from heat had reached 180 several days ago.

Seventy more deaths were reported during the past week-end, bringing the total number of deaths from heat during this summer to 406.

Little hope for relief was seen in these sections of the country as the mercury continued to mount and prospects for rain were not very bright. The sun blazed most fiercely in the Middlewest where crops are already seared and heat a record unparelled since 1901 has been experienced.

Although a few degrees blow Friday's record-breaking highs in some cities, Saturday's onslaught brought scores of heat prostrations along with the 70 deaths attributed to the discomfort.

The toll for three days in Chicago rose to 29. Missouri's list of heat victims struck 42. Nebraska blamed the wave for 32 deaths.

Elsewhere totals were:

Kansas 11, Oklahoma 7, Connecticut 2, Minnesota 8, Illinois 33, Iowa 11, New York 4, Texas 10, Pennsylvania 2, Ohion 10, Michigan 3, one each in Arkansas, Indiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Rhode Island, Kentucky 3, Georgia 2, Massachusetts 3 and Washington, D. C., 2.

While its suburbs baked in temperatures as high as 110, Chicago had the uncertain benefit of a capricious lake breeze.

Detroit was cooler by about 10 degrees than on Friday, Dallas by five. New Yorkers were surprised by a 17-degree climb to a reading of 94. In Hagerstown, Md., one of the city's most severe electrical storms broke a 101-degree day, and rain and hail ended a six-weeks drouth.

High marks of the day included:

Atlanta, 95.
Indianapolis, 104.5.
Washington, 98.
Lexington, Ky., 97.
Philadelphia, 95.
St. Paul, 103.
St. Louis, 103.

NOTICE

Notice of Filing of Bill of Complaint by the State of Alabama, Complainant, vs, One Buick Automobile, 1932 Model, Respondent.

State of Alabama, Complainant, vs, One Buick Automobile, 1932 Model, Respondent.

In the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, in Equity.

The Bill of Complant of the State of Alabama, on the relation of G. C. Walker, as Deputy Solicitor of Chilton County, against one Buick automobile, 1932 model, being exhibited to me, and it appearing therefrom that on the 19th day of June 1934, one, Clyde Smith, did transport in One Buick automobile 1932 model, certain prohibited liquors and beverages, from one point in the State of Alabama to another, and that said automobile was on said day seized by the Sheriff of said County and said Bill of Complaint praying that said automobile be declared forfeited to the State of Alabama, and for an order of condemnation and sale thereof.

It is therefore ordered and decreed that notice of the filing of said Bill of Complaint be given for three successive weeks in the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, and that all persons claiming or asserting any right, title or interest in said automobile be required to appear and assert such claim by the 14 day of August, 1934, and that failing so to do, the said right, title or interest will be forever barred.

Given under my hand, this the 23 day of July, 1934.

F. LOYD TATE, 7-26-3t.
Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit.

CLANTON-ROCKFORD ROAD AND FERRY NOW IN GOOD SHAPE

Of wide interest to the traveling public throughout this section is the news that the Clanton-Rockford Road is in good condition. For a long time there has been a short distance of bad road on the Coosa side which badly crippled the utility of the entire road. This has now been repaired and all the way the road is in splendid condition.

Another item of interest to those who have not traveled this way recently is the prompt, courteous service rendered by the management of the ferry below Mitchell Dam. A new motor boat is being used to propel the ferry, the landing on each side is being kept up, and long waits are eliminated. Day or night, any time, travelers are promptly ferried across, all of which adds greatly to the value of Alabama's investment in this highway.

ONE IS KILLED TWO ARE HURT NEAR LAY DAM

Residents Of Birmingham Figure In Fatal Accident Last Sunday

A fishing excursion ended in tragedy early Sunday morning when one man was instantly killed and two other persons were injured when the car in which they were riding left the road and toppled over a fifteen-foot embankment on the Mims Ferry road near Lay Dam.

George B. McAlister, 34-year-old Birmingham interior decorator, was killed outright when he was pinned underneath the overturned roadster, and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John D. McAlister, also of Birmingham, who were riding in the rumble seat, suffered minor injuries.

McAlister's neck was broken and his chest was crushed, according to J. Mell Martin, who brought the body to Clanton and prepared it for burial.

Mrs. McAlister, wife of the dead man who was riding on the seat with her husband, escaped injury. She managed to extricate herself from underneath the overturned car and assisted in freeing the occupants of the rumble seat.

Rounding a curve near the Ed Mims home, Mr. McAlister lost control of the machine which ran off the narrow road and over the embankment, rolling over several times before landing in a ditch fifteen feet below the road bed. The car was lifted from the body of the dead man by means of ropes and a block and tackle furnished by Ed Mims, who was called to the scene of the accident within a few minutes.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. McAlister were given treatment at the Central Alabama hospital before being taken to Birmingham.

The body of George B. McAlister was also taken to Birimngham for burial. Information regarding the time of the funeral and the place of burial was not available at the time of this writing.

The party had left Birmingham, it was stated, at an early hour to spend the day fishing in the back waters near the ferry. The fatal accident is thought to have occurred about 4 o'clock. Mr. Martin stated that he received the call at 4:30.

The McAlister car is the second to have been wrecked at this point, it was stated. The road is said to be extremely narrow and dangerous and no guard rails protect motorists from toppling over the embankment.

MRS. WALTER MARTIN AND E. L. PATE OPERATING SHELL STA.

Of interest to a large number of people in this section will be the announcement that Mrs. Walter Martin and Mr. Lee Pate are now managing the popular Shell Service Station just north of the Bus Station on the highway.

Mrs. Martin will be well remembered in Clanton as the operator of a filling station here for about four years, and has a large circle of friends who will be glad to see her in this line of work again. Mr. Lee Pate is an experienced automobile man, and invites his friends to bring their cars to him for servicing, gas, oil, greasing, washing, etc.

IN 10 OUT OF 15 POWER TESTS NEW GULF GAS WON 1st PLACE

LOADS LIKE THIS—on steep mountain grades tax the power of any gasoline. But in 10 out of 15 power tests Gulf won first honors. See chart below. (All tests certified by a Notary Public.)

RECENTLY, 33 gasolines competed in power tests made on famous American hills from Massachusetts to Georgia.

Object? To see which of various gasolines bought at local service stations in each test area could take a car and heavy load farthest up mountain grades before the motor stalled. The motor was kept in high gear.

Results? Gulf won more of these power tests than 32 other gasolines combined!

Study the chart below. Then drive to any Gulf station—and see for yourself that there's more power in that Good Gulf Gasoline!

Commissioners And Council Fail To Reach A Decision

Realization of a swimming pool and a modern clubhouse at the Clanton airport seemed a bit further from realization Tuesday, when a meeting of the commissioners court and the town council at the airport accomplished nothing definite.

Members of the commissioners court and the town council met and made a visit to the landing field to study the advisability of cooperating in the completion of the airport in order that a $3,000 federal appropriation may be used for the purpose of erecting a clubhouse and installing a swimming pool. Commissioner C. D. Duke, in whose district the project is located, was not present at the meeting and other members of the court said they would rather defer action until Mr. Duke was present.

Works Director W. A. Cone explained to the members of the two bodies that less than a $1,000 will be required to complete the landing field and if they wil lfurnish him equipment that most of the $3,000 allociation can be used for these improvements.

Those attending the meeting weer: Commissioners Robinson, Atchison, Cobb, and Councilmen Shaw, Popwell, Moore, Heflin, Mayor J. Lee Smith, Judge L. H. Reynolds, and J. Mell Martin.

Grandfather Of Grady Heflin Slain Recently

Frank Pickens, 81-year-old farmer of Moulton, Alabama, who was ambushed and slain near his home Monday, is the father of J. J. Pickens, former Clanton postmaster, and grandfather of Grady Heflin, cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton.

The following information regarding the shooting appeared in Tuesday morning's Montgomery Advertiser under a Moulton date line:

"The Rev. L. P. Royer, pastor of the Moulton Baptist Church, and his son, William Royer, were placed in jail here today on murder charges in connection with the ambush slaying of Frank Pickens, 81, widely known farmer and deacon in Mr. Royer's church.

"Picken's body, bearing a wound in the chest from a load of buckshot, was found half a mile east of here about 10 a.m. today by Hoyt Turner, a neighbor.

"Mr. Royer and his son were arrested this afternoon on warrants sworn to by Paul Pickens, a son of the slain man.

"Sheriff Kumpe Ayers said he was told that the minister and his son were seen driving their automobile from the vicinity of the slaying. The sheriff also confiscated a shotgun from the Royer home."

A.P.I. Will Open Music School September 1st

Auburn, Ala.—The Auburn Conservatory, offering two accredited courses toward bachelor of science degrees in music at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, will open its doors for the first time on September 4. It will be a private institution but work creditably done will be accredited by the college.

James A. Bulleit, director and head of the voice department, stated that the two courses will permit students to graduae from Auburn with degree either in applied or public school music. In adidtion, he said ,instruction in voice, piano, violin, and band instruments will be available to anyone, even though college credit is not desired. The accredited courses will include the study of harmony, solfeggion, history and music appreciation, theory, counterpoint, and public school music methods.

Applications for a limited number of partial scholarships in the conservatory to those eligible for college entrance will be received and considered, added Mr. Bulleit. A scholarship is also offered to the high school student having the highest scholastic record for the four years.

The conservatory is being organized in response to an increased demand for broader musical training for Auburn students and people in this section. It is believed by those in charge that its creation will go far toward offering adequate musical training for many students to whom the opportunity was not available in the past. In addition, it will meet demand for training by those who wish to do public school music work.

Little Theatre Attracts Crowd To Gulf Exhibit At The World's Fair

Famous Continental orchestras and stage stars over the air from London, Paris, Berlin, and Vienna are drawing large audiences into Gulf's "Little Theatre" which features the 1934 exhibit of the Gulf Refining Company at Chicago's A Century of Progress. This program is being broadcast from Europe and offers World Fair visitors a chance to compare types of foreign entertainment.

Gulf also gives movie fans a treat. Many of Chicago's guests enjoyed the motion pictures at the exhibit last year will welcome another chance to be thrilled by the racing-car and airplane "sound" sensations of 1933, as well as by other new motion pictures which have been added.

Another attraction in Gulf's new exhibit, which has been completely designed and redecorated, is the moving, modernistic oil display. Further, for the convenience of sight-seers, a unique information booth also has been added. Here special questions on lubrication and other subjects pertaining to petroleum products are answered and motorists are furnished with maps which are routed to offer a new and different way back home. By special request, the beautiful micarta murals, introduced in 1933, have been retained.

The attention of marine enthusiasts is being directed to the evolutionary new high-speed, double-opposed Sterilng Diesel Motor on display. This 140 H. P. motor, according to actual tests, can drive a 40-foot cabin cruiser at a top speed of 30 miles per hour and at a cruising speed of 24 miles per hour.

On view once more is the world's largest auto cylinder in action with its power display and scores of other interesting "in action' 'exhibits. Crowds still throng about the various cut-away motors. Equal attention is being given the newly constructed window displays of household and automotive specialty products.

According to A Century of Progress officials, the complete Gulf exhibit is even more effective than the 1933 show which attracted over 75 per cent of the millions who visited the World Fair. "It is evident," one executive says, "that every possible effort has been made to entertain Chicago's guests with displays which are speedy, novel, and modern."

Flash! And Flash Again.

John Dillinger is dead. That is, so the papers state. Killed in Chicago, Ill., (emphasis on the Ill.) but not in action. He died with his boots on, if any. All of which will ease the worries of a lot of people who have been expecting any minute to see John walk up, give a dry grin, show his teeth, if any, pull out a gun and say, "Isn't this lovely weather we are having."

Confession

And they say that confessing is good for the soul, so I'll make a confession, provided you don't know about it already, it is so hard to keep things a secret these days with nosey newspaper reporters, and some not so nosey and some other kind of people. Now I've forgotten what I was going to confess about. Anyway, it doesn't matter such a great deal. The truth is I have been recently suffering with a severe case of, what shall I say, heat, or prickly hat. (Use Mennen's Baby Powder.) So, in the meantime, I received a letter from a person who was at one time a very, very dear friend of mine, but whom I had several years ago, dismissed from my mind. She's married, and I have not seen or heard from her in just as long. Anyway—now I've forgotten it again, so let's forget it.

How About A Little Gossip?

Gossip, love and a little money are three things that make the world go round, and with a little gin, whiskey or a lot of beer the world will go round and round and round, walls will begin to crumble, or that is, move about. Floors, and sidewalks will start to popping into your face, and we will all have a merry, merry time. But that is not the point. It's gossip we want, a lot of rank gossip. I recently overheard a part of a telephone conversation which went something like this, "Thank heavens the pain has at last subsided. For a long time he has not been able to sleep on his stomach, and has been lying on his back with his feet in the air." So, after hearing that much, I decided to try to get the other end, so ran to the place where I thought the other person was on the phone, and here's what I heard there, "First of all, allow me to congratulate you on the manner you conducted yourself in such a case. I would have been terribly embarrassed. I might suggest that you write her a letter explaining your position, but say nothing of why you were there, that is, if you were there." The fact is, I don't believe I had the right person on the other end of the line, or had the wrong end, or something.

It's All Over, Almost.

Here I am this week, under a pile of letters and post cards from all over this county and other counties. Yes sir, I started something when I went hunting for a name for this column. But I'm glad. The contest ends Tuesday night, July 31st, and that two dollars will go to some person who took the trouble to write in their suggestions, and whose suggested name struck right. I'ts going to be difficult to select one from the number sent in, but it will get a name, I see that right now.

Here are those sent in since last issue of the paper. "Chipper Chip Items," "Good News by a Wise Writer," "Crack Shot Column," "Would You Believe," "Hurrah For The Buster," "Who Would Have Thought It," "As You Like It," "Chilton Beacon Light," "Here, There And Everywhere," "Chilton's Chimes," 'The Wanderer," "Chilton News Broadcast," "Read, People, Read," "All Together," "The Interesting Column," "Smart Ieas," "The Crazy Column, By Cracky," "Chilton's Column Of Interest," "The Wise Guy," "Readers Delight," "The Happy Hour," "Sunshine," "Crazy Ike," "I Wonder Why," "Unravel Me," "Can You Understand Me?" "The Crazy Column," "Nit-Wit News," "Home Town Column," "Nomad Special," "Fools Folly," "The Man From Nowhere,' "Hot Days, Hot Sayings," "Wisdom's Way," "Current News In Everyway," "Say, What Have You," "Smiles," "Hot Flashes."

Who's In Trouble?

I'm the guy that put the pep in pepper, maybe, but I'm almost in the notion to want to swap jobs with some of you, in selecting a name for this column from the group sent in. Don't think I am worrying, it is going to be a pleasure to know that this column is a Chilton County column, and named by one of its readers. I never was good at naming things. One reason I requested my parents to name me themselves, and not leave it up to me when I arrived. I didn't want to be bothered with such trivial things.

Which Reminds Me.

Of a little story I heard. Little Johnnie and Sally were sitting in the parlor shooting dice and making whoopee, when a friend of ours, Mrs. Busybody, rushed in all twittering and atwitter, and announced that the stork had just visited the home of another friend, Mrs. Doit, and left twins. Little Johnnie rubbed his big toe and said to little Sally,—"Tsh, Tsh, Tsh. The stork. Imagine that. I wonder if we should inform these poor misguided souls."

Send Them In.

Don't bring them in. The boys and girls at the News don't have much time between trying to work and wiping the perspiration from their brows and things, so mail your suggested names for this column. A post card will do. The two dollars may start drawing interest pretty soon, and we'll try to announce the winner next week.

EQUAL OR SUPERIOR TO ANY FIRST QUALITY TIRE BUILT ... REGARDLESS OF NAME, BRAND, BY WHOM MANUFACTURED OR AT WHAT PRICE OFFERED FOR SALE

THE immediate and enthusiastic acceptance of the new Firestone Century Progress Tire started a tremendous wave of buying that is keeping the Firestone factories running twenty-four hours a day to meet this huge demand.

We knew that car owners would replace their thin-worn, dangerous tires if they could get what they wanted in a tire at the price they wanted to pay. We found the answer through ten million visitors to the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year. We asked them—"What do you value most in a tire?"—and their answer was—"Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a moderate price."

Drive in to the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store today! Equip your car with these new Firestone Century Progress Tires, with the massive flat tread, deep-cut non-skid, broad husky shoulders, and Gum-Dipped cords. Tire prices probably never again will be as low as they are today. At these unusually low prices for first grade tires, we make it easy for you to buy not only one tire, but a complete set.

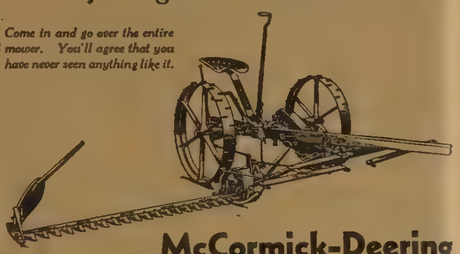
This is the New Mower the Crowds Admired at A Century of Progress Last Year



Come in and go over the entire mower. You'll agree that you have never seen anything like it.

McCormick-Deering
No. 7 Enclosed-Gear Mower

WE are anxious to have all of our friends see the New McCormick-Deering No. 7 Enclosed-Gear Mower. We think it is one of the finest pieces of farm equipment we have ever sold!

Everybody who has seen it says they never had any idea that a mower could be built as this one is.

For example: The entire operating mechanism, including drive gears, differential, and countershafts, is assembled compactly in an oil-tight gear housing and runs in a bath of oil. There are four high-grade roller bearings. Operation is so smooth and noiseless that you can scarcely hear the light hum of the sickle!

Special oil seals at the ends of the main axle and flywheel shaft, and the oil-tight gear box prevent leakage and protect all working parts against the entrance of dirt and other abrasive materials. Floating action of cutter bar provides ample play without disturbing knife registration.

Press Special To Chicago August 17 Appeals To Many

August 20 "Alabama Day" At Century of Progress; 900 to 1,000 to Make Trip

From responses coming in from all over the State, the Alabama Press Association special train to Chicago and the Century of Progress which is to leave Birmingham Friday, August 17, at 2 P. M., over the Illinois Central railroad will be loaded to the guard rail.

Some towns have already sent in reservations for 30-40 people and by the time the train glides out of the Terminal station in Birmingham anywhere from 900 to 1,000 are expected to be aboard.

Officials of the passenger department of the Illinois Central are keeping in close touch with W. Roy Brown, Field Manager, who is handling all details of the trip for the editors and even the details of the stay in Chicago will be worked out before the train leaves.

Arrangements have been made with the American Railway Express Co., to handle all baggage from the station in Chicago to Hotel Sherman, relieving passengers on the special train of all worry. Special buses will handle the crowd from the terminal in Chicago to the hotel.

The railroad fare of $29.95 includes hotel accomodations in Chicago and breakfast; admission into the fair grounds and one major concession; a sight-seeing bus trip over the city and a moonlight boat ride up the Chicago rive on the Steamer Roosevelt and back via the Fair which will give the party a view of the monster Fair by night.

Those outside the newspaper fraternity who wish to go on the trip should turn in their names to the editor at once so that last-minute rushes and turmoil may be avoided.

This is the opportunity of a life-time to see the big Fair, ride a fine train and associate with a splendid bunch of people. Now's the time to make your reservations.

Our ice cream supper was fine. We want to thank everyone that helped us out in any way.

Marine Corps Increase

Macon, Ga.—The United States Marine Corps offers an opportunity for travel afloat and ashore and further education to High School graduates, able to pass the physical examination at District Recruiting Headquarters, in the Municipal Auditorium, Macon, Ga. Fully qualfied applicants can be accepted at once, due to an increase authorized by the recent Congress, but should first communicate with Lieut. Col H.W. Stone, the officer in charge at District Headquarters.

Opportunities for self improvment are available by study in the Radio, Aviation, Motor Transport, Clerical, Quartermaster, and Paymaster Schools, and the Marine Corps Institute. Over 5,000 Marines have been awarded diplomas after completing courses taught by the latter school alone.

A REAL DEATH RAY?

In recent years there have been reports of the discovery of a powerful "death ray" by various persons, but none of them seems to have amounted to anything. This month, however, the famous 77-year-old inventor, Nikola Tesla, announced that he had produced a destructive ray which could be projected many miles, destroying everything in its path.

This mysterious new ray would be of greatest value as a protection of cities from enemy attack, according to the inventor, who declares it could be projected in vast curtains 100 miles long and several miles high, which would be impenetrable from land or air.

If announced by an unknown inventor, the extravagant claims made for the new ray would hardly be taken seriously. Coming from one of Dr. Tesla's standing they will have respectful consideration, at least.

Born in Europe, Dr. Tesla came to America and became associated with Thomas A. Edison 50 years ago, and is a naturalized American citizen. He has been granted about 100 patents, some of which marked revolutionary advances in the electrical arts. For several years he has been engaged in efforts to solve the problem of electrical transmission without wires.

Dr. Tesla is reported to have expressed his intention to place his death ray at the disposal of the Geneva disarmament conference in the interest of peace. He considers the new invention to be a defensive weapon, whose purpose is to make war a foolhardy venture in the future.

Further developments and tests of the Tesla death ray will be awaited with intense interest.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Following the assassination of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir presumptive to the throne of Austria-Hungary, on June 28, 1914, the stage was speedily set for the Great War, which formally began by Austria's declaration of war on Servia exactly one month later, on July 28th.

Other declarations of war followed with dramatic swiftness: Germany against France, Belgium and England, August 4. Thus by August 4 all hope of averting a general European war had vanished, and in a few months Germany, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria (known thereafter as the Central Powers) faced practically all the rest of Europe (designated as the Allies).

With the entry of the United States and most of the countries of the western hemisphere into the war on the side of the Allies in 1917, no less than 23 nations were arrayed against the four Central Powers.

The total number of men mobilized was nearly 65 million, of which approximately two thirds were on the side of the Allies. The Allied losses were 5,152,115 killed or died, 12,831,004 wounded, and 4,121,090 prisoners or missing. The Central Powers lost 3,386,200 killed or died, 8,388,448 wounded, and 3,629,829 prisoners or missing.

War expenditures reached the incomprehensible total of 186 billion dollars, and of this vast sum the Allies also spent about two thirds.

All this waste of lives and treasure is still reflected in the unhappy economic conditon of the world. Still, in spite of this ghastly spectacle, we find the same national and racial hatreds which existed 20 years ago working toward another war which might easily be more terrible than the last.

What a commentary on our so-called Christain civilization!

Mexico will adopt the fingerprint system for the detection of criminals.

Miss Celia Gerald Is Feted By Mother At Birthday Dinner

The lovely home of Mrs. L. F. Gerald was the scene of a beautiful dinner party on Saturday at six o'clock when she entertained sixteen attractive young ladies in honor of her daughter, Celia, whose sixteenth birthday occurred on that day.

The chosen color motif of pink and white was beautifully carried out in the dining room where the pretty pink birthday cake was banked with rose buds, maiden hair fern and forget-me-nots and on which burned the appropriate number of candles centered the dining table, which was covered with a maderia cloth and on which were two silver candle holders holding white tapers and silver compotes filled with white mints.

Placed in the receiving rooms, which were brightened with quantities of pink flox and pink rose buds, were attractively appointed tables, centered with fragrant pink rose buds and maiden hair fern, from which a three course dinner was served.

Guests attending this courtesy were: Misses Mary Courtney Jones, Ruth Gowan, Eloise Raspberry, Elizabeth Williams, Sarah Lawrence, Gertiwyl Vinson, Helen Roberts, Elizabeth Gragg Ova Lee McCutcheon, Hilda Hart, Roberta Cochran, Betty Petrie of Birmingham, Nell Ross Mullins of Florence, Ruth Foss and Cora Connatser, of Thorsby.

We are glad our Sunday School is progressing nicely.

Mr. J. R. Hall was in Montevallo Saturday on business.

Miss Margaret Nabors of this place is visiting her sister, Mrs. Alma Haywood of Ensley.

Mr. L. H. Nabors and his wife is spending a few days in Docena with his wife's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Scott.

Mr. William Holcombe of Bibb County is moving back in our community. We wish for them much prosperity.

Brother Horace Nabors of Union Grove started a few days meeting here Sunday. His subject was "Putting Christ First in the Church and in Our Daily Walks of this Lfe." We are sure our country would be a better place to live if we would all put Him first. There would not be so much strife. His subject Sunday night was "God's Spirit Will Not Strive with Man Always." He will hold us up for a while and if we will not obey Him He will let us fall for the rest of time and it is too late then for us. Our doom is punishment forever.

Rental Payments To Farmers $3,138,333.14

Auburn, Ala.—Rental payments approved for disbursement to Alabama farmers cooperating in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's 1934 cotton productoin adjustment pdogram totaled $3,138,333.14 the first of this month reports Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the Alabama Extension Serivce.

The total for all cotton states was $28,498,207.45. These payments are a part of the estimated $1000,000,000 that cooperating farmers will receive as rental payments for approximately 15,000,000 acres taken out of cotton producton tihs season.

Alabama farmers will receive an additional payment of over $3,000,000 between August 1 and September 30. The parity payment will be made in December.

Calcium Arsenate Will Control Boll Weevils

Auburn, Ala—As soon as boll weevils puncture 10 out of each 100 cotton squares it is time for farmers to apply calcium arsenate to kill the weevils, reports Prof. J. M. Robinson, head of the department of entomology here.

Three applications of calcium arsenate should be made at intervals of 4 to 6 days at the rate of 5 to 6 pounds per acre. "If a heavy rain occurs within 24 hours after dusting the application should be repeated," Professor Robinson said.

Following the three dustings infestation counts should be made each week and an additional dusting made when needed to keep the infestation below 20 per cent. In making the first and all subsequent counts 100 squares should be examined in each of several places in the field. The squares on the ground should not be counted.

NIGHT SINGING SCHOOL AT LIBERTY HILL CHURCH, AUG. 6

There will be a night singing school at Liberty Hill church beginning Monday night, August 6, and continuing for twenty nights.

Prof. L. T. Grant, who taught here last year will teach the school. Prof. Grant needs no introduction as a singer and teacher, being one of the best in the county. We are fortunate indeed in securing a teacher of Prof. Grant's ability.

SERVICES AT MACEDONIA

There will be services at Macedonia in Beat 11, on Sunday, August 26. There will be singing to begin at 10:00 o'clock. There will be preaching at 11:00 o'clock by the Rev. E. L. Smith of Weogufka.

All the old settlers of that community have a special invitation to attend and hear the Rev. Smith. Everybody is cordially invited.

There will be services in the afternoon, so everyone bring your dinner and spend the day

BAKER CANNING CLUB MEETING

The canning club of Baker community met with Mrs. James M. Roper, Monday, July 16. Miss Pardue, home demonstration agent, conducted the meeting. The phase of demonstration work discussed was canning. Several articles were demonstrated. They were: Corn, vegetable soup, peas, and okra.

The County-wide picnic of Chilton County was also discussed. The exhibit was the most discussed subject of the picnic. Memebers of the club can put on exhibit any article of handiwork. The article to be exhibited must be at Mrs. Morris' house two days before the picnic. The date of the picnic will be given when it is fully decided.

The eighteen members who attended the meeting reported a good meeting.

We were glad to have the several visitors present. We cordially invite you to come again and any others that wish to. We would like very much to have you join our club.

Four new members were enrolled. We are very glad to have you in our club. We especially urge every member to be at the next club meeting which will be at the Baker Jr. High School, Tuesday, August 14. New officers will be elected.

Roy Connatser Making Grade With Barons

Another of Chilton County's favorite sons is making good in professional sports. Roy Connatser, brother of Broadus Connatser, who has been affiliated with professional baseball for several seasons, is winning recognition with the Birmngham Barons.

Completng his first week of professional baseball last Saturday, Roy has proven a steady man under fire and a dependable lead-off man for the Barons, according to a press report from Birmingham.

The report continues: "Breaking into the Birmingham infield as a regular one week ago, young Connatser made his debut at a time when pitchers are at their peak, but he has justified Clyde Milan's faith in him. He has got one or more hits in all of the games since playing regularly. His average is .308 for 26 times at bat, representng eight hits that included a triple and a double. Connatser has also batted in five runs, exceptionally good for a lead-off batter. He has reached base 15 times."

Restrictions On Rubber May Cause Tire Price Raise

Persons Who Purchase Tires Now Will Save Money, Local Goodyear Dealer Believes

Strong possibility exists that restrictions being placed on crude rubber will affect tire prices, in the opinion of L. E. Diefenderfer, local dealer for The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

"It seems quite reasonable to expect that the crude rubber restrictions will result in higher tire prices," Mr. Diefenderfer declared. "In that event, the person who buys tires now, while prices are still low, will probably be saving money.

"Saving money is just one advantage in buying tires at this time," he continued. "Tires purchased now will give the car owner non-skid mileage during the remainder of the summer and during the winter when sure-footed traction is necessary on wet, slippery streets

"This is particularly true of the new Goodyear G-3 All-Weather tire, which was announced to the publice this spring. The G-3, with its wider, flatter tread, more traction in the center of the tread, and an average of two pounds more rubber per tire, proved under gruelling tests that it delivered 43 per cent more non-skid mileage than old-style tires, and letters received by the company indicate that in actual use by motorists, it delivers even more than that.

"It would seem to me to be a saving in more ways than in money to buy G-3's at the present time," Mr. Diefenderfer concluded.

An automobile out of control smashed a lighting distribution box in Wallington, Eng., and the town was in darkness all night.

of the NEW "G-3"

Yes sir—people who got the new G-3 All-Weather before it was advertised and have driven this marvelous tire many thousands of miles, are singing its praises louder than our advertising does! Particularly do they insist that the new G-3 gives better than the "43% more non-skid mileage" we advertise! All we ask is, before you buy tires give us a chance to show you why G-3 users boost it even stronger than we do!

WORK ON SELMA ROAD TO BEGIN IMMEDIATELY

Workmen Detailed To Jobs Through New U. S. Service Here

Actual work on the paving of three miles of the Selma highway was scheduled to begin Wednesday of this week, according to W. B. Kelly, manager of the newly established United States Employment Service here.

Mr. Kelly said that he had been informed that work on cleaning the roadway and making preparations for the paving work would begin Wednesday, and that he had detailed men for this work from the files in his office.

Thirty-three thousand dollars has been allocated for paving of three miles of the Selma road, beginning at the intersection with the Montgomery-Birmingham highway in Clanton. The contract was let to Hardaway Contracting Company, of Columbus, Ga.

Mr. Kelly stated that he understands that the project will include the construction of a concrete bridge spanning the railroad. Several culverts will afford considerable concrete work.

All employes for this project, as well as for the building of the new postoffice and the new city hall, will be furnished by the United States Employment Service, which was recently established, succeeding the National Reemployment Service.

In connection with his work in furnishing labor for these jobs, Mr. Kelly said that it is his aim to place as many persons as possible in private employ, declaring that he is working out a program in which he urges every employer in the county to cooperate with him in an effort to remove as many as possible from the unemployment rolls before the winter months.

A representative of the office will call on every business establishment in the county, soliciting their cooperation in this program, he stated. This service will be of great benefit to the employer as well as the employe, because from the information in the files it will be possble to select just the type of worker needed. A case history that is kept on each applicant shows fully his capability and experience.

Modern Froggie Can Blow Smoke Rings

In spite of the proverb to the contrary, this is a tale about a frog. It was told to us by Thomas Newton, an inmate at the County Farm, who declares that he does not blame anyone who wishes to arch an eyebrow or scratch their head when they hear this story—but just the same he vouches for its truth.

Out there at the farm, Mr. Newton stated is a frog, toad by nationality, that shocked all the other frogs and several of the inmates by turning modern and smoking cigarettes.

Mr. Newton stated that his wife was the first person to see this strange performance of Mr. Froggie, but several have watched him puff away at his cigarette and blow smoke rings through his nose.

PROGRAM FOR CANNING GOES OVER TOP HERE

Government Aid Greatly Increases Interest In Communities

Success has crowned the effort expended in the FERA canning program this summer, according to the report recently tabulated by Miss Kittye Clyde Austin, county social director, which shows that a total of 5,688 quarts have been canned until July 26.

With a close competition between the sixteen canning centers in the county, Miss Austin declared that the program is surpassing her most enthusiastic expectations. The FERA is furnishing tin cans to families on relief in an effort to aid and encourage them in making some preparation against the winter months.

Miss Austin stated that she is urging every family on relief to plant fall gardens and to continue the canning program as long as possible. Seeds are being furnished by the FERA, she stated.

The tabulated report is as follows: Clanton (three centers) 904 quarts; Beat Sixteen 790 quarts; Cooper 448 quarts; Jemison 1,434 quarts; Lomax 396 quarts; Mineral Springs 454 quarts; Mt. Creek 388 quarts; Maplesville 92 quarts; Pletcher 92 quarts; Ridersville 36 quarts; Stanton 185 quarts; Thorsby 250 quarts, and Verbena 219 quarts.

This food will reduce the relief burden in the county this winter, it was explained, and will encourage many families to take a keener interest in preserving foods.

Commissioners Fail To Endorse Canning Plans

The opportunity to secure an FERA canning center in Clanton for the cooperative use of those on relief and other residents in the county as well was lost to Chilton County, when members of the commissioners court at a recent meeting failed to appropriate funds for a building to house the center.

Plans for the center called for an eight-weeks program with a capacity of 24,000 cans. Work was to be done by persons on relief, but others wishing to share in the program were to be allowed to bring in their vegetables and fruits and have them preserved on a fifty-fifty basis, cans being furnished by the FERA.

The program was outlined and explained to the commissioners by Miss Kittye Clyde Austin, who estimated that the cost to the county would not be more than $50 or $75. It was explained that these centers were to be established in only a limited number of counties and Chilton County had been selected to share in the program.

PLANE FALLS NEAR CLANTON LAST MONDAY

Three Local Passengers And Pilot Received Only Slight Injuries

Four persons narrowly escaped death or serious injury shortly after noon Monday when the passenger plane in which they were flying crashed into a corn field on the Walter Maddox farm, two miles northeast of Clanton on the Higgins Ferry road.

The pilot, Walter M. Cary, of Bristol, Va., and passengers, John Marlar, 17, Dufford Arant, 18, and Ray Miller, 12, all of Clanton, suffered only minor injuries when a blade snapped from the propellor of the machine at an altitude of 150 feet causing a forced landing in the cornfield.

YOUTH NABBED WITH STOLEN AUTOMOBILE

Wrecks The Car Trying To Escape Officers Of Clanton Last Sunday

An attempt to get some free gasoline with which to operate his stolen automobile almost proved fatal for a youth Sunday night who gave his name and address as Paul Stutzman, 19, of Grand Rapids, Michigan. A several mile race with Clanton officers ended with the youth in jail, his car smashed over an embankment on the Montgomery-Birmingham highway.

Dashing away from a Calera filling station without paying for gasoline which he had put into his car climaxed a thousand mile drive from Kandallville, Ind., where the youth said that he had stolen the car last Friday

Officers in Clanton were notified to be on the watchout for the youth, but when he realized that he was being blocked in Clanton, he headed the car back north and the chase began which ended when young Stutzman crashed through several concrete posts and over an embankment several miles north of Jemison.

Although the car was completely demolished, Stutzman escaped with only minor injuries, having suffered several severe bruises and an injury to his left shoulder. He was taken to the Central Alabama Hospital for treatment, where it was reported that he apparently had not suffered any serious injuries.

He told officers John Browder and J. A. Nivens that he had stolen the car in Kendallville last Friday, but said he really didn't know where he was going. Sheriff Gillespie said the youth will be held for the federal government and will likely be charged with vioation of the Dyer Act.

CITY HALL FOR CLANTON GETS ENDORSEMENT

Monday's Election Gives A Large Number In Favor Of The Building

Although the vote in Monday's special election was perhaps one of the smallest ever polled in the history of the town, both the proposal for the erection of a new city hall and the proposal to extend the town's watermains were passed by an overwehlming majority.

With less than two hundred voting in bond election, one hundred fifty-eight voted in favor of issuing obligation bonds for $23,000 for the purpose of building a new brick city hall, while only fifteen voted in opposition; one hundred sixty-seven favored extending the watermans, with an opposition of only eight.

A application for a loan of $32,000 from the Public Works Administration has been approved for sometme and Mayor J. Lee Smith stated that since the majority of the voters of the town approve of the plans to erect a new city hall and extend water service into other sections of the town, the final details of the loan will soon be completed and work will possibly begin on these projects within the next few weeks.

Mayor Smith recently had a letter from Congressman W. B. Oliver stating that every effort will be made to speed up the loan in order that work may begin at once.

Thirty per cent of the loan is an outright grant from the federal government, the remainder to be paid in annual bonds of $1000 each, it was explained, which will amount to little more than will be saved in rents, advanced insurance rates, and turnkey fees.

The city hall is to be a two-story brick structure, which will house the Mayor's office, the clerk's office, the city jail, a library, and fire department headquarters.

Modern Cave Man Is Curio In Clanton

The wise philosopher, who in a moment of chagrin declared that there was nothing new under the sun, evidently had never heard of Eddie Castleberry, the modern cave man who was buried alive in Clanton last Monday morning—and will remain in the grave throughout the week.

This business of fathoming the secrets of the grave is nothing new to Eddie, who says that this is his three-hundredth time to be buried alive within the past five years. He not only makes being buried alive a business, but he is a regular all-round professional stunt man, having sat a flag pole for twenty-eight days; leaped from aeroplanes in parachutes; competed in marathon dances—even enjoyed the comforts of a rocking chair for one hundred hours. He intimated that he may even rock a two or three-day lullaby here after he gets through with the grave problems that have him below the earth's surface

Thirty-six days is the longest period that this modern "Alley Oop" has ever experienced the discomforts—or maybe he has a different way of looking at—of being buried alive.

BENEFIT PAYMENTS RAISE FARM INCOME IN CHILTON COUNTY

J.W. Fant, County Agent

Nearly one-third of the income from production of wheat, corn, hogs, cotton and tobacco allotted under adjustment programs now being received, on the average, by 3 million contract signers who are cooperating in Agricultural Adjustment Administration programs, is derived from processing taxes. The true price received by farmers who coperate in adjustment programs consists of two parts. These cooperating growers receive the market price when the crop or animal is sold, just the same as non-cooperating growers do. Then they receive an addition to the market price in the form of benefit payments when the proceeds from processing taxes are distributed among them. Benefit payments on allotted production amounted roughly to 43 per cent of the market price the farmer received as of June 15. The benefit payments to cooperating farmers from processing taxes account for 30 per cent of the total income (farm sales price plus benefit payments) such farmers received upon their allotments. Attainment of conditions, and through smaller acreages, supplemented by changing valuation of the dollar, has resulted in improvement in the average sale price of farm commodities from 50 percent of parity in March 1933, to 77 per cent of parity in June 1934, or 54 per cent increase. Meanwhile, prices paid by farmers have increased at the lesser rate of 22 per cent. Hence, the exchange value of all farm products increased at the lesser rate of 22 per cent. Hence, the exchange value of all farm products increased 26 per cent from March 1933, to June 1934, and for the seven basic commodities, including benefit payments, the increase is about [illegible] per cent. The processing tax is the mechanism by which (1) adjustment in production is obtained and (2) agriculture collects a part of its income to supplement market price and to compensate farmers for their cooperation. The tax, paid to farmers as benefit payments, assures that the major part of the advantages of the program will go to the farmers joining to make it a success, and will not be diverted to those who refuse to cooperate.

Processing Tax Like Price Rise

Rental and benefit payments to producers cooperating in wheat, cotton, tobacco and corn-hog adjustment programs up to June 29 totaled $226,750,253,29, exclusive of payments on cotton options which totaled $50,585,060 03. The rental and benefit payments are derived from processing taxes collected at the point of processing or manufacturing. It does not mean that the tax falls disproportionately on states where these procesing plants are concentrated. The tax is not concentrated in that way, but is spread out as a factor in the price of the product and hence is shared by consumers generally. The tax has the same effect upon consumer price as would a rise in the price of raw material to the extent of the tax. About 19 per cent of the total wheat processing tax has collected in Minnesota. This does not reveal anything about the proportion of the wheat tax paid by Minnesota consumers. It means that Minneapolis is an important milling center, and therefore a corresponding share of the tax paid by all American consumers is collected through the mills there, and that is all it means. Because the cost of raw material produced by farmers ordinarily is a comparatively small factor in the consumer price of the

Today, Chilton's Annual Picnic

Today, thousands of Chilton County's citizens are congregated in the oak grove at the Ben Sims Service Station on the Montgomery-Birmingham highway for the third Annual County-wide Picnic.

Established by Former County Agent C. E. Stapp, this custom of a county-wide gathering to sponsor a closer relationship among the citizenship has grown into an annual feature in Chilton County and is looked forward to by thousands.

A five-hour program has been arranged for the day, featuring several of the State's outstanding speakers and many other interesting feats, together with plenty of old fashion barbecue.

All the business establishments in Clanton will be closed after 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning to permit the clerks to attend the County-wide picnic, according to information given the News late Wednesday morning.

Grocery stores, it was announced will re-open at 5 p. m. in order that their customers will have an opportunity to get necessary groceries for breakfast Friday morning, however, after this week, the regular schedule of being closed on Thursday afternoons will be resumed.

RESEARCH AND ADJUSTMENT MUCH BETTER SAYS WALLACE

By Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture

There is supposed to be a conflict between agricultural science and the need to adjust agricultural production. Agricultural science enables farmers to increase crop yields per acre and increase output of meat and milk per unit of feed consumed. As the users of agricultural improvements increase in output increases until prices fall. How can all this be reconciled with the need to make supply and demand balance?

This is an old puzzle, but often solved Again and again people bring it forward as if the solution were unknown. Wth an air drawing attention to an unperceived anomaly, a newspaper writer recently declared himself amazed that the technical branches of the United tates Department of Agriculture should operate at full blast to perfect crop and livestock production, while the Adjustment Administration labored simultaneously to cut down the production of cotton, wheat, corn, hogs, tobacco, and other products. Here, he said, we have futility worthy of Greek tragedy.

What would happen were farmers to abandon science or even to use it with greatly decreased efficiency? They would have to continue plowing, sowing and reaping. But they would use poor machinery, poor technic, and poor seed. They would allow pests and diseases to ravage their crops and would harvest inefficiently what remained. By so doing, they would certainly reduce the output. But they would do so at a cost runious to themselevs. They would increase their unit costs of production out of all proportion to any cnceiveable gain in prices.

From their beginnings, the United States' Department of Agriculture, the State experiment station, and State extension services have promoted efficiency on the farm. Efficiency in the old sense of the word, however, is not enough. As farmers well know, profits cannot be got just by improvisg plants and livestock, by fighting diseases and pests or by reducing the wastes of marketing. Ordinary technical efficiency reduces only the cost of production. Low-cost production may mean loss to the farmer if it is excessive production. Under present conditions it is necessary also to adjust the output to a changed world market.

Low cost per unit of production, when total production has been adjusted to effective demand, directly increases the farmers' net income. There is a definite limit to the volume of farm goods which can be disposed of under existing domestic and export consumption demands, at a price returning a fair income to the farmer. When this limit is reached, the only sound economic way in which the farmer can increase his actual income is by utlizing the efficient technic of production which lowers his unit cost and leaves him a greater share of the market price he gets for his goods.

Action taken under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933 enables farmers to plan their production. It seeks to transform blind competition into broad-visioned cooperation and to correct the result of previous mistakes. Meantime scientists continue their research in various problems of farm production. These two kinds of departmental activity must march together.

Agriculture needs not less science in

Uncle Sam Gets His Man

John Dillinger is finally dead, shot down like a mad dog without any effort to arrest him, although federal agents outnumbered him 15 to 1.

This was as it should be.

There was nothing to be gained by temporizing with the arch criminal of the entire nation.

It was better just to kill him and drag him out of the way, lest he run amuck again, before paying the death penalty that was inevitable, in any court of the land.

His death emphasizes that there is one racket that neither he, nor any other criminal, or set of criminals, can beat in the long run. That is the one operated by Uncle Sam to catch them.

"Machine Gun" Kelly tried it, and lost.

Clyde Barrow recently went to an inglorious death, shot down as Dillinger was.

Al Capone got by for a good many years, but finally he had to bow. He's now spending a long stretch of years in a federal penitentiary.

The Mounted Police of Canada are famed for getting their man.

But it is unnecessary to cross the border, or to seek elsewhere, for examples of sure and final justice to those defy the authority of Uncle Sam.

Once his agents camp on a criminal's trail, there is no stopping until he is brought to book.

Neither money nor men are spared until they "get" their man.

Dillingr merely avoided the inevitable a little longer than most criminals have.—The Huntsville Times.

The Up-And-Up

The homely Rooseveltian philosophy thrills the President's partisans, encourages his opponents, and gives hope to all that the country is around that "corner" that we heard so much about a year and a half ago.

"The simplest way for each of you to judge recovery," observed the President in his most informal manner, "lies in the plain fact of your individual situation. Are you better off than you were last year? Are your debts less burdensome? * * * Is your faith in your own individual future more firmly grounded?"

That the nation has been on the up-and-up for many months is beyond question when the answers of individuals are given to the above straightforward questioning by the President.

o-o-o-o

An Issue Of Ethics

Two reporters were sent to jail by a judge at Danville, Ky., when they refused to divulge to the court what they regarded as "confidential information." The reporters regarded the "confidences" placed in them as more sacred than the enforcement of the law or the interests of the state.

It is very important that we have more definite standards of guidance than now appear to obtain when matters of professional confidence conflict with the sovereign power of the state.

The Minnesota doctor who was given two years in the pentitentiary when he refused to betray his noted patient, John Dillinger, whom he had nursed back to health from gunshot wounds, is a striking case in point. To whom does a professional man owe his first allegiance, the state or his client? As repugnant as an act of betrayal and perfidy is to any professional man who respects his own integrity, there can be no doubt but when the test comes, the sovereign interests of the state and society must take precedence.—Selma Times-Journal.

Things One Remembers

May Day Parade in New York—The workers looked well fed and well dressed. They were well behaved, happy looking—singing and joking; but their slogans and banners were destructive. Down with this, that and the other!

Thousands of school boys and girls who had no conception of values, savings, employment, property rights as guaranteed by our constitution—led by theorists, dreamers and avowed destructionists—had been fed on the poison that the man who had saved and acquired property, must have wrung it from a helpless people.

But consider the comedy of it—they were marching and denouncing capital and savings and constitutional rights by the grace of the very system they wished to destroy. Hundreds of policemen lined the streets to see that they were protected in the full exercise of their rights under our constitution, as well as to see that they did not violate the same constitutional rights of other citizens.

Again the humor of the situation was apparent when it was necessary to separate the socialist and communist parades to prevent clashes between them if they met.

Neither of the groups would live in countries where socialism and communism now reign supreme, because they could not enjoy the liberties of self expression guaranted them by the United States Constitution and the so-called capitalistic system.

In other words, the socialists and communists can't get along with each other, they like to make believe that they are oppressed in the country that harbors and protects them and they don't want to go and live in the nations that have adopted the views they advocate here, because in those nations they would be wiped out like flies if they raised their voices against the government policies.

It is high time that we emphasize the blessings that our constitution offers to United States citizens and advise those who do not like that brand of liberty to move to the happy hunting grounds where ideals are now established.

Codes Increase Efficiency

A series of conferences in Detroit of executives of automobile plants for the purpose of discussing the results of code operation brought out a unanimity of opinion on the subject of the collective-bargaining clause of the code. Officials of companies declared "there have been entirely unexpectel benefits" from the employee-representation feature, which practically all automobile plants now have. Some who, when work on the promulgation of the code started last year, were not in sympathy with any phase of the labor provisions except those relating to maximum hours and the minimum wage "for the period of the emergency" asserted after Detroit conferences that "the new understanding between employers and employees has brought about distinct advantages in the form of improved products that outweigh the increased labor costs."

Referring to "the closer understanding that has developed between the worker and the management in recent months" one prominent company official said:

"In the old days a complaint would be lodged with a forman and he might or might not pass it along. Sometimes when he did the superintendent failed to forward it or add his recommendation. Injustices were not corrected because the management knew nothing about them. Under the new system required by President Roosevelt the mandatory direct contacts have opened our eyes to the possibilities for maintaining uninterrupted good relations that are reflected in better public service. We are not only improving our morale but our efficiency as well."

Other officials said they "were first impressed with the fact that most of the protests concern subjects that are easily adjusted" and that "disputes or complaints as to wages or hours have not played the important part we anticipated at all." On the other hand, the executives revealed that there were no "demands" but simply "minor requests" and "really helpful suggestions." These, they said, ranged from changes in types of workers' gloves and modification of a department whistle to serving of coffee with early morning lunch and a better method of cleaning lamp shades, "with," as one official declared, "practically nothing that could not be granted immediately and willingly."

The Tendency To "Go Soft"

Congressman George Huddleston, of the Ninth Alabama District, who sometimes is regarded as an extremist and always as a man of great independence, hit a pace of wise conservatism when he said in a recent address: "Too many of our people in this country have 'gone soft' in their dependence upon the government."

Continuing, Congressman Huddleston said:

"There is too much appeal to the government for aid of every kind on every hand and we must get back to the fundamentals of American life that have made this country the most progressive in the world through individual thought and action."

No one who has watched the trend of events in recent months can fail to agree with the Alabama representative. The process of 'going soft' and of relying upon the government instead of upon individual initiative, has become so general as to be actually alarming.

Nor is this deposition confined to individuals. Business institutions of all kinds have adopted the attitude that Uncle Sam is a glorified Santa Claus and unhesitatingly call upon him instead of getting out and hustling for themselves as was the custom of business men in an earlier generation.

True, many individuals and many business institutions are so situated that some governmental aid is essential if they are to survive, but every one knows that appeals for aid are not limitel to these classes. Thousands who could well help themselves take the easy way and call upon the government, and it is this tendency that is undermining the principles of self-reliance and independence that served in former times to distinguish this nation for its constructive accomplishment through individual resourcefulness. It is time to check the process of going soft."

Resting On The Water

A good thing to remember at this season when a plunge into the water is so refreshing, is that the human body is lighter than water and will float if given a chance.

Recollection of this fact would save the lives of many of those who go down not to come up again until others drag out the body.

The difference in the weight of the body and that of the water is extremely narrow but is quite enough to keep the body afloat almost indefinitely unless the water is usually rough.

Yet odd as it may seem, even among swimmers there are many who have not become expert in floating. Most of them want continuous action while floating is a matter of remaining inert. Then when they tire of experience cramps they haven't the knack of turning over upon the back and lying as if upon a couch until assistance comes or they recover their accustomed strength.

There isn't anything spectacular about lying quietly upon the water, as there is in performing stunts upon a high spring-board, but ability to do it may mean the difference between life and death at some time, and every swimmer should become proficient at it.

Moreover, floating is one of the simplest tricks there is. One stretches out upon the surface, body bowed a bit upward instead of downward, arms extended. Then the toes stick out the water at one end and a bit of the face at the other. Now the hands may be brought quietly around to the back of the head, clasped beneath the head to form a pillow, and one is all set for the after noon if so disposed.

The Transportation Ideal

"What we want is a transportation system that will adequately perform the transportation service required at a given time, expand or contract to meet the varying needs of commerce, and also provide, in so far as possible, the stability which is required in the interests alike of shippers, investors, laborers and the taxpaying public," said Harold G. Moulton, President of the Brookings Institution, recently.

It is to be regretted that our present system hardly resembles this ideal. As many authorities have pointed out, there is a vast amount of waste in the operation of our various common carriers—a vast amount of duplication of facilities, for which the public, in the long run, must pay. The fault lies in our transportation policy.

The Interstate Commerce Commssion has said that all carriers should pay comparable wages, render reliable service and bear equal tax burdens. Leading authorities believe they should likewise be regulated by one agency. Achieving these things would give us a fine start toward solving the growing transportation problem.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

—o—

A typical colored man landed with a skiff loaded with old lumber near my camp. I went down to meet him and ask where he had found his new possession. He informed that he had gathered it up the beach. Then I inquired "Ben, do people object to you gathering that lumber?" His reply was, "No, sir, Boss, not if dey does not see you when you gets it." Ben's idea is in harmony with the ideas of all colors of the human race. There are many whites, yellows and blacks who deem it right to take anything that come before them. If we are not seen in the taking, t is right to take. We must not forget that there is an eye that never slumbers, and that eye is ever upon us. God sees us in the night hours; He sees us when no one else is near. When will we ever learn that wrong is wrong. It is better to take things before the the vision of men than it is to take what does not belong to us before the vision of God.

While coming from my camp on the Bay a few days ago I saw a new sight. A hundred yards ahead I saw what I guessed to be a drove of pigs in the road. There were five of them. I slowed down and ran quietly up to the animals. I saw that there were three spotted ones and two black ones. When I was only thirty feet away I discovered that what I thought to be pigs were none other than a drove of grown skunks in singles and I have seen a litter of skunks in the mother's den, but this was my first time to see a drove of skunks. When I saw that the road was full of "pole Cats" I stopped my car and tooted my horn until the road was clear before me. A friend of mine ran his car over a lone skunk and for months his car was perfumed against public travel. In the days of Jesse James the human skunks went about their ways of robbery single-handed, but today human skunks have collected into droves. The underworld is organized and a Dillinger is at the head of a tribe of vile animals. Better be careful how you approach a tribe of racketeers. When human beings unite to rob and carry on a racket of any kind they always endanger the traveling public.

I was talking with the lady of the house and was also watching the skill with which she handled a crochet needle. She came to a turn that she was to make with her needle and her hands ceased to move. For a moment she lifted the fancy work near her eyes for close inspection and then she let drop back into her lap and she started to unraveling. She pulled yards of thread from the article being made. I ventured to ask why she had unraveled so much of her beautiful work. She replied, "I made a mistake at this place and I had to unravel and make it right." One wrong stitch had made a thousand other stitches wrong, and she had to unravel that all of the stitches might be made right. What a blessing it would be if life could be unraveled and all mistakes corrected. However, we are not able to do this. When we make a mistake we may not make that same mistake again, but we are unable to unravel our deeds and correct the mistakes already made. Better be very careful in the use of your needle of life. Be sure you are right and then go ahead with you knitting.

At my camp on the Bay I have a pet squirrel that has plenty energy and lots of good judgement. He makes his home in a large oak tree but he comes down in search of food. To make life easy for him I would place two large pecans on a shelf that I attached to the trunk of the tree and soon Mr. Bunny found them. His appetite was keen for nuts and he bundled himself up into a knot and soon devoured both pecans. I placed two more pecans for him and soon he was back after them. I watched his maneuvers and saw him as he carefully hid the pecans for future use. After hiding his surplus food he came down to express to me his gratitude in a regular circus performance. He would leap into the air and turn a somersault, roll like a ball on the ground and leap from tree to tree in froic and fun. He and I have grown to be great friends. Every day he looks for his water and food, but he never fails to express his gratitude in gymnastic performances. If the human race had as much energy and good judgement as the squirrel we would have no depression. We need to learn the art of production and saving. That will drive out the depression any day.

The Rev. J. P. Peacock, pastor of the Methodist church, conducted the services here Sunday morning using as his subject, "The Qualification of a Good Soldier." The Rev. J. L. Gaines, pastor of the Baptist church, had charge of the evening services, bringing a very helpful message from the subject, "The Christian Warfare."

Alabama Relief Administration

Montgomery, Ala.—With most of the crops "laid by" farmers enrolled in the Rural Rehabilitation program of the Alabama Relief Administration, for the greater part, have turned from work on the farm to work on roads and other work relief projects to repay their obligations to the Relief Administration, R. K. Greene, State Reural Rehabilitation Director, announced here today.

In many of thd countries, Director Green said, a large percentage of the rural rehabilitation subscribers have already repaid substantial parts of their obligations in work relief labor on roads at canning centers, and in surplus produce grown.

In a statement issued today, Director Greene urgdd that work directors in all counties make special efforts to provide projects for the work of rehabilitation farmers and their families that their indebtedness to thd Relief Administration may be liquidated at the earliest possible date. Once the obligation has been repaid, Mr. Greene pointed out, the rehabilitation farmers then will be in an advantageous position for enrollment in the combination constructon and rehabilitation program.

In this program, recently anounced by Thad Holt, Director of the ARA, rehabiliation farmers who have proven themselves worthy will be in the front ranks and eligible for 10 weeks of public work at $14.40 a week. The amount over and above the money needed for food or other necessities, will not be paid to the farmer in cash but will be credited to him by the Relief Administration as a down payment on a small farm and home from the Feleral Land Bank. If the rehabilitation or reliéf farmer is not sufficiently equipped to operate the farm then the amount will be credited for the purchase of equipment, and the Federal Land Bank farm will be available on a rental basis, the rent to be paid in "kind," a percentage of the crop.

"It is important," Director Greene said, "that rehabilitation farmers now be given every opportunity to repay their obligations."

A fair allowance will be made for corn, potatoes and other surplus crops by the Relief Administration in payment on their obligations, Mr. Grene said, and the produce should be turned over to the work directors.

Thd average amount to be repaid by the 5,942 families enrolled in the Rural Rehabilitation Program in the State was $89.45, on July 1.

NIGHT SINGING SCHOOL AT LIBERTY HILL CHURCH, AUG. 6

There will be a night singing school at Liberty Hill church beginning Monday night, August 6, and continuing for twenty nights.

Prof. L. T. Grant, who taught here last year will teach the school. Prof. Grant needs no introduction as a singer and teacher, being one of the best in the county. We are fortunate indeed in securing a teacher of Prof. Grant's ability.

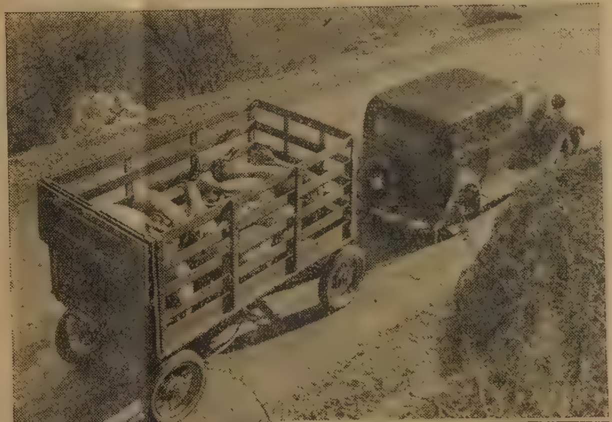
33 GASOLINES TAKE "HILL TESTS"
GULF WINS 7 OUT OF 12 TIMES!



LOOKOUT MT., TENN., where a borrowed Chevrolet, running in high gear and hauling 3200 lbs., tested 13 brands of gasoline. GULF WON!

IS there a difference in gasolines? READ THIS

Tests on famous American hills—from Massachusetts to South Carolina—prove that the power of gasolines selling at the same price vary widely!

In each of these tests, gasolines bought from local service stations competed to see which could propel a car and heavy load up hill farthest before the motor stalled. Results? . . .

GULF WON MORE HILL TESTS THAN 32 OTHER GASOLINES COMBINED! Study the chart below! Then go to any Gulf station and test That Good Gulf Gasoline for yourself!

HOW 33 GASOLINES RANKED (IN ALL TESTS TO DATE)

All gasolines tested, except a few "third grade" brands, sold for approximately the same price as That Good Gulf. Each brand is denoted by a letter

TEST	WINNER	2ND PLACE	3RD PLACE	4TH PLACE	5TH PLACE	6TH PLACE	7TH PLACE	8TH PLACE	9TH PLACE	10TH PLACE	11TH PLACE	12TH PLACE	13TH PLACE

Where a slip means death!

MOST AMAZING PROOF EVER KNOWN OF EXTRA TRACTION AND NON-SKID SAFETY

UP . . . UP . . . UP . . . to 14,000 feet above sea-level! Skirting yawning chasms, tearing around 181 treacherous turns at breath-taking speeds, daredevil drivers fight their way up, grinding, pounding, swaying! In the annual Pike's Peak Race, where a slip means death, Firestone High Speed Tires were on the winning car. Surely this is the most amazing proof ever known of Extra Traction—Non-Skid Safety—and Dependability!

The new Firestone High Speed Tires for 1934 have the toughest, longest wearing tread Firestone has ever made. They have a wider tread of flatter contour, deeper non-skid, more and tougher rubber, giving you more than 50% longer non-skid mileage.

Every cotton fiber inside every cord is soaked and coated with Extra Rubber — eight additional pounds absorbed by every 100 pounds of cotton cords. This is Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process that provides extra Blowout Protection.

50% LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE

Remember — with every Firestone Tire you get the Triple Guarantee

—for Unequaled Performance Records
—for Life Against All Defects
—for 12 Months Against All Road Hazards*

The Wonder Of Honey

By E. H. Calfee

Its Production Has Become A Very Important Industry

Magnitude of the business not realized; something about the wonderful little workers which gathers the honey crop.

Do you know anything about the wonders of honey and how important and large the honey business has grown to be? Very few people realize on what a large scale honey is produced today, and that the production of this "safer sweet" has become an important industry. This is true not only of the United States, but also of Canada and practically every other civilized country.

Honey has been a subject for debate by farmers of the American Tariff, having been at one time or other both imported and exported by the ton.

There are between 800,000 and 1,000,000 people in the United States alone who keep bees. The average annual value of honey produced in this country tops $75,000,000, while wax, as a by-product, brings about $3,000,000. There are localities where they measure their crops, not by the pound, but by the ton, or even by the car-lot.

The Department of Agriculture at Washington has in its Bureau of Entomology, and able staff of workers who devote their entire time and skill to the investigation of various problems connected with the industry. Extension workers are sent out to different states to spread the doctrine of better beekeeping. Bulletins have been issued covering every phase of the subject from the anatomy of the bee to the use of honey in the home.

Alabama ranks higher than any other state in the Union in package and queen bee production. This year Alabama sent package bees out by the truck loads, not mentioning the amount sent by express and parcel post. Today Chilton County is using modern machinery and equipment in most all their undertakings, but few beekeepers realize the importance of modern bee equipment. A great improvement has come about in the practice of beekeepers since the old days of "skips, or, "log gums" and bell ringing to stop swarms. The progressive beekeeper today uses factory made, hives with movable frames for the bee to stor honey in and to breed in so that at any time he can open his hive so he may see how things are going. From early spring on until fall he examines his hives regularly. His part of the work is to keep every family of bees—"Colony" as he calls a bee family—populous, giving each one ample storage room, preventing swarming, take off the honey at the right time, and, in the fall, see that the bees themselves have enough honey to take them through until next spring.

To get the honey off the hive easily he first uses a little contrivance to trap the bees out of it. Some produces comb honey in little square frames called sections, but more produce extracted honey. The extracted honey man has his bees store the honey in large combs which he removes when well sealed and takes to his extracting house. Here he slices off the wax covering of the honey cells called "cappings," and then whirls the honey out of the comb in a machine made for the purpose, called a "honey extracter." The small beekeeper turns his machine by hand, but the large producer uses large power-driven etracters, with honey pumps to force the honey in storage tanks.

Most beekeepers in Chilton County still have their bees in "log gums" ,or, "boy hives," and produce some "chunk" honey, while some few have realized the importance of modern equipment, and produce a great deal of both honey-comb and extracted honey.

Common white clover, the little variety found on road sides, commonly known as "Dutch White" clover, is one of the chief sources of honey in the United States. Hundreds of tons of nectar are gathered from the little blossoms by the bees every summer, and ripened into honey. Through the irrigated sections of the Middle West alfalfa supplies hundreds of tons. Sweet clover yields heavily throughout the whole country. In California the orange groves are the main dependance for the honey crop. Countless other plants are important honey yielders in different localities such as buckwheat, callon, poplar, sourwood, basswood, tupelo, orange, catsclaw, alsike clover. There are at least two books dealing entirely with the list and description of American honey plants.

In the very early spring the bees "work" blossoms of the red maple and elm and willows; the fruit bloom and dandelion; then white clover or what ever may be the main flow; then the so-called weeds and wild flowers of late summer and fall—heartsease, honeset, aster, wild sunflower, golden rod.

In this county the bees first begin work on red maple the last of February; fruit bloom about the first of April; poplar about April 15; honey dew, May 20; basswood, shoemake, June 1; Sourwood, June 10; Cotton, July 1. The poplar, basswood, sourwood, and cotton being the main honey plant in this section.

The nectar in all these plants, watery, thin, and only slightly sweet, would go to waste except for the honey bees. They gather it from countless blossoms, carry it to the hive in their honey-sacs, store it in cells of the honeycomb and "ripen" into honey by "evaporating" it. This ripening is a mysterious process, carried on partly in the honey-sac of the bees and partly in the cell of the comb. Some of the bees in the hive fan with their wings almost unceasingly and so help to "evaporate" the excessive water from the nectar.

While gathering this immense amount of nectar and a smaller quantity of pollen, which they also use for food, the bees perform a double service, carrying pollen on their bodies from one blossom to another, they become invaluable as pollinizing agents. Fruit trees, oranges, alsike clover, buckwheat, cucumbers, and many other plants produce at their best only when freely visited by these busy workers.

The social organization of the hive is most interesting. There are usually from 30,000 to 75,000 bees in one hive. A hundred or more of these are drones, one is queen, and the others are workers. The drones are males, the queen and workers are females.

The queen is the mother and lays all the eggs, sometimes a couple of thousand a day. She mates only once, in mid-air, and unless she comes out later with a swarm she spends the rest of her life, sometimes several years, in the dark hive. The drones have no stings and would starve to death in a clover field so they neither work nor fight. They live a few months, carefree, on the honey their sisters store, and then their sisters drive them from the hive and kill them off, for they are useless to the hive during the long winter and not worth their keep.

The workers have stings—and use them. They do all the work, gather nectar, make comb, feed the queen, ventilate and guard the hive. In summer they work so hard they live only about six weeks. They are females but not fully developed as is the queen.

Honey is a natural food and the most ancient of sweets, primitive man getting it out from rocks and hollow trees, did not know, as modern man knows, that its food value is very high, 1485 colonies to the pound, or that this food value is almost entirely pure energy. He only knew how good it tasted, and how it helped him through his fighting and hunting. He did not know, either, that because of being largely "invert" sugar, it is more easily digested than cane sugar because there wasn't any cane sugar. That came later. Cane sugar has to be "inverted" by the digestive system, which is what taxes the pancreas so heavily and often brings on diabetes. Honey, on the other h is all ready to be digested and absorbed.

Some of the large bakers use hone to an extent that would amaze the m of the street—hundreds of car load a year. Bread made with honey will kee soft and fresh when other breads without it will become stale. Honey is m superior as a sweetening for the little cakes that are sold all over the w because, made of honey, they k moist and sweet almost indefinitely. Large quantities are also used in making preserves, such as the famous l le-duc currants of France, imported at such fancy prices. It is used in candy making, in summer drinks, in ice cre and over ice cream for a "sunda Honey vinegar is known to be excellent There are a great many receipes for the use of housekeepers in making honey cakes, custards, breads and muff Mixed with nuts or peanut butter has become famous as a spread for delectable sandwiches.

Honey and cream is recommended r children inclined toward tubercul and honey, given to any children is mitted to be the most wholesome sw t they can eat. How good it is on hot biscuits!

Alabama Praised For Rural Relief Work Under FERA

o

Montgomery, Ala.—Alabama was described Monday by a representative of the Federal Emergency Relef Administration as one of the states showing the greatest progress in the rural rehabilitation work among destitute farm families.

John H. Caufield, representing the FERA, conferred here recently with Thad Holt, state relief director, and R. K. Greene, director of the rural rehabilitation program in Alabama, and planned to make a tour of inspection before leaving the state.

"The Federal Emergency Relief Administratio," he said, "is studying the methods employed in Alabama under the direction of Mr. Holt and Mr. Greene, with a view of recommending the system to other states.

"We have already recommended to other states many features of the Alabama program, and Washington is proud of the sound and practical system employed in Alabama."

Alabama now has 5,942 farm families enrolled under the rural rehabilitation program designed to lift destitute families from relief rolls and help them to regain their status as independent farm families.

Now's the time to RE-ROOF!

Take advantage of present low prices and have the old roof covered with Careystone — the asbestos-cement shingles which cannot burn, rust or rot. THEY FOUND IT DIDN'T PAY TO TRY TO DO WITHOUT IT

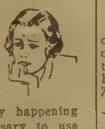
By T. E. Harris, DISTRICT MANAGER

SOUTHERN BELL Telephone and Telegraph Co.

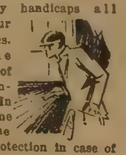
It is surprising how many people, when ordering telephones, say they found it just didn't pay to try to get along without telephone service in the home. It is embarrassing they say, to be continually borrowing a neighbor's telephone and yet when you haven't a telephone of your own it seems as though day after day things are continually happening which make it necessary to use some kind neighbor's telephone.



There are times, too, when you would like to be able to call and talk to some friend in privacy and without interruption, or the feeling that you are holding someone else's line too long, and the only way you can do that is to have a telephone of your own.

Not having a telephone isolates you, and as a result of your friends not being able to conveniently reach you by telephone, you are very likely missing many pleasant social gatherings that you would otherwise be asked to attend.

In fact, the telephone fits so closely into every activity of life and is relied on to such an extent in the carrying on of all social and business affairs that trying to get along without telephone service seriously handicaps all of your and your family's activities. It narrows the opportunities of all for a fuller enjoyment of life. In addition, the home without a phone is lacking in protection in case of emergencies.



It has been truthfully said of the telephone that nothing else gives so much in added pleasure and protection at such small cost.

Report of Resolutions Committee

To the Master, Wardens and Brothers of the Chilton County Masonic Conference in session at Coopers this 19 day of July, 1934:

Be it resolved as follows:

1. That we appreciate to the fullest extent the hospitality and splendid entertainment given the conference by Amond Lodge No. 250

2. That we extend to the ladies of Coopers our thanks for the splendid way and manner in which they have provided a most bountiful repast for the conference.

3. That we appreciated the interest given by our District Lecturer, Bro. Robert B. Keith, of Birmingham. His untirng efforts have been most helpful to the conference and the entire membership. His forcible delivery, painstaking and patience have made this session of the conference a great success.

4. The conference extends to Bro. H A. Harris, our faithful secretary, its sincere thanks for his untiring efforts to make the conference a success, and fer his prompt attendance thereon.

5. That conference express to Bro. J. C. Collins of North Birmingham Lodge No. 591 and Bro. W. L. Spearman, Farrior Lodge No. 8, its appreciation and thanks for their presence and help in the work of the Conference. We invite them to attend any future session.

6. Be it further resolved that the Conference have quarterly sessions of one day each in addition to the regular annual session.

For severe periodic pains, cramps or nervousness, try Cardui which so many women have praised, for over fifty years. Mrs. Dora Dungan, of Science Hill, Ky., writes: "Several years ago, when I was teaching school, I got run-down and suffered intensely during menstruation periods. I took Cardui and was all right again. After I was married, when I felt all run-down and was irregular, I always resorted to Cardui and was helped." . . . It may be just what you need. Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. Sold in $1 bottles.

Just a word about the SERVICE at the
MOLTON HOTEL
FIFTH AVENUE AND
TWENTIETH STREET

THERE'S a pleasant, friendly atmosphere about the Hotel Molton—a delightful informality and unobtrusively efficient service that appeals to discriminating guests. While Molton service is punctilious, it is entirely lacking in that stiff formality one often finds in larger metropolitan hotels. That's why the guests who stop here once, feel like they're coming home when they return to see us.

RE-ROOF for all time

DON'T take chances with an old roof when it is so easy to have Careystone applied right over it. Made of asbestos and cement formed into shingle-shaped units, these roofs have all the advantages of slate or tile without the heavy weight, high cost and tendency to crack.

Permanent and Fireproof
Careystone is a permanent roof—first cost is last cost. And it is as fireproof as stone.

Roof Beauty
Careystone is made in five attractive colors. And at no extra cost you can have the "Weather-Age" finish—made only by Carey.

Low Cost...Free Estimate
Careystone costs much less than many roofs which do not approach it in appearance or durability. Let us give you a free estimate on reroofing your home. Call, phone or write.

Now You Tell One

There have been many, many stories tales, anecdotes and things told with Mae West as the central figure. Of course, you have heard the one about the cows, the one with Joe E. Brown in it, and others. But you haven't heard the one about the time she went for a thorough physical examination and the young doctor who was at one time a preacher. Neither have I.

Phew! I've Done It Now.

Up to the time this week's column is being written there have been eighty-one names submitted as sugegstions for this column. Think of it. Eighty-one of 'em, and I've got to select one from the group. The trouble is there are a lot of dog-gone good ones suggested too. I'm not trying to craw-fish out of it, but the one selected will not be announced until next week, because the contest was to end August first and yesterday was that day and we won't have sufficient time to make the selection between now and yesterday.

New Ones This Week

Here are the suggested names that hav been mailed in since the list was published last week: "The News Anonymous Column," "News Anonymous Hot Shots," "A Modern Shakespear's Notions," "The Local Shakespeare," "Local Wit,' "Let 'er Bust," "That's All," "Thanks," "Backbon Brains, "By Cracky," "The Jig-Saw Editor," "Miscellaneous Weekly Kriz," "Chilton's Three & Two-Tenths," "Editor 3.2," "A Name With A Column," "Gossip As We Hear It," "First Seek Salvation," "Flashy News," "Nonsense And Some Sense," "The Chilton Caldron," "Chilton Chips," "Gleanings," "The Caldron Bubbles,' "Sharps And Flats," "Mixed Spectra," "The ambler," "County Comments," "County Canards," "Brain Building Items," "Nosey Newspaper Reporter's Facts," "Local Talent," "Jots And Dots," And if there are any more people who can think of more names, it would be interesting to know that too. Anyway, it's all over now, so if there were more suggested names sent in after this is being written, they will be published next week, along with the winning suggestion. Oh, yes, I've almost forgotten about the two bucks for the person who suggested the name that was selected. It will go forward presently.

The Question Is.

Someone has suggested (we don't know who it was) that this column be known as one column that will speak the truth about everything, regardless of who, what, where, why, how many, what for, if so, why, etc. Well, we almost agreed until we thought of that person who wouldn't like for his neighbors to know why he stays out so late at night and sleeps late in the mornings, and the fellow who has been trying to conceal the fact that he is fond of horse radish at ten o'clock in the night, the fellow who wouldn't like for it to be known that he keeps an automobile in the city for his private and undisturbed use, and the fellow who walks up and down before a mirror several times before going out. So, this column telling truth about things, is out. It can't be done, and the writer sleep good at nights.

Buried Alive.

We don't know at this particular time if the fellow was actually buried alive or not, but it was planned that he be buried alive next to the Dixie Cafe, stay there until Friday night and the casket be opened on the stage at the Wawesonian Theatre. Well, anyway, if he was buried as announced and stayed there until Friday night, which is tomorrow night, he must have got wet through all the rain we been having, must have gotten pretty hungry and and thirsty, had plenty of time to sleep, didn't have to worry about a shave or hair cut, free from bill collectors and insurance agents for awhile, but when nature calls, she calls and means it.

Flash! And More Flash.

Uchurch Drug Company has just put in a new and modern soda fountain. Of course, you can't see it when you first walk in, but Dr. Upchurch says it's there. And he's right, we say it's there too, and we're glad to see it Doc.

The Mayor's Race.

Along sometime in the first of September, Clanton will be having an election. Just a little city election to see who will be the next Mayor and Council of Clanton. It looks like Fenn Jones will have the field to himself, unless some dark horse comes in and steals the show. But personally we don't believe that will happen. Anyway, C. Fenn will make a most distinguished Mayor for Clanton. If he is elected we want to see him get busy and spread joy for Clanton, cultivate a most friendly hadnshake that will make a stranger feel as he was born in Clanton and lived here always. The same thing applies to whoever is elected.

J. P Lawrence, Jr.

We all know J. P. Lawrence, Sr., the well known gas and oil man of Clanton. Well, get acquainted with J. P. Lawrence, Jr., more familiarly known as John Ponder. And he can paint a sign, too, believe you me. There are a lot of signs that need painting around here. Some that haven't even been painted, and I mean over the whole county. John Ponder is a small sort of a fellow, not much bigger than he was a month or two ago, but he can certainly sling a paint brush. Give him a break when you want some painting done. The interesting part is that his prices are low.

EFFECT ON WOMEN OF SHORTER CODE HOURS

Washington—Decided improvement in the health of women workers in factories, stores, and laundries has been one of the outstanding benefits of the shorter work week under NRA codes, said Miss Mary Anderson, head of the Woman's Bureau of the Department of Labor, on the first anniversary of the cotton textile code July 17. In discussing inauguration of the 40-hour week in cotton mills, which supplanted the 55-hour week, Miss Anderson declared: "Losses due to wear and tear of long hours on human beings industry has long neglected to count, although it always carefully considered deterioration of machines. Let me cite the case of a woman who came to my attention recently. For 20 years since she was 14 years old, she had averaged 54 to 56 hours weekly in factories. After the code reduced her work time to 5 days of 8 hours each she had gained 30 pounds in 3 months. The shorter work schedule is more welcome to women than to men, because so many women, single as well as married, must perform home duties before and after factory hours. For many thousands the reduced hours has afforded time for brief recreation for the first time in their lives."

Walnut Creek News

The Rally Day service held at Walnut Creek July 30, was very inspiring. Eight Methodist Protestant churches were represented, namely: Walnut Creek, Cedar Grove, Shady Grove, Antioch, Mt. Pisgah, and Archie's Chapel.

The Rev. W. O. Lynch, Elmore, Ala., and the Rev. T. W. Eddins, Panola, Ala. conference were present.

Where a slip means death!

MOST AMAZING PROOF EVER KNOWN OF EXTRA TRACTION AND NON-SKID SAFETY

UP... UP... UP... to 14,000 feet above sea-level! Skirting yawning chasms, tearing around 181 treacherous turns at breath-taking speeds, daredevil drivers fight their way up, grinding, pounding, swaying! In the annual Pike's Peak Race, where a slip means death, Firestone High Speed Tires were on the winning car. Surely this is the most amazing proof ever known of Extra Traction—Non-Skid Safety—and Dependability!

The new Firestone High Speed Tires for 1934 have the toughest, longest wearing tread Firestone has ever made. They have a wider tread of flatter contour, deeper non-skid, more and tougher rubber, giving you more than 50% longer non-skid mileage.

Every cotton fiber inside every cord is soaked and coated with Extra Rubber — eight additional pounds absorbed by every 100 pounds of cotton cords. This is Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process that provides extra Blowout Protection.

50% LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE

ENJOYED MUSICAL PROGRAM HERE LAST SUNDAY NIGHT

If there ever was a time when a large number of the decent residents of Clanton should feel ashamed of themselves, it was last Sunday evening, July 29th, when Miss Beverly Hester and Mrs. Roderick Beddow gave a most delightful musical program at the Methodist church. These wonderfully gifted artists rendered the most exquisite program ever given in Chilton County, to an audience of Clanton people, which in that spacious auditorium, looked like the usual prayer-meeting crowd at a cross-road church.

I dare say, if Mrs. Percy Pitts, who sponsored the concert had announced a leg show or a suggestive motion picture and charged for admission, the auditorium would not have held the audience.

Have many of us reached that point in this ultra-modern life where beautiful organ music and a beautiful singing voice are offensive and not worth listening to? God forbid. Those who have lost their love for the beautiful things of life and are not lifted to a higher plane by such true artistry as that of Miss Hester and Mrs. Beddow are treading on dangerous ground.

Five of us drove up from Verbena and thoroughly enjoyed every sound of the organ played by Miss Hester and every golden note of the superb voice of the charming Mrs. Beddow. I feel sorry for the residents of Clanton who failed to hear this program. Such delightful events do not often occur in small country towns.

Two Chilton County Youths Win Award

Ralph and Pierce Culver of Mountain Creek, Alabama recently were awarded $200.00 each by the Leopold Schepp Foundation of New York after having complied with all the rules of the Foundation for three years.

The Leopold Schepp Foundation was founded by a very noble man whose name the Foundation bears. Mr. Schepp after having made a great success in life left his entire wealth to the boys of America through this Foundation.

In order that the boys of Chilton County may become more familiar with this great work the Foundation is doing the pledge is shown below:

"Desiring to share the benefits of the Leopold Schepp Foundation, I hereby pledge my best efforts to be worthy of the aid and encouragement which it offers.

First—To remember my accountability to my Maker, and endeavor with God's help to keep His commandments and daily seek His favor.

Second—To be loyal to mycountry, to obey the laws of the land which I live in, or in which I may sojourn.

Third—To honor my parents and all to whom honor is due.

Fourth—To be honest in all my dealings and endeavor to observe the rule: 'Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them.'

Fifth—To astain from all intoxicating drinks and harmful drugs.

Sixth—To avoid the practice of gambling in any form.

Seventh—To shun evil companions and avail myself of such moral and religious influences as are within my reach.

Eigth—To cultivate those manly qualities which will fit me for good citizenship and for an honorable life."

These boys were sponsored by the Rev. C. H. Rogers and Mr. W. R. Warrick of Marbury, Alabama, and are proud of the reports made to the Foundation by these two men.

Only boys under the age of fifteen years of age may enroll in the Foundation. It is hoped that many boys will have the courage to take part in such a noble work which the Foundation is carrying on and which our nation is proud of.

DEVAUGHN CONCERT CALLED OFF FOR A FEW WEEKS

The concert of Prof. W. M. Devaughn's singing school, which was to be held at the courthouse last Saturday night, was rained out. It is announced that it will be held within the next few weeks, complete announcement to be made later. It was decided to have it Thursday night of this week, but on account of revivals near by, it will not be held then, Prof. Devaughn stated. Watch the papers for the exact date within the next few weeks.

Fruit stains respond readily to boiling water. Hold the cloth or garment tightly stretched over a bowl and pour the boiling water through it from a height of two feet or more.

SINGING SCHOOL AT SHADY GROVE

Prof. W. M. Devaughn will teach a singing school at Shady Grove beginning next Monday morning, August 6. Indications are that the school will likely be a good one. For the past year or so, the people of that and adjoining communities have manifested a great interest in singing. If they will stay with W. M. Devaughn for three weeks, he will make a singing bunch out of them, and they will know the whys of it as well as the application.

CHILDRESS CEMETERY

All interested in the Childress cemetery at Mt. Carmel are asked to meet there on Tuesday, August 7th, for the purpose of cleaning off same. Come and bring tools to work with.

YOUR BED-LINENS

BECAUSE they are personally yours, you want your bed linens to be immaculately clean, and laundered as carefully as if they were at home. ALABAMA DAY

officials. Col. Graves is a firm believer in the power of the weekly press of this State and is expected to give an outline of his proposed plans when he takes office next January.

Governor B. M. Miller has proclaimed Alabama Day at the Fair and will join the party or have representatives from the State. It is also expected that a number of other State officials will make the trip with the Alabama publishers and their friends for the 1934 Century of Progress.

An attractive low-priced tour is being offered anyone that wishes to go. It includes besides railroad fare from Birmingham and return, on the Illinois Central special reclining chair cars, breakfast each morning at Hotel Sherman, accomodations in the same hotel for the entire three days while there, tickets to the Fair, an outstanding concession each day, twilight cruise up the river and into the lake via the Fair, sight-seeing tour of the city of Chicago and sight-seeing tour of the Century of Progress. The cost of this complete trip is only $29.95 and for children it is $19.75.

The Alabama editors are making every effort to carry a real representative crowd from the state to participate in Alabama Day at the Fair and to give the state as much publicity as possible. Already a large delegation from each town has been reported and advanced indications are that there will be 1000 or more to make the trip. Ask your newspaper now for this information or write W. Roy Brown, field manager of the Alabama Press Association at Montgomery, who is handling all arrangements for the tour.

L. F. ROGERS GOES TO NEW ELMORE STORE IN DEMOPOLIS

L. F. Rogers, well known in Clanton as manager of the V. J. Elmore 5c, 10c and $1.00 Store here, is now in charge of a new store in this same chain at Demopolis, Ala. This is the latest Elmore store and adds one more to a fast-growing chain of these popular stores in Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers have lived in Clanton for some months and due to their pleasing personality and activity in church and social life will be greatly missed by a wde circle of friends here, whose best wishes go with them to their new home in Demopolis.

Mr. Parr, who has been with the Elmore Store here for sometime, will assume management of the local store. Mr. Littleton of Thomasville, Ga., will also be connected with the Clanton store.

"SAINTLY HYPOCRITES AND HONEST SINNERS HERE 3RD

The outstanding play, "Saintly Hypocrites and Honest Sinners," which has been one of the biggest hits on the big-time during recent years, will be shown at the Chilton County High School in Clanton Friday night, sponsored by the Clanton Pilot Club, which has been responsible for bringing to Clanton many of the best theatrical entertainments.

With a theme of seeing one's self as others see him, made immortal in Robert Burns' poem, the play will furnish plenty of amusement, if one can rely on the judgment of those who have viewed the performance.

The curtain will rise sharply at 8 o'clock and everyone in this section who enjoys a good, clean, interesting drama is urged to be present.

W. A. Daniel, who has been engaged as manager of the Spigener Funeral establishment for the past ten months, has accepted a position with the Luquire Funeral Home, in Birmingham, and will leave Clanton to take over the duties of his new position within the next few days, he told a representative of the News this week.

He has lived in Clanton since last October, and both Mr. and Mrs. Daniel have made many friends in this section who will regret that his new duties force him to remove to Birmingham.

At the time of this writing, it is not known just who will succeed Mr. Daniel.

its production but more science in its economic life. It is possible to have a full science embracing the distribution as well as the production of wealth.

In the last year our farmers have taken their first steps toward matching efficiency in production with efficiency n economic adjustment. As they proceed along this path they will realize that the more they have of the one type of efficiency, the easier they will find it to achieve the other. The reason is plain. Efficient production is more dependable, and therefore more easily controlled than inefficient production. By emphasizing economic and technical problems equally and by indication their independence, the Department advances upon a logical path, in which its various activities are wholly consistent one with another.

We might just as well command the sun to stand still as to say that science should take a holiday. Science has turned scarcity into plenty. Merely because it has served us well is no reason why we should charge science with the responsibility for our faillure to apportion production to need and to distribute the fruits of plenty equitably. That failure we must charge squarely to organized society and to goverment. We need economic machinery corresponding to our scientific machinery in precision, in power, and in delicacy of adjustment. Science has done the first job and done it magnificently. It has shown us how to produce. Now it must show us how to distribute what we produce. It must go forward and not back. To production science we must add economic science, without for a moment ceasing to advance the former. Because we have surpluses of certain things does not mean that we have too much wealth or too much power to produce wealth. To suppose that we have too much wealth or too much power to produce wealth. To suppose that we have is to imply that man would be better off without means to make nature do his will.

To produce efficienly is to release time and energy for other uses, adding to the enrichment of life. Not to produce as efficiently as possible would be silly. Not to regulate the total volume of production, to relate it to consumpive demand, also would be silly. No facory is expected to fail, even when producing at less than capacity, to take advantage of new efficiencies. The same reasoning applies to agriculture.

finished product, the processing tax does not greatly influence the retail price. The proceeds are not retained by the Government, but go to the farmer. Except for the small proportion retained by the county associations for their local administrative costs, the tax behaves entirely as any other rise in farm price. The tax which adds but a small fraction to the retail price brings a large percentage increase in the farm price. The increase in the price of a loaf of bread attributable to the tax is only half a cent, while the cotton tax raises the price of a shirt a nickel, but the farmer's true price, including benefit payments, has more than doubled for cotton and has tripled for wheat.

his face, but was said by aides at the Central Alabama hospital, in Clanton, where he was rushed for treatment, not to have suffered any serious injuries. Mr. Cary, pilot of the plane, suffered a slight bruise on his right cheek. The other two passengers were uninjured, but considerably frightened, it was reported.

Cary said that the propellor blade snapped shortly after he had taken off from the Clanton airport and while the plane was still at an altitude of less than 200 feet, making it impossible to glide to a safer landing place.

"I saw what had happened," he declared, "and I told the boys to hold tight. Then I headed for the only opening in sight that looked as if it would be possible to make a safe landing. The broken propellor caused so much vibration that I had to cut off the motor and, of course, did not have sufficient altitude to glide back to the field."

The plane landed bottom upwards, striking the embankment when going over the road, but neither of the occupants were pinned underneath the wreckage. Cary stated that the plane was completely demolishd, but declared that he was "only too glad" that the passengers were uninjured.

Mr. Cary stated that he had been flying a passenger plane for more than six years, and has carried more than a hundred thousand passengers without a serious accident.

He had been in Clanton since Friday, carrying passengers from the Clanton landing field, which was recently opened.

FOUR PERSONS ARE INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Willie Jones Of Clanton And Others Receive Severe Bruises, Scratches

Four persons, enroute to the home of a relative who was killed near here late Tuesday afternoon by lightning, suffered severe injuries when the car in which they were riding toppled over a steep embankment after colliding with another machine on the grade on the Montgomery-Birmingham highway near the Clanton water tank.

Will Jones, local Coca Cola agent, who was driving the car, suffered several bruises about the face and head and hospital aides declared that it was believed that he had suffered several broken ribs; Andrew Johnson, A. J. Johnson, and Wilbur, 12-year-old son of Andrew, all of Clanton, suffered severe bruises about the face and head. They were treated by Dr. Napoleon Johnson, who declared that he did not think either of them had suffered any serious injury.

Mrs. Andrew Johnson and three other children, who were also occupants of the Jones car, escaped injury. No one in the other car was hurt, it was reported. The accident is said to have occurred when the rear ends of the cars struck as they passed, causing the Jones car to become uncontrollable and resulting in it crashing over the embankment.

The party was enroute to the home of Gaston Johnson, near the Alabama Mills, where Harvey Willis, a brother-in-law of the Johnsons, was killed by lightning late Tuesday afternoon while sitting on the porch of the Johnson home.

ALABAMA PRESS SPECIAL TO FAIR CREATING MUCH INTEREST

Large Number From All Parts Of State Are Planning To Ride Special Train Sponsored By Alabama Press Association In The State

By W. Roy Brown, Field Manager Alabama Press Association

Having just returned from an advanced trip to Chicago to complete all plans for the Alabama Press Specal and for offcial "Alabama Day" at the World's Fair, a number of publishers asked that I write a few words about the trip.

First, there will be representatives from every secton of the State. We have already received reservations from editors, their wives and families and friends from almost every county. This means that you will be making the entire tour with home folks. And I can truthfully say that it makes a great difference in Chicago. Then, too, there will be more special features given to a large party, such as the Alabama Press Special will carry.

So if you can make the trip to the World's Fair this year, and it will be your last chance to see it, plan now to go with your neighbors and friends from all over the State.

There is available a complete itinerary of the tour. You will find every item listed in order and it will give you a complete picture of the features of our trip in Chicago. Many special attractions have been added but are not listed. Upon arrival there, we go direct to the famous "College Inn" in the Sherman Hotel for breakfast. Your baggage will be placed in the room and when you are finished your room will be ready. The first thing at the Century of Progress will be a complete sight-seeing tour of the Fair grounds to give you a picture of each exhibit in order that you may find your way around after that. The tour admits you to the main gate and an outstanding concession each day. The rest of Saturday will be yours to enjoy the programs at the Fair.

On Sunday morning, following breakfast in the hotel, will be a complete sightseeing tour of Chicago with guide. This ends at the Fair Grounds and you are at liberty to remain until 9 p. m. that night, when the group will board the steamer "Roosevelt" for a trip up the river and into the lake by the Fair Grounds. A special program will be given on this trip.

Now for Monday, the big day. This is official "Alabama Day" and we have

CITIZENS MAY HELP CANNING POGRAM HERE

Can Bring Fruits, Vegetables To Canning Centers As A Part Of Program

Plans have been formulated and will soon be put into effect for an extensive canning program in which the entire citizenship of the county will have an opportunity to participate, according to Miss Kittye Clyde Austin, social director for Chilton County.

Miss Austin explained that a cooperative program has been worked out whereby the relief department can cooperate with citizens over the county in the preservation of vegetables and fruits on a percentage basis, the relief department furnishing the cans and labor in exchange for fifty per cent of the food canned.

There is much fruit and vegetables in the county, Miss Austin stated, that it is believed can be preserved under this program that would otherwise be waster. Non-relief families have only to bring the fruit or vegetables to the various canning centers in the county and cans will be furnished by the relief department and labor will be done by persons on relief for fifty per cent of the articles canned.

Dear Cotton Grower:

We are now taking applications for allotments and Tax Exemption Certificates pursuant to the Bankhead Act.

It is very important that you make application before August 20th since after that date no application will be accepted.

I mailed you a letter last week and a schedule of meetings where we would take applications. We have made a number of these meetings already and find that there are some farmers not making applications for tax exemption certificates.

In order that we may be sure that every one has an opportunity to sign an application, we will take applications at the following places next week:

Tuesday, Aug. 14, Jemison, All Day.
Tuesday, Aug. 14, Maplesville, all day.
Wed., Aug. 15, Verbena, All Day.
Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 16, 17, 18 — Clanton.

H. F. CHANDLER IS KILLED WHEN SHOT SATURDAY

Joe Y. Gray, Widely Known Resident, Charged With Shooting Here

The final chapter in the career of Harvey Chandler, one-time prominent business man and former mayor of Clanton, was written shortly after noon last Saturday when he died in a barren room of the old Thornton hotel building here from a 32 calibre bullet wound inflicted by Joe Gray, perhaps his closest friend, during what officers termed "a drunken brawl."

Both men were lying on an old rickety bed in the room when officers arrived on the scene. Chandler was dead. He had been struck by a single bullet in the pit of the stomach, according to Coroner J. Mell Martin, who is investigating the shooting. Joe Gray, 65, retired business man, and who officers said was so drunk that he could hardly walk, declared that he did not remember anything about the shooting.

Two other occupants of the building, Mrs. Jewell Mims and Miss Kate Moats declared that they had heard three shots fired, but did not go into the room until officers were notified and had arrived on the scene. They stated that only a few minutes before the shots were fired Gray had come to the door and inquired if "Harve" was in his room, and on being informed that he was had opened the door and entered.

When questioned about the shooting, Gray told officers that he did not remember anything about it, declaring that he and Chandler had always been friends and that there was no ill feeling between them. Officers, when they searched the room, found a bottle about half full of liquor

Chandler, who was once a prominent business man in Clanton, having operated a retail mercantile business for several years—and served the town as mayor, had been living alone in a room at the old hotel for several months.

Both men were said by officers to be heavy drinkers and it is believed, they stated, that the shooting was a result of a spree. Gray was placed in jail without bond to await preliminary hearing.

The dead man is survived by three sisters, Mrs. M. S. Whitfield, of Montgomery; Mrs. J. M. Morgan, of New Orleans, and Mrs. I. C. Shapp, of Atlanta.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Clanton cemetery. The Rev. R. P. Cochran officiated. Martin & Sons were in charge of the body.

The following friends served as pallbearers: W. H. Sartor, Hugh Jones, Tom Littlejohn, H. T. Pipes, J. D. Broadhead, and P. D. Wilson.

Clanton Jr. Dept. Store Offers Low Prices On A Large Dry Goods Stock

The Chilton County buying public will learn with a great deal of satisfaction of the big sale at the Clanton Junior Department Store, which is scheduled to begin next Friday morning and continue for ten selling days.

This is one of Clanton's newest firms and in the brief year that it has been serving the public of this section, it has won rapid acclamation as a merchandising mart worthy of the patronage of every citizen in this section.

And during this sale, Mr. Solomon, manager of the store, states there will be bargains, hundreds of them, such as have not been heard of in Chilton County in many years. In this same issue of the News appears an advertisement, listing scores of these bargains, but Mr. Solomon declares that these are only a few of the hundreds that will be offered at greatly reduced prices during the ten days of this mammoth sale.

Bargain hunters have a special invitation to visit this store during this sale and get the greatest thrill of a lifetime in selecting articles of high quality merchandise at prices that are unbelievably low, Mr. Solomon continued.

Praise For Cooperative Management

In a recent speech, Chester C. Davis, Agricultural Adjustment Administration director, said that the history of dairy cooperatives shows that the following four main objectives have been reached:

A larger share of consumer's dollar for the producer; elimination of unfair and destructve practices in distribution and processing; development of leadership able to cope with leaders of agencies with which a cooperative must deal; extending to all producers in a given market the responsbility for doing their part to maintain stability.

Achievements like these, made during some of the most trying years the nation has ever passed through, show on what a sound foundation the cooperative movement rests. It has always been a stabilizing influence; it will be remembered that during the farm riots of a few months ago the major co-ops did as much as any agency, private or official, to bring order out of chaos. It has never been swayed by giddy theories; instead it has kept firmly to the line of proven methods and time-tested ideas.

If the cooperatives can accomplsh so much during bleak depression, it is difficult to exaggerate their potential achievements. The Amercan farmer has real cause for feeling confidence in the future.

Your Fire Bill

It has been said that the greatest tragedy of fire lies in the fact that it is unnecessary. More than eighty per cent of all fires, large and small, are due to someone's oversight—a little care, a little thought, perhaps the spending of a little money, would have prevented them.

Fire would not be so serious if it were entirely an individual matter—if the person who allowed his property to burn because he permitted hazards to exist uncorrected paid the bill. But we all pay—every member of the communty is assessed, directly or indirectly, for a share of the cost. We pay it in depressed business if a factory is destroyed—men are put out of work. We pay it in higher taxes—a fire that eliminates property from the tax rolls makes it necessary to increase taxes on all other property to make up for the loss. We pay it in higher insurance rates—over a period of years, the rate charged for insurance protection is based upon the amount of loss in the community.

The direct fire bill in this country is around $400,000,000 a year at present, and in some years it has passed the half-billion mark. The indirect loss is several times as great—observers say it runs close to two billions. That money comes out of the pocketbooks of the American people, and whether your property suffered a fire or not doesn't let you out of paying it.

Fire prevention is easy—care and thought are the main essentials. And every fire that is prevented means actual money saved to you.

The Shifting Of The Hemispheres

In a recent address, James S. Carson, Chairman of the Council on Inter-American Relations, said: "The West is to play a new role on the world stage. The great war caused a shifting of the hemispheres. The New will supplant the Old in leadership which will usher in a different concept in international relations and commercial exchanges. The actual war did not end with the signing of the Armistice, but we believe its termination is dimly visible today. Inter-Americanism will finally point the way to stop the ruthless economic struggle which has been designated 'The War After the War.' If this be true, the long labor pains caused by the birth of this new epoch will not have been suffered in vain."

It seems an axiom that intense nationalism, as pursued by many of the great European powers today, is productive of nothing save chaos—and there is good reason to believe that the peoples of the world will at last turn for relief to an enlightened nationalism such as concerns Mr. Carson. The rigors of military war are not greater than those of economic war.

Friendliness and cooperation between nations is vital to world stability, world progress, world welfare.

Ford Celebrates 71st Birthday

On July 30th Henry Ford celebrated his 71st birthday and a press dispatch expresses it that he is "71 years young." This would convey the thought that in ideas, ambition, and reaction to the future Mr. Ford is actually a young man. We agree with this characterization. Since the death of Thomas A. Edison perhaps no name in the industrial or scientific world is quite so familiar to the American people as that of Henry Ford.

He typifies the pioneer spirit of our nation carrying on in a highly complex civilization. He thinks individually and strongly. He has the courage of his convictions. He is still pioneering, and we think will continue to do so for whatever number of years are still allotted him. He ascertains facts and conditions, then does what his judgement deems wise. All of which might mean something to those who are drifting about like a rudderless ship, waiting for someone to tell them what to do, and when and how to do it.

Other states are beginning to report similar activity. Any upturn in mining stimulates employment and purchasing power generally and is a great benefit to the public.

Bro. Bryan Visits Clanton

Last Friday evening for a short time Clanton had the privilege of entertaining a very distinguished visitor, Bro. Bryan of Brmingham. This venerable minister talked for an hour to a crowded house at the Clanton Methodist church. Few men in Alabama, perhaps the South, have a life so filled with service to his fellowman as Bro. Bryan. In an humble, often obscure way, he has gone about doing good. He is an old man now, and it was necessary for him to sit part of the time while speaking here, but there seems to be no indication of his retiring or even trying to lighten his work.

He has cast much bread upon the waters of suffering humanity, and we are glad to know that it is returning to him in the love and esteem given him by his friends in Birmingham and Alabama.

May Bro. Bryan's years yet be man among the people he loves and who hold him in such warm affection.

Interesting Advertisements

American industry is literally founded on a cornerstone of advertising. Mass production necessitates mass distribution and sales if it is to be effective. Advertising educates and creates in the public a desire for better things in life. Merchandisers use a wide variety of appeals to whet the appetites of would-be buyers. The keenest minds, the most brilliant psychologists, artists, dehigners, writers, salesmen and manufacturer have united their efforts to make the sales appeal entertaining, educational and otherwise interesting to those who will or should buy.

All this has resulted in ideas and creations which might well rank high even in the field of literature and art. One very interesting idea being used by the Standard Oil Company, has recently come to our attention. A series of advertisements is being used by this company calling attention to historic places of interest in Alabama. The illustrations, copy and design make these advertisements well worh reading aside from their merchandising appeal.

The Ground Floor

Most observers believe that recovery will come slowly, and that there is little fear than any severe set-backs to the progress already made will occur.

If that is true, there is one investment the far-sighted citizen can make that will bring him "dividends"—a modern home. It will give his family something that cannot be adequately measured in dollars and cents—a higher standard of living. And, through the act of building it, he will stimulate recovery. No dollar we spend does more to provide employment and to stimulate industry than the construction dollar.

Prices are rising, and strong forces, backed by government itself, are attemptng to accelerate their rate of climb. Build now, repair now—and "get in on the ground floor."

Gulf States Farm Credit News

The first edition of a well-printed, well-edited little newspaper, "Gulf States Farm Credit Newh," which makes its bow to the public as a disseminator of information concerning activities of the Farm Credit Administration in the Fifth District, is before us.

This first issue is chock full of information relative to an important phase of the government's endeavor to rehabilitate agriculture. All too little is understood about the workings of this department, and we feel sure that this paper, to be published from time to time under direction of Marvin M. Black, Information Agent and Editor will fill a very real need.

Why Does A Mule Stick His Head Through A Fence?

You have seen many a mule reaching for grass on the other side of the fence. He gets his ears stuck, his neck scratched and his throat cut up, when there is just as much, just as green and just as high and luxuriant grass under his very hoofs. Did it ever occur to you to ask the question, why he does it? There is a reason—it's because he's a mule.

The same logic and reasoning applies in many communities who insist on buying their needs in some other town, from peddlers, or from mail order houses.

You make your own money—it is yours, and you have a right to spend it where you please, with whom and for what you please, but stop and consider your condition, if the community was taken away from you. The community can get along without you, but if the community was completely taken away from the source of your income, then what?

It is a business proposition. Every time you buy something for the same or more money, quality considered, from anyone or any place other than from your own community, it is costing you money.

Everybody laughs at a mule. So, "Try the Home folks First."—Chattsworth Times.

The Problem Of Plenty

The Year-Book of Agricultural Cooperation shows a progressive and far-sighted spirit when it says: "Our age is witnessing the extraordinary spectacle of a world fleeing from plenty. It is for the cooperative organization to show that they can face plenty and that their ideal of social justice is a light by which they can deal out plenty with an even hand, so that it neither piles up for want of claimants nor ceases for lack of recompense to those from whose labor it has sprung."

It has often been said that the troubles of the present lie in the fact that the machinery of distrbution has been inferior to the machinery of production. There is no lack of people who want wheat, cotton, fruit, dairy products and all the other things our farmers raise—and these people constitute a vast market which the progressive cooperatives are trying to reach. The cooperatives are not seeking to obtain extortionate prices—they are seeking fair prices that will bring the producer a reasonable profit and allow him to sell the maximum amount to the consumer.

The mere routine of buying and selling is among the least of cooperative activities. Cooperatives are great educational institutions, so far as both their members and the public are concerned. They are going forward on firm ground, meeting and grappling with great social and economic problems. And they are making headway.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I was standing by the slab pit chain that moved all waste to the flames and saw a nice piece of lumber fall into the clutches of that chain. A man who was directing the lumber saw what had happened and he made an effort to get the piece of lumber but failed. He called to another man down the line to save the lumber, but he failed. It went on the way of the rubbish and toppled over into the flames. Not long since I heard a preacher in the pulpit use this language: "My sinner friend, God is going to send you to hell if you do not repent and seek salvation." What foolish things some folks charge God of doing. God has never, and He never will, send a soul to hell. When he sees a human being caught in the ways and currents of sin He makes every effort possible to rescue that one. He appeals to men all along down the line to rescue the one who is headed to the flames. No, my friends, God will not send you to hell, but he can not keep you from going if you have determined to follow the paths of sin. The sinner goes to hell in spite of God.

A young husband came home from the field. He was met at the door by his bride of a few weeks, who lavished upon him her love and welcome. His heart was warmed and his tired body was refreshed. Soon he looked around in the room and the floors were not swept, the beds had not been made, there was no food on the table. The bride had dolled herself up for the groom, but she had done nothing towards making home what it should be. For a few weeks this farmer boy said nothing, but patience ceased to be a virtue and one day he ventured to say, "Darling, if you love me why not sweep and dust the house, why not tidy the beds, why not cook me some dinner." The little doll went into a pout and charged that her husband did not love her. Many church members profess to love the Lord. They doll up to attend services and shine much on public occasions, but just ask them to do something, to make a sacrifice for God and they think that they are being imposed upon. In married life and in church life, serving has a way of revealing true love. How can you claim to love Christ, claim to love His church and then do nothing?

I was at the depot on one of the main lines many years ago. The train on which I expected to travel was marked up an hour late. In talking to a friend about the late train he made this reply, "Parson, you are mistaken if you think that train is coming in here an hour late. I know the engineer and he is going to make up some time." Thirty years ago making up time was one of the outstanding virtues of an engineer. If he could pull wide his throttle and make up an hour in a three hours run, he was rated as one of the best men on the road. Not so now. There is a cool headed man sitting in an office many miles away and he is the one who says how fast the train shall run. By orders and signals the engineer is held down to safe travel. Up in heaven there is One who keeps watch over all the universe. He knows what is safe and He knows what speed we should make, and if we regard His signals and follow His orders, we can make the run of life in safety. It is the speed demon that disobeys orders and crashes red lights who is responsible for the wrecks along the way. When will we ever learn to obey orders?

In the olden days a very strong young man had beautiful hair and he curled it into seven long locks. They hung down over his shoulders and he was very proud of them. One day this young fellow went to sleep with his head in the lap of wicked Delilah, and while he slept she ordered a barber to clip the seven locks from the head of the strong man. Then she aroused hm saying, "Samson, the Philistines are upon thee." He arose and shook himself and went out to meet his enemies, but he was powerless. His head had been touched with Delilah's shears and he had lost his strength. That leads me to say that any man, any woman, who will go to sleep with his head in the lap of the world, will most surely be deprived of his power. The devil has a way of slipping power from the life of any one who bows down at his knee. Clip, clip, clip, sounds the shears and away goes our will power, our regard for sacred things, and our regard for the truth. Clip, clip goes the shears and off comes our passion for good company and our ideals for an humble life. Clip, clip, sounds the shears again and off comes self-mastery and our observance of God's laws. The devil is a great barber and in a few moments he can clip off all power.

Terracing Program Planned For Fall

Within the next few weeks Alabama farmers, with the asisstance of their probate judges, county commissioners and county agents, will launch the greatest terracing program ever conducted n the State.

Six counties have already made arrangements for tractors and terracing machines to do cooperative terracing this fall. These counties and the number of terracng outfits per county are: Tallapoosa, 5; Chambers, 4; Coosa, 2; Randolph, 1; Limestone, 1; and Etowah, 1. Other counties are at present making arrangements for proper terrac ing machines.

The time for terracing is or soon will be at hand, and J. B. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, is authority for the statement that agood terrace will enhance the value of an acre of land by $5 to $10. The cost of making such a terrace varies from $1 to $2.50 per acre, depending upon the condition of the land and the equipment used, Wilson said.

Alabama's Corn Crop At Record

Other Grains And Cotton Indicate Prosperity For Farmers

Predicting the Alabama corn crop this year will reach the 50,000,000 bushel, mark, the highest in the State's history, Leo Drum well-known feed and grain dealer of Montgomery, declared prospects are that the surplus will probably make the State an exporter of corn instead of an importer.

Mr. Drum said the recent rains have made 87.5 per cent of the bumper corn crop in Alabama. South Georgia and West Florida, he asserted, are also producing more corn than usual. This State's normal corn crop is between 35,000,000 and 40,000,000 bushels Mr. Drum said.

For the first time in history he says Alabama will be able to ship an appreciable amount of its surplus to other States this Winter, provided favorable shipping rates are offered. Mr. Drum is investigating the possibility of drouth rates being put into effect for the thousands of farmers who will have corn to sell.

"Alabama will make more corn this year than can be consumed within its borders," said Mr. Drum. With few exceptions, the seasons throughout south Alabama counties have been ideal for corn and other food supplies.

Besides the bumper corn crop, the farmers of this State have already harvested an oat crop which was about 115 per cent of normal. Except in the Tennessee Valley, very little wheat is grown in the State.

The steadily advancing price of commodities is expected to once again put Alabama farmers "on their feet" this Fall. With cotton selling close to 13 cents, corn up about 28 cents a bushel from the year's low level, and oats lifted at least 18 cents a bushel, the outlook is bright for the farmers of the State this Fall.

Ford Celebrated 71st Birthday July 30th

Henry Ford was seventy-one years young on July 30, 1934.

Henry Ford was born on July 30, 1863 in the old Spring Wells township between Dearborn and Detroit. The old homestead still stands. His father, William Ford, was one of the substantial farmers of the community.

As a boy, he showed great interest in mechanics. His first venture was to take a watch apart and put it together again. He thought work on the farm should be lightened and invented a steam tractor which ran on its own power. It is said that this invention led finally to the manufacture of his automobile.

He worked first as an apprentice boy when he was sixteen years old at a salary of $2.50 per week at an engine works and rose by fast stages to the position of chief engineer of the Detroit Edison Company.

Henry Ford was forty years old before he offered the Ford car to the world.

To date, over twenty-one million Ford cars have been sold.

Early in 1914, telegraph wires buzzed from Detroit to bring word to a gasping world that from that day on, the Ford minimum wage would be $5 per day and the working day would be eight hours in length. In 1926 he further reduced working hours and made the forty hour week effective and stated his belief that "in addition to higher wages, labor must be given the leisure to use the product of the machine," thus establishing a great American industrial principle. He states, "during twenty years our average hourly rates have quadrupled. If wages have been multiplied by four in the past twenty years, then they could be multiplied by more than that during the next twenty years.

Perhaps more than any other man, Henry Ford has changed the habits of the people of the South, especially the rural South. Over 40 per cent of all automobiles in the South are Fords. The effect the Ford car has had upon the Southern farmers can scarcely be estimated. It is largely responsible for bringing the South out of the mud, ending the isolation of the farmer, giving him contacts with his neighbors on the farm and in nearby towns and cities. The effect upon the industrial South has also been great in that the Ford Motor Company is one of the largest purchasers of textiles and other fabricated materials as well as raw materials from the South.

Always interested in education, Henry Ford's support of the Martha Berry School at Rome, Georgia, is not so well known though he is one of the chief supporters of this great work. He established a school at Greenfield Village where boys who cannot afford to pay for an education might learn to work with their hands as well as their heads. Here he accumulated his great collection of early American products of all kinds that the pioneer history of America might prove an inspiration for the future. One of Henry Ford's greatest educational works was the founding of the Ford Trade School where boys are given an opportunity to select and learn any one of the various trades through practical work.

He owns a large plantation near Savannah, Georgia, upon which he has carried out many experimental operations, one in particular being the Soy Bean which has an important use in the manufacture of paints and finishes for automobiles. Henry Ford has been a large purchaser of Georgia marble which has been largely used in Greenfield Village.

In the past ten years, through the sale of Ford automobiles in the Southeast and wages paid Ford employees, ninety million dollars of new wealth have been created and left in the Southeast. Nor does this figure include the huge purchases of materials made in the Southeast.

In a recent interview, Mr. Ford was asked what was wrong with the South. He replied: "You have come to the wrong place if you want to discuss anything being wrong with the South. There is probably less wrong there than any place in the country. The South has a future which it can shape for itself and avoid the mistakes which the more populous parts of the country have made. The South supplied the first customers I ever had," said Henry Ford. "We started business in July and in those early days no one ever used the motor car in winter, so the first Ford cars were bought by Southern people and Southerners were my first agents.

"I believe the South, with its progress, is going to surprise its heartiest well-wishers and most loyal sons. The South contains the greatest block of the old American stock on this continent and that old pioneer American sock always responds to the need of the hour."

In a recent interview, Mr. Ford expressed his conviction that the pioneer spirit of America is the force that will bring the nation out of its social afflictions and economic doldrums. He stated that the South possesses the greatest block of old American stock on the continent, has a future which it can shape for itself and avoid the mstakes that the more populous parts of the country have made. He re-expressed hs conviction that the cry of over-production is a money cry, not a human cry. He believes that "mankind should produce for everymore. Never yet in the world's history has enough of any good thing been produced for use."

Henry Ford believes that straight, hard thinking, the ability to solve problems "that didn't have any answer in the back of the book," is the way toward progress.

It took a man like this to scrap the whole Highland Park Ford Plant worth more than one hundred million dollars when he built the River Rouge Plant. In the manufacture of Ford cars, Henry Ford said that "simplicity, high quality low price are our three real goal.

Henry Ford believes that money's real use can only be measured in terms of production. "Money will ruin the life of any man who treats it like anything but a tool with which to work

It might have been BUILT especially for THE SOUTH

The Ford V-8 might have been built especially for the South. Its twin pump cooling system allows you to drive all day long, even in the hottest weather, without the motor heating up. The windshield opens—a necessity in summer weather. Due to free action for all four wheels, it's a comfortable car over all kinds of roads.

Ford is the only car under $2500 which offers you the V-8 engine, the same type of engine that holds every record on land, water and in the air.

The South knows that the Ford has always been an economical car. The Ford V-8 is the most economical Ford ever built. Talk to a Ford Owner and you may think he is bragging. Drive the Ford V-8 and you will share his enthusiasm.

The more high-priced cars you look at—the more FORD V-8 FEATURES you see.

Here are some of them:

- V-8 Cylinder Engine
- Single Pane Clear-Vision Ventilation
- Torque Tube Drive
- ¾ Floating Rear Axle
- Aluminum Cylinder Head
- 5½ Gallon Cooling System
- Dual Down Draft Carburetion
- Houdaille 2-way Shock Absorbers
- Free Action for all four Wheels
- Completely Water-Jacketed Cylinder and Upper Crankcase Walls
- Tungsten Exhaust Valve Seat Inserts and Mushroom Ended Valves

Feels a Lot Better When Black-Draught Relieves Constipation

From many states come reports like the following from Mr. W. M. Henderson, of Jasper, Fla: "I have been taking Thedford's Black-Draught twenty years. I take it for constipation that gives me a dull, tired, aching feeling, and I have headache, too. Black-Draught relieves me of this trouble, After a few doses, I feel as good as new. I keep it in my home. I have a big family. When one of us is ailing (from constipation), we take Black-Draught and almost always feel a lot better. It has been worth its weight in gold to my family." . . . Sold in 25¢ packages. "Children like the Syrup."

Easy To Check Cost Of Operating Truck

What every truck owner ought to know—how much his fleet operations cost, which drivers are doing the best jobs, which type and make of equipment is the most economical, which vehicles are costing so much that they should be replaced—can be ascertained with a minimum of paper work by use of a copyrighted "Owners Simplified Operating Record" made available to all truck users by the Chevrolet Motor Company, through its dealers everywhere.

The new simplified operating record, according to W. E. Fish, manager of the Chevrolet commercial department, is especially well designed to fit the needs of individual operators of small fleets of trucks.

The system provides the owner with a small record book, one for each vehicle, containing a sheet for each day's record (to be filled in by the driver) and a monthly summary sheet on which the daily entries are totaled. Comparison of the summaries at the end of the month will give a definite figure on the relative operating costs of each vehicle in use.

The record not only informs the operator what his fleet operation is costing him, but enables him to judge the comparative merits of his drivers, assists him in making income tax returns and in complying with the Code, shows him the comparative operating costs of varous types and makes of equipment, gives him a guide for the use of a bonus system, reveals which units should be replaced because of undue operating expenses, and if salsmen-drivers are used, enables him to tell which men are operating most profitably.

Sportsmen's Club Of Isabella Is Organized Recently

To promote a greater conservation of game and a keener appreciation of wild animal life, a group of citizens of the Isabella community met last Wednesday night, August 2, and organized the Isabella Sportsmen's Club with a membership of twenty-five.

Jim Smith, of the State Game and Fish department, was the principal speaker on the program. He told many stories of wild animal life and urged those present to take advantage of the vast opportunity to enhance the game store in that section.

Dist. Game Warden Lightsey was present and spoke briefly, declaring that he knows of no place in this section of the state where natural resources afford a better opportunity for accomplishment by a sportsmen's club.

The organization will hold the next regular meeting Thursday, August 9, at 8 o'clock.

CODE ARRANGED

Selma, Ala.—A construction code for the nine Central Alabama counties of Dallas, Wilcox, Hale, Green, Perry, Chilton, Choctaw Sumter and Marengo, comprising District 7 of the Alabama Code Authority was formulated and signed between contractors and carpenters at a meeting held here. Contractors present included R.T. Ramsey and J. E. Brooker of Demopolis; R. E. Powell of Camden; T. D. Barkley of Linden and J. D. Straighter of Greensboro.

The code provides 75 cents an hour for able carpenters with one apprentice to three carpenters, and 40 hours work per week. It was pronounced satisfactory by all. H. J. Koski, of Selma, was elected chairman of the district, and E. C. Hoffman, of Selma, secretary. The code will be sent to the state authority at Birmingham for approval, after which a meeting will be held here by both parties with the public as a third in interest, and will then be sent to Washington for enactment into law.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. Ellen Cox, widow of Jesse Cox, who died some years ago near Cooper, died on Friday night, June the 8th, and was buried on Sunday following in the Chestnut Creek cemetery at Cooper.

At the time of death she was 76 years of age. She was Mr. Cox's second wife. She reared four step-children, and one of her own. The step-children are Mrs Doc Deloach, Mrs. Ben Jones, Lee and Abner Cox. Her own is Mrs. John Dennis.

She taught school for a number of years, was a member of the Primitive Baptist church, was a friend to all, loved all people and very affectionately appreciated all of her friends.

May the Lord watch over all that are bereaved by her going, knowing that sooner or later the time will come when all must go.

A life is gone out that served its mission well. What her reward will be no human tongue can tell. — Rev. R. F. Yeargan.

Chilton Woman Wins Recipe Endorsement

Miss Ila Ruth Gay, Box 70, Route 1, Stanton, Alabama, has just been awarded a Certificate of Recipe Endorsement by Better Homes & Gardens for her recipe, "Apple or Fruit Roll."

This certificate, which brings national recognition to Miss Gay, is given by Better Homes & Gardens only to distinguished recipes which pass its testing kitchen's tests for dependability, excellence of taste, and family usefulness

In addition to the signed certificate, Miss Gay also received six copies of her endorsed recipe, each bearing the Better Homes & Gardens stamp of recipe endorsement, which she can give to her friends.

In awarding these certificates, it is the magazine's aim to provide proper recognition for the creative work done by women in their own kitchens, and also to raise the standard of accuracy and dependability of recipes as a whole. No other magazine or institution gives this personal recognition and service to its subscribers.

Miss Gay's endorsed recipe follows:

Apple or Fruit Roll: 2 cupfuls of cake flour, 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar, 1 tablespoonful of salt, 2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder, 2 tablespoonfuls of lard, ¾ cupful of milk, 2 tablespoonfuls of butter, ½ cupful of brown sugar, 2 cupfuls of sliced or chopped cooking apples. Sift the flour, sugar, salt and baking powder together. Work in the shortening with the finger tips or with a pastry blender until very fine. Add the milk gradually and mix to a soft dough. Turn out on a floured surface and knead lightly. Roll out to about ½ nch in thickness and place bits of butter over the dough. Cover with the thinly sliced or chopped raw (quick cooking) apples and sprinkle with the brown sugar. Roll up in jelly roll fashion and cut in 1 inch slices. Arrange the slices in a shallow, greased baking pan and bake in a moderate oven (400 degrees) for 25 or 30 minutes. If desired a sauce may be poured over just before baking or the rolls may be baked and served wth the sauce.

Sauce: 1 cupful of sugar (brown or white), 1 tablespoonful of flour, 1 teaspoonful of vanilla, ⅛ teaspoonful of salt, 1 cupful of boiling water or fruit juice, 1 tablespoonful of butter. Blend he sugar and flour. Add the rest of the ingredients and cook 3 minutes.

TIPPETS VISIT SOUTH ALA., GA., AND FLA.

On Sunday morning, July 15, Arthur and George Tippett with their families, started on a tour through South Alabama, Georgia and Florida. Some time was spent with relatives, Mrs. Tom Tippett and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Foster in Whigham, Georgia.

The crops were better than usual, having had plenty rain. Most of the tobacco was in the barns. Some was shaded tobacco for cigars, some was flue tobacco for cigaretts.

On Monday the party visited the Wight Nursery in Cairo, Georgia. This was very interesting. This nursery consists of many acres. Oranges, grapefruit, satsumas, kumquats, persimmons, pecans and all kinds of shrubbery and flowers, some were imported from foreign countries.

On Tuesday the Walden family entertained with a fish fry, on the Ocklonee River. Anybody would enjoy their brown fish, Georgia corncakes and black coffee.

The most interesting sigh was in Florida. The party visited the capitol city, Wakulla Spring and Spring Creek Bay, on the coast. Wallakula Spring is the beginning of a river and is said to be the largest spring in the world. It has an outflow of 282,000 gallons per minute. It is 185 feet deep. This spring contains different species of trained fish, natural flower box, Marathon Skulls. The water is so clear a coin can be seen at the depth of 185 feet. The coin was one and a half minute reaching the bottom. The fish were trained to come when called, to march and to jump poles. All this can be seen through glass bottom boats.

Miss Maysel Tippett of Whigham, Georgia, accompanied the group home for a two weeks visit.

This trip of 959 miles was made without car trouble.

Just a word about the SERVICE at the
MOLTON HOTEL

FIFTH AVENUE AND TWENTIETH STREET

THERE'S a pleasant, friendly atmosphere about the Hotel Molton—a delightful informality and unobtrusively efficient service that appeals to discriminating guests. While Molton service is punctilious, it is entirely lacking in that stiff formality one often finds in larger metropolitan hotels. That's why the guests who stop here once, feel like they're coming home when they return to see us.

Plymouth Passes Entire 1933 Output 26th

Detroit, July 29.—More Plymouth automobiles have been produced already this year than during the entire year of 1933.

This was the announcement yesterday of B. E. Hutchinson, chairman of the board of the Plymouth Motor Corporation.

During the 12 months of 1933, biggest in Plymouth's history and more than 100 per cent greater than the production of 1932, a total of 261,088 units were built at the Plymouth factories.

With the introductions of the 1934 models, Hutchinson said, it was necessary to speed production to the greatest capacity of the factories to meet demands.

The result was that in less than seven months the 1933 record was exceeded.

Increased buying in the low priced field was also indicated in registrations for the first five months of this year, made public yesterday. The three leading low priced cars registered 72.6 per cent of all cars.

Last year aduring the same period, these cars registered 67.5 per cent of all cars.

Plymouth showed a substantial increase in percentage of total business, Hutchinson pointed out. Whereas during the first five months of 1933 Plymouth registered 13.8 per cent of all cars purchased, this year the figure has grown to 16.2 per cent, an increase of 2.4 per cent over last year.

How To Prevent Typhoid Epidemics

Montgomery, Ala. — Extraordinary precautions throughout Alabama to prevent typhoid fever from resuming its former position as one of the major public health problems have been urged by Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, in connection with intensive efforts now under way to stamp out two "explosive" typhoid epidemics.

These epidemics recently broke out in Deratur and Phenix City and several deaths already have occurred among the total of about three score cases of typhoid reported. In each instance the epidemic was traced to contaminated water supply and lack of proper sanitation, although Dr. Baker emphasized that the city water supplies of both Decatdr and Phenix City were phre.

Presidents of both affected areas were obtaining their water for drinking and cooking from shallow wells or polluted springs, which outwardly were clean. In one section city water had been cut off for non-payment of bills. Conditions have been remedied in these cities, and Dr. Baker urged that other sections, both urban and rural, make sure that their water supplies were pure.

Construction of sanitary facilities for rural homes at safe distance from wells also was strongly advocated, the health officer pointing out that such facilities may be built at relatively low cost "compared to a case or death from typhoid fever."

"First of all, however, every member of the family should be protected against typhoid by vaccination," Dr. Baker declared. "Every citizen must also insist that the county health authorities are adequately supported so that they may give proper supervision of all milk supplies, as well as food and eating establishments."

Typhoid caused only 119 deaths in Alabama last year, against approximately 1,000 in 1917, before the state health department's services were developed to their present high level. Dr. Baker said the two recent epidemics were directly attributable to the depression, and that "extraordinary" precautions are necessary to prevent similar occurrences in other sections of Alabama.

Application Must Be Made By August 20

Auburn, Ala.,—The Alabama Allotment Board has set August 20 as the deadline for receiving applications for individual allotments and tax exemption certificates under the Bankhead bill. The Board—composed of four successful cotton farmers, J. L. Edwards, Selma, chairman, John V. Matthews, Huntsville, L. S. Fluker, Livingston, W. H. Robertson, Loachapoka—held its initial meeting Wednesday and made plans for pushing forward the work as fast as possible.

After the meeting Chairman Edwards said that the Board is attempting to work out temporary arrangements so that cotton may be ginned in South Alabama before actual certificates can be issued. He also stated that certificates will be issued before cotton picking begins in most of the State.

"It s very mportant that all farmers make application for individual allotments and tax exemption certificates before August 20," Mr. Edwards said. Unless applications are received by that time it will be too late for the farmer filing the application to receive individual allotments and tax exemption certificates.

Every detail that will help speed up the work is being attended to by the State Allotment Board and offcials of the State Extension Service, including county agents and cotton committeewomen in every county.

"Alabama Day" At Fair August 20th

In making arrangements for the "Alabama Day" program for the 1934 Century of Progress, the committee of the Alabama Press Association in charge has selected the man who will for the next four years, beginning January 15, lead this State as its Governor.

It was felt that Col. Bibb Graves, successful candidate in the primaries just held, should be the principal speaker in behalf of this state. He will have an opportunity of talking, not only to the large group of Alabamians who will comprise the Alabama Press Special party, but also to thousands of persons from every state in the union. It will afford us an opportunity of giving Alabama some valuable publicity and a chance to extend an invitation to those there to visit Alabama next year.

The Fair management is doing everything in its power to make "Alabama Day" outstanding. The committee of the press association is leaving nothing undone in this connection and we feel that the party from Alabama on this tour will really feel proud of their home state after the program is over. Special ribbons will be given all of the Alabama group to identify them as Alabamians and a number of special events have been added to the program to make the entire tour with the editors attractive and enjoyable.

The selection of "Miss Alabama, 1934" will also be one of the major features of Alabama Day and promises to be most interesting. Be there to see who wins this title.

Farmers Grow Pork At Very Small Cost

Alabama farmers—by providing and practicing a system of grazing worked out by the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn through its substation at Headland—are producing high-quality pork at a feed cost totaling only 2 to 3½ cents per pound, the varation being due to weather variations influencing producton of grazing crops.

This system of producing hogs has been tried by farmers n a dozen counties. Each sow and litter requires six or seven acres of land for all grazing crops. This can be reduced, however, by making a field produce two grazing crops in one year. Land cost is the biggest cost for very little labor is required.

Bulletins Offered Alabama Farmers

Farmers may receive the following bulletins, without cost, by writing the Alabama Extension Service, Auburn, or by seeing their county agents:

"Alabama's All-Year Home Gardn," Circular 134. "Farm Fencing," Circular 136; "Simple Methods of Canning Fruits and Vegetables in the Home," Circular 139; "Corn Production in Alabama," Circular 143; "Cotton Improvements," Circular 144; "Feed Production and the Use of Retired Cotton Lands," Circular 146.

Facing the Setting Sun-Alone

Before and ever since the Gospel story of the widow's son of Nain—"the only son of his mother and she was a widow"—the world is full of cases in which Mother is left alone—husband and children having gone on first.

THERE is always the possibility that a woman someday will be alone in the world. Husbands, sons and loving daughters taken away by death.

When her hands are feeble and trembling with age—right then—

Through the Monthly Income service of the Life Insurance companies, the man who would have been glad to give his life to help her if death had not taken him first, can take her hand in his and say:

"You are alone, but do not be afraid. Here is comfort, warmth and shelter for all the years that are left to you!"

The CCC---A Year Of Its Work

Forest fires have been costing the United States an average of two hundred thousand dollars a day. In 1932, the year before the coming of the Civilian Conservation Corps, they swept 43,000,000 acres. If the CCC had done nothing but reduce this tremendous loss, it would have justified its existence abundantly. During the first 10 months of its service fire losses in the national forests were cut in half, while State-owned and privately-owned woodlands also benefitted largely from this added protection. The savings thus effected will more than balance, n the entire cost of the CCC project.

But this is only one of its many services. Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree Association and a world-noted leader in forestry, has just giaen out a review of what the CCC has done in the control of insect pests, in combating the pine blister rust and other wastelful diseases, in checking soil erosion, in planting abandoned and treeless hillsides, in reconditioning great areas of timber so that they will grow to better advantage, in building roads and trails, and in doing hundreds of things from which the public will profit. A complete list of these would fill pages. We cite the following as typical of the variety of work the Civilian Conservation Corps has done and is doing:

Ditching and staking 482,709 lineal yards for mosquito control; 1,887 acres converted into landing fields for airplanes; 16697 acres of landscaping; tree and plant disease control on nearly 3,000,000 acres; timber estimating on 5,003,588 acres; ground water surveys on 89,209 acres; 420,638 erosion control dams built; 764,624 acres benefitted by trosion control; 110,020,183 square feet of bank protection for erosion control; 56,614 linear yards of ditches, drainage, etc., for erosion control; 15,072 bridges built; improvement on 26,788 acres of lakes and parks; 695 miles of streams; 1,220,989 fish used for restocking; a large amount of flood control work; collection of 16,966 bushels of conifer seed and 259,591 pounds of hardwood seed; 6,939 acres of range revegetation. Reservoirs constructed for watering livestock, 932, and 1,168 wells or springs developed for watering livestock; water system work, 1,340 wells and water holes developed; 618,757 feet of pipe lines made; storage facilities arranged for 91,705 gallons; 862 miles of fences other than range fences built. There is yet another product of the CCC. and in the long view it is most important. Mr. Pack calls it "the man-making phase, the physical and spiritual improvement of more than half a million young Americans." They have gained in health and vigor, in self-reliance and regard for others in breadth and wholesomeness of interests in practical knowledge and in workaday patriotism. They have contributed to their families back home more than $80,000,000 dollars of their earnings, and to their country a service for which they will be honored years and generations hence.—Atlanta Journal.

The health is very good here at present.

Quite a number of our young people attended the meeting last week at Sessions Chapel.

Miss Frances Lucas and Miss Betty Denson were dinner guests Sunday of Miss Margaret Nabors.

Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Nabors have returned home from a week's visit with relatives in Ensley and report a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Anderson are the proud parents of a baby girl born to them August the 3rd. Mother and baby are doing fine.

Mr. T. R. Hall, Mr. John Little and Mr. G. G. Nabors were in Clanton Saturday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Nabors were guests at Mr. and Mrs. Lee Nabors Sunday.

Miss Lorett Haywood has returned to her home in Ensley. She has been visiting relatives here and at Jemison for quite a while.

PLEASANT GROVE

Jemison

How is everybody? Health of most people here is very good.

Mrs. George Spivey, Mrs. Hernie Hodgens and Mrs. Mintie Hodgens are very feeble at present, but we are hoping for their recovery soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Congen from Bessemer were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Zuber Saturday evening.

Mrs. Jones daughter, Dorothy, and son, Everett. (mother of Rev. Maurice Hodgens) were guests in this community Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal and little granddaughter from Cullman are spending a week here with their relatives, the Woodleys.

Mrs. Will R. Clements spent last week end with her sister, Miss Lizzie Waldrop.

Miss Mary Lee Compton returned home with Miss Lois Lucas of Dry Valley to spend a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cox of Birmingham visited Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Franklin Sunday.

Miss Ruth Champion who is in training in the Baptist Hospital in West Birmingham visited her aunts, the Misses Champions, last Thursday night. She has a vacation of two weeks. She has gone home to Loxley, Ala., to spend her vacation.

Mrs. Carroll had as her guest Sunday her sister, Mrs. Etheridge, of Birmingham, who also visited her father, Mr. Monroe Ward, last week end.

Mrs. Bolton had as her guests Sunday her nephews from Bessemer, Mrs. E. C. Davenport and Mrs. John Davenport visited Mrs. Martha Wilson Sunday afternoon.

Miss Lorene Davenport spent Saturday night with her aunt, Miss Olis Davenport.

Lady Says She Took CARDUI for Cramps; Was Soon Relieved

Women who suffer as she did will be interested in the experience of Mrs. Maude Crafton, of Belleville, Ill., who writes: "For several years, I suffered from irregular trouble and cramping. There would be days when I would have to stay in bed. I would get so nervous, I was miserable. My aunt told me to try Cardui. She believed it would build me up, regulate me and help the nervous trouble. I knew after taking half a bottle of Cardui that I was better. I kept on taking Cardui and found it was doing me a world of good. I am in good health, which means a lot to me." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. . . . Price $1.

DAVENPORT-ASKINS WEDDING EVENT OF TUESDAY, JULY 31ST

A wedding of much interest to their many friends was that of Miss Delene Davenport and Hopson Askins, whose marriage was solemnized Tuesday evening, July 31, at 8:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Askins of Billingsley with the Rev. J. E. Moore performing the ceremony in the presence of many friends and relatives.

The home was beautifully decorated with a profusion of summer flowers and fern. The bride's attendants were her sister, Miss Louise Davenport, who served as matron of honor, and Miss Agnes Askins, maid of honor. Miss Davenport was attractive in an evening gown of white satin. Miss Askins was pretty in a white crepe ensemble.

The bride, whose lovely blonde beauty was enhanced by a smart ensemble of light blue crepe with white accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Mac Harold Askins, brother of the groom, was best man.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Askins entertained members of the wedding party at a dinner.

Mrs. Askins is a popular young member of the society set of the Isabella community. She was a student of Isabella High School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Davenport. Mr. Askins is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Askins of Billingsley.

Mr. and Mrs. Askins will be at home at Billingsley.

The Manuscript Of 'Dixie'

Of all newspapers, the New York Herald-Trubne, that leading Republican organ, manages to get genuinely excited by the fact that the original manuscript of "Dixie," together with early printed copies of its sheet music, is on display at Rockefeller Center.

As the Herald-Tribune carefully and rightly explains, "Dixie" is a tune which somehow lifts up the hearts of northerners and southerners alike. It is apt to be as happily cheered in Massassachusetts as in Mississippi. It transcends sectionalism, does "Dixie."

As most of us know by this time, "Dixie" was written not for the southern armies but for a New York minstrel show one year before the War Between the States began. Immediately and naturally, however, it became identified with the South and the southern cause. It is till this day, which makes all the more remarkable, and all the more heartening the esteem in which it is held in every part of the land.

"Today," says the Herald-Tribune, "hardly an American can hear 'Dixie' without emotion, for it was the theme song of a romantic and tragic time. It is symbolic of the spacious days of the Old South and it is associated in every one's mind with the chivalrous overtones of an epic struggle."

Today, too, a great many northerners are more romantic about southern traditions than are those who dwell in this section. This, again, helps to explain "Dixie's" nation-wide popularity. And finally there is the fact that the grand old song has an irresistible rhythm.

Certainly, the original manuscript of the air composed by Dan Emmett is worth exhibiting for "Dixie" is a solid part of America's heritage, destined to live through the unending years—a lively and spirited call to patriotism and high hope.

The right way to do a thing is invariably the easiest way to do it.—The Mobile Press-Register.

Like The Ostrich

Never before have we been inclind to to be like the ostrich—stick our head in the sand and pretend we are hiding. The fact is, we are unable, even this week to determine from the large number of sugegsted names, the one for this column. There were several sent in since last week's paper was out. Every one that has been sent in gives us an idea. We have even thought several times that we would make over this column to fit a particular name which has been suggested. Maybe when we do select one, this column might be called "The Name Without A Column." That would be bad.

More This Week

Here are those sent in since the last list was publshed; "Around The World From Chilton County," "World News From The News," "Everybody's Column," "Here And Yonder," "Oh, Yeah?," "Flashing Footlights," "Cosmopolitan Chit Chat," "What Not Items," "Chilton's Chatterbox," "This, That And The Other," "This And That," "The News Budget," "Raggedy Ends," "Everybodys Business," "Spotlights," "What Next?," "Eager To Read," "Chilton's Interesting Column," "Interested News Bits," "Chilton News Flashes," "Home Town Specials," "Chilton News Flashes," "Chilton News Specials," "Chiltons Special News Flashes," and here's one I'm really proud of. It comes from a little girl who says she is ten years old and lives with her grandfather. She also says, "I am anxious to see Mr. Sessions on Thursday to get your good paper." Now that makes me feel good to know that this little girl thinks about this newspaper every Thursday and looks forward to receiving it. Some day I'm going to drive out to see her on Route Seven, because I've already decided she is a friend of mine. Her suggestions are, "Upside Down Column," "Column That Needs A Writer," "Read Me And Wonder," "Merriment Column," and she certainly writes a good hand to be only ten years old. I wonder just what she meant by that second suggestion.

Word Of Honor—If Any

Don't worry or fret dear readers. Next week the name for this column will be selected, and I give you my word of honor on that. I haven't spent the two dollars for the prize money. In fact the editor had me give it to him. He must have gotten uneasy about that two bucks. You can see for yourself that selecting a name from the hundred and nine that have been submitted for my feeble brain to consider is a job, but I'll do it or bust something. So, if you hear a big noise, that was me trying to select a name.

How About Some Jokes

Folks, lets have a little fun now for a change for awhile, and tell each other some jokes, about each other. Whatcha say? Here's the way we'll work it—If you know of a good joke on someone, send it to me and let's tell the other folks about it so they can laugh too. When you think of one, write it down right then so you won't forget it, and shoot it right in to me. If you don't have it worded just right, I'll fix it up for you when it comes, before I print it in this column.

lived in Clanton now for little better than a quarter of a century; I have watched it grow from a small hamlet to one of the best little towns in the State, and I feel that I know its people and know their needs. Always I have tried to lend my cooperation for every movement which I considered for the best interest of the town, and I shall continue to do so."

Mr. Jones is one of the most prominently known citizens of the county, having been engaged in business in Clanton for many years, retiring only a few years ago when he sold the popular Jones Hardware Store. His counsel is sought by leading citizens and business men over the entire county, and in other sections of the State.

A native of Coosa County, Mr. Jones removed to Clanton nearly thirty years ago, and since that time has been one of the county's leading citizens, and no doubt his decision to become a candidate for the office of mayor of Clanton will be hearalded with no little enthusiasm.

Mr. Willis, with his wife and small baby, were visiting his mother-in-law, Mrs. Aaron Johnson, who lives near the Alabama Mills on the old highway. They had been in Clanton since last Sunday. The dead man was a miner, but was unemployed, his wife stated.

The ball of lightning was said by witnesses in a neighboring house to have struck the chimney on the opposite end of the building from where Willis was sitting and rolled along the roof, striking the wall just a few feet above his head. No one else in the house received any shock, it was stated.

Willis was born and reared in Shelby County, but had made his home at Oxmore for several years, where he has been engaged as a miner. He is survived by his widow and child; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Willis; one brother, Leonard Willis; three sisters, Mrs. Myrtle Jones, Miss Susie Willis, all of Oxmore, and Mrs. Sudie Stagner, of Kentucky.

bama Power Company stock was bought in Chilton County with bad checks.

The bond in each case has been fixed at $500 and Sheriff Albritton said he did not think Jones would be able to make bail for the next few days at least.

Before leaving the Montgomery jail Sunday to be taken to Camden, Jones is said to have talked with several friends, including a few lawyers. He made no public statement concerning the charges.

It was at the behest of Sheriff Albritton that Jones was picked up here Sunday. The Camden authorities are reported to have traced him from Birmingham to Montgomery Saturday night. It developed yesterday that the three warrants sent here from Chilton County arrived before the Wilcox County authorities had requested the arrest of Jones.

At one time Jones owned considerable property in the Cloverdale District. Before the depression came on, he is said to have sold a large number of lots for dwellings.

COUNTY PICNIC

past eighteen months.

An outstanding feature on the program was an address Thursday morning by Former County Agent C. E. Stapp, under whose administration the county-wide picnic was instituted. During a period of more than five years service in this county, Mr. Stapp became one of the most popular men in the entire county and his influence even now is perhaps greater than that of any other person.

Representativ W. B. Olivr of the United States Congress delivered an inspirational address during the program. This veteran statesman also paid tribute to the custom of an annual congregation of the citizenship of the county, declaring that he believes there is no other method which will serve so well to promote a better understanding and closer harmony in the county. Mr. Oliver was also enthusiastic in his praise of Chilton County, terming it one of the best counties in the State of Alabama, and expressing his appreciation for the opportunity of representing its people in the national government.

Another feature that was received with enthusiastic acclamation was an address by Mrs. M. L. Batson, president of the Alabama Council of Home demonstration club work in the various sections of the country.

"I first want to extend my congratulations to the people of Chilton County in the progressive step of employing a full time home agent," Mrs. Batson stated. "We are living in a new day, a new era, a time of adjustment, when we must adapt ourselves and our conditions to that of a changing world. It is not an adjustment of the few but of the all. Agriculture, Industry, Labor, Education, Finance, all—to a new but sounder basis. You have long had a county agent. Being a woman, it is natural that I feel so keenly, so proudly, the new and equal chance you now are offering the women of Chilton County in the services of a home agent, and through her, the services of our extension service at Auburn. I am quite honest when I say that I can think of no better way in which you could help the women of this county to accept and fulfill their duties in the New Deal."

Following Mrs. Batson, Miss Ruth Pardue, county home demonstration agent, told of her work in the county during the past year. Little more than a year ago, Chilton County employed Miss Pardue as its first home agent, and the enthusiastic approval with which her work is met in every section of the county bespeaks its success.

Other speakers on the program were Pete Jarman, who spoke on the subject: "Purpose of the American Legion.' His address was received with great enthusiasm. Mr. Jarman has a host of friends in Chilton County and his earnestness of effort in behalf of his brother veterans has endeared him to the hearts of many in this section; Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of Alabama Extension Service and J. A. Beaty, general manager of the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association.

Luther Patrick, Birmingham radio favorite, and "Preacher" Salser, of the Birmingham Police Department, added the spice of humor to the varied program. Both Mr. Patrick and Mr. Salser, who have often been to Chilton County, are among the most popular entertainers in the entire state.

In the several contests, the following awards were made: Newest Wedded Couple, Mr. and Mrs. Royce Smith, who had been married for two weeks; Oldest Wedded Couple, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Chambers, who have enjoyed the bliss of matrimony for the past sixty-two years; the largest family award went to R. L. Harrison, who has twelve children.

C. W. Burgess captured the title as the outstanding Hog Caller in the county, Mrs. J. Lee Smith ranked first in the art of yodeling for hubby; Mrs. Louie Smith took the award for champion balloon inflater, and little Billy Popwell, of Clanton, surpassed all the other children when it came to consuming crackers.

worked out wth the management of the Century of Progress, a special program that will be given in the Court of States. The Alabama parade will begin at the main gate, headed by the band and black horse troops. One of the major features of this program will be the selection of "Miss Alabama, 1934" from the group of young ladies selected from various cities to compete for this title.

Governor-elect Bibb Graves has been invited to make the principal address on this program and Mayor Kelly of Chicago and others will extend the welcome in behalf of the Century of Progress. Gov. Miller will go or send a representative to take part in the "Alabama Day" celebration.

We know that the trip will be well worth your time. The Fair is most instructive and educational and you will have the advantage of a low-priced trip with the Alabam Press Special, to and from Birmingham, including hotel accomodations and all other items. All of this for only $29.95 an the opportunity of being with your friends and the editors of Alabama newspapers. We invite you to join our party and assure you of a good time.

County Agent Fant And Miss Ruth Pardue Pleased With Picnic Attendance

In a letter to the News, County Agent J. W. Fant and Miss Ruth Pardue, county home demonstration agent, who had charge of the program for the County-Wide Picnic, which was held last Thursday, express their appreciation to those on the program and to others who by their cooperation helped to make the picnic a great success.

Their letter follows:

"We wish to take this opportunity of expressing our sincere appreciation to everyone who by their cooperation and attendance helped to make our county-wide picnic last Thursday such an overwhelming success.

"Especially do we wish to express appreciation to those who appeared on the program. We know that the thousands who attended this celebration went to their homes with a kind feeling in their hearts for the contribution from each of them.

"We take a great deal of pride in the fact that this program has been pronounced one of the best since the institution of this function three years ago, and again we express our sincere appreciation to everyone who helped to make this possible."

Very truly,
J. W. FANT, RUTH PARDUE.

GERM CARRIERS

the dengue fever germ, throughout the State.

Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, in his instructions to the workers in the campaign, states that the mosquito breeds in old tin cans and other utensils, and not in swamps, and it is the aim of the program to solicit the cooperation of everyone in the county to destroy these breeding places. Mr. Matthews stated that the premises of every home and business establishment will be inspected once each week during the period of the program and the citizenship is urged to cooperate in this effort to prevent any liklihood of an epidemic in this section. Since the destruction of his breeding places, will result in practically the elimination of any liklihood of the disease, it was pointed out.

In commenting on the disease in his instructions, Dr. Baker said: "From authoritative sources the State Health Department has learned that there is danger of dengue fever, which already has gained a foothold in certain sections of the South. It is quite likely that this disease reached the mainland from the tropical islands.

"Although this disease itself practically never kills, the sum total of disability, loss of time, suffering and expenses makes an epidemic of this disease a matter of serious concern. It is planned to quickly organize mosquito control work in the more populous centers, to be aimed at the eradication of that particular mosquito which transmits dengue fever from man to man."

Mr. Matthews urges that every person lend his cooperation, and if it is necessary to have rain barrels, or water for fire protection in which mosquitoes are likely to breed, to pour oil in these containers.

ACTUAL WORK BEGUN ON ROAD PAVING JOB

Expect To Employ About 100 Men Within The Next Few Weeks

The initial step in Chilton County's extensive building program, which is expected to give employment to approximately 250 men for a period of eight or nine months and bring to Chilton County $150,000 worth of public improvements, got underway Monday morning, when work was begun on the paving of three miles of the Clanton-Selma highway.

Thirty-three men were detailed by the local office of the United States Employment Service to begin work on clearing the right of way, according to W. B. Kelly, manager of the office, who stated that as many as 100 men should be employed on the project within the next few weeks. Two shifts will be employed, each working three or four days per week.

The contract, which was let to the Hardaway Construction Company, of Columbus, Ga., calls for the paving of 661 miles, beginning at the intersection with the paved highway in Clanton. The road bed will be of black surface. it was stated, and extensive repair work will be necessary on the overhead bridge in Clanton.

Approximately $150,000 of federal funds have been allocated for the erection of public buildings in the county, the extension of the watermains in Clanton, and the installation of a waterworks system in Thorsby.

Mr. Kelly stated that he expects work to begin on the erection of Clanton's new $55,000 postoffice sometime in the early fall, and Mayor J. Lee Smith announced recently that final steps were being taken in securing a public works loan for the purpose of constructing a new city hall and extending the town's watermains.

GRAY IS OUT WITH BOND AT 35 HUNDRED

Preliminary Hearing Held Tuesday Before Justice Of Peace Wilson

Joe Y. Gray, prominent farmer and retired busines man of Clanton, who has been held in jail since the afternoon of August 4, charged with the shooting of his friend, Harvey Chandler, was released Tuesday morning on a $3,500 bon, following preliminary hearing before Justice of Peach J.C. Wilson. Chandler was killed by a single 38 calibre bullet wound, said to have been inflicted by Gray during a spree in Chandler's room in the old Thornton hotel building. He was dead when officers arrived on the scene and Gray is said to have told them that he did not remember anything about the shooting.

Only three witnesses testified in the preliminary hearing Tuesday morning. Deputy Sheriff Lewis Gillespie told of finding Gray sitting on the side of the bed on which the dead man was lying; Miss Kate Moates, another occupant of the building, testified that she had heard three shots, however, Corner J. Mell Martin, who investigated the case said that only two empty shells were found in the gun.

Chief of Police J. R. Hardy testified

One Year Of The "New Deal"

Those who have criticized the President's program of a "New Deal" and those who doubted it, will find many facts to convince them they are wrong, in an editorial in this issue of the News on the editorial page headed "Year of New Deal Shows Progress."

The postal service, for many years being operated at a loss, is for the first time in that many years self-sustaining. Cash income of farmers during the first six months of 1934 increased 19 per-cent over 1933 from sale of farm products. Read that editorial. It gives an idea of progress being made under Democratic leadership.

MELL MARTIN NOT TO ENTER MAYOR RACE

Declines In Spite Of Many Friends Urging Him To Offer Himself

The name J. Mell Martin will not appear on the ticket in the coming city election as a candidate for mayor of Clanton. Mr. Martin made it definitely known this week that he has decided not to become a candidate because his business will not permit him to devote as much time to the management of the city's affairs as he believes would be necessary to a successful administration should he be elected.

In a statement to a representative of the News, Mr. Martin expressed his sincere appreciation to the scores of persons who have urged his candidacy and to them he pledged his every effort for the upbuilding of Clanton, declaring that he stands ready and willing to lend his services in whatever manner may be considered valuable for the best interest of the town and its citizenship.

"Oh! Professor" At Maplesville Friday

Friday, August 17, is to be a gala day in the annals of Maplesville P. T. A. for at eight o'clock p. m., at the school building will be staged the famous musical revue, "Oh! Professor." Approximately 75 local artists are taking part in the performance. The cast is said to be one of the most talented ever presented in this section.

As Steve Crandall, the bashful student Herbert Foshee is very effctive. As Bob Davis, the dashing young ladies' man, John Maples will give some lessons in how to win a girl's heart. To see the eccentric Professor, Abney White is to remember one of the most amusing character bits of your existence.

Mrs. Bumboard, the college matron is delightfully portrayed in Mrs. J. E. Daniel when she vamps the Professor. Avonellie, her mischeivious little daughter in Annie Lou Payne is amusing. Annie Laurie Potts as Wilhemina makes a stunning Spanish dancer. Susie Mae Hayes as Helen shows just how clever modern college girls can be while she keeps the ever affectionate Bob guessing for a while..

As an added feature the P.-T. A. is sponsoring a contest to select "Miss Maplesville" between acts of the play.

Announces As Candidate For Mayor In September Election

C. FENN JONES

Makes Statement To Voters Of Clanton In Behalf Of His Candidacy; Promises Best Of Ability For City

Following is a statement from Hon. C. Fenn Jones, prominent retired business man of Clanton, in behalf of his candidacy for Mayor of Clanton in the election to be held next month:

To the Voters of Clanton:

A few days ago a friend of mine handed to me a written request that I become a candidate for Mayor of Clanton which is signed by 65 of the good people and property owners of our town promising me their support, and in addition to those who signed this request, I have been encouraged to do so by many whom I met on the street from time to time. I have never wanted public office or to be very active in politics. being content to attend to my own private business, but have always supported men I believed to be best fitted for public duty and endorsed laws and policies I believed to be best for the general good of the State, County and City.

I would not ask for the Mayor's office now were it not I believe the majority of the people will be pleased for me to have it. I have truly not sought the office and did not agree to enter the race until I became convinced the people were willing for me to have the honor. Just how correctly I have judged you on this subject will be determined on election day in September.

I reflect with a bit of pride over the position I took on matters of public interest covering a period of over thirty two years since I came to make Clanton my home. At that time hogs, goats and cows moved on the streets as tho their doing so was a benefit to the town and the people should give them right of way without complaint, but finally we voted them off, and beginning with this first step toward having a clean town next came the qustion of a water system. The proposition was submitted to the voters during the administration as Mayor of the late Dr. E. A. Matthews, and if my memory serves me correct there were only thirteen votes cast against it, and if Dr. Matthws could speak, he would support my statement that I was not one of the unwise thirteen.

I was one of the first to connect our store with the small electric light plant of the late Joseph P. VanDerveer. and many men here today remember I took an active part in getting the Alabama Power Company to furnish the town with lights and power from Lock 12. They agreed to serve us on condition that Clanton buy the right of way and several men including myself signed a note for $2000 payable to The Peoples Savings Bank, the money to be used for buying the right of way to Lock 12. I was chosen pay master by the men on that note and while the late W. W. Fox and others were busy securing the right of way I learned that the Alabama Power Company were not requiring other small towns to furnish rights of way, and I called on President Martin of the Alabama Power Company and told him I did not think he was playing fair with Clanton. He made a satisfactory explanation of the different conditions, but stated he did not want the people of Clanton to have that impression and asked me how it would suit me if the Alabama Power Company would assume $1000 of the cost and we take care of the balance be it more or less. I promptly accepted his offer and when the matter was closed the cost of the right of way was $1900 leaving $900 for the men on that note and others who would assist, to pay.

The next wonderful and necessary improvement to force its way into our town was the paved side walks, paved business section, and the sewerage system. Ex Mayors Dr. V. J. Gragg and

WOMANS DEMOCRATIC CLUB TO MEET AT JEMISON ON TUESDAY

Special Program Arranged Including "Women In Politics" Meeting Will Be Held At School Building At Three O'clock P. M.

The next meeting of the Woman's Democratic Club of Chilton County promises to be one of the most outstanding held since the organization of the club.

This meeting will be held at the Jemison school building in Jemison, Ala., on Tuesday, August 21st at three o'clock p.m. The program has been arranged and promises to be a most interesting one. Topics to be talked on include, "Women In Politics," "Recipe For A Good Politician," and "Fifty-Fifty Representation In Politics."

The Woman's Democratic Club of Chilton County has been steadily growing in membership, and with the new plans underway it is expected that many more members will be added to its roll. The new plans of the club include meetings to be held during the coming months at the different towns in the county, when the members in these places will present the program.

A cordial invitation is extended by the club to all women of the county to attend these meetings and enjoy the programs, according to Mrs. Billy Smith, secretary of the club.

$2.00 Paid And A Name Is Given

Congratulations go to Phillip Nelson of Clanton this week. He is the recipient of a check for $2.00 from the writer of "The Column Without A Name." However, the column has a name now and it was suggested by Phillip.

Out of the one hundred and twelve names suggested, the writer of the column found it necessary to put the selection off for a week so his mind could rest. He says they were all good and some better. The name selected is "Sense And Nonsense," and quoting the column this week "You no doubt will agree it is a name that will fit the column, all right."

AMATEUR BALL TOURNAMENT TO BE STAGED

Twelve Baseball Clubs Are Invited To Take Part In Series Of Games

Local sports fans have an event to to look forward to with keen interest and appreciation. Beginning Monday, August 20, an Invitational Amatuer Baseball Tournament will be staged in Clanton at the high school park, according to an announcement by Marvin Marcus, manager of the local club.

Twelve clubs have been invited to participate in the series which will continue for eleven days and will feature a dozen games, which Mr. Marcus declares will be the most interesting and sensational baseball contests ever staged in this section.

The tournament is being sponsored by the Clanton club and will feature the following teams: Plantersville, Randolph, Maplesville, Isabella, Jemison, Marbury, Titus, Clanton, Cane Creek, Cooper Coca Cola (Montgomery), and Independents.

During the semi-finals the following schedule has been arranged: Monday, Plantersville vs Randolph; Tuesday,

UNEMPLOYED TEACHERS TO BE GIVEN AID

Percy M. Johnson Will Make Survey Of County And Take Applications

Plans are being formulated for an extensive program to aid unemployed teachers in this and other states by employing them in the instruction of adults in special courses, according to informaton from Dr. A. F. Harman, state superintendent of education, and Luther E. Little, county superintendent.

Supt. Little announced this week that Percy M. Johnson of Jemison, has been employed through the relief administration, to conduct a survey in Chilton County to determine the number of unemployed teachers in the county. It is undestood that this information will be used in determining the county's allocation from federal funds that will be expended for the purpose of relieving unemployment in the teaching profession.

Following are announcements from both Supt. Little and Dr. Harman relative to the program:

I have been informed through official communication from Washington that federal aid will be available for the paying of a weekly wage to unemployed teachers who are in need. for services rendered through the educational authorities of cities and counties of Alabama in giving instruction to persons over sixteen years of age enrolled in elemntary and high school classes, vocational classes, classes organized for illiterates, in the teaching of nursery schools, in organized recreational activities, and in the training of unemployed crippled citizens.

Factory Safety vs. Highway Recklessness

During recent years the accident rate in industry has gone steadily downward. There is a constantly growing list of manufacturing industries employing thousands of men which operate for month after month without a single serious mishap.

The accident experience of individuals, measured by the automobile toll, is the direct reverse of this. Men who never lose sight of safety when at work, become careless and reckless when they get behind the wheel of a car. Men who would never think of taking a chance handling a piece of factory machinery, will try to save five minutes on the drive home by cutting corners, passing on curves and at intersections, or doing one of the many other things which cause our annual automobile death toll of 30-odd thousand.

There is a sound reason for this contrast. In factories, managements have made every effort to instill "safety consciousness" into workers, and they have succeeded. They have found that guarding and perfecting machinery is important—but that the proper attitude of knowledge and watchfulness on the part of those who run the machines, is vastly more important.

A percentage of automobile drivers, on the other hand, feel little sense of responsibility when they start out. Consciously, they figure that it is up to the "other driver" to take precautions. And the inevitable result of that attitud is a soaring automobile accident rcord.

Make "safety first" your motto when in your car, as it would be in your work if you were a factory employee Remember that no piece of machinery is more potentially dangerous than the automobile That is the way to lower America's highway carnage.

Death Of Hindenburg

The death of President Paul von Hindenburg of Germany at the age of 86 removes one of the world's most notable characters. His name has loomed large, both in war and peace, during the last 20 years.

When the European war began in 1914, Hindenburg was a retired lieutenant-general of the German army, his active career aparently over. Called from his retirement to high command at the age of 66, he won signal victories against the Russians on the eastern front, later rising to supreme command of the Austro-German forces.

After the war he again went into retirement, but in 1925 he was again called into the service of his country by his election as president for a seven-year term, and was re-elected in 1932. Although he favored a monarchy, he loyally supported the republic, and his influence was on the side of peace.

Events forced him finally to accept Adolph Hitler as Chancellor, since which time the power of the aged president has been slight. Upon Hindenburg's death Hitler assumed the office of president temporarily and ordered an election to select a successor for August 19.

Germany will sorely miss the steadying hand of the dead president, which was never more needed than in the present desperate situation in which that country finds itself.

Locked Up, And Pocketed The Key

Washington is a dull spot this Summer. The President's sons came to Washington with their wives and had to go to a hotel because the White House had no place for them. The President is far away, and Mrs. Roosevelt shows up "somewhere else" nearly every day.

When Congress adjourned the Administration program was completed. and President Roosevelt literally locked up the White House and the Capitol and pocketed the key. The cards of the New Deal are to be played out. A new hand will be furnished the Nation in the Fall.

Agriculture --- Three Phases

Agriculture has been undergoing three distinct phases of development.

One came with depression, when prices dropped to rock-bottom, and there didn't seem to be a single bright spot on the horizon.

Another came with governmental relief efforts. These are still going on, but the farmer has discovered that the legislative power, no matter how aggressively used, cannot alone solve all his problems and bring him peace and plenty.

The third phase is characterized by the fact that an increasing percentage of American farmers are learning the doctrine that "he who helps himself is helped best." They are realizing that the way to stability and prosperity is through determined, cohesive effort by the farmers themselves.

The farmer's weapon in this work is the cooperative. It is not subject to political considerations—it does not change in purpose and direction with a shift in the political power. It is responsive to his needs, and he and his fellow-members make its policies. It does not represent a temporary effort to bring relief—it represents long-term planning, in which the larger issues are kept always in view.

It is not an exaggeration to say that, fine as the work of the co-ops has been in the past, their period of greatest achievement still lies in the future.

Year Of "New Deal" Shows Progress

Steady and substantial progress on the President's Recovery Program was shown at the end of the fiscal year, June 30. Seasonal recessions have been far below normal, when not missing entirely. Purchasing power in four lines of retail trade was shown by sales records to have gained more than 400 million dollars over the first six months of last year, with June gains over May.

Even the vast postal service converted deficits of 152 million dollars in 1932 and 50 millions in 1933 to a surplus of five millions over expenditures for the year ending June 30, 1934. It is the first time the world's largest business operation has been self-sustaining since 1919, the seventh time in 50 years, and is a notable example of what can be accomplished by efficient, painstaking public service.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation showed a profit for the fiscal year of $21,784,000. Since it began to function on February 3, 1932, its total emergency expenditures amount to 6,452 millions, of which 3,558 millions represent loans secured by assets or collateral and 1,400 millions were repaid since March 4, 1933. During the fiscal year 1934, loans of all types amounted to 1,177 millions, with repayments of 931 millions.

The remarkable rate of recovery of financial institutions since the beginning of the Roosevelt Administration is shown by these repayments.

During the past year banks and trust companies repaid to the R. F. C. 534 millions and borrowed 447 millions; railroads repaid 48 millions and borrowed 21 millions; insurance companies repaid nearly 45 millions and borrowed five and a half millions; building and loan associations repaid 47 millions and borrowed only five millions.

But government borrowers capable of liquidating their debts are not confined to financial institutions. Since last November, the Commodity Credit Corporation has advanced 121 million dollars on 270 million bushels of sealed corn in ten states. Up to July 16, six millions had been repaid and subsequent payments average a million dollars a day.

Cash income of farmers during the first six months of 1934 increased 19 per cent over 1933 from sale of farm products alone and 27 per cent including rental and benefit payments financed by processing taxes.

Industrial wages continued at 58.6 cents per hour in June, the same as in May. Increases in June, 1934; over June, 1933, were 29.9 per cent in hourly earnings; 31.9 per cent in employment and 46.7 per cent in payrolls. Freight loadings were higher in June and continued increasing through July. They totaled 614,864 cars for the third week of July, 112,952 over the corresponding week week in 1932. A sharp rise in exports in June left a trade balance of 34 million dollars, against five millions in May and an increase of 44 per cent over June, 1933.

Success of the system by which the accounts of 50 million depositors in 14,000 banks are insured up to $5,000 each evoked the astonishment of old world financial authorities. More than 97 per cent of all depositors in 93 per cent of all licensed banks are protected from loss, in the manner advocated by the Democratic party since 1908.

During its first year, the Home Owners Loan Corporation loaned more than a billion dollars to 341,000 distressed home owners; the Federal Housing Administration is organizing for immediate action; th enumber dirctly employed on Federal Public Works July 16 was 600,000, with twice that number working on manufacture, processing and transportation of materials.

On every front and with full steam ahead, the President's Recovery Program is moving toward restoration of normal conditions.

Gen. Stanley Of Greenville

On last Thursday, August 9th, Gen. J. B. Stanley of Greenville celebrated his ninetieth birthday. Ninety years is a long time, and for any man to live them well is an accomplishment of note. That Gen. Stanley has made wise and gracious use of this number is eloquently attested by the love and esteem expressed to him by friends all over the state on his last birthday.

The past ninety years have been significant ones. Few periods of like length in history have seen such rapid development in scores of ways. Gen. Stanley has seen more than one generation come and go. He has seen the pattern of living change with almost kaleidoscopic swiftness. It is a high tribute to the man that he has been able to keep step with the times, to maintain a wide-awake interest in new things as they come, and at the same time to hold on to the verities of life that make a character symbolic of those high virtues which always remain eternal.

Gen. Stanley is a beloved citizen of Alabama. Thousands extend him happy wishes for this and other birthdays yet to come. The newspaper profession of this state has a particular affection for him, and the News is glad of this high privilege of offering him our best wishes for the remaining laps of his journey.

Mrs. Glennie Lamar Phillips

In the passing of Mrs. Glennie Lamar Phillips of Clanton, Chilton County has lost one of its most forward-looking and useful citizens.

A daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. William H. Lamar of Auburn and grand-daughter of Rev. John Bowles Glenn, when she took up the work of a business woman at Clanton nearly half a century ago, she did not neglect her heritage of civic pride and altruistic spirit.

Wthout neglecting her duties as a mother and wife, her talent of leadership soon asserted itself in civic and religious, as well as in business, circles of what was then the heart of a saw mill industry of a comparatively new county, whose county seat had yet to develop its social and religious, as well as political, standards.

Her childhood associations with her pioneer grandfather, who migrated from Georgia after the Indian War and became one of the founders and the first President of the Board of Trustees of what is now known as the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and the ideals which she received from worthy representatives of the Lamar, Glenn and Allen families were ever present to guide in her contacts with all classes and conditions met with in the evolution and development of what now constitutes Chilton County, with its established places of business, public schools, churches, and standards of living. Its citizens of all classes and conditions in life, as well as her children and grandchildren, rise up to call her blessed.

The history of this development in Chilton County would indeed be incomplete without the name of Glennie Lamar Phillips.

D. W. Haskew

Not many days ago a young man entered the pressing of a friend of mine under the influence of whiskey. He was too drunk to know the danger and even too drunk to know where he was. Suppose that the young man had eaen a piece of meat, or had taken a pint of milk and had been affected by it as he was by the whiskey that he had taken, there would have been much said and done by the law. If our markets were to sell meat that would poison people, if our dairies were to sell milk that would poison, law officers would get busy at once. Yes, we watch our meat and milk with close inspection, but we do but little about the one who sells whiskey that poisons our people. It is high time that we get busy and do something about, and with, those people in our state who are engaged in selling poison to our citizenship.

A gentleman in Paris desired to buy a ring. He entered a jewelry store and while trying on the rings he came across an old ring with Eagle's claws in the setting. He admired it much and for several minutes he held it on his finger, turning it around that he might admire it the more. The next day he discovered that his hand was swelling and he hurried to a doctor. The doctor knew that he was poisoned. The physician called at the jewelry store to investigate. He learned that the ring that had the eagle's claws had been brought in from Italy and that four hundred years before his day, the ring had been used by a man to poison his enemy. Four centuries had passed, but still the ring carried a deadly poison. The dance hall is more than four centuries old, and yet the poison of death is still clinging to it. Many a handsome young man of our day, many a beautiful girl of our age, take this ring of pleasure and slip it about their lives only to become infected with a social poison that destroys them in soul and body. Better beware of placing rings of pleasure about your life that has poisoned thousands before you.

I was sitting in a street car and two seats ahead sat a mother and her son. A crippled man entered the door and the lad of twelve years arose to give his seat to the crippled man. The mother pulled him back into his seat saying to him in an undertone, "This is your seat my son. You have paid for it and you must not give it away." The manly little scout obeyed, but he replied, "But mother, the man is crippled." I could see that same woman red with rage as she entered a crowded street car and no man offered her a seat. She was ready to say that there were no gentlemen in the world. And yet, that mother was training her own boy away from the conduct of a gentleman.

I was guest in the home of wealth and the family trusted me to the extent of carrying me back to an old safe and takng therefrom the treasures that amounted to many thousand dollars. They wanted me to see the jewelry of the family that were almost priceless in value to them. There were diamond rings, bracelets, old gold trinkets, neck laces, etc. The lock box must have held not less than twenty-five-thousand dollars worth of jewelry. I ventured to ask, "What are you doing with all this wealth?" To my astonishment I learned that they were doing nothing at all with it. Year after year this wealth was hid out in darkness. It was doing no one service. As I meditated over this occurance I was reminded of many lives that are charged full of talents and yet they have the wealth of their lives hid out from service. There is no greater crime of this age than the burying of our talents.

Did you know that the telephone system is developing a telephone ear? All phones are made left-handed. This is done so that the one using the phone can hold th disk to the ear with the left hand and take notes with the right. With people who constantly use the phone this has developed a keenness of hearing in the left ear that is not found ing the right. If you doubt this try to listen in over the phone with your right ear. That ear has not been trained and hearing is difficult. We must learn that habit has a tremendous weight in the development of our senses. Every man has a sense of reverence for sacred things, but that sense can soon be destroyed by not using it. It is the using and not the abusing of our finer senses that will make us finer in living. You must cultivate your finer senses, or lose them.

SENSE and NONSENSE

The fun is over. Did you ever hear that song, "After The Ball Is Over." That is a beautiful piece of music. Old, yes, but still holds its charm for many of the old timers. But that is not what I started out to say. The fun is over, the two bucks have been spent—that is awarded for a name for this column. A little later, I'll tell you the name that was selected from the one hundred and twelve submitted during the few weeks the contest was open.

My Mistake Again

Excuse me again. I've just noticed that the name of this column is being used in its proper place this week. Did we have trouble making that selection? Of course we used the process of elimination and started eliminating the suggestions, then got down to first and second choice. Finally it narrowed down to three, "This. That And The Other" which was submitted by Miss Alma Lefstead of Thorsby, Ala., "Nonsense And Some Sense," submitted by Phillip Nelson of Clanton, and "Everybodys Business," submitted by Mrs. George Culp, of Route Three. Then we glanced back with thoughtful eyes at "The Wanderer" which was suggested by Mrs. M. A. Gore of Clanton and "Wisdoms Way." sugegsted by Miss Louise Robinson, of Thorsby.

As Promised

So, as promised last week, the sellection has been made, a check for the award should be in the mails going to the winnr, Mr. Phillip Nelson, of Clanton, whose suggestion will be slightly changed in order that the type will fit in the box. or the box fit the type. Either way that suits you and the printer. And congratulations are in order and go to Phillip. So does the two bucks. Now, Phillip, some of these days when I get down and out and need something to eat, a shave, a haircut, saying nothing about a bath, I'll be seein' ya.

New Trouble Begins

I'v been speaking of trouble in making a selection of a name for the column, but the trouble is just beginning. I can't fill up this column now with a long list of suggestions like I have been doing.

Phew! No More Rides

When the ferris wheel. merry-go-round and chair-o-plane was being put up over near the Wilson Hotel, I was told that they were ordered not to erect the ferris wheel. Of course it was just a joke. Anyway, we took a ride on the plane, and had to go eat supper again. But it was great and if you like it, don't miss it. (P. S.—Don't ask anybody about the joke either.)

On To Chicago

"On To Chicago" is the battle cry of Alabamians this week. The Alabama Press Special leaves Birmingham tomorrow at noon and we won't be on it. Our only regret. But some of these days we're going to get them to hold a World's Fair in Chilton County, and if they can't bring the whole Fair, we'll be satisfied with Sally Rand. as Bob Alred would say it, perhaps.

News From Chicago

Just received a letter from a friend of mine who is visiting the World's Fair. He is from the mud-laden plains of Mississippi, where they have the kind of mud that makes your toes spread if you walk barefooted in it. Speaking of mud, it has become a great American word. We have it everywhere. People even say "Here's mud in your eye," and "It's clear as mud." A lot of kids make mud pies, and a lot of women make mud faces. It's a great thing, this mud, but few people have the courage to sit in it.

But I've forgotten to tell you about this friend of mine who is in Chicago. Ill., (emphasis on the Ill.) and he says that it is necessary to carry your overcoat with you in the day time, even if it is hot enough to wear only your B.V.D.'s. That is due to the sudden changes in climate and you find yourself needing an overcoat now and then, mostly then.

Where Are They..

We've been waiting for some of those jokes we asked for last week. Where are they? You didn't send that one in about Albert, nor the one you heard about Cecil. Send 'em in and we'll see if they can be printed. We heard one the other day on George, and as soon as we can devise some means of telling it so the printer won't get his hands soiled when it is set, we'll tell it. Phew, now was that nice?

You'll Agree, No Doubt

with me that the name selected fits this column. Or perhaps you think it could be merely called "Nonsense."

There is no doubt that you will agree

SEEK NEWSPRINT MILL IN ALABAMA

Meeting Of 100 Industrialists At Ala. Power Bldg. Sets Wheels In Motion

Under the leadership of President Thomas W. Martin and T. D. Johnson. Manager of the New Industires Division, the active influence of over 100 Alabama industrialists, educational leaders, bankers, chemists and foresters has been marshalled toward the establishment of mills in Alabama to make newsprint and other paper out of Southern pine.

The program looking to the making of newsprint and other white paper out of Southern pine by the process which the famous chemist, Dr. Charles Herty, developed in his Savannah, Ga., experimental plant, got under way with the calling by President Martin, Theodore Swann and E. J. Smyer of a meeting at the Alabama Power Building Auditorium.

Out of the meeting came the formation of the Alabama Conference on Paper Products from Alabama, of which Thomas W. Martin was elected Chairman, Julian McGowin, Theodore Swann, Col. Page S. Bunker were named Vice-Chairmen, and Ashton B. Collins, Secretary.

Resolutions were adopted mapping the program of the Conference, and the cooperation of the University of Alabama, Alabama Polytechnic, Alabama Industrial Board, Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, Birmingham-Southern College, Associated Industries of Alabama, and Alabama Mining Institute were pledged.

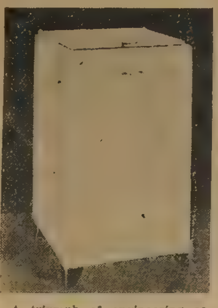
MONTEVALLO GARDEN LIGHTING JOB DRAWS PRAISE OF VISITORS

Much is being heard these days about modern lighting and how greatly it enhances beauty, comfort and efficiency in home, office and factory. But recently in Montevallo two A. P. Co. lighting experts put on a demonstration of what modern lighting can do outdoors. They chose for this display the lovely grounds and garden of the Petersen home in Montevallo. With skillfully arranged lighting effects they created what the Montevallo Times described as "a veritable sylvan fairyland which won the admiration of all visitors."

The whole effect — indescribably beautiful—demonstrated that modern lighting now has a new role. Our lighting department will be glad to tell interested inquirers more about it.

Commission Makes Further Reduction In Domestic Rates

Here's The New GE "Liftop" Refrigerator



A triumph of engineering research—daring in conception, revolutionary in design. Freezes ice faster—20 cubes (2 lbs.) at a time. Priced far less than any other GE models. Very lowest operating cost. These refrigerators will be sold by this company and dealers throughout the state. Full particulars will be announced at an early date. Watch for them!

CO-OPERATIVE SALES PLAN SCORES HIT

Alabama electric appliance dealers and our sales department are teaming up in a statewide co-operative effort to increase sales of electric appliances. To help dealers make more sales of ranges and water heaters the company has formed a field force of six trained men, in charge of a director with headquarters in Birmingham. Its sole purpose is to assist the independent dealers in organizing for the sale of electric ranges, refrigerators, water heaters, etc. Dealers are enthusiastic over the new set-up. So is the company.

Cost of Electric Service Is Reduced by $25,000 Yearly

August 1st the Alabama Public Service Commission issued another order affecting the rates applicable to some 73,000 urban residential customers served by Alabama Power Company, further reducing the cost of the service in the amount of $25,000 per year, beginning with bills dated September 1, 1934.

The new rate plan inaugurated by the Commission last September seems to have become popular as a similar rate form has been adopted by Commissions in California, Georgia and Tennessee, as well as being acknowledged as satisfactory to Tennessee Valley Authority. Approximately 80% of the customers now receive directly or indirectly the benefits of the low "objective" rate, the remaining 20% of the customers being billed under the "present" rate. The new "present" rate is much lower than the rate which prevailed prior to the Commission's order of last September.

The Commission's order removed entirely the room charge from the "objective" rate and in October, 1936, when the "objective" rate supersedes the "present" rate for all customers, the room charges will have been entirely abolished. As a practical matter the room charge is by this order abolished for 80% of the customers and this percentage is steadily increasing as shown by the records during recent months.

The reduction in rate will be enjoyed by some 94% of all customers served whilst the remaining 6% will receive some slight increases in their bills. Considering the increases, however, the cost of service under the new rates will be much less than prior to the Commission's order of September, 1933.

The further reduction in rates of this company and the abolishment of the room charge should be thoroughly acceptable to the users of residential electric service in the State.

A. B. FOSHEE RECEIVES FEDERAL APPOINTMENT

Appointment of Conciliation Commissioners in 16 counties to handle cases arising under the 1934 amendments to the Bankruptcy act was announced recently by Judge Charles B. Kennamer, of the United States District Court.

The Amendments, designed to give farm owners corporations, municipalities and other debtors, a chance to retain their holdings in the face of threatened foreclosure, have resulted in a considerable number of cases in the Middle District of Alabama.

A. B. (Buster) Foshee was appointed in Chilton County. Other counties in which appointment were made are: Elmore, Bullock, Butler, Henry, Autauga, Pike, Covington, Crenshaw, Russell, Tallapoosa, Macon, Randolph, Dale and Geneva.

Bro. Bryan Speaks At Liberty Hill Mon. P.M.

Bro. Bryan, famous Birmingham minister and philanthropist, spoke on Monday night at the Liberty Hill Methodist church to an audience that filled to overflowing the church. At an early hour the church was filled and many were standing in the doors and crowded about the windows in an effort to hear the message of the noted lecturer.

This is the second time Bro. Bryan has spoken to a Chilton County audience within recent weeks. Only about two weeks ago, the venerable minister spoke at the Clanton Methodist church and on that occasion the audience filled the auditorium.

Revival services are being held this week at the Liberty Hill church and the people of that community feel that they were very fortunate in securing the noted minister to address an audience during these services.

Bankhead Cotton Act To Continue In Force

The Bankhead Cotton Control Act will continue in force, declares Secretary Wallace. "There is no tought of supension," he said. "In general, sentiment toward the Bankhead bill seems to divide itself into enthusiasm on the part of the farmers and opposition on the part of the cotton merchants," Wallace declared.

In a telegram to Secretary Wallace, Senator John H. Bankhead, one of the authors of the bill, has expressed his opposition to the supension of any part of the bill.

Important Items of Interest to Every Farmer of County

By J. W. Fant, County Agent

County Agent J. W. Fant and Miss Ruth Pardue, home demonstration agent, are urging farmers to attend the annual farmers meeting, which will be held in Auburn September 1, 2 and 3. This week the following letter is being sent to farmers throughout the county urging them to attend this meeting:

"Dear Folks:

"The annual meeting of leading farmers and farm women from over the State will be held at Auburn, September 1, 2 and 3. We would be very glad if you would attend this conference.

"We realize that money is very scarce, but four or five can get together in a car at very small expense. Room and board can be had for about $1.00 per day. We can leave here early Saturday A.M., September 1st, and return on Monday afternoon. Only two nights away from home.

"This promises to be a wonderful meeting. We feel sure that you will enjoy and profit by going.

"If you wish to go in a car with someone, or wish to have someone go in the car with you, please indicate your wishes on the bottom of this letter and return it to us in the enclosed envelope which requires no postage.

—Sincerely yours, J. W. Fant, County Agent; Ruth Pardue, Home Dem. Agent."

J. W. Fant, county agent, issued this week the following statement regarding the marketing of pooled cotton:

Orderly Selling for Pooled Cotton

Cotton consigned to the cotton producers' pool, which since July 31 may be sold at the discretion of the pool manager, subject to approval of the Secretary of Agriculture, will not be dumped on the market, sacrificed or marketed in any manner calculated to unduly disturb the spot market or general economic conditions, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced. Under the provisions of the pool agreement, the approximately 1,950,000 bales held by the pool could not be sold before July 31 at less than 15 cents a pound basis middling 7-8 inch. As the price of cotton has not reached this figure since the pool was formed, none of the actual cotton has been sold.

The following is a telegram received from Oscar Johnson, Mgr., Cotton Producers Pool, Washington, D. C.:

"J. W. Fant, County Agent,
Clanton, Ala.

"Cotton Pool now developing plan whereby holders of Participation trust certificates will be able to tender them to pool manager who would purchase certificates and pay them market value. Suggest you advise holders of certificates not to sacrifice them as they are worth current market price of cotton less ten cents per pound and small carrying charge. You will be advised immediately of details of plans of tendering certificates and receiving disbursements. — Oscar Johnson, Mgr. Cotton Producers Pool."

People holding option cotton will be notified as soon as the above plan is perfected.

Most of the farmers in this county have made application for tax-exemption certificates and farm allotments pursuant to the Bankhead Cotton Act approved April 21, 1934. However, there are a few farmers in the county who are growing cotton this year who have not signed applications.

It is very important that every farmer who has cotton have some tax-exemption certificates.

People who come in the following classifications should make application: 1. Owners; 2. Cash tenants; 3. Standing rent tenants; 4. Share-tenants or croppers operating an entire farm.

No applications will be accepted after Monday night, August 20th. Those who do not make application before this date will have to pay tax on all cotton sold this year.

McEATHERNS REMOVE TO WETUMPKA TO RUN STORE

The following information appeared in last week's issue of the Wetumpka Herald in regard to the McEathern family removing to Wetumpka, where Mr. McEathern will be engaged in the operation of a mercantile business. Mr. McEathern has been engaged in the operation of various mercantile enterprises in Clanton for several years and his friends in this county will wish him success with his new venture.

"Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McEathern and family have moved to Wetumpka from Clanton, and are occupying the J. E. Franklin home in North Wetumpka.

"Mr. McEathern has leased the J. E. Franklin store house for a period of five years and has opened a first class grocery and feed store there.

"He is carrying an advertisement in this issue of the Herald to which we invite your attention. While Mr. McEathern is new in Wetumpka, he is not new in the grocery business. He has been actively engaged in that business for more than 17 years, and he will have here a complete line of staple and fancy groceries as well as a full line of feeds.

"He is anxious to meet you, and he gives you a cordial invitation to drop in and see him on your next visit to Wetumpka. Whether you want to buy or not he will appreciate your dropping by and looking him over. He feels sure he will be able to save you a good many dollars on purchases in his line.

CHILTON COUNTY BAND TOURS CENTRAL ALABAMA RECENTLY

The Carter Brothers' Southern Aces recently made a flying tour over Central Alabama, filling half-dozen engagements in three days, according to information given the News regarding the tour.

The band, which is composed of local talent, left Clanton last Wednesday, August 8, and filled an engagement over a Birmingham broadcasting station at 1 p.m. Later playing at the Winfield school building, and Thursday they gave a rendition at Fayette.

The party returned to Chilton County Friday and filled an engagement at the Verbena High School building Friday night. At every place they were received with enthusiastic acclamation. The various engagements were sponsored by the Parent-Teacher association of the various schools at which they visited.

Tuesday night the Aces appeared on a program in Montgomery. Miss Helen Rainer and her brother, Joe Rainer, rendered vocal selections at these performaneces, and tap dancing by Hollis Hiten and Aubrey Robinson was another feature of the several programs.

REVENUE COLLECTORS END FOUR-DAY BUSINESS SESSION

Many Provisions Of Bankhead Cotton Act Explained For Growers' Benefit During Session

Alabama deputy collectors of Internal Revenue Saturady closed a four-day session in Birmingham during which details of the provisions of the Bankhead cotton control act were explained in a series of conferences addressed by Harwell G. Davis, Collector of Internal Revenue for Alabama; J. E. O'Neil, instructor from the bureau at Washington, and T. J. High, representing the extension service.

The Bankhead Act, it was explaned, is designed to increase cotton prices by restricting production of tax-free cotton to the equivalent of 10,000,000 bales of 500 pounds average weight.

Each state, county and individual producer have been allotted a quota of tax-exempt cotton. Farmers will receive through the department of agriculture exemption certificates covering their quota. Cotton not covered by exemption certificates is subject to a tax of one-half the average central market price, or in no event less than five cents a pound. The current rate of tax has been fixed by the Secretary of Agriculture at 5.67 cents a pound, and this rate will remain in effect unless changed by his order.

Salient Features

The salient feature of the law's operation is the provision making it unlawful to sell lint cotton which does not carry a "bale tag" issued by the internal revenue department. Attaching a bale tag to a bale of cotton, means that the cotton is tax-exempt, or that the tax, if due, has been paid, and the cotton may move into channels of commerce.

When the cotton farmer of Alabama and the rest of the South takes his cotton to the gin this Fall, he will have his choice of three courses of procedure;

First. He may surrender to the ginner exemption certificates covering the amount of cotton ginned, whereupon bale tags will be issued without charge, for such tax-exempt cotton.

Second. If the cotton ginned is not covered by exemption certificates, he may obtain bale tags only by paying the tax. Once the cotton is tagged, the farmer may sell, store, or otherwise dispose of it as he sees fit.

Third. He may elect to keep his cotton and store it without surrendering exemption certificates or paying the tax, the payment of tax in such cases being deferred. Where cotton is so held for storage, the ginner, instead of a bale tag. will attach a lien card, showing a lien in favor of the government of the Unites States for the amount of tax. Such lien-cotton may not be sold; however, it may be stored for as long as the producer desires, either on his farm or at an aproved warehouse. When he desires to sell, he must apply to the Collector of Internal Revenue at Birmingham, and either surrender exemption certificates to cover the cotton, or pay the tax,, after which bale tags will be issued. and the cotton may be sold.

An interesting feature brought out was that certificates of exemption are transferable. For example, if a farmer has a tax-exempt suota of 15 bales, and produces only 10, he may dispose of his surplus certificates to one who has produced in excess of his quota and needs more certificates than issued to him.

The tax levied by the Bankhead Act is an excise tax on the ginning of cotton, and must be remitted to the Collector of Internal Revenue by the ginner. The ginner will pass the tax, where due, on to the producer, just as gasoline distributors pass their gas excise tax on to the motorist.

The point was stressed. however, that the federal revenue department will look for the tax to the ginner and not to the farmer, except where the farmer stores his cotton under lien as set out above in which case he must pay the tax direct to the collector and not to the ginner.

Must Keep Record

The law requires ginners to keep a daily record of ginnings in detail, and to submit a monthly return to the collector at Birmingham. Ginners' returns will show the amount of tax-exempt cotton ginned during the month, and be accompanied by a like amount of exemption certificates surrendered by producers at time of ginning; amount of taxable cotton, accompanied by the amount of tax; and also a record of cotton stored under lien.

Ginners will obtain bale tags, lien cards and other necessary forms from the collector. Before tags are issued to them, all ginners must execute bond.

Any ginners who have not already done so should communicate with the collector of internal revenue at Birmingham and take steps to carry out their responsibilities under the law.

At the tax conference just ended, it was emphasized that the Bankhead Control Act was adopted in accordance with the nearly unanimous wishes of cotton farmers after other crop reduction plans had failed to get the desired result. Mr. High, who spoke for the extension service, said that farmers generally are cooperating fully, and that they have a brighter outlook since the act was passed and cotton prices started up. It was also stated that ginners, as a rule, are falling in with the spirit as well as the letter of the law. While the act imposed certain additional duties upon ginners, they realize, it is said. that control of cotton production means higher prices and better times for everybody in the South.

Alabama has been allotted a quota of 845,760 bales of tax-exempt cotton for the 1934-35 crop. For enforcement of the measure, the state has been divided into ten districts, with a deputy collector assignd to each district.

SURVEY SHOWS ENORMOUS INCREASE IN BUYIING POWER

With four classes of distributors—department stores, mail order organzations, general chains and variety chains—consumers spent above $400,000,000 more during the first six months of 1934 than in the corresponding period of 1933, accordng to A. W. Zelomek, drector of the International Statistical Bureau, Inc., of New York.

Aggregate consumer expenditures in these four classifications, amounted to $2,100,000,000, as compared with $1,700,000,000 notwithstanding a tremendous increase in all classifications during May and June 1933.

The bureau's index on consumer expenditures in June, 1934, Mr. Zelomek was quoted in the New York Herald-Tribune, showed an increase of $55,000,000 over June, 1933.

Compared with June expenditures in the four classes over June, 1933, the percentage of increase was 11.6. As compard with the low of March, 1933, the June, 1934, gain was 34.9 per cent. June and July sales this year, Mr. Zelomek pointed out, "have been much more favorable than expected."

Ed Cotterman and Mr. and Mrs. John Brown of Sidney, O., were sent to jail because Brown traded his wife to Cotterman for a motorcycle, all having admitted the transaction.

While Miss Catherine Zoll of Evansville, Ind, knelt in prayer in a church, her purse containing $13 was stolen.

Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn

The southern portion of Alabama is unusually rich in spots of interest and tradition. Through this section, the Spaniards, DeSoto and DeLuna, left their mark. It was the scene of many bloody conflicts with the Indians, and one does not go far before running across the trail of that interesting character and rugged soldier, Andrew Jackson . . . It is said that all Alabama roads lead to Montgomery. This beautiful old Southern city is known as "The Cradle of the Confederacy." Under the portals of its stately capitol, Jefferson Davis took his oath of office. It boasts many lovely old homes dating from early days. Everywhere throughout this section, the visitor is well repaid with beautiful scenery, and interesting reminders of the state's turbulent history.

AGRICULTURE AND THE CONSUMER

By Rexford G. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

The necessity of considering the needs of consumers and using their ability to satisfy such needs as a criterion for judging the present national program appears nowhere more strikingly than in the efforts to rehabilitate our agriculture. The Agricultural Adjustment Program has from the first recognized the necessity of protecting consumers, not simply as a matter of justice to the general public, but as an aid to farm relief itself.

Before the World War, American farmers were relatively as well off as our industrial workers. The war demand led to greatly expanded farm production, but after the war the markets for this increased output fell away drastically. This caused a severe disparity between prices of farm products and prices of other products, and reduced farm incomes greatly. Even at the crest of the business cycle in 1929, farm products could be exchanged for only 91 per cent as much of other products on the average as they could have been exchanged for in the period before the war. During the depression the disparity grew. By February 1933 the exchange value of farm products for industrial goods had fallen to 50 per cent of the pre-war average. Their exchange value for taxes and credits was even less. The disparity was present in the price of every farm product. It was severe in the export commodities, such as cotton, wheat, hog products and tobacco, where the disappearance or the severe contraction of export demand had built up great excess stocks of commodities.

The immediate cause of this disparsity was the pressure of surpluses of farm products on the markets.

Many persons have wondered why the Government should be concerned with reducing the production of farm products when there are people who must depend on public relief for food and clothing and who are reduced to a bare minimum of both. To some extent it is true that the disposal of agricultural surpluses is closely related to the consumer purchasing power, and the prices of any farm products are directly dependent on factory pay rolls. But, paradoxically enough, the very existence of a glut of farm products has been one of the important causes of the lack of consumer purchasing power.

The pressure of abnormal supplies on the markert tends to upset the delicate balance of price and income relationships. When too much cotton and wheat and pork are forced into trade channels prices received by farmers dwindle to levels so low that they themselves cannot buy the goods which city workers manufacture. The result is that factories close down and employees are thrown out of work. Thy in turn are unable to buy the products of other city workers, who also lose their jobs. When the other factors tending to slow up business activity join in there follows the whole vicious downward spiral with unemployment falling prices, bank failures, business bankrupticies, hunger, and suffering. Millions of people, unable to support themselves, are compelled to depend on public support. The Nation's economic machine, gorged with an excess of farm and other products, breaks down just as surely as a human stomach gets acute indigestion if too much food is forced into it or if the food is of the wrong sort.

Something like the foregoing is what has happened in the last few years. For a variety of reasons—among them the the failure of many of our foreign markets—the exchange relationship between the supply of farm products and the demand for them was deranged. Consider wheat for instance. If every person in the United States had all the wheat he could possibly eat, there would still have been a surplus as long as production continued at the same rate as in the last few years. With no one to buy this surplus and with foreign markets sharply limited, the supplies of wheat piled up in elevators and storehouses, and the carryover attained huge and unprecedented totals. Prices fell to the lowest levels in history. Consumers, who could or would eat only a certain amount of wheat, had but a slight advantage from this surplus. Millers and bakers obtained their wheat at a much lower figure than before, but flour is only a minor part of the cost of bread, the retail price was but little affected. Over against this small temporary benefit felt by consumers was the serious injury done to them ultimately through the maladjustment of the whole price structure and the dislocation of exchange relationships between farmers and city workers.

And when prosperity returns the amount of wheat which people eat is not likely to be greater, and may even be less than it has been during the depression. This is bcause when people's purchasing power increases they eat more of other food products which are part of a balanced diet or which they turn to when their incomes are greater. It is not difficult to follow the reasoning that surpluses of farm products have actually contributed to the dependence upon relief; at any rate, it is because of the series of maladjustments initiatd by the overproduction of farm products that the Government has undertaken to assist in the control of their production. This adjusted production, on the one hand, and restored buying power at home and abroad, on the other, stood out as absolutely indespensable to agricultural recovery. The recovery program for agriculture was based upon these twin requirements.

Congress provided the means for dealing with adjusted production in the Agricultural Adjustment Act. Its stated purpose was to promote the prosperity of the farmer by returning to him a fair share of the national income and to foster national recovery by making the farmer as good a customer of non-agricultural industries and services as he was before the World War.

The Act states that it is the policy of Congress to approach parity for the farmer at as rapid a rate as is feasible in view of the current consumtive demand in domestic and foreign markets. In other words, consumer needs are be the gag of th rate at which inequalities in purchasing power are to be corrected. That is, the whole Agricultural Adjustment program must be regulated by the consumer demand for agricultural commodities. It is evident that the act simply requires close study of and decisions based upon the actual or potential effect on consumers of every aspect of the program.

It is obvious that no power could raise and maintain prices of many important agricultural commodities whose carry-over stocks were several times normal, until the surpluses had been reduced or eliminated. Furthermore, suddenly pushing up the price of certain commodities, which have been long depressed, before making adequate provision for control of production. would bring in new production from less profitable fields and result in new surpluses which would make it difficult or impossible to maintain the desired level of prices and would thus defeat the purpose of the Act.

It was also recognized that a hasty scaling up of prices would in some instances disrupt consumer-producer relations and would actually reduce consumption to an extent that would do more harm than good to agricultural producers. A reasonable relationship must be maintained between prices and effctive demand. Raising prices too rapidly would reduce the purchasing power of consumers and impede national recovery.

The Agricultural Adjustment Act provided for an attack on the problem of the surplus, recognizing this to be the most important problem standing in the way of farm recovery. Ordinarily, the producers would attend to the matter themselves, but circumstances prevent that. Often there is no escape from the farm, except into the ranks of the unemployed; and low prices compel competing producers to maintain the volume of their output. Farm production in the United States has not changed much since 1924, although the demand has fallen greatly. The only remedy concerted action under central guidance, a course provided for in the law by several methods, which include the leasing of land, the payment of cash compensation in return for output reductions, the cotton option plan, and marketing agreements to regulate production, distribution, and prices. The Act also makes provision for processing taxes, a means of raising revenue to help accomplish adjustment of production through benefit payments to cooperation producers. The benefit payments are themselves a direct contribution to the incomes of the cooperating farmers.

Along with the crop-reduction program, the Act authorizes effort to obtain for farmers a larger share of the consumer's dollar. Part of the consumer's dollar now goes to support wasteful and unnecessary competition, duplication of selling expense, a needless multiplicity of services to consumers, dubious credit arrangements, and various unethical practices. Elimination of these wastes should mean better conditions for honest and efficient business, as well as better prices for producers.

Thus the law provides the conditions for an agricultural industry in which the forces of production are so managed as not to outdistance the demand and to increase the demand by redistributing purchasing power so that consumers can come more readily into the market. It is a gigantic job, requiring delicate skill in judgement and a technique of administration which we are only beginning to master.

Ford Is Leading In Sales For 1934

Ford led all passenger cars in domestic sales for the first six months of 1934, according to registration figures from R. L. Polk & Company. New passenger cars and commercial units combined, according to announcements in Automotive Daily News.

Ford World production totaled 536,637 units during the first six months of 1934 and showed an increase of 135 per cent over the same period for 1933, reflecting the improvement of business conditions in the Southeast.

Ford branch officials, who pointed out that recent Ford price reductions had proved a stimulus to sales in this territory. "Ford did not raise prices during 1934 and the reductions were real cuts," said branch executives who pointed out that the Ford V-8 is made in only one size—112-inch wheel base and all are powered by the same V-type, 8-cylinder motor.

Five Large Farm Meetings Slated

Auburn, Ala.—Fully 5,000 North Alabama farmers will attend five big meetings on sub-experiment stations and demonstration fields during August 18-25, according to official information. (continued from front page)

J. B. Atkinson will tell you I gave them and their councilmen my whole-hearted support for this necessity which many property owners opposed but who would not today have it taken up even without expenses to them and the original cost returned to them. This improvement cost me $1,738.66. and it is paid.

Following this advancement toward a real good City came the question of installing a filtering plant for the City water. Surely no one has forgotten how extremely objectionable the water was especially after being heated. Ex-Mayor Hart and his councilmen know I encouraged them to build the plant and suggested that the price of the water be raised sufficient to pay for the plant in a reasonable time, and I insisted they not follow the rule of the State and many Cities of creating a debt and leaving it unpaid for the tax payers to pay interest on a whole life time, but when the plant was paid for to reduce the water rate. I am informed the plant is now paid for and you will recall the water rate was reduced by the present administration.

Not many days ago the voters were given an opportunity to register their approval or disapproval of borrowing some money to extend the watermains and to build a City Hall. I voted yes on both propositions. I want all the people to have good pure water and fire protection just as cheaply as the town can afford to furnish it. While we could do without the City Hall, yet it is really needed, and if I am correctly informed, having it will not add but little to the present cost of the City Government.

It seems to be a fact the only way the public, or we as a people. can obtain public improvement is by the use of the credit system, but I want you to know I would not be willing to use our credit for anything we need beyond our ability to pay. Our debt could be so great it would require our present income almost, to pay the interest, the result would be higher taxes, and God knows I do not want any more taxes on myself or you either. It provokes me very much, it brings tears to my eyes, it causes me to feel rebellious against the powers that be. and have been, to read of and see the homes of men being sold to pay a tax debt assessed against it by a system I think is wrong, and on account of the waste, extravagance and dishonest use of the public funds by some men we elected to office.

If I am elected Mayor I shall endeavor to enforce the laws of the City with justice and fairness to everyone, having sympathy for and showing mercy to the offender according to his ability to undestand, and I shall conduct the business affairs of the City with the same careful judgement and economy I used in my own private business with the hope of reducing our water rate and our taxes, but on account of the contemplated improvements recently voted, and the fact there are still unpaid debts created by former administrations, I fear a reduction in our present tax rates cannot be wisely done.

In the future. as in the past, I shall lend my influence to those things I believe tends to build good character and a higher class citizenship, and support all propositions of improvement to make our City a better place in which to live, consistent with sound business judgement and our ability to pay in taxes for such improvements. The churches and schools have felt my support all along the way. I subscribed to, and paid, to the building of the Baptist Church $600.00, to the Methodist Church $800.00, to the Presbyterian Church 500.00, and the other churches of the town I think received amounts in keeping with the value of their buildings. I have heard it said recently that the Grammar School building is inadequate to take care of the classes. and that the old building is unsafe and unfit for use. Efforts to correct this condition will have my sympathy and cooperation to the limit of the City's duty and ability to assist.

I recite all the above facts to refresh the memory of my old friends who may have forgotten my position on these matters of advancement in our City and of public concern, and I give it as information to the young voters and the people who have moved into our City during the past few years that they also may know of the keen interest I have shown in the growth of our City and the assistance given.

With reference to the present Councilmen I have a high regard for them as men of honor, business judgement and integrity. They and Mayor J. Lee Smith have served the City well, and I am sure we could, and would work together most pleasantly and their reelection at this time would please me, but I am informed one or two of them may not ask for the position again, therefor I desire to say to you I feel and believe I can serve agreeably with any set of councilmen you will elect, and I have no names to suggest to you. but I hope you will elect men of sane business judgement and whose honesty is not questioned. The affairs of Clanton are your affairs, the money the Councilmen use and spend is your money, and you should safeguard it as tho it was your own personal money and your private business. If all men and women would vote with that idea of protection to the public interest, there are hundreds of men who would never have held office or a position of trust in the state of Alabama.

I would be proud to represent you as your Mayor and will try to conduct myself in such manner as not to hurt your civic pride, and keep myself in good appearance so you will not be embarrassed to designate me to a stranger as the Mayor of your City. One gentleman said of me, I am informed, and perhaps he spoke in kindly jest; that he would appreciate me more if I would get a little dirt or dust on me occasionally. To this friend I wish to say that it is said. "Cleanliness is Next to Godliness', and because I love to live in the right and close to God I shall endeavor to keep clean, both in character and appearance whether I am elected Mayor of Clanton or not.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. J. H. PRINCE HELD WED. MORN.

Funeral services for Mrs. Fannie Prince, 70, widow of the late J. H. Prince and a former resident of Chilton County, who died Monday night at 7:20 o'clock at her home in Alexander City, were conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of her son, A. S. Princ, in Clanton. Burial was in the Clanton cemetery.

Mrs. Prince was a native of Shelby County, but she lived in Chilton County for a number of years and is widely known in this section. She removed with her two daughters, Miss Ruth Prince and Mrs. Anna Gardner, to Alexander City little more than a year ago.

Besides her daughters, Mrs. Prince is survived by two sons, A. S. Prince, of Clanton,, Fred Prince, of Akron, Ohio. She is also survived by several brothers and sisters.

Gray was not called to the stand. He was represented by Lawrence F. Gerald. Grover C. Walker was attorney for the State in the case.

Chandler was once a prominent business man in Clanton, having operated a mercantile business here for many years, and at one time served the town as mayor. Officers stated shortly after the shooting that he and Gray had been life-long friends. A quantity of whiskey was said to have been found in the room, which had served Chandler for several months as his home.

ALABAMIANS MENTIONED FOR SPEAKERS PLACE

McDuffie And Bankhead Are Possibilities In Race For Speakership

By Russell Kent
Advertiser Staff Correspondent

Latest news reports are that Congressman McDuffie has announced that he will not be a candidate to succeed Henry T. Rainey as speaker of the House having withdrawn in favor of his colleague, William B. Bankhead.

Washington, August 20.—Names of two Alabamians loom prominently in speculation over the successor to Representative Henry T. Rainey as speaker of the House—those of Representative John McDuffie and William B. Bankhead.

All speculation on the subject is premature, of course. Unless there is a special session of the present Congress, the successor to the Illinois speaker who died in St. Louis Sunday night will not be chosen until January and will be elected by the House of the Seventy-Fourth Congress, which will not be elected itself until November. Democratic members of the new House will caucus on the speakership, and the caucus nominee will be elected formally by the House.

Vital Choice Ahead

But the matter is of major importance, as is the office, and it will be in the news more or less steadily until the choice actually is made.

Many names will be mentioned before the election occurs. Prominent of course will be that of Representative Joe Byrns, of Tennessee, present Democratic floor leader. But it is safe to assert few lists of possibilities will be published without including the names of McDuffie and Bankhead until one or the other eliminates himself.

Both Alabamians are popular and both are able. McDuffie was the strongest contender for speakership in March, 1933, until the Rainey and Byrns forces combined and in the caucus Byrns nominated Rainey for the speakership and Rainey nominated Byrns for floor leader.

Race Of Last Year

Will Bankhead also had been mentioned for the speakership in 1933, but stood aside for John McDuffie, who had been Democratic whip under the speakership of John Garner. In efforts to break the McDuffie strength before the caucus and the Byrns-Rainey combination, it is understood overtures were made to Congressman Bankhead to accept the floor leadership in exchange for his support of Rainey for speaker, but the Alabamian stood firmly by his colleague.

It may be that McDuffie now will stand aside for Bankhead in the contest for higher honors in the House. And it may be that the event will prove that affairs will be arranged that Byrns of Tennessee will be made speaker without opposition and that an Alabamian will be next in rank as floor leader.

In all of this speculation, the fact that Eastern and Western Democrats have been demanding greater recognition as opposed to the South must be taken into consideration.

GOVERNMENT TO GUARANTEE COTTON PRICES

Southern Senators Are In Favor Of Plan As Has Been Adopted

Washington, August 21.—(AP)—Another Government loan on cotton to help the Southern farmer—12 cents a pound this time—was authorized today by President Roosevelt.

The announcement was made just before Mr. Roosevelt left Washington for the mid-West to attend the funral of Spaker Henry T. Rainey.

The President said in his statement he had "requested the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make funds available to the Commodity Credit Corporation that will enable it to increase its lending from 10 to 12 cents a pound on cotton, classing low middling or better, which is and has been continuously in the possession of the producer."

Grower Can Hold Cotton

This means that any cotton grower, if he does not wish to sell his staple at this time, may borrow 12 cents a pound from Federal agencies on the commodity.

Detailed regulations were not announced, although officials said that in all essentials they would folow those governing the 10-cent-a-pound loan last year.

Washington, Aug. 20.—A.P.—A Government loan on cotton at a figure around present market prices probably will be the administration's answer within the next few days to the threat of a general textile strike and other bearish factors.

Responsible officials today reported that recommendations for the loan had been made to the President and all that remained was his approval. Mr. Roosevelt last year authorized the 10-cent-a-pound loan on the staple. Millions of dollars were saved for Southern farmers as a result.

Under the loan plan, the government would advance farmers who wish to hold their cotton the price agreed upon —12 1-3 or 13 cents, probably.

Should cotton fall below the loan price and stay there, the government would take the loss. But if it rises above the figure, farmers could repay the government, sell the cotton and take the profit.

In celebration of the Robert Morris Day Anniversary a Home-Coming Day will be staged Sunday, September 2, at the Alabama Masonic Home in Montgomery, according to an announcement given the News this week. All Masons and members of the Eastern Stars and their families are cordially invited to attend this function and bring picnic baskets.

Because there is no way of knowing the number that may attend, it was announced that every person is requested to bring lunch. The purpose of the "Home-Coming" is to give an opportunity for all former residents of the Home to meet and to better acquaint the Masons and Eastern Stars of the State with the work that is being sponsored for the unfortunate Masons, widows, and orphans.

FOSHEE-GUY WEDDING TAKES PLACE IN BIRMINGHAM SUN.

Many friends in Chilton County no doubt read with interest the following announcemet in the Birmingham News of last Sunday relative to the marriage of Miss Annie Mae Foshee and Mr. Curtis Hall Guy, of Birmingham, was impressively solemnized at a quiet ceremony at the home of their pastor, the Rev. Hugh S. Wallace, recently. The ceremony was performed in the presnce of a few close friends of the families.

"The bride was attired in a traveling ensemble with harmonizing accessories.

"Mr. Guy is superientendent of the Sunday School of the Eleventh Street Baptist church.

"Following their wedding trip which includes Chicago, Washington and New York, Mr. and Mrs. Guy will be at home to their friends on Southside."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Guy are widely known in Chilton County. Mrs. Guy is the popular daughter of the late W. B. Foshee and Mr. Guy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Guy of near Verbena.

Maplesville, Randolph Win In First Of Series

The competition in the first two games of Chilton County's Baseball Tournament was hardly sufficient to raise the fans off their seats.

Monday's game, featuring a contest between Randolph and Plantersville, resulted in the not too close score of 10 to 3; and Tuesday, Maplesville chalked up a 16 to 6 victory over Jemison.

These games were the first in a series of eleven games which will feature twelve of the best amateur teams in this section of the State.

Three eliminations will be played to select the winner of the grand prize of $50 which is being offered to the victor of the tournament, which is being sponsored by the Clanton Club.

Other teams to participate in the series of contests are: Isabella, Marbury, Titus, Clanton, Cane Creek, Coopers, Coca Colas, and Independents.

MRS. E.B. DEASON DIED AT HOME IN COLORADO

Wife Of A Former Probate Judge Of County To Be Buried Today

Mrs. Alice Strock Deason, wife of E. B. Deason, former Probate Judge of Chilton County, died at noon last Sunday at her home in Boulder, Colorado.

She was born and reared in Chilton County, and lived for many years in the vicinity of Verbena. Born September 30, 1878, she made her home in the county until her removal to Colorado in 1918.

After her marriage September 7, 1909, Mrs. Deason made her home in Clanton, where she was one of the town's most popular women. While here she took an active part in the activities of the Clanton Baptist church of which she was a member. She was also active in civic affairs.

Surviving her are, her husband, Judge E. B. Deason; two sons, William E. and Charles S. Deason, both of Boulder; one sister, Mrs. M. K. Prescott, of Indianapolis; five brothers, John A. Strock, William H. Strock, S. J. Strock, Judson Strock, and Dr. C. S. Strock, all of Verbena.

Mrs. Deason is also survived by the following nieces and nephews of this section: Drs. N. S. Johnson Arthur Johnson, of Clanton, Dr. Sam Johnson, of Pensacola, Mrs. Mary A. Mullins, and Mrs. J. E. Gowan of Clanton.

Funeral services will be held from the Verbena Baptist Church Thursday aftrnoon at 3 o'clock. Burial will be in the Verbena cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

EVERY CITIZEN URGED TO AID NAT'L PROGRAM

Democratic Government Has Meant Much To People Of Chilton County

By Victor Norris

The eleven candidates, composing the Democratic Ticket of Chilton County, in a special meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Wilson Hotel enthusiastically and unamiously endorsed the National Democratic Administration and the Roosevelt New Deal, pledging themselves if elected to offices in this county to lend every possible ounce of cooperation to the furtherance of this program.

This endorsement came when it was explained by the chairman of the meeting that certain factions in the county have and are waging a fight of criticism against the efforts of the Administration to restore prosperity to this Nation. Feeling that any criticism of the ideals, aims and principles back of these programs is unjust, every candidate on the Democratic Ticket present at the meeting, expressed the highest tributes to the National Administration for its efforts to lessen the suffering of humanity and speed up recovery.

Comparisons were made of the conditions of the country last March a year ago, when President Roosevelt took over the reins of government and began putting into effect his well-laid plans, with the existing conditions of today.

First Bale Ginned In County Last Saturday

"King Cotton," with his snowy white locks, is again mounting the throne in Chilton County and for the next few weeks will command wide-spread attention.

John Gray, cotton farmer of Clanton Route No. 3, wins the honor of leading the lists with the first bale to be ginned in the county. Mr. Gray ginned his bale, which weighed 596 pounds, last Saturday, August 18, at the Thompson Bros. Gin in Clanton.

County Agent J. W. Fant stated this week that so much rain is causing the staple to be a bit slower about opening this year, but states that he expects applications for selling permits to begin soon. Temporary permits will be given at his office, he stated, to anyone who has a bale of cotton ready for gin and market.

Mr. Fant stated that he understands that the heavy rains are causing the cotton bolls to rot in some sections of the county, but declared that he did not believe that the crop had been damaged much yet.

WOMEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB ENDORSES LOCAL CANDIDATES

Interesting Discussions Make Up Program Held Tues. At Jemison

The regular meeting of the Chilton County Women's Democratic club was held Tuesday afternoon at the Jemison High School building, when Jemison members sponsored the program.

Nineteen members were present at the meeting and participated in the round-table discussions on various political issues of current interest. Articles dealing with women in politics and their influence toward better government were read by those on the program.

Brief individual discussions of phases of the coming political campaign in Chilton County were given. The eleven candidates on the Democratic Ticket were praised as men of the highest character and ability, and the concensus of expressed opinion was that a Democratic victory will be realized in the November election.

Because of the importance of the coming election and the campaign prior to the election, it was voted by members of the club to meet twice monthly instad of once until after November 6. The meetings will be held on the first and third Tuesday in each month.

It is expected that the Women's Democratic Club will wield a wide influence in the coming election. Only organized a few months, it has already won recognition over the county as a leading political organzation.

Miss Austin Speaks To Montevallo Students

Miss Kittye Clyde Austin, social director of Chilton County, recently addressed the students of the social service class of the Alabama College on the subject "Administration of Relief in Alabama," explaining the various phases of the work and the highly organized system used in the distribution of relief funds in the several counties

The organization of the work was traced from its origin in the provision made by the Seventy-second Congress to its present status detail efficiency. Miss Austin explained how the funds are appropriated to the various counties and gave a concise picture of the State administration staff, discussing briefly the many duties vested in State and county organizations.

Fair Modernized Store With Display Counters

The Fair, popular Clanton department store, operated by W. H. Sartor, one of the town's oldest merchants, has recently been modernized and the many articles of attractive merchandise placed on display counters.

With the store divided into sections and each section featuring varying types of merchandise, Mr. Sartor explained that it is much easier for the customer to slect his purchases. There are many other advantages to the new arrangement, he stated, including a better display of merchandise.

The Fair features all types of women's ready-to-wear, shoes, hats, hose, and various other lines of department store merchandise. Mr. Sartor and Miss Alma Gentry, attractive saleslady, invite the people of Chilton County to visit this store.

FARMERS URGED TO CONSERVE ON FOODSTUFFS

Farmers On Relief Rolls Only Will Be Eligible For The New Plan

Montgomery, Ala.—With the harvesting season at hand, R. K. Greene, Director of the Rural Rehabilitation division of the Alabama Relief Administration, today urged all farmers enrolled in the rehabilitation program, and county farm foremen, to be diligent in conserving surplus food and other products.

Warning that ample foodstuff must be retained on the rehabilitation farm to provide ample food for the families and feed for stock, Mr. Greene declared, however, that surplus quantities of foodstuff and feed should be turned over to the county relief directors as rapidly as it is harvested to avoid waste.

Before a rehabilitation subscriber, however, can deliver any surplus of sweet or irish potatoes, corn, peas or other commodities he must obtain an order in writing from the farm foreman, certifying that the produce offered represents an amount above that needed by the rehabilitation farmer to

Mosquito Drive In Co. Has New Supervisor

Glover McKinney, of Verbena, has been appointed to succeed L. M. Matthews as head of the extensive drive that is being staged by the FERA and the State Health Department to eradicate the Aedes Egypti mosquito, carrier of the dengue fever germ, it was announced by W. A. Cone, works director, Monday.

Mr. McKinney stated that he has found evidence of mosquito-breeding in many sections of Clanton and the county. Especially, he declared, has he found that these mosquitoes are breeding in flower containers in cemeteries and in old utensils around homes and business establishments. He urges the cooperation of the public in this undertaking to protect the health of the county by making an effort to see that possible breeding places are destroyed.

Claim Charges That County Owes $11,564.75 State Gasoline Tax

9,789 GALLONS SAID USED IN PRIVATE CARS

Charging that county gasoline has been used "indiscriminately in private automobiles," the State Gasoline Tax Department has filed a claim against Chilton County for $11,654.75, tax on gasoline used by the county since February 1, 1932. The claim with a letter of explanation from A. B. Tucker, chief clerk of the Gasoline Tax Department, was read to members of the commissioners court at a special meeting Saturday morning by Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds.

Of the 203,668 gallons of gasoline withdrawn from storage by the county during this period, it was charged that 9,789 gallons were used in private automobiles, and 114,748 gallons in county equipment. No record of the remaining 79,131 gallons was on file in the probate office, according to the claim.

Gasoline used by the county in the operation of county road equipment is exempt from State tax, it was explained, but since a quantity of gasoline received by Chilton County is being used in private cars in violation of the State tax laws, the tax is being charged on all gasoline used during this period.

The claim is filed in two accounts: Tax on 5,533 gallons of gasoline withdrawn from storage from February 1, 1932 to November 1, 1932, at 5c per gallon, $2,826.65; and tax on 147,135 gallons of gasoline withdrawn from storage from November 1, 1932 to June 30, 1934, at 6c per gallon, $8,828.10, totaling $11,654.75.

Mr. Tucker, in his claim against the county, declared that the department has evidence that county gasoline is being used by private persons in strict violation of the state tax laws. In the following note in connection with the claim, he attacks the system being employed in this county:

"Of the above 203,668 gallons of gasoline withdrawn from storage by Chilton County during the period covered by this claim, evidence shows that 9,789 gallons were delivered into personal cars and 114,748 gallons delivered into county equipment. Evidence on file in this office also indicates that some of the gasoline claimed to have been delivered to county equipment, was in fact delivered to private persons. Due to this, the tax is being charged on the entire quantity received."

Following is Mr. Tucker's letter:

August 17, 1934.

"Hon. L. H. Reynolds,
Judge of Probate,
Clanton, Ala.

"Dear Judge:

"Enclosed herewith I am handing you a claim against Chilton County for tax on gasoline withdrawn from storage or sold by your County from February 1st, 1932, to June 30th, 1934, on which the State tax has not been paid.

"In view of the fact that this gasoline was used indiscriminately for operating County road equipment and distributed to individuals for use in private cars, I am charging the State tax on the entire quantity received during that

Mary Ellis Resigns As Child Welfare Worker

The resignation of Miss Mary Ellis as child welfare superintendent of Chilton County was tendered to the County Child Welfare Board at a special meeting last Saturday afternoon when Miss Ellis explained to the board that she has been offered a position with Chambers County at a salary increase of $75 per month.

Upon receiving this offer sometime ago, Miss Ellis informed the board of the possibility of her resignation unless her salary here could be raised to correspond with the offer, and the commissioners recently voted that the county could not afford to pay more for the work at present.

In tendering her resignation, Miss Ellis declared that she has found that there is a great need for child welfare work in Chilton County and expressed the hope that the board will endeavor to continue its administration. She has been serving the county in this capacity since early March. Before that time she was connected with the administration of the local relief unit

Before beginning her work in Chambers County, Miss Ellis stated that she expects to attend a meeting of child welfare workers of the state, juvenile judges, school attendance officers, and county superintendents of education, which is to be held in Montgomery August 27-31.

Harbingers Of Progress

The Mining Review, in a highly jubliant editorial, reports that throughout the entire western mining area the industry is improving.

Section by section, metal mining activity is getting underway. The movement is being led, naturally, by the renewed interest in gold mining, resulting from the increase in its value, and all other metals are coming in a share of the better times.

Here's hoping that the mines will once more take their proper place in the economic sun as employers, taxpayers and harbingers of progress.

In The Public Interest

The invaluable work of the stock fire insurance industry was recently described in an address by A. Wilbur Nelson, Assistant to the General Manager of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

The companies make periodic inspections of the properties they insure. When possible, they recommend changes and improvements which reduce fire hazards and, in time, thus reduce insurance rates.

The Board has perfected a building code, which is revised from time to time as the need arises. The code has become part of the law of many foresighted communities and is an important weapon in eliminating the chance of fire.

The Board works in close relationship with the authorities in preventing and ferreting out arson, one of the most despicable of crimes, and in punishing arsonists. As a result of that work, arson is steadily declining—those who once made a "profession" of it no longer find it profitable and safe.

The Board does intense work in seeking to prevent school fires, and no endeavor could be more thoroughly in the public interest. Surveys have shown that thousands of schools are literally fire-traps, where not even the simplest precautions have been taken to safeguard the children. The Board, through pamphlets and by direct inspections, accentuates the need for adequate fire escapes, approved types of doors, and so on. It is not unreasonable to believe that that work, continuously carried on as it is, is the means of saving thousands of young lives.

This indicates what the fire insurance industry is doing for the public. It is making life safer and happier for us all.

Teaching The Need For Cooperation

The thought is widely expressed that the most encouraging factor in the agricultural situation is the steady sustained growth of the great farm cooperative organizations. As they enlist more members, and make their influence more widely felt, their battle for stable markets and better prices automatically approaches closer to victory.

It might also be said that a lesser-known phase of cooprative activity is almost as important as this kind of work, and gives equal cause for encouragement. That is the work the co-ops do in educating their members and the general public as well. They seek to be agencies of economic information, as well as buyers and sellers of commodities—and their influence in this direction, as in the other, is always widening.

Cooperative leaders have demonstrated to the thinking public that fair and profitable prices for agricultural products are an essential recovery generally—that bringing back the farm income to a normal level would be a major step in bringing back the urban income. The American farmer constitutes the greatest single market for our factory products, and no one can profit if his buying power is dormant.

The cooperatives, in brief, are showing the nation that all our citizens—rural and urban dwellers—have the same interests and the same problems, and that better times for one means better times for all.

The Blood Of Commerce

What have the railroads done for America? Here are some of their achievements, taken from an editorial in the Hurleyville, New York, Sentinel:

America represents 5 per cent of the earth's area—and it has one-third of all the railway mileage in the world. Our 123,000,000 people are served by 260,000 miles of rail, while the other nations, with a combined population of 1,500,000,000, have 780,000 miles.

Other countries average a mile of railroad for each 2,000 people. In America, we have a mile of line for each 100 persons.

Furthermore, this amazing railroad development, brought about by private enterprise, has had a direct influence on the growth of other industries. Good and comprehensive railroad service made it possible for industry to locate in every part of the land, building cities and states, and bringing civilization to vast areas that once were wildernesses. The American people have more automobiles, more telephones, and more of every modern convenience than any other people—and this kind of progress has consistently followed progress by the railroads.

As the Sentinel says, the role of the railroads in building up this country has been identical with the role of the veins and arteries in building and maintaining the human body. Stop the circulation of the blood and the body dies. Stop the railroads from fuctioning, and our commerce would die from lack of nutriment.

The "Take-A-Chance Club"

You won't find the address of the "Take-A-Chance Club" in any telephone book or city directory. It has never been incorporated, and it has no club-house. But a good many thousand Americans belong to it—though they wouldn't admit it—and no "fraternal" organization in the world exacts such high dues.

The ritual of the club runs something like this:

"I will always take a chance when driving my car. I will cut corners and drive on the wrong side of the road if I happen to feel like it. I will make a regular habit of passing other cars on hills and curves. I will always drive faster than road conditions warrant, and I will be especially careless when it is raining or snowing and visibility is poor. I will not make regular inspections of my car's lights, brakes and steering. I'll take it for granted that they are good enough. I will make no effort to learn the traffic laws of my state and community, and if I do happen to discover some of them accidentally, I will break them at every opportunity. I'll let the other driver watch out for me as well as himself, and I'll act as if the highways and streets were my private property.

"I'll pay no attention to traffic lights and stop signs, and I'll do my best to practice none of the courtesies of the road."

The members of the "Take-A-Chance Club" follow this ritual to the letter, and the result is that each year some 30,000 people are needlessly killed in automobile accidents, and property is destroyed to the extent of $1,000,000,000.

Are you a member of the club?

Lessons From Abroad

Those who have leaned toward the belief that democracy, as it has been typified in America, is a failure, must find considerable food for thought in recent events in Europe.

Across the waters, a new order has come into absolute power. It takes various forms and names—socialism, communism, facism—but the underlying principle is always the same. Its main tenets are that an absolute dictatorship be established—that the authority of the state over all social and business activities be supreme—that criticism shall be punishable by imprisonment, torture, even death—that the individual is nothing, and that individual rights shall be non-existent.

We see the results of that now in headlines. In Russia, thousands are dying of starvation, and he who lifts his voice in protest is crushed ruthlessly almost before the words leave his mouth. In Germany's recent reign of terror, 70 to 100 men were slaughtered because they questioned the "divine authority" of the present government. The German people hide in their homes, afraid of the future, not knowing what new atrocities it will bring. In Austria the Chancellor has been murdered, and chaos reigns. A dozen countries are preparing for war, and frontiers are armed camps. Almost every nation hates and mistrusts every other.

In each of these countries the people are prevented from knowing what is actually happening because there is no free press—the few newspapers that have not been forced out of business by the government, are leashed and muzzled and are permittd to publish only official pronouncements. An official pronouncement in this case is whatever the dictator wishes the public to believe, and the truth is often diametrically opposed to it.

We have made mistakes in this country. No government ever existed which could not be improved. But, knowing what is going on elsewhere in the world, do we want to scrap what we have in favor of political theories which, in Europe, seem to produce nothing save hatred, revolution, terror?

The Importance Of Mining

In normal times, few industries contribute as much to prosperity as does mining.

By the same token, depression in the mining industry has an adverse effect on many other businesses and professions.

In many states, for example, mining was a leading industry from the standpoint of employment, investment of capital and tax payments. Storekeepers, farmers, doctors skilled and unskilled laborers depended upon it for a large part of their livelihood even though they had no direct connection with it. The money it created permeated the whole industrial structure, stimulating purchasing power, providing jobs and aiding progress.

With the collapse of metal prices, this purchasing power was lost—and no financial blow could have been so severe to the mining states. During depression, mining has been at an even lower level than most other industries.

That is why economists attach great importance to "bringing back mining"—and why they hail jubilantly every sign of a mining revival.

Offsetting the Summer Decline

If present hopes materialize, much of the seasonal decline in general business that always comes with summer, will be offset by stimulated residential construction. It is an unquestioned fact that a sizable part of the public is in dire need of more and better housing, and that every month makes the need greater.

Today we can build a home in the middle-price bracket for about sixty per cent of what a similar home would cost four or five years ago—and today's home will be superior in such matters as utilization of space, labor-saving equipment, and resistance to heat and cold. It is probable that, once the construction industry gets back to somewhere near normal, prices will rise, and the opportunity now offered us may never be offered again in the futre.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

My brothers and I were out hunting. As we strolled along through the woods with our guns resting on our shoulders a large rabbit leaped from under some straw and rubbish and went away on long laps. Each of us snatched our guns into firing position, but each one waited for the other one to let go the fatal load. While we waited the rabbit ran over the hill top and was out of sight. Then we lowered our guns in disgust, all saying at the same time, "I thought that you were going to fire." The opportunity for game was gone and all because each waited for the other to do the thing that he could have done. That is one reason why many things are not done in this, our day. While we wait for the other fellow to do what we have the opportunity of doing ourselves, the thing is not done. Opportunity is on wheels.

A lad of ten came home from school as I was visiting in the afternoon. He ran up to his mother, kissed her and then handed her his report card. The mother looked over it and then lamented, "Why son, you have failed in two of your studies." The little fellow was not embarrassed in the least and replied, "Oh, mother, that is nothing, I failed in two last year." He had failed so many times until a failure was nothing to him. So far as he cared a failure meant as much as a pass. When we become accustomed to failing we have shut out the sun of hope. We must not look upon a failure as a matter of little importance. True, we may fail occasionally, but never allow yourself to be satisfied with a failure.

After a rain I walked out in the back yard and found the little boy of our home playing in a mud puddle. His hands, his feet and his clothes were a fright. I did not scold him, but I did challenge him to bouncing and catching a ball. Without a word he left the mud puddle and was soon interested where there was no mud and filth. If he had refused to leave his mud puddle in order to play ball, then I would have ordered him out and he would have come out. When parents find their children in a "mud puddle" and jump on them with both feet and slash and abuse them for playing in the mud, they have done the child more harm than good. The better way is to make the game of life more attractive where there is no filth and win them to play the game with you. However, if parents can not win their children away from the "mud puddles" of society, then it becomes their duty to say, "Thou Shalt Not," and mean it.

I saw a grown man who carried a rubber snake in his coat pocket. This two hundred pounder slipped up behind a young lady and quietly laid the rubber snake around her neck. On looking down she saw what she was sure to be a real snake, and she screamed in fright On snatching it from her shoulders with her hand she fainted and fell. For weeks afterward this poor girl suffered untold agony in her mind and in her dreams. Her nerves were torn to pieces and she was injured for life. It is often the case that a little thoughtless fun is very harmful in its results. It is nothing but criminal to produce sudden fright in the case of growing children. Many, many a time have children been hurt for life because of some thoughtless prank of one who should have known better. To laugh at a child when it is frightened is like laughing at Jesus on Calvary.

A mother told me of her little boy as he was preparing for school. He was ordered to wash his ears and face. She observed that he devoted his time to one side of his face and to the ear on the same side. She ventured to ask, "Son, why do you not wash both ears alike?" The boy replied, "Oh, ma, what is the use, this is the side that will be next to the teacher." The lad thought that it was satisfaction if the side next to the teacher was clean. That feeling of the boy, is still the feeling of grown up folks. We think that if we can appear clean on the side where folks can see us, that we have met the requirements of life. Many of us make great effort to be clean on the side where our neighbors can see, but how little do we care for cleanliness where only God can see. To be clean in our own eyes is as important as being clean in the eyes of others. Be clean inside and outside, in private and in public.

Planting For Wild Life In Cotton Belt

By W. L. McAtee

Principal Biologi, in Charge Division of Food Habits Research Bureau of Biological Survey, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In 1933 more than 10,000,000 acres of cotton land were removed from production, and the program for 1934 calls for elimination of an additional 15,000,000 acres. An enormous area, therefore, is available for use in a variety of ways that are in accordance with the policies of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Among uses to which some of this land may be put is planting for wild life. Farmers as a class enjoy hearing the cherry call of the bob white, seeing the cottontail timorously come out to browse at dusk, or in other ways sensing the presence of the wild things that help to make farm life attractive. For those who wish to hunt or to permit hunting on their lands, there are the additional rewards for good wild-life management—game brought to bag or revenue derived from the sale of shooting privileges. In some cases receipts from this source pay taxes, and where due attention is given to the matter larger revenues are possible.

Planting for wild life should be planned with reference to two of the greatest needs of furred and feathered creatures; namely, the need for cover and the need for food. Important and indispensable as food is, yet cover must reecive first attention, for regardless of the presence of a plenteous food supply, wild life cannot persist on land without adequate shelter from its enemis and where there is no cover where the young may be safely reared.

Cover for the majority of the small forms of wild life means low, dense vegetation, some of which should be tangled, or stiff and thorny, so that in time of need, the pursued can dive into it to escape the pursuer. The common broomsedge, for instance, is fairly good concealing cover, but fields of it are much improved for wild life by the presence of rose or berry brier patches, plum thickets, or honeysuckle tangles.

Planting to improve cover can well be made to serve a double purpose by using food-producing vegetation, and a triple use by carrying it on where erosion control is needed. If only gullies and waste corners of the farm are planted, much can be done to increase cover for wild life. Cover plants for the Cotton Belt that are useful both as soil binders and food producers include greenbriers or catbriers, blackberries, dewberries, the Cherokee rose, grapevines, Viginia creeper, and Japan honeysuckle.

Fruit-bearing shrubs or small trees that can be used to provide cover or any available land include red cedar, waxmyrtle near the coast, wild roses, thorn apples, blackberries, dewberries, wild plums, summacs, gall berry or inkberry, wild grapes, dogwoods, blueberries, sparkleberry, beauthberry or Mexican mulberry, elderberry, blackhaws, and honeysuckles.

Plants to be used pimarily for food producers may be selected from the preceding lists or may be such additional things as mulberry, hacklesberry or sugar-berry, wild cherries, hollits, sour gum, and persimmon. Good mast yielders are the scrub oaks in the eastean, and shin oaks in the western, part of the region.

Trees and shrubs produce more or less permanent covers and feeding places, but much use is made also of herbaceous plants, annual or perrennial, for feed patches. Land with alternating areas devoted to feed patches and covers, or in any event with plenty of food available near good covers, is ideal for wild life. Given these factors, with some attention perhaps to control of enemies at times, such land should soon harbor an abundant wild-life population.

Feed patches of a quarter acre to several acres in size are used. The smaller ones are entirely satisfactory, and it should always be borne in mind that proximity to good cover is necessary to full utility of a feed patch. Plants suitable for feed patches are chufa and peanut for wild turkeys, and winter pea, vetches, cowpeas, beggarweeds, Korean and common lespedezas, Lespedeza sericea and other species, soybeans, sorghums or various types, millets, benne, bullgrass, and Sudan grass for quail. Feed patches are fertilized and cultivated just as in agricultural production of the same plants. Livestock and poultry must be excluded, not only for the benefit of the wild life that may use the feed patches, but because production of some of the suggested plants for use or sale is prohibited under the contracts for acreage reduction that have been signed by the Secretary of Agriculture. Expert advice should be obtained as to the best methods of cultivation and as to tested strains of the legumes, sorghums, millets, etc., for each locality. This information can be obtained from the County Agent or from the Agricultural Experiment Station.

A farmers' Bulletin treating more fully the adaptation of farm practices to wild-life production has been published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The number is 1719-F and the title, "Improving the Farm Environment for Wild Life." Copies can be obtained at 5 cents each from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C.

A GUARDED PROPOSAL

Lorenzo Dow, an American evangeli who went to Ireland in 1799 to endeavor to convert the Catholics of th country to Protestantism, was a bol spirit in many respects, but it appear that he was extremely cautious in matters in which women were concerned

His tenative proposal of marriag written to a young woman of his acquaintance; is a masterpiece of conservatism. He wrote a follows:

"If I am preserved, about a year and a half from now I am in hopes of seeing this northern country again; and if during that time you live and remain single, and find no one that you lik better than you do me, and would be willing to give me up three years out of every four for travel in foreign lands (for if you should stand in the way I would pray God to remove you, which I believe He would answer) and if I find no one I like better than I do you, perhaps something further may be said upon the subject."

It is safe to say that the young lady could hardly have gottten a breach of promise verdict on the strength of a letter like that.

COLORFUL NEGRO ARRANGES PRESIDENT'S THANKSGIVING

'Nigger What Called De Gove-ment' Buys Turkey Which He Hopes To Fatten For Roosevelt's Table

By United Press

Columbus, Miss., Aug. 14—Sylvester Harris, Southern negro farmer who telephoned the White House to forestall a foreclosure on his 120-acre farm, is not going to forget the president of the United States.

"I'se going to send de president a turkey so fat he kin hardly stan up," Sylvester announced today, adding that he's "done laid down de hard cash for de gobbler."

Two months before Thanksgiving, Sylvester said, he will take personal charge of the diet of the turkey, already contracted at a price of $2.50, and fatten him on corn and peanuts grown on the farm President Roosevelt saved from the hammer.

"De corn—it will fatten 'im; and de peanuts—they'll give him flavor."

Sylvester, whose life is that of hundreds of other negroes in the South, telephoned President Roosvelt, talked his way through a few White House secretaries, and saved his farm last April when mortgage holders demanded $1,800 or foreclosure. A few days later he was granted a loan from the federal land bank.

Sylvester is rapidly climbing back to financial stability.

"Look at all dat corn," said the negro, as he sat on the porch of his four-room cabin. "De president saved all dat for me.

"Look at dat sun bearing down. It sho am burning de debbil outta dem weevils.

"Co'se dey didn't let me grow no cotton. Dey cut me down to 23 acres. Dat ain't no cotton. But I'se holding down because de men in Washin'ton said so. Dey done saved my farm and I ain't gonna cause 'em no trouble."

Sylvester has 35 years to repay the government, but he "don't need nothin' like dat long."

"One of these days," he believes, "they'll let me stretch out and I'll raise enough cotton to tear dat paper up in no time."

Negro neighbors call Sylvester "de nigger what called de govement."

"Now I'm the Picture of Health," Says Lady After Taking CARDUI

Here is how Cardui helped an Alabama lady. . . . "I suffered from pains in my back and sides," writes Mrs. A. G. Gray, of Cusseta, Ala. "I was so thin and weak, I read of Cardui and decided to take it. I noticed at once it was helping me. I kept taking Cardui until I had finished five bottles. I gained. My health was much better. Now I am the picture of health. My color is good and my weight increased." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

AUCTION SALE OF MARES ON FRIDAY, AUGUST 31ST

Mr. J. M. Ramsey of Selma and Uniontown, Ala., prominent lumberman and livestock dealer, was a recent visitor in Maplesville. Mr. Ramsey is having shipped by car loads mares and colts to be sold at Auction, and is staging a sale at Marion on August 31st at 10:00 a. m.

Col. Bob Little, well known as a stock man and auctioneer, has been engaged to call the sales. Each sale will be listed in the News and it should afford farmers the opportunity of securing good work and brood mares.

Mr. Frank Perry has been engaged as sales manager and will be glad to see his friends at every auction or will be glad to sell them privately.

Mr. Ramsey states these mares are of the better kind and are easily handled.

Rain has visited the drouth section and prices are getting back to normal, but at normal prices the farmer makes no mistake in buying this class animal for cropping as well as producing mules which are high, and scarce.

Building Permits Show Big Increase In July

New York.—Large increases in building permits in July over the June totals and those of July 1933 seem to reflect definite results from the President's housing program, Dun & Bradstreet reported. The estimated cost of permits issued in 215 cities amounted to $34,840,879 last month, compared with $28,621,565 in June and $29,484,891 in July a year ago. This was an increase of 18.2 per cent since last year.

A gain of 76.3 per cent was recorded for New York City, where the total was $7,908,885 last month compared with $4,512,238 in July 1933. Increases of expenditures for new work and alterations were reported from all States except the West Central and Pacific, and the aggregate volume of building permits for the whole country during the first 7 months of the year was brought up to 19.6 per cent.

Irish Potatoes Face Most Serious Pest

The Irish Potato industry of Alabama faces the most serious pest ever found in the State, declares B. P. Livingston, chief of the Plant Industry Division of the State Department of Agriculture who reports that the Irish Potato tuber moth has been discovered in Cullman and Jefferson Counties and that seed potatoes containing these moths have been scattered in some other north Alabama counties.

The moth was brought into Alabama on seed potatoes shipped into the state from Hastings, Florida.

Mr. Livingston and Commissioner Storrs are calling upon all seedmen and potato growers of the state to cooperate with the department in exterminating this pest. The agriculture department has several men scouting the northern part of the State looking for seed potatoes infected with the moth. As fast as the potatoes are found they are condemned and destroyed.

The larval or worm stage of the moth bores through the potato and makes it unfit for human consumption. It also destroys the germination qualities. The moth not only attacks the potato under ground but it also works upon the plant above ground. There are four stages of the life history of the insect, namely; the egg, larva or work, pupa and adult.

Canning Regulations

The following regulations have been set up regarding the canning program in Chilton County:

1. Peas will not be accepeted for canning unless they are shelled. Only young, tnder peas that have just been gathered will be accepted. Peas must be shelled on the day on which they are to be canned.

2. Due to the fact that so many families are canning at the present time, it will not be possible to accept any produce after ten o'clock in the morning.

3. Only firm, sound fruit of uniform ripeness should be used for canning.

RE-ROOF for all time

DON'T take chances with an old roof when it is so easy to have Careystone applied right over it. Made of asbestos and cement formed into shingle-shaped units, these roofs have all the advantages of slate or tile without the heavy weight, high cost and tendency to crack.

Permanent and Fireproof

Careystone is a permanent roof—first cost is last cost. And it is as fireproof as stone.

Roof Beauty

Careystone is made in five attractive colors. And at no extra cost you can have the "Weather-Age" finish—made only by Carey.

Low Cost...Free Estimate

Careystone costs much less than many roofs which do not approach it in appearance or durability. Let us give you a free estimate on reroofing your home. Call, phone or write.

SINCLAIR H-C GASOLINE

99 Million Foot-Pounds* Per Gallon

The great Eiffel Tower spikes the sky above Paris—7,840 tons of bolted steel. Colossal as it is, this mighty structure could be hoisted 6¼ feet off its base by a single gallon of the new powerful H-C—provided the potential energy in the new H-C could be fully utilized*.

The new H-C sells at the Sinclair stations in your neighborhood for the price of regular gasoline. The first steep hill you come to will show you what a smooth, steady stream of knockless power the new H-C gives. Or an hour's drive in traffic will convince you that here is the quick, lively acceleration you have sought so long. But for an accurate idea of its mileage—give the new H-C a 30-day trial.

Ask the Sinclair dealer for a folder which fully explains how one gallon of the new H-C could hoist the Eiffel Tower 6¼ feet.

* Foot-pound: The amount of work required to lift one pound one foot. Due to friction and other losses no machine yet built can convert into useful work all the potential energy in any gasoline. Friction alone steals millions of foot-pounds of work from every gallon of gasoline you buy. To keep friction loss in your engine at a minimum be sure to use either Sinclair Opaline or Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oil.

Miss Celia And Lawrence Gerald, Jr., Entertain With Lovely Dance

On the evening of August 20, a few members of Clanton's Young Society set were entertained by Miss Celia and Lawrence Gerald, Jr., at their attractive home. The dance brought to a close a most delightful house party given by this popular couple. This much enjoyed dance was a fitting climax to a series of gay social functions during the week of the house party.

Enjoying the charm of the Gerald hospitality and sharing the gaiety of last Monday evening were Misses Pauline Hogan, Helen Moore, Dixie Johnson, Nell Ross Mullins, Ruth Gowan, and the hostess, Celia Gerald, and her house guest, Betty Petrie of Birmingham. The young men enjoying the occasion were Grady Reynolds, Jr., Frank Hogan, Joe Moore, Jarrell Burdette, Alec Hayes, Jo Hall Johnson, Sidney Reynolds, Joe Earl Gowan and the host, Lawrence Gerald, Jr., and his house guest, Hal Broadhead of Montgomery.

Mrs. Benson Sims Entertains At Bridge

On last Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Benson Sims entertained her bridge club at her home. The rooms were attractive with summer flowers.

At the conclusion of the games an ice course was served to the following: Mesdames Earl Parrish, Claude Conway, Ruphus Brown, Herbert Klinner, R. K. Welsh, Jimmie Taylor and Mrs. Samuel Martin, guest. High score prize, a box of dusting powder was presented to Mrs. Ruphus Brown, and consolation, a picture, to Mrs. Earl Parrish.

Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Ezell left Sunday to visit relatives in South Carolina. Their daughter Grace, and son, John, accompanied them. John will not return with them as he will go to wake-forest, North Carolina, where he will enter school.

Mrs. George McCain, Mrs. Barney Burnett, Mrs, J. B. Atkinson and Mrs. Billy Smith returned Tuesday from a visit to the Century of Progress in Chicago.

Miss Mildred Johnson was a visitor of Miss Sarah Hollis a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hollis and family left Tuesday for a trip to points on the coast of Florida.

Miss Pauline Hogan Entertains In Honor Of Attractive Guests

Outstanding among the social functions of the young contingent this week was the lovely bridge party given by Miss Pauling Hogan Tuesday afternoon in honor of Misses Minnie Claude Lewis, Edwina Hainton and Maud Gillespie all of Prattville. The beauty of the home was enhanced by the charming hospitality of Miss Hogan. Bridge was enjoyed by the guests until a late hour. At the close of this delightful event a delicious salad plate was served to the following young ladies: Misses Helen Moore, Ruth Gowan, Celia Gerald, Betty Petrie, Dixie Johnson, Sara Lawrence, Hilda Hart, Ova Lee McCutcheon, Nell Ross Mullins and the honorees.

High score prizes were awarded to Miss Minnie Claude Lewis and Miss Helen Moore won the cut prize.

Misses Helen Roberts, Roberta Cochrane and Dorothy Waite were tea guests.

Miss Edith Hand returned last Saturday from a weeks vacation in Florida reporting a most wonderful trip.

Messrs. Robert Holt and Graydon Rayfield, both of Sylacauga, were visitors in Clanton over the week end.

Mrs. G. McCrary is visiting this week with friends and relatives in Columbus Georgia.

Wednesday evening the Y.W.A. and Fidelis Sunday School class of the Clanton Baptist Church honored one of thir popular members, Miss Gladys Williams, with a Kitchen Shower at the home of Mrs. Renfroe Mullins. Miss Williams is to wed Mr. James Roberts in the near future. The beautiful home of Mrs. Mullins afforded an appropriate setting for this occasion. A large number of friends bestowed many gifts upon the lovely bride-to-be.

Three charming visitors in Clanton this week are Misses Minnie Claude Lewis, Edwina Hainton, and Maud Gillespie all of Prattville who are spending several days in Clanton as the guests of Miss Pauline Hogan.

See Dr. T. T. Taylor, Optometrist, about your eyes at Wyatt Drug Co., Thorsby, Ala., Tuesday, Sept. 11, 1934, from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., at Langston's Drug Store, Jemison, Ala., Thursday, Sept. 13, 1934. Glasses correctly fitted.

PLEASANT GROVE

Jemison

We are sorry to have to say that our sick people are no better. Mrs. Spivey came back from the hospital Sunday. She is somewhat relieved, but still very feeble. Mrs. Hernie Hodgens has gone to Birmingham for treatment from Dr. McLester.

Mrs. Bill Davenport is confined to bed. Mr. Tom Zuber got a nail stuck in his foot that has made him almost unable to walk.

We hope that we can give more favorable news about these next time.

Miss Willie C Clements spent last week in Helena with the Misses Mary Nell and Jodie Belle Lowery.

The Misses Agnes and Lucile Compton are spending a while with relatives and friends in Dry Valley.

Mr. Frank Cox of Birmingham is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Phillip Franklin.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cofer spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Compton.

Mrs. Tom Zuber and little daughter, Mary Alice, dined with Mrs. Elzie Carrall Sunday.

Miss Gail Gletty visited Miss Willie C Clements Sunday.

Rev. Maurice Hodgens baptised some candidates at Center Hill Sunday.

Miss Ruth Champion returned to her work at the Baptist hospital in West Birmingham Thursday.

Miss Bernice Folmer with the Misses Margie and Ruth Champion spent Monday night with the Misses Champion. Bernice went back to Bay Minette on Wednesday where she works. Her home is in Robertsdale. Margie went back to Foley Saturday.

Mr. Lance Lenoir spent Saturday night with Mr. Lewie Compton.

Mr. and Mrs. Gletty spent a while Saturday afternoon with the Misses Champion.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Samples and children of Robertsdale are visiting his sisters here, the Mesdames Sam and Jim Woodley.

Mrs. Sam Woodley visited her sister, Mrs. Killingsworth of Providence community Saturday.

Some of our folks went to Pates Chapel Saturday night to the cream supper. They reported a real nice time, and a success for the church.

We have prayer services at our church each Wednesday night. Let's everybody come and try to build up our Lord's cause.

Mrs. W. E. Miskelley went to Birmingham with Mrs. H. Hodgens.

WANTED TO BUY—750 oak, cedar, or chestnut posts, 7 feet long, at least 6 inches in diameter at small end. Get in touch with W. A. Cone, Director Chilton County Relief Administration, Clanton, Ala. 1t.

A LETTER

TO THOSE OWING BILLS FOR MEDICAL AND SURGICAL ATTENTION:

I have always tried to give you, my very best service and I am still trying to do the same; and incidentally, I am expecting pay for such services, except in cases really unable to pay.

Now it is nearing the time most of us can pay if we really try, and I am expecting you to try.

I want to say further that if your bill with me is large and you cannot see your way clear to meet it, come and tell me what you can do and let's see if we can't come to some agreeable understanding by which a settlement can be made. I will be willing to accept farm produce where I can use it, or give a discount in meritorious cases.

Anyway, let's get on our trading clothes, you settle up, so I can pay the fellow I owe; and let's all start over again, and be be better friends than ever before.

You know times would be better if we would all do that. Let's try it and see.

Yours for good service and better times.

Milton Sharp Is Now On U.S. Navy Cruiser

Milton T. Sharp, a graduate of Verbena High School who enteded the U. S. Marine Corps last September at the district office, Municipal Auditorium, Macon, rcently received assignment to the marine guard on board the Navy's newest cruiser, the U. S. S. Tuscaloosa. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Sharp of Verbena.

Sharp completed the training course at Parris Island, S. C., in November, 1933, and was elected, from among those most proficient in training, for sea duty. He graduated from the sea school at Norfolk, Va., before receiving his present assignment. The U. S. S. Tuscaloosa, receiving the finishing work at Camden, N. J., will soon be placed in commission. It is armed with nine eight-inch and eight five-inch guns and will have a maximum speed of 32 knots. It is the latest of the heavy cruisers to be built under the terms of the London Treaty.

POPCORN "POPS" ON STALK

Cleveland, Miss.—Farmers of Bolivar County are considerably worried about the hot weather. Their popcorn is popping on the stalks in the field. Several farmers have brought stalks here showing the corn popped on the cob. They said considerable damage was being done by the premature popping. The farmers said the temperature in some cases reached 109 degrees in the past few weeks.

NEW SALEM SOCIAL CLUB

On August 14th in 1919 a group of ladies met at the home of one of the church members and organized a club for the benefit of the church. At this meeting there were 22 members present and 11 new members were received. Down through the years this club has prospered, though not being permitted to meet every time because of the weather. In 1921 we had forty-one members on roll.

This club has helped the church in many ways and could do more if more of the people would become interested.

In 1930 an estimation was made of how much money had been paid out since this club was organized. The estimation made was $2,486.20.

The 16th of this month the club held its regular meeting, observing it 15th anniversary. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Mrs. Lawrence Hayes; vice-president, Mrs. Leon Popwell; treasurer, Mr. Bob Smith; secretary, Loutisha Bean and corresponding secretary, Helen Kendrick.

Especially do we urge all church members, both men and women, to come and be present with us on Thursday before the 3rd Sunday of each month. Again we ask your presence and cooperation each month.

Committeemen Will Urge Vetch Planting

The committeemen measuring and checking land under cotton contract while in a meeting at Chilton County High School, Clanton, Ala., Aug. 22 volunteered to spend one day in each of their respective beats in furthering the soil improvement program of the county by spending a day asking the farmers to plant Austrian Winter peas and Hairy Vetch.

The date designated as winter legume day in Chilton county is Tuesday August 28.

These men will attempt to contact every farmer in their respective districts and talk to him about planting winter legumes. Make it a point to be at home on this day and hear the fact about Vetch and Peas.

It is a known fact proven by years of experimenting and experience by farmers that one crop of Hairy Vetc or Austrian Winter peas grown on average land and plowed into the soil wil double the yield of the following crops from this land.

Most of our rainfall in this state comes during the winter months while ordinarily there is no crop on the land and washes millions of pounds of the most fertile part of our soils away. I a crop of Vetch or Peas is growing on the land it will prevent most of this washing.

Live stock like green pasture in th winter and it is good for them. Vetcl and oats sown together make excellent grazing during the late winter and early spring months. Take the live stock off about April 1 and later mow a good crop of hay from this same land. Plow the land and plant to soybeans, cowpeas or corn and get a second crop the same year. Vetch and oats followed by soybeans, cowpeas or corn will usually double the harvest from the land

It will soon be time to plant winter cover crops. The farmers should be making arrangements for seed.

Seed are scarce this year and apparently the price is going to be higher later in the season. The best time to buy seed or anything else is when it is available at a reasonable price.

Be at home on August 28, and tall to your committeeman about Vetch. I you miss him look him up the next day for he has an important message about Peas and Vetch.

HERE COMES MORE NEWS

Be sure and come to Mrs. C. R Glenn's store in West End Saturday and have your fortune told. I tell the past, present and future of your life Also find your lost or stolen articles I will be there from 8 until 2 Saturday You can see me at all other times at my home about 2 1-2 miles on the Kincheon road. Am always ready to talk with you.

Just a word about the SERVICE at the
MOLTON HOTEL

FIFTH AVENUE AND
TWENTIETH STREET

THERE'S a pleasant, friendly atmosphere about the Hotel Molton—a delightful informality and unobtrusively efficient service that appeals to discriminating guests. While Molton service is punctilious, it is entirely lacking in that stiff formality one often finds in larger metropolitan hotels. That's why the guests who stop here once, feel like they're coming home when they return to see us.

IN MEMORY

On July 27, 1934, Mrs. L. F. Askins fell asleep in Jesus. When He comes to gather flowers for His Kingdom He not only plucks the buds but the full open flowers as well. God must have thought when He saw her bright face that she would make heaven a more beautiful place. But, oh, how we miss her in every path we take in our daily lives.

She was so loyal to her church and faithful to her Master. She was always ready to stand up for His cause

She was superintendent of Indian Grave Sunday School; president of the W. M. S. and a B.Y.P.U. member. A place is vacant in every phase of church life.

We must not weep for her, for like Paul of old, "She has fought a good fight, finished her course, kept the faith, henceforth, there was layed up for her a crown of righteousness.

—Officers and teachers of Indian Grave Sunday School.

Mrs. J. S. Wright of Jemison visited her daughter, Mrs. Dick Bean, last week end.

An exchange suggests that the new Undersecretary of Agriculture should supervise the plowing under.

We read that food served to actors on the stage is really fit to eat. Some restaurants might get an idea here.

HIGHLAND

Our singing society met last Sunday afternoon with a large attendance. eW were really glad to have the visitors with us and invite them back again.

The opening song was led by Mr. Fonzi Coe, after which prayer was led by Mr. Zack Lowery. Directors for the afternoon were Mr. Fonzie Coe, Mr. Brigance, Mr. Emmett Wilson, Mr. Sovereign Dickey, Mr. George Chambers, Misses Ruby Weldon and Gladys Wyatt.

Two quartets were sung which were greatly enjoyed. Pianist for the afternoon was Miss Dessie Wyatt. Closing prayer was led by Mr. J. S. Lockhart.

Don't forget the singing society meets at this place every third Sunday afternoon, and all visitors are invited to come and be with us.

Remember, Highland welcomes you.

A BISHOP'S STORY

Illustrating how the treatment of strangers in a foreign land may influence their lives, Bishop Bartlett of the Episcopal church tells of two young Chinese students who came to America, and what happened to them.

One, a Chinese girl who had been converted to Christianity in her native land, came to the United States to continue her studies. Unfortunately, she entered a school in which prejudice was shown because of her race. She renounced Christianity and returned to China.

The other, a Chinese boy, was befriended by an American family in Charleston, became a Christian, returned to China, and married a Christian Chinese girl. Four of their children were educated in the United States, and their family became one of the most influential in China.

One daughter married Sun Yat Sen founder of the Chinese republic; another married Chiang Ka Shek, China's chief leader today; a third married Kung Hsiang Hsi, recently finance minister of China; while a son, Soong Ts Vung, was also finance minister and represented China in several international conferences.

"The Christian influences which have gone out from this family," says Bishop Bartlett, "are incalculable, and go back to friendliness shown toward a Chinese boy in America."

The W.M.U. Service Quilt---Its Meaning

The women of Unity and Chilton associations have long been interested in pretty quilts but they are losing the opportunity to have a part in one of the most beautiful as well as one of the most unique quilts imaginable. Many will remember the suggestions made at the April quarterly meetings about making the W. M. U. quilts. Many of us pledged ourselves to particular tasks to be done for the Master in the next few months that would entitle us to make a block in the quilt. Perhaps we did the service, but somehow we have not started our quilts. Since I have seen some that other associations have finished, and find them so beautiful and so interesting, I thought you might still like to make one. One association has made five. Many have made two or more. Some seemed not to remember or understand the plan.

It is simply this: Each block represents some service done for the Master through the W. M. U. We pledged ourselves to pray before we set out on the task, to learn a new verse of scripture and quote it while doing the work. When we have done the work, we make a quilt square of unbleached domestic, six inches square, and applique a flower on it, any design, morning glory, rose, daisy, tulip or any other flower. If we have enlisted a single individual we should use a solid color, lavendar, for W. M. S., green for Y. W. A., nile green for G. A., blue for R. A., and yellow for Sunbeams, pink for a new tither. But if you have worked with an organization, you should make your flower of print.

Let's all get to work. Even one church could make a quilt, certainly a district, most certainly a whole association. It would be fine to quilt it at the next executive board meeting. Get your squares made; it's lots of fun. At the quarterly meeting we will decide what to do with our quilts.

—Mrs. S. J. Ezell

Successful Leadership School Held Here 7th

Mr. Julian Brown, Extension Horticulturist, gave an interesting lesson late summer, fall and winter gardening. Mr. Brown states that "good gardens during the spring and early summer are quite common. To grow a good late summer and fall garden is more difficult, but the benefits are proportional."

Many spring garden locations are not satisfactory for the summer and fall garden. Lowland or where moisture conditions are good is best for summer and fall gardens.

Keep the ground in good shape to work. A loose seed bed is most important at this season. Moisture is the all important factor in growing any kind of a crop late in the season. Well rotted manure or leaf mould makes the best mulch for this purpose. Cultivation must be very light and only sufficient to keep down weeds and grass.

Most seed will require deeper planting than for the spring gardening. Plant in a furrow rather than on a bed. Such plants as tomatoes, peppers and cabbage should be planted where they are to grow and thin them rather than transplanting. If transplanting is done plants should be grown in frames and transplanted.

What and When to Plant

The following are some of the vegetables that may be grown, with approximate date of planting for Chilton County:

Beets, from now until September 1; carrots, from now until September 1; radish, from now until September 1; mustard, September 15 to October 1; turnips, now until September; cabbage, plant in September; potatoes, not later than August 20; tomatoes, plants or cuttings from now until September 1; spinach, September 15-October 1; tendergreen, September 15-October 1; lettuce, now; collards, plants in September; rutabagas, as soon as possible, kale, September; onions, use sets last of September.

Winter Storage of Vegetables

Many vegetables are lost during the fall and winter due to failure to store or improper storage. Farm storage, properly handled, is the cheapest method of carrying over vegetables on the farm. Before any product can be successfully stored it must be (1) mature, but not over-ripe; (2), of good quality, (3), free from bruises and other injuries and free from insects or insect injury diseases.

The main requirement of any successful storage place are, (1), proper temperature for the product to be stored; (2), proper moisture conditions in the air, and, (3), plenty of ventilation.

Any other information needed can be obtained from the county or home demonstration agent.

IMPROVE QUALITY OF YOUR EGGS SAYS BAILEY OF AUBURN

The consuming public is anxious to secure the best eggs and is willing to pay in accordance, yet many producers stick to the old idea that an egg is anything with a shell around it, and pay little attention to the consuming public. Consequently many inferior eggs are sold to consumers and the consumption is thereby curtailed. This, of course, will jeopardize those who are trying to establish a reputation by marketing good eggs.

How To Produce Good Eggs

1. Keep healthy, vigorous hens. Well bred hens lay more eggs and larger eggs. 2. Feed hens properly on a well balanced ration. 3. Produce infertile eggs. 4. Keep large, roomy nests, with clean nesting material. Provide one nest for each five hens. 5. Confine hens to house when yards are muddy to prevent dirty eggs. 6. Grade eggs and keep for home use all cracked, dirty or small eggs. 7. Market eggs twice a week, especially during summer months. 8. Keep eggs in a cool, dry place. 9. Gather eggs once or twice daily. 10. Pack and ship in a standard egg crate, using the standard pack.

Black-Draught Brings Refreshing Relief of Constipation Troubles
Constipation produces many disagreeable sensations, several of which are mentioned by Mr. T. E. Stith, of Boonville, Ind., who writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught many years when needed for biliousness and other minor ills when a laxative was needed. I have a tight feeling in my chest when I get bilious. I get dizzy and feel very tired, just don't feel like doing my work. After taking Black-Draught, I feel much better. This is why I continue to use it when needed." . . . Thedford's Black-Draught is a good, purely vegetable laxative, obtainable for 25¢ a package.

Advertising Gains Show Confidence In Business

Chicago—The confidence of business men that sales opportunities justify steadily increased promotion efforts is reflected in a gain of 17.9 per cent in the volume of general advertising in June, 1934, over June, 1933, according to a survey published in the magazine Advertising Age. The total volume of newspaper advertising in 77 leading cities was almost up to pre-depression levels at 145,337,000 lines for the month. Of a dozen classifications, only financial advertising showed a decrease, amounting to slightly less than 6 per cent. Magazine advertising also is going ahead rapidly. Advertising Age reports July lineage of 104 publications totaling 1,636,000 lines, an increase of 45 per cent compared with July, 1933.

POPLAR SPRINGS

Brother Ollie Hayes preached at Poplar Springs church last Sunday. We all enjoyed his sermon very much.

We have a nice Sunday School and welcome everybody.

Our W. M. S. has organized three circles and hope to do a great work in the next few months.

Miss Ora Devaughn can walk better now. We hope she can soon throw her walking stick away.

Mr. Oscar Well's mother still has to use crutches. We hope she will not need them much longer.

Mr. Fonzie Bates is building a new house.

Folks are talking cotton picking but not doing much yet.

Miss Tommie Lee Robinson from Cooper spent a few days with Mrs. Addis Duke.

Canning is about done. Lots of good things to eat have been canned.

Mrs. John Smith spent last week with her son, Ira Smith, at Athens, Ala.

Mrs. Ben Jones is taking a vacation.
We are haying plenty of rain.

Mrs. Eva Wilton of New York pleaded that a brainstorm made her steal, but she was convicted and sentenced.

BILLINGSLEY

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. King had as their guest during last week Mrs. Bettye Moore and son, Paul, of Arcadia, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Covington and daughter, Norma, and Miss Daniels of Lake Wales, Fla.

Mrs. Leo Kast and children of Baldwin, Fla., and Mrs. J. M. Robertson, of Tallassee are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Culp.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Burkhalter returned Sunday from Montgomery where their little daughter, Wilda Fay has undergone an operation for appendicitis at Hubbard's Hospital.

Mrs. Willis Lawrence of Eoline is visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Marlar.

Mrs. Wilton McGinty of Birmingham is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. W. Spigner.

Mrs. B. W. Thompson and little son, Tommie, returned Sunday from a visit with reliatives at Clio.

Dr. V. J. Gragg of Clanton was a visitor here Sunday afternoon.

Miss Maude Lee Patrick returned Friday from the University where she attended summer school. She left Sunday for Cullman where she resumes her position as librarian in the school there.

Mr. and Mrs. Furniss Shepherd and Mrs. E. B. Mills were in Montgomery Friday on business.

Mr. C. A. Pattillo was carried to St. Margarets Hospital Sunday night where he is quite ill.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Griffin attended the graduation of their daughter, Miss Bonnie Clyde, at the university of Alabama Friday evening.

Mr. J. D. Griffin and Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin were the guests of relatives in Gadsden during the week end.

The Rev. J. L. Gaines, pastor of the Baptist Church here, held only his morning service Sunday, delivering a timely and helpful message. A series of services will begin at the Baptist church her next Sunday evening. Everyone is cordially invited to attend and pray for a revival.

John W. Vanderslice, 70, an "odd job" man in Denver, Colo., fell heir to $350,000, but kept right on mowing lawns.

Farmers' Week Set for September 1, 2, 3

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers' Week will be held here Saturday, Sunday, and Monday—September 1, 2, and 3. "It will be a great meeting for both farm men and women of the State," declared Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the Alabama Extension Service, when announcing the dates of the meeting.

Not only will it be Farmers' Week but it will be the annual meeting of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation and of the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Clubs. It is expected that every county in the State will be represented by a good delegation.

State and nationally known speakers for the occasion include Governor-elect Bibb Graves, Senator John H. Bankhead, Senator Hugo Black, several congressmen, Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Dr. J. J. Wilmore, Auburn Thos. W. Martin, president of the Alabama Power Company, Ashton B. Collins, president of Associated Industries, Seth P. Storrs, Commissioner of Agriculture, R. J. Goode, Commissioner-elect, Mrs. Bibb Graves, Mrs. M. L. Batson, president, council of home demonstration clubs, Miss Helen Johnston, state home demonstration agent, E. L. Turner, and E. R. Jamieson, farmers and others.

Sunday will be devoted to religious services. Bishop Collins Denny of Richmond, Va., will deliver the 11 o'clock sermon. Congregational sacred singing will also feature the day.

Leadership recognition and tours of the experiment station will be other highlights of the convention.

Mt. Creek News

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cooper are the proud parents of a fine baby girl whom they have named Laura Ann. She was born at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Messer.

Mrs. Nell Bailey and daughters, Josephine and Louise, of Little Rock, Arkansas are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Grey.

Miss Elizabeth Hammonds of Birmingham is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Amzie Kycker.

Our B.Y.P.U. is progressing nicely.

Thorsby, Alabama

THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF INSURANCE OF THE STATE OF ALABAMA FOR THE YEAR ENDING DEC. 31, 1933 READS:

"The Burial Insurance law is undoubtedly unsound and unwise in all fundamental respects. And the companies complying with its provisions, and doing no more, are as sure to fail as night follows day, with loss and dissapointment to more than 100,000 of our citizens.

"Since companies operating according to this law now have more than 100,000 policyholders whose interests are adversely affected by it, what is the clear duty of the State, Obviously it is to attempt to enact reasonable legislation to correct, if possible, the errors made in this unsound, unwise law."

The Alabama Funeral Directors Association, Inc., has always warned the public against buying burial certificate schemes. Your only SAFE and SOUND protection is to buy Legal Reserve Life Insurance that will pay all benefits in CASH.

This burial insurance law was enacted for the sole benefit of certain selfish interests, and the public's protection is thrown to the winds.

Your insurance department cannot protect you with such selfish laws on the statute books.

"WE decreased our ton-mile cost 35% by changing to Ford V-8 Trucks," writes a Wisconsin transfer company.

A California user reports hauling gross loads of 14 tons over a hilly, 80-mile run regularly in three hours.

Haulers right in this community are making similar records with the new Ford V-8 Truck. Talk especially to those who formerly used expensive "big equipment." Their loads mean little to the brute pulling-power of the 80-horsepower Ford V-8 engine: "Tough spots" and hills hardly slow it down. With its high speed, the new Ford V-8 is actually giving many haulers extra trips per day.

But don't stop at these facts: Look at cost sheets. Figures for gas, oil, repairs and replacements will show that the ton-mile operating cost of the new Ford V-8 is actually lower than that of a "4." The new Ford brakes and clutch take abuse that ordinarily would mean a trip to the repair shop: The new Ford V-8 literally sets a new standard of truck performance and economy. It is America's great truck value.

PROGRAM PRAISED

Evidence of progress is to be seen in the smallest hamlet or in the most remote rural section of the country, it was pointed out. Sepccial mention was made of the fact that the huge sums of money which have been expended in the promotions of the "New Deal" programs have reached that class of people who needed help most, perhaps for the first time in the history of government.

Figures were cited to show that approximately a half-million dollars of the several federal appropriations have been expended in Chilton County. Beginning with the first relief work, which replaced the efforts of the Red Cross to administer relief to several hundred families in the county in distress, a total of approximately $492,370.67 have reached a class of citizenship which would have suffered greatly without help.

During the several months before the introduction of the CWA, the needy in the county received $57,990.20 for work on various projects and for direct relief to those unable to work. This burden, which would have been practically impossible for the people of the communitis to carry, lifted by the government.

The CWA paid in salaries to the several hundred persons in all sections of the county who worked on the various projects a neat sum of $107,712.-27. Materials, most of which were purchased from local dealers, used during this program cost $12,569.01.

Since the replacement of the CWA by the FERA, workers have drawn in wages $41,455.19. Another phase of the "New Deal" programs which has meant much to Chilton County is the cotton curtailment program. During 1933, farmers in Chilton County were paid $177,646.00 for their cooperation in the movement to raise the price of cotton by taking a percentage of the acreage out of production, and again this year, according to an estimate by County Agent J. W. Fant, a sum of equal importance will be paid to those lending their cooperation.

Taking into consideration the value to Chilton County that has been received from the efforts of the Administration, through the huge sums expended—the relief afforded—and the many worthwhile projects completed, members of the ticket declared the President's "New Deal" merits the endorsement and support of every citizen of this county and the whole Nation.

STATE TAX CLAIM period.

"Withdrawals prior to February 1st, 1932, are still under consideration and a decision as to the taxability on such withdrawals will be reached as soon as the proper study is made.

"I will thank you to bring this matter to the attention of your County Board at next meeting and advise as to the action taken. If the validity of the claim is questioned I would like to discuss the matter with a representative of the Board at any convenient time. I would prefer having a member of the Board in this proposed conference.

"Thanking you in advance to give this your usual prompt attention and advise me, I am, with personal good wishes,

Your's very truly,
A. B. Tucker, chief
Gasoline Tax Dept."

Judge Reynolds stated that from April 10, 1933, to November 1, 1933, that no record was filed with the probate office of the delivery of gasoline to the various districts. During this time, he said that he repeatedly insisted that one of the three tickets suppose to be made by the driver of the truck and signed by the machine operator be filed in his office, which is in accordance with the commissioners court regulations, he stated.

Johnny Easterling, driver of the county delivery truck, stated in the meeting Saturday that he has the tickets at his home, but admitted that many of them were not signed by the operator of the machine, explaining that when the operator is not at his machine that he fills the tank and signs the ticket himself. Since no check is made on the amount of gasoline withdrawn from storage by the driver, Judge Reynolds pointed out that when he signs the tickets this is the only record which the county has of the gasoline distribution.

cluding Bankhead, Alabama; Smith, South Carolina; and Thomas, Oklahoma; advocated recently that such loans be made on wheat and corn as well as cotton.

A corn loan plan was in effect for the 1933 crop, but officials said today that cotton was the only commodity likely to be included, for the present, at least, in the loan arrangement.

A figure of 12 1-2 cents a pound has been suggested for the advances to cotton growers, but so has 13 cents a lint pound.

Officials said this would be decided by Mr. Roosevelt and it was added that "he also will say whether there will be any loan at all."

It was known, however, that those directly concerned felt the program would be approved.

In effect, the loan would be a price fixing arrangement, since it assures the average farmer a minimum figure for his crop.

Cotton was below 10 cents last year when the administration put its loan plan into effect. Little of the staple found its way to market until the price reached the 10 cent figure.

Several factors have caused the farm administration and other agencies interested to favor the loan on the South's principal crop.

A general textile strike may be called Sept. 1. This would shut down the mills just as the picking season gets well underway. This might send the market sharply downward.

Officials are confident that, in time the price would rise again to 13 cents or above, but, meanwhile, the growers, or a considerable number of them, would not benefit by advances later in the season.

Cotton Consumption Off

Cotton consumption is considerably below the figure last season. And even with the prospective short crop of 9,150,000 bales for this season, the cotton carry-over next year probably will be above that of average years in the past.

On the other hand, both wheat and corn, ravaged by the drouth, face the prospect of having their carry-overs cut to normal or below.

There is no need, officials contended, to put a "bottom" on grain prices. There is concern that specualtion might cause wheat and corn prices to attain peaks that are too high.

The success of the cotton loan in 1933 made the farm administration receptive to suggestions for a similar plan this year.

Cotton has climbed steadily. The government is in little danger of losing any of the millions it advanced.

A prerequisite for a cotton loan last year was an agreement by the borrower to cooperate with any control program th farm administration might decide upon for 1934.

This condition probably will be inserted this year also, if President Roosevelt approves farm administration recommendations.

feed himself or his livestock.

The relief director will then credit the rehabilitation farmer with the amount, the amount to be on a "reasonable" per bushel or per pound basis. Such surplus, while credited to the rehabilitation farmer cannot be sold on the open market either by the rehabilitation farmer or later by the relief director, Mr. Greene said, will be used to feed others on relief.

Only farmers now on rehabilitation or those on the relief rolls will be eligible for the purchase of small farms on a plan now being arranged with the Federal Land Bank, Mr. Greene said. These are, for the greater part, abandoned tenants or tenants whose landlords have been unable to provide for them. The rehabilitation program, Mr. Greene emphasized, will not be permitted to interfere with or disrupt the relations between tenants and landowners where landowners have made provision for the care of the tenants, as only those who have been abandoned or those who are now on relief, will be eligible.

Under the plan announced a few weeks ago worthy rehabilitation farmers and farmers on relief will be assigned ten weeks work on roads or other public projects at $14.40 a week. Only an amount necessary to provide food and other necessities will be paid in cash, however, the remainder to be applied on the purchase of farming equipment or a small farm, through the Federal Land Bank. Where a rehabilitation farmer has sufficient equipment then the amount may apply as a down payment on a farm. If unequipped, then the amount would apply on equipment and the farm would be rented to the subscriber for the first year.

THOUSANDS of visitors to the Ford Building at A Century of Progress have been awed by the sight of the largest photo mural ever made, which encircles part of the rotunda of the building.

Nearly a mile of photographic paper 40 inches high, 12,000 square feet of pressed wood, 12,000 square feet of canvas, and 12 tons of steel angles were called into play in the construction of the huge 600-foot spectacle.

The scenes depicted consist of 17 settings, presenting a coherent story of the huge Ford plant. The photographs, enlarged from 8 by 10 negatives, are mounted upon canvas applied to warp-proof pressed wood panels, fitted upon a steel frame.

To avoid distortion and obtain perfect clarity in making the enlargements of the photographs, it was necessary to do most of the work during the hours between midnight and morning, when street traffic is at its lowest. During this time vibration is reduced to a minimum, and the electric current used in the great lamps of the enlarging machine is at its steadiest.

The mural emphasizes the progress made in photography since the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904, when the largest photograph in existence was only ten feet long by two feet high.

P. D. WILSON ENTERS RACE FOR MAYOR

Dr. J. E. Gowan Also Files Qualifications As Candidate For Council

The time-limit for qualification of prospective candidates for city offices in the coming election expired Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock with two announced for Mayor and six for councilmen.

P. D. Wilson, owner of the Wilson Hotel and chairman of the County Democratic Executive Committee, is the second candidate to file for the office of Mayor of Clanton. Mr. Wilson qualified for the race last Saturday afternoon.

Only one new face is seen among those seeking election as councilmen. Dr. J. E. Gowan filed with the office of Mayor J. Lee Smith only a short time before the expiration of the time-limit Monday. All members of the present council are asking for re-election. They are: H. S. Shaw, Grady Heflin, J. Watts Moore, L. E. Diefenderfer, and W. L. Popwell.

C. Fenn Jones, retired Clanton business man, recently declared his candidacy for the office of Mayor, stating that he had received a large solicitation from his friends to enter the race.

Mr. Wilson is one of the most widely known men in Chilton County, having lived in Clanton and vicinity all of his life. He was born three miles west of here, but removed to Clanton at the age of 15 and has made his home here since that time.

For many years Mr. Wilson was engaged in the mercantile business here and for the past twelve years he has been operating the Wilson Hotel. He has served the County Democratic Committee as chairman for the past two years and is keenly interested in the advancement of both the town and the county.

In commenting on his candidacy, Mr. Wilson declared that he has never before asked for any office. "I doubt if there is any man in Clanton who has worked harder for the advancement of the town than I, but I have never before sought to hold any office in the town government. If I am elected it ~~is my aim to~~ endeavor ~~to~~ make the best mayor Clanton has ever known. I have always believed in majority rule and if I am honored with the opportunity to serve my fellow-townsmen in this capacity, I shall always be guided by what I believe to be the desires of the most of the people."

Dr. Gowan, too, is well known in this section. His acumen as a business man has long been recognized and highly appreciated by his associates in the county. Much credit is due him for the interest he has always taken in civic endeavors. Dr. Gowan is one of Clanton's leading dentists, and aside from the time taken by his profession he has gained a reputation as an able business man that has done much for his town.

Eight County Schools Are To Open Monday

Four High Schools And Four Elementary Schools Are First To Open

FULL TERM OUTLOOK BRIGHT SAYS LITTLE

"Still sits the old school house beside the road—;" And next Monday morning all the paths will lead toward those scores of school buildings thruout Chilton County. Hundreds of children will again trek toward fondly remembered rendezvous. Battered textbooks will be dragged from their storage places in attics and basements; clerks behind counters in stores where school supplies are sold will have busy days; mothers will make hurried last-minute inspections of little Jimmy's ears before hustling him off to begin another year with his books.

Eight schools in Chilton County will swing open their doors next Monday morning and the corps of teachers will be ready to begin the patient task of instilling knowledge in the brains of several hundred of the county's youth.

The four county high schools and four elementary schools will be opened Monday, while other schools in the county will not begin their sessions until October 2.

Although it is not certain, Superintendent Little stated that the chances for a full length term seem favorable. Efforts are being made to secure federal aid for schools the same as was appropriated to Alabama and other states last year, but it is most too early to state definitely how successful these efforts will be, Mr. Little explained.

Those schools beginning their terms Monday are listed below with the faculties:

Chilton County High School: L. C. Warr, principal; J. T. Searcy, J. B. Varnell, G.G. Williams, O. M. Bratton, Miss Margaret Kendrick, Miss Frances Gulledge, Miss Sara Colley, Miss Virginia Cook, Miss Brooks.

Clanton Grammar School: U. H. Abrams, principal; Mrs. J. T. Searcy, Mrs. Curry Thomas, Miss Wilnita Campbell, Miss Ada Holcombe, Mrs. Barney Burnett, Mrs. Amy Gandy, Miss Emma Sue Morris, Miss Lucile Sherwood, Mrs. Ruth Martin.

Jemison High School and Grammar School: J. A. Peterson, principal; J.P. Montgomery, Zane H. Turner, J. R. Ekblad, Miss Leacy Newell, Miss Miriam Harvey, Mrs. Susie Bald, Miss Celia Cumbee, Mrs. E. B. Atkinson, Miss Grace Meigs, Mrs. Imogene Glasscock, Mrs. Dezzie Littlejohn, Miss Jessie Mims, Miss Ola Rogers, Miss McMae McNeill, Miss Mary Clements.

Maplesville: J. E. Daniel, principal; C. E. White, Alton Wilder, Mrs. J. E. Daniel, Mrs. C. E. White, Mrs. Bessie Hayes, Miss Susie Mae Hayes, Mrs. Louise Chambers, Miss Annie Laurie Potts.

Isabella: Curtis Matthews, principal; Earle Thomas, M. W. Mims, Stokley C. Porch, Miss Madeline Heflin, Mrs. Wallace Cox, and one other teacher to be supplied.

Verbena: W. C. DuBose, principal; H. C. Hiten, Nolen B. Bryant, Mrs. W. C. DuBose, Miss Jettie Ward, Mrs. D. I. Deramus, F. H. Robinson, Mrs. J. C. Pattillo, Miss Cordelia Gulledge, Miss Myra Moore, Mrs. Bill Daniels, Miss Willie Murrell.

Mitchell Dam and Lay Dam schools will open Monday along with the other schools, but the Maplesville Elementary school will not be opened Monday as was formerly planned.

LOCAL GIRLS ATTEND MEET OF 4-H CLUBS

Annual State Short Course Ends In Auburn Last Sat. Morning

Auburn — The ninth annual state short course for 4-H Club girls closed here Saturday morning following four busy days of instruction in homemaking, lectures by prominent speakers, and a varied recreational program. The meeting of outstanding club girls from 38 Alabama counties was attended by 300 delegates and home demonstration agents.

Miss Ruth Pardue, home demonstration agent, with Misses Lucille Edwards, Isabella club, Arar B. Jones of Maplesville club, Willie Nell Owen of Isabella club, and Frances Kendrick of Vermont club, attended from Chilton County.

In evaluating the work of 4-H Clubs in Alabama, Miss Gertrude Warren, Washington 4-H Club official, said that it ranked with the best done in other states throughout the nation.

Under Miss Warren's direction a state-wide organization of 4-H girls was organized known as the Alabama 4-H Council. It is predicted that the new organization will be a distinct forward step for 4-H work in the state.

Enterprise Man Arrested In Killing Case

Louis Bankster, 35-year-old farmer of the Enterprise community, died shortly after noon Wednesday from a 12-gauge shot gun wound inflicted by his brother-in-law, Lawrence Edwards.

Edwards stated when he surrendered to Sheriff W. H. Gillespie shortly after the shooting that Bankster was advancing on him with an open knife and that he shot him in self-defense. The two me are brothers-in-law, and according to witnesses Bankster and his sister, Mrs. Edwards, were quarreling when Edwards attempted to intervene.

Bankster was struck by the charge of shot just below the right eye and died almost instantly. Edwards was brought to Clanton by his father and surrendered himself to Sheriff Gillespie.

Coroner J. Mell Martin and Sheriff Gillespie are investigating the shooting.

EFFORTS MADE TO GET MORE ROAD PAVING

Plan An Extension Of Three More Miles On Clanton-Selma Highway

Definite assurance was given Judge L. H. Reynolds in a conference with Gov. B. M. Miller Tuesday afternoon that funds will be available to Chilton County for two and one-half additional miles of paving on the Clanton-Selma highway.

For some time efforts have been made to get the appropriation for this project increased, and Judge Reynolds stated Wednesday morning that Governor Miller had given him definite assurance in the conference Tuesday that another allotment of federal aid funds will be made to this county for the purpose of extending this project.

Efforts are being made to secure three miles additional paving on the Clanton-Selma highway, according to Judge L. H. Reynolds, who stated Monday in a meeting of the Commissioners Court that application has been filed with Gov. B. M. Miller and the State Highway Department for Federal Aid funds to complete five miles of paving on this road.

Judge Reynolds stated that both Gov. Miller and R. D. Jordan, assistant highway director, spoke encouragingly regarding the possibility of Chilton County securing additional allotments from the Federal Aid money appropriated to Alabama.

Lack of funds in the appropriation for the paving project which is underway necessitated the reduction of mileage from 2.66 miles to 1.92 miles, it was explained. Three additional miles would give the county approximately five miles of paving on this road.

Probabilities are favorable for the paving of the street running from the Wilson hotel to several blocks north to the top of the hill near the Alabama Mills by a cooperative movement among the property owners along this street. It was explained that the paving of one block immediately north of the Clanton-Selma highway intersection is assured and a meeting of the property owners along the remainder of the street was scheduled for Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the court house.

Approximately fifty men are working on the present project, which is expected to continue until early winter.

HUGE BUILDING PROGRAM WILL GET UNDERWAY

Selection Made For Site Of Clanton's New Post Office Building

Clanton's extensive construction program will soon be underway is the concensus of opinion of those in charge of the work here. Several hundred men will probably be given employment on the several projects within the next sixty or ninety days, it was stated.

Acting Postmaster Billy Smith has been advised of the selection of the site for the new $55,000 Clanton post office. The lot owned by Mrs. Sophia Jones, located on the corner opposite the Polk Bros. Motor Company where the Carlton Blacksmith Shop is situated, will be the site of the new building. Of eleven sites offered, this was one of the lowest bids, the price being $4,000.

W. B. Kelly, manager of the United States Re-employment Office here, stated that he has not been given any notice as to when work is likely to begin on this project, but stated that he expects work to be underway before Christmas.

Probabilities are favorable for an early start on the Thorsby waterworks project, he stated. The contract for the drilling of the well for the water County, was declared the Alabama 4-H health champion and will represent the state in Chicago next December at the National 4-H Health Contest. Works Director Cone Receives Promotion Promotion again takes Chilton County's FERA works director to other fields. Works Director W. A. Cone, the fourth director that the county has had since the beginning of the CWA, has been promoted to Field Director with supervision over ten counties in Central Alabama.

Mr. Cone stated Saturday that he expects to leave Clanton some time next week, or just as soon as his successor comes to relieve him here. He will be stationed in Montgomery and will have supervision over Macon, Bullock, Pike, Barbour, Covington, Coffee, Dale, Henry, Geneva and Houston Counties.

Succeeding Armistead Leake here as works director soon after the close of the CWA, Mr. Cone has accomplished much with a limited force of men during his administration and many persons in Chilton County familiar with the FERA program will learn with regret of his leaving.

Saturday, Mr. Cone stated that he doesn't know who will succeed him here. He expressed his warmest appreciation to the people of Chilton for their cooperation in helping to make the work a success and declared that he has never worked in any county where he enjoyed more friendly cooperation from everyone.

Huge Crowd Attends Picnic Given At Sims Grove By New Set-Up

CITES RECENT REPORT ON GASOLINE TAX

A crowd estimated at approximately 2,000 persons congregated Friday at the Ben Sims Grove, on the Clanton-Birmingham highway two miles north of Clanton, for the first official gathering of The League For Better Government, newly organized political factor in Chilton County.

With six hundred invited members and ther families present, the several-acre oak grove swarmed with people from early morning until mid-afternoon, when a sudden downpour of rain sent the crowds scurrying for shelter in the middle of the program.

Judge L. H. Reynolds, venerable probate judge of Chilton County, acted as toastmaster at the celebration, which was attended by hundreds of his staunch political friends, many of whom have supported him throughout his forty-four years of political life in Chilton County.

Featured on the program were several local musicians, including the Smith String Orchestra, composed of Miss Sarah Smith, A. L. Smith, Frank and Stanley Smith. Lloyd Howard, Chilton County's own accordian artist, rendered several solo selections. Luther Patrick, the famous Birmingham radio entertainer, comedian, and attorney with Otis Elder and Teddy Boy Brooks, WAPI artists, contributed much to the day's entertianment. Another comedian that brought many enthusiastic laughs from those crowded about the improvised speaker's stand was Frankie Rizzo, of Chicago, who has been connected with the Montgomery Walkathon for the past three weeks.

Judge Reynolds delivered the only speech of the day, when he spoke on the subject of "Local Government." He spoke briefly of the alleged misuse of county gasoline which is responsible for a $11,564.75 State tax claim filed against Chilton County recently. Charging that never in all of his public career has he seen such wanton waste of public funds, Judge Reynolds declared that the present Commissioners Court in little more than a year has spent $100,000 more [illegible] county funds than any other court has ever used in the same length of time.

Repeatedly, he said, that he has warned the commissioners against [illegible] of county gasoline in private automobiles, but they have ignored his warning; and in the face of this wa[illegible] a ruling from the attorney-general and the recently filed tax claim, they are continuing to put [illegible] private automobiles. [illegible] filed in his office [illegible] two days [illegible] which listed five [illegible] placed in the road car of A. P. R[illegible]son of District 1.

Citing figures from the State [illegible]ptroller's office that of fifty [illegible] counties examined, Chilton county rates second. This is true, he said, because your county has not before had this waste and unwise spending of your tax money.

"I have always said that I will not endorse corruptness in public office. I still maintain that I will not." Here he paused to ask the crowd if they would have him give his endorsement to this practice. The answer was several roaring negatives. Throughout the crowd was heard angry muttering.

Charging that the crowd in the court house is in league with the action of the commissioners court, he said that certain officials have advised the commissioners to take the attitude they are now taking: "I have turned down their claims repeatedly, but now they say "after January we'll get our claims passed," he continued

He concluded his speech with the sensational announcement, "I'm not telling a one of you how to vote, but I am telling you that I'm not going to support them in this corruptness."

Enthusiastic applause rang through the woodland following this statement and many yells of "We're with you, Judge," were heard.

Twelve hundred-fifty pounds of barbecued pork, beef and chicken were served to the crowd, and this was barely enough to serve around.

The afternoon was just getting well underway when the rain dispersed the crowd.

Government Steers

Just a few years ago, in the famous pre-depression era of the 1920's, an ox team in Clanton was such a sight that children were likely to forsake their games to view the strange animal. Mothers and fathers would stop their work for a moment—and if some of them breathed a sigh to the good old days—it was short-lived. Hard-boiled newspaper editors, even, would write a news item about the strange method of transportation for the entertainment of those who had never seen such—or had forgotten. Even mules and horses were relegated to the background—and the song of a jackass was heard no more at "protracted meetings" but yielded more or less gracefully to the tin horn of a wheezing lizzie.

It would seem, however, that now the lowly oxen is again coming into its own. We say again, for most of us are not too young to recall the good old days when "Jerry and Tom" held an honored place on most farms, and a mule or horse and buggy, represented popular society. It seems that in some instances at least gasoline horsepower, with its store-bought "vittles" could not compete with the native steer which thrived on most any feedstuff about the farm, and could live pretty well if left to himself on the range.

Uncle Sam remembered that the steer is a reliable draft animal when he started rural rehabilitation—and now it is a common sight to see oxen on the roads and highways. Many of them are hitched to relics of other days—and instead of the high-wheeled, tarred-spindle wagons of pioneer times, they can be seen plodding peacefully along with the roller-bearing running gear of a derelict lizzie.

All of which seems to us a good omen. This country was founded and grew upon the solid foundation of slow, patient toil. True, it seemed to move into a faster machine age, but when it began to flounder about in an economic bog, it is encouraging to find that people are willing to fall back upon a foundation they know is tried and true.

Of course, it is regrettable that with all our wealth, we have such a poor system of distribution that many can not share equally its luxuries, but so long as people want to work and earn a living—whether they use steers, provided by rehabilitation agencies, or other methods, it is a good sign of a healthy national spirit.

Cooperation Benefits All

John D. Miller, President of the National Cooperative Council, recently pointed out that the farmers' cooperative marketing movement does not mean the elimination of the efficient "middleman." On the contrary, progress on the part of the cooperatives will likewise lead to progress on the part of concerns which buy from farmers and are engaged in processing and marketing.

The reason for this is that cooperation does away with the old system of non-competitive buying, replacing it with a more rational and economical system which places all concerned on a fairer competitive level. The middleman knows that no other concern can buy at lower prices, and, to quote Mr. Miller, "those buying from farmers at comparable prices will each endeavor to attain the highest possible degree of efficiency in order to meet competition in selling, the final result being beneficial to farmers, consumers, manufacturers and dstributors alike."

In other words, agricultural cooperation is gradually bringing order out of chaos. It is eliminating needless waste. By regulating the movement of farm products, so that each market may be adequately but not over-supplied, it is doing much toward solving the problem of surpluses. It is assuring the public a constant and certain supply of the highest grade food products at a fair price. And everyone concerned will eventually reap a share of the harvest from the seed the cooperatives are now sowing.

Labor Day

Labor Day this year, on September 3, comes at a time of great unrest among the nation's workers, and in the midst of a serious strike situation that shows little sign of improvement. More strikes have occurred during the last six months than in any similar period in several years. Many strikes have been settled, but others have developed to keep strike unemployment at a high level.

Most of the labor difficulties of the year have arisen over union recognition, or disputes respecting collective bargaining. Endless controversy has centered about interpretations of the ambiguous section 7-a of the National Industrial Recovery Act, which is likely to cause continued confusion until it has been definitely clarified.

In the main the operation of the NRA has been highly advantageous to labor, through increased wages and a shortening of the working day. But, unfortunately, in some instances the the more radical element of the workers has taken advantage of the favorable aspects of the law to make demands which employers believe to be without justification.

Without presuming to pass upon the merits of any particular contention of workers or employers, it may be said that national recovery is being seriously retarded by the strike situation.

Unless all concerned show a disposition to be reasonable and seek peaceful means of composing their differences, the entire country is bound to suffer from the effects of increased unemployment at a time when the demands for relief, due to natural causes, are almost too great to be met.

As we on Labor Day pay deserved tribute to the dignity of honest toil, let us also counsel moderation and a spirit of conciliation on the part of employees and employers alike.

War Unlikely Now

Disturbing as recent events in Germany and Austria have been, it appears that there is little likelihood of another European war in the near future. Having passed through the unrest incident to Hitler's killing of alleged traitors among his own following; the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss of Austra, and the apprehension occasioned by the death of Hindenburg, conditions in Central Europe seem to be rather less threatening than heretofore.

Hitler's latest autocratic action in presuming to dictate to the Protestant clergy of Germany has created another ugly situation, but whatever the outcome, it does not at the moment appear likely to cause international complications.

Mussolini's determination to maintain Austria's independence and his warning to Hitler to keep hands off Austrian affairs has on the whole tended to have a sobering effect on Hitler, while raising no serious protest from France or other interested nations.

The desperate economic plight of most European countries is such as to make the financing of a war most difficult, if not impossible, although continued internal unrest in both Germany and Austria may lead to further violence among their own people. In the meantime, the efforts of former Empress Zita to restore the monarchy in Austria are being observed with some apprehension.

Holding Criminals

It is exasperating to note the frequency with which desperate criminals are allowed to escape from prison to resume their careers of murder and robbery, after great effort and expense have been incurred to place them behind the bars.

That so many do escape is due principally to the stupidity of prison officials, although inadequate jail equipment is a contributing factor. The federal government is endeavoring to remedy the latter defect by using toolproof steel in the construction of new cells.

The new federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., will have cells made of such steel, which can not be cut by any tool which it would be possible to smuggle into the prison. Tools which would easily cut through ordinary steel leave the new bars barely scratched. Hack-saws and files are rendered useless after a few strokes, acids are futile, and even a metal lathe makes little impression on the resistant bars.

The cost of installing such cells in local jails might be prohibitive, but in any event the best equipment that it is possible to afford should be provided. Even with ordinary cells, in good condition, increased vigilance on the part of prison authorities would eliminate or greatly reduce the number of escaping inmates.

U. S. Crime Report

A report issued by the Department of Justice discloses that two-thirds of the arrests for crime during the first six months of this year were of persons between the age of 15 and 24, those of 19 years exceeding the number in any other age group.

The greatest number of youthful criminals were arrested for larceny and burglary, and, contrary to the geneal belief, more native-born than foreign-born were arrested, relative populations of each being considered.

The report also shows, contrary to popular belef again, that Chicago's murder record is relatively low when compared with many other cities, while the highest murder rate was made by Chattanooga, Tenn., closely followed by Jacksonville, Fla., and Memphis, Tenn. Of 89 cities for which statistics were given 19 reported no murders during the half year covered by the survey.

It was observed that January and February were the months of fewer arrests for murder and aggravated assault, while during these months robbery and burglary were unusually prevalent. Previous reports showed that for some reason this variation was usual during the winter months.

Plenty of statistics are available concerning the high prevalence of crime in the United States, but in spite of all efforts little progress is being made toward suppressing criminal activities.

Over And Over It Is Proven

Dillinger left an estate of exactly $7.81. Hundreds of thousands of stolen dollars passed through his hands as well as other thousands of dollars in stolen bonds, were among the loot of his many predatory adventures. And at the end—$7.81.

Dillinger spent his stolen treasurers lavishly. His weakness was for women of the underworld and he spent money on them without stint. His fight against the law which was always at his heels was expensive. The supposed "honor among thieves' 'did not protect him from frequent rimmings at the hands of his supposed friends. Dillinger's stolen money was stolen from him in turn.

The only part of his stolen fortunes that could be found when he died on a Chicago side walk was the $7.81. His old father, who apparently never profited from his son's stealings, has been appearng on the stage in order to get money to pay John Dillinger's funeral expenses. He started his murderous career with $10.00, according to his father, and when the end came he didn't have that much. His career is not different from others who sought easy money by robbery and murder. Few who steal keep their loot and broken-hearted relatives have to buy them. Over and over again it is proven crime does not pay.—Southern Star.

Letters To The Editor

ENJOYED RECENT EDITORIAL

Lomax, Ala., August 16.

Editor, Chilton County News,
Clanton, Ala.
Dear Sir:

Please let me thank you for your editorial in August 16 issue of your paper entitled "Year of New Deal Shows Progress" The interest you have in our government is plainly shown in this editorial and the mere mention of that great leader's death in Germany shows beyond a doubt that your newspaper is ever loyal to good government.

Being a Republican all my life it was hard for me to listen to anything like a New Deal. Knowing, however, that we were badly in need of some kind of a deal, I, of course, couldn't think of a Democrat bringing this about. Now after a year of trying to find fault to criticize this great man I have yet to find it.

So, in conclusion, let me urge the people of this great county to come out in the open and follow this God-inspired man that is doing all in his power to bring prosperity to us and ours.

The Candid Candidate

The Candid Candidate reports on his last campaign: Lost 1349 hours sleep thinking about the election. This doesn't include time his wife was thinking. She said she thought plenty. Lost two teeth and a lot of hair in a personal encounter with opponent. Donated two cows, four hogs and five goats to a barbecue. Gave away 14 pairs of suspenders, 18 dresses, 26 gingham aprons and $15 in cash; also 24 baby rattlers. Kissed 157 babies; tried to kiss the mother of one, but will never do this again. Kindled 14 kitchen fires and 18 fires for rural school teachers. Put up seven stoves. Wore out a good automobile and four pairs of shoes. Shook hands 9,999 times and wouldn't do it again for $1,000. Told 10,800 lies, but this came natural as he was a politician anyway. Attended 17 revival meetings, was converted 14 times, baptized by immersion three times, sprinkled four times. Assisted in the burial of five of his supporters. Contributed $78 to foreign missions and 15 cents to home missions and promised everybody a job on the RFC. Made love to 87 old maids and nine grass widows. Was dog bitten 18 times and tore up three suits of clothes crawling through barbed wire fences. The expense of the campaign was more than he will ever get out of the office; and the love of his wife.

SENSE and NONSENSE

You folks wouldn't believe me a few weeks ago, and so I just had to prove to you that I would be running short of something to write about if you didn't furnish me with some jokes, a fish tale, or other stuff like that. The fact remains that you missed this column last week.

New Orleans, Tra. La. La.

But seeing that you are not going to coagulate with me very much, I just meandered off down to New Orleans where they have been fussing, fighting, fuming, etc., between Senator Huey Long and the Mayor and the Governor. Anyway in my travels down and about there I found a lot of things to tell you all about. Here is a letter I wrote you all and forgot to mail it because at the last minute I was given notice to leave town, so I just brought it with me.

New Orleans, Tra., La, La.
Augusto The Twenty-Sixth
Day Of The Year A. D. 1934

Here's to the state of Louisiana, where the mud is so deep that I saw a silk top hat in the street and started to pick it up. As I did, I heard a voice say, "Get off my shoulders!" Imagine my astonishment. I asked, "Is that a man under there?" The reply was "H—l yes, and I'm standing on a mule's back." How's that for mud?

Anyway N. O. is a great little town. One of the greatest troubles I've had is trying to keep down the hiccoughs. Finally, after two days and nights of desperate attempt at it, I gave up hope. And I am glad indeed, because I've just learned they are going to stage a hiccough contest here right away and I'm sure to win first place.

I find the place a little slow compared to your fair city. In fact, to give you an idea of how slow it is, I took a little jaunt over to a nearby town on a little dinky train. On the train was a lady and her little boy. She had bought a half ticket for the lad. When the conductor came through for the tickets, she handed him hers and the half-fare. The conductor asked who the half was for. She replied for her son, who was under twelve years of age. The conductor said he looked to be over sixteen. The lady replied, "Well, he was only ten years old when we started."

But that's not telling you much about Huey. He's not such a bad sort of fellow, a very interesting conversationalist. Just a little stubborn and likes to have his way. The best way to get along with him is to let him have his way. You know I'm a bit like that myself sometime.

All this we hear about the warfare and how extremely sensitive it has been is all the bunk and a lot of hooey, phooey, and other such expressions. I decided soon after arriving that it was no place for me if I was looking for a bit of excitement or something. I found the something. Anyway, here's the way I started to write you.

This place is buzzing with excitement, machine gun bullets and grenades, saying nothing of the whiffs of gas one gets now and then. To prove to you I'm not spoofing, just look at the hole at the top of this sheet. That is where a bullet of some kind went through a minute ago. I've long ago abandoned the idea of trying to wear a hat as I have already had two completely ruined with bullet holes. Undoubtedly some strange hand is guiding me or the bullets, or I would have stopped one myself.

Just had to hesitate writing a few minutes ago. The noise outside was so loud it was deafening and now I am all a twittar. Piaca of granada or a bullat has hit tha typawritar and smashad tha lattar which should ba usad in tha placa of tha lattar a I am using in writing this now.

Two Good Friends

Here's some letters from two good friends of this column, and they have some good jokes, thanks to Miss Erma Suggs, of Route 2 and Mrs. W. J. Duke of Route 2.

"Cliff said he quit going to church because they wanted so much money, but going down the street one day he met one of the good brothers and the following conversation took place:

Good Brother: "How do you do, Brother Cliff. I been wanting to see you, how about giving a little money for the church?"

Cliff: (running his hand in pocket and getting some change, thinking to save it, makes this remark):

"This is all I have. I won it in a crap game."

Good Brother: "Hand it here and let the Lord use it some, the Devil has used it long enough."

Mrs. Smith (teasing her Husband) "Now you see if I had married Tom, I would be rich now."

Little Son: (Listening) "Mamma, we ought never to married Daddy."

4,120,000 Jobs Made Since March, '33

By Associated Press

Washington. — President Roosevelt has received a report saying employment has increased 4,120,000 since he took office.

The document submitted by Donald R. Richberg as head of the executive council, also cites figures to show a substantial business advance and declares that in this improvement NRA was a dominant influence.

"Reliable figures," said the report made public Sunday night, "indicate that 40,180,000 persons were employed in the United States in June, 1934, an increase of 4,120,000 over the low figures of March, 1933, and an increase of 2,320,000 over June, 1933. The latter increase is due mainly to shortening of hours under NRA codes."

The report said the purchasing power of the average worker in manufacture remained practically unchanged but that there was an average reduction of six hours in the industrial work week. It declared many small businesses had been saved from failure, larger industries stabilized and corporation profits increased.

The report was in the nature of a birdseye view of the economic recovery. It dealt largely with unemployment which it called the "primary problem of recovery."

"The size of this problem," it said, "may be graphically indicated, although not measured, by the report of the Department of Labor that, during the year ending June 30, 1934, the National Reemployment Service and the State Employment Services received 15,387,508 applications for jobs."

It said 6,951,523 placements were made. These figures, it asserted, could not measure unemployment because they involved duplications and did not include unregistered jobles.

Richberg pointed to "most significant' figures' showing that business failures from February to May, 1934, were more than 40 per cent lower than in 1929. He said the index of corporation profits rose from "the deficit figure of 6.9 in the first quarter of 1933 to the profit figure of 33.2 in the second quarter of 1934."

Black-Draught Good For Biliousness and Bad Taste in Mouth

"I have found Thedford's Black-Draught so good for biliousness, bad taste in the mouth and other disagreeable feelings due to constipation," writes Mrs. Mary Garner, of Burleson, Texas. "My mother used it for a number of years and we do not think there is a better medicine. I was pleased when I saw Syrup of Black-Draught advertised. I sent for it and gave it to my children (as a laxative) for colds and when they felt bad. Soon they felt fine." . . . NRA CRITICS FLAYED AT WISCONSIN CODE RALLY

Milwaukee.—If the NRA does nothing more than eliminate child labor and sweat shops it has justified its existence, Walter H. Calhoun, Chicago, an administation member of several code authorities, declared at a meeting here of 150 representatives of regional, State, and local code authorities.

Attacking critics of the NRA, Calhoun said it was unfair and unreasonable to expect the NRA to correct in 1 year all the abuses that have crept into business during the last 2,000 years.

All - Night Lights May Help Old Hens

Auburn, Ala.—All-night lights may be used to advantage in making old hens profitable, says H.R. Bailey, extension service poultryman of Auburn.

"It must be understood that only good-producing, vigorous hens which are free from disease and parasites are profitable when all-night lights are used. Good egg production should be maintained during late spring and early summer by culling the hens that are not producing. At any time after this period when egg production drops to a point where the hens are not self-supporting, all-night lights may be used to advantage.

"The lights should be turned on before dark and allowed to burn until morning. If electricity is available, use one 10-watt light for each 100 hens. Where electricity is not available kerosene lanterns may be used with equally good results. Suspend the lights two or three feet above the mash hopper and water vessel, being sure that they shine on the roosts. This schedule should be continued until about April 1."

G. D. McKinny Speaks Of Mosquito Control

There seems to be some misunderstanding on the part of some of the people as to mosquito control in connection with the dread dengue fever. It is easily realized that to gain a wide span of all mosquito control would involve much more time, labor and expense than this Project allows. The main species of mosquito and mosquito larvae that we are concerned with is known as "Aedes Egypti," or dengue fever relayer. While we realize how fine it would be to be able to extinguish all the relatives of the Aedes Egypti we also are made to realize the impossibility of such an undertaking at this time in connection with this work. It is hoped that through cooperation with our fellow workers and citizens to be able to gain control over this species of mosquito, thereby halting any further advancement toward an epidemic of dengue fever.

Funds provided by the Alabama Relief Administration are making this drive available. There have been no cases reported in this county of dengue fever, but several cases have been reported around Birmingham.

We would like to impress upon each resident of Chilton County that unless full cooperation by each of them is given that the efforts of the field workers and each person connected with the project will be wasted.

It would be quite wise for each householder to inspect his premises for water standing in artificial containers such as cans, milk bottles, etc. This type of mosquito generally breeds in places of this type and do not go more than a few hundred feet from their breeding place.

Dengue fever is spread by the same species of mosquito which carries yellow fever. This is said to be the time of year most suitable for breeding. Reports from other sections are that dengue fever is sweeping westward over the country and that only by combined efforts can we hope to prevent an epidemic through our section.

It is said that this disease lasts about two weeks and that the symptoms are violent aches and pains throughout the body accompanied by nausea, headache and sometimes skin eruptions.

Again we insist that householders prepare that broken screen we have been putting off from one time to the next, look out for those old shoes, tin cans, etc. that hold water and let's get in line with our State Health Department and Alabama Relief Administration and keep down a dreadful epidemic of dengue fever.

G. D. McKINNY,
Supervisor of Project.

State Farmers Will Grow More Mules

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama farmers are manifesting more interest in the breeding of mares and the growing of mules than at any time in recent years. This is indicated by reports reaching here from county agricultural agents over the state, showing that over 1,200 brood mares have been shipped into the state for breeding purposes during the past year. They also report that others are arriving in the state each month.

Buy Abruzzi Rye In The South, Is Advice

Auburn, Ala.—Buyers of Abruzzi rye are advised by the United States Department of Agriculture to purchase seed, if possible, from the territory where the seed are commonly grown—in the southeastern states.

"Farmers should insist on assurance as to the purity of variety and should refuse seed not completely labeled," warns the department. "It is wise to be especially cautious of seed offered at abnormally low prices. Buyers should keep all records and correspondence pertaining to the seed offered."

Poor Tires May Ruin Holiday If Not Replaced

Changing Tires On Highway Is Hazard As Well As Big Inconvenience, Says Dealer

A lot of otherwise careful motorists are going to have their holiday automobile trips runined by having to change tires, in the opinion of Dief's Service Station, local dealer for The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

"Holiday trips are planned and, the day before, the motorist takes his car to the filling station, has the tank filled with gasoline, the oil checked, the battery looked after and tires inflated with proper air pressure.

"However, just putting air in the tires is not enough in many cases. Motorists will start out on their holiday trip on tires that are worn thin—and a double hazard immediately presents itself. Of course, many folks drive a little faster on a trip of this sort in order to reach the destination; and heat, being the enemy of tire life, often takes its toll in the form of a blowout, especially when the roads are hot and dry. Or, if the roads are wet and slippery, danger of skidding is great on tires worn thin and smooth.

"The best insurance against trouble when tires are worn thin and smooth is new tires, tires with traction in the center of the tread, such as possessed by the new Goodyear G-3. The G-3 gives 43 per cent more non-skid mileage, has two pounds more rubber in the tread and has a wider, flatter tread, giving it greater contach with the road," Mr. Dief concluded.

THE WOLF IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING

WHEN any company or any person begins advising people to drop their Burial Protection in order to try to find something better, we are reminded of the proverbial "Wolf in Sheep's Clothing." For that matter, any person who advises people to drop ANY protection with any licensed company is a "Wolf in Sheep's Clothing."

Investigation has taught us that The Wolf's advices not given out of an honest desire to help the people. On the contrary, it is prompted by his own selfishness, greed, avarice and envy. The Wolf cannot help the people with destructive advice. The Wolf expects to profit by advising that fathers drop their Burial Certificates even though his profit would be gained at the expense of a widow and her defenseless children. But The Wolf does not mind this. His motive is personal gain at any cost. The satisfaction of Greed.

The Wolf would have you believe that Burial Companies are unsafe and unsound. . . . When as a matter of fact the Brown-Service Funeral Company has for each dollar of liabilities including policyholders reserves, more than one dollar and fifty-nine cents.

The Wolf would have you believe that there is nothing gained by carrying Burial Certificates . . . When as a matter of fact the Brown-Service Funeral Company has saved the families of over 15,000 deceased policyholders more than four million dollars in eight years, or a dollar for each minute that the company has been in business. The Wolf would have you believe that we are fighting the life insurance companies. . . . When as a matter of fact, we recommend that our policyholders retain their Burial Certificate and also carry life insurance policies to defray doctors' bills, hospital and drug bills. We simply contend, and can prove, that our Burial Certificate shields and protects the family from the hard-driven, ruthless bargain of the independent undertaker and his obsolete methods.

HUNDREDS who read this advertisement will be reminded of the unfortunate time in former years when the death of a loved one forced them to visit the old-style funeral home. They will remember the methods then used and that they were forced to spend hundreds of their hard-earned dollars for a funeral that may now be obtained by the wisdom and foresight of paying the small premium of 25 cents per week on a Brown-Service Burial Certificate. Hence The Wolf and his unwelcome advice.

Verbena Postmaster May Be Changed Soon

Persons wishing to take the Civil Service Examination which will be given in the near future for the purpose of selecting a postmaster at Verbena must make application before September 14, according to information from the United States Civil Service Commisson.

The Verbena offce is a fourth class office and the compensation to the postmaster during last year was $1100. The examinations will be given at Clanton, according to the announcement.

Following are some of the rules and regulations for making application for examination:

Applicants must have reached their twenty-first birthday but not their sixty-fifth birthday on the date of the close of receipt of applications.

Applicants must reside within the territory supplied by the post office for which the examination is announced.

The examination is open to all citizens of the United States who can comply with the requirements.

Application blanks, Form 9, and full information concerning the requirements of the examination can be secured from the postmaster at the place of vacancy or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Applications must be properly executed and on file with the Commission at Washington, D. C., prior to the hour of closing business on the date specified at the head of this announcement.

DEVAUGHN WILL HAVE CONCERT AT VERBENA FRI. NIGHT

As the closing exercises of his singing school at Chestnut Creek church, Prof. W. M. Devaughn will present his pupils in a concert at Verbena High school building on Friday night of this week. The hour to begin is 8 o'clock sharp, and the program will last for one and a half to two hours. Chorus singing, quartets, octettes, trios, duets and solos will be featured on the program. Prof. Devaughn says: "I will have my quartet from Sylacauga, also a duet from there. If the folks want to hear some real singing, come to Verbena Friday night of this week, and they will not be disappointed."

Prof. Devaughn concluded to have this concert at Verbena, on account of the spacious auditorium and the large stage. He extends an invitation to his friends to attend this concert. The admission charge will be small.

C.C.H.S. To Open Doors 20th Consecutive Year

—o—

Next Monday morning at 8 o'clock, September 3, will mark the beginning of another school year in Chilton County High School. It will not be a formal occasion because it is not the time for it. The main thing every student and faculty member is concerned with, is scheduling his or her work, checking up all irregularities, and getting everything thoroughly organized for the new year. When the school gets started and all get settled down to work, something of the type of work being done will be presented in the form of graphs, charts, maps and other drawings put on the various bulletin boards in the class rooms and corridors, and at this time every parent will be invited to visit the school and observe what we are doing. We really haven't anything to show you the first day.

Below will be found a list of the faculty and what each will teach:

J. B. Varnell, A.B. Howard College, science. J. T. Searcy, Jr., A.B. University of Alabama, mathematics and coach. Miss Frances Gulledge, A.B. Judson College, English in H.S. Dept. Miss Margaret Kendrick, A.B. Womans College, languages. Miss Sarah Colley holds the A.B. Degree from Judson College, and will teach junior high work.

The following are teachers who have not been with us before:

G. G. Williams, A.B. Howard College, manual arts and junior high occupations. Murphy Bratton, A.B. University of Alabama, history. Miss Virginia Cook, whose home is at Roanoke, is a vocationally trained home economics graduate from Alabama College with the A.B. Degree. Miss Alice Brooks is from Andalusia, and recently received the A.B. Degree from the University of Alabama. Miss Brooks will have charge of junior high work.

This is the first time every teacher on the faculty is a full four-year college graduate. We feel justly proud of the preparation of each faculty member. Each teacher will also teach the courses in which he majored in college.

We want to take this time to thank very warmly the parents and interested citizens of Clanton and surrounding community for their splendid cooperation and support in the past and assure you, especially the High School P.-T. A. that we shall strive everlastingly to do our very best to have a good school and not disappoint you nor your children whom you have entrusted in our care.

Ginners Cooperate In Saving Good Seed

—o—

Auburn, Ala.—Practically all Alabama ginners will glady cooperate with county agents, vocational teachers, and farmers in conducting gin days. "The ginners have in the past been one of the most cooperative groups in the State," said Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the Alabama Extension Service.

"There are groups of farmers all over the state with good varieties of cotton seed who should by all means arrange for gin days in order to keep their seed pure," he added.

Farmers interested in keeping their cotton varieties pure are advised to get in touch with their county agent or vocational teacher who will assist in arranging with the ginner for special gin days.

HOME COMING AND SINGING AT MACEDONIA LAST SUNDAY

The home coming service and singing at old Macedonia in Beat 11 last Sunday was a grand success. About 500 people attended. The morning was devoted to some singing and at 11 o'clock a sermon was preached by the Rev. Lindsey Smith of Weogufka.

A downpour of rain slightly interfered about noon, but the folks managed to find shelter in their cars and in the school house. Services were resumed about 2 o'clock, and the afternoon was taken up in singing. Virgil Smith acted as chairman.

Those directing in the afternoon were: A. O. Boswell, G. C. Powell, Lee Grant, Mrs. Sam Jones, S. L. Baker, Harry Parker, Miss Louise Parker, Miss Mary Will Smith, Miss Mae Francis Bruce, J. E. Miner, Mrs. L. F. Cleckler, Miss Lille Mae Weldon, Miss Ludelia Cleckler, Clem Billingsey.Two quartete were arranged during the afternoon. A special feature of the singing was the directing of a song by little Dovard Miner, the six-year-old son of Mr. Johnnie Miner.

The home coming service and singing will be made an annual affair at Macedonia, and in the future will be held the first Sunday in August. Also the announcement was made that a young preacher of Lomax, Ernest Jones will preach at Macedonia the third Sunday in September at 11 o'clock.

The chairman reports that some song books were lost during the day. Those who through mistake carried away somebody else's book will please return them to the owner or leave same at The Union-Banner office.

Mr. Sfith wishes to extend his thanks to all who helped him make the day the success that it was.

Children Free Opening Day Of Ala. State Fair

Birmingham, Ala.—When the Alabama State Fair opens in Birmingham, Monday, September 24, it will be a red letter day in the life of juvenile America, insofar as the kids of Alabama are concerned. The gates are to be thrown open absolutely free of charge to every school child in Alabama on opening day and all day long and until six o'clock that evening, President R. A. Brown and Manager P. T. Strieder of the Alaama State Fair are to play hosts to the school children of Alabama. What a day!

Announcement has just been made by the State Fair management that special programs are being arranged throughout Monday for the juveniles and every possible thing will be done to see that the kids have the biggest time of their lives. Among some of the stunts being arranged for their entertainment will be a special grand, free daylight fireworks display and a program given by the free act army of entertainers in front of the grand stand, arranged especially for the youngsters.

This will undoubtedly start the Alabama State Fair off on one of the biggest weeks in exposition history in Alabama. Every building in the grounds has been rebuilt even down to the foundations themselves. Every building on the Fair ground has been repainted in an aluminum motif. Things are rapidly taking shape now that the army of carpenters, construction men, electrical workers and painters have labored unceasingly throughout the summer. And, when the gates swing open for the kids, Monday morning, September 24, practically a new fair, isofar as physical equipment is concerned, will greet the thousands upon thousands of children who stream through the gates.

Various and sundry features will go into the coming Alabama State Fair to make it the biggest, the best and the most enjoyable ever held in Alabama. In the first place, dare devil automobile race drivers from all over America will hold a two day session in Birmingham this year, instead of the usual races the last day of the Fair. A greater galaxy of free act artists than ever before have ben booked for the acts in front of the grandstands. By far the most glittering array of fireworks in the history of what was formerly an annual event has been arranged for and a mid-way attraction that is second to none has been booked. The Royal American Shows, a thirty car outfit playing to the biggest fairs in America, will be in Birmingham all week to furnish the mid-way attractions.

Canary show has been arranged, better county agricultural exhibits than ever before have been arranged for, the last word in better sculpture has been assured, free acts never before seen in this country have been signed, two days of dare devil automobile racing have been scheduled, a wonderful aquarium exhibit is now an assured fact, a rabbit show, the likes of which Alabama has never seen, is even now in the making.

Truly, all roads will lead to Birmingham, starting the week of September 24, and with such a stupendous show now a reality it is a foregone conclusion that the crowd records for all time will topple. Prognosticators are stating that this year's Alabama State Fair will draw more people to Birmingham than any of its predecessors.

Farm Facts

The entire country will produce the smallest corn crop in many years, but present indications are that Alabama farmers will grow one of the largest in recent years.

A proposal has been made by mid-western farmers that hides of cattle killed under the Federal Government's drought relief program be kept off the market until they reach a price of nine cents a pound.

Never before in the weather history of the United States has so little rain fallen over so wide a territory throughout the entire growing season as this year.

The meat packing industry of the United States has market about 8 per cent more meat so far in 1934 than in the corresponding period last year, and has paid producers $65,000,000, or 14 per cent more, for their livestock in the first six months of 1933.

The Alabama relief administration, Montgomery, reports that authority has been granted the administration by Washington authorities to contract with farmers for waste hay which will be cut by relief workers and fed to drought cattle now being pastured in the state. The hay will be taken out of ditches and in fields which the farmers for some reason cannot cut.

Auto Parts In Colored Packages, New Vogue

At first blush the notion seems as incongruous as that of a baseball bat tied with pink ribbon, or a cantilever bridge wrapped in cellophane.

But the idea is far from incongruous—whether in an aesthetic or practical sense—as the experiences of the Ford Motor Company, which is pioneering it among automobile manufacturers, amply attests.

By supplying its dealers with parts and accessories in individual cartons of lithographed cardboard, labeled, numbered and colored for the ready identification of the contents the Ford company has achieved, among other, these considerable results:

Assured the purchaser that he is receiving genuine Ford parts, clean and untarnished, and effectively safeguarded him—and his clothing and car-upholstery—against the marring contact of greasy metals.

Changed the average service stockroom from a place of dark and dirty bins and shelves into an attractive display room.

Enabled the dealer to make quick and accurate inventory of his stock and artistic arrangements of showcases and windows, with a consequent increase in the sales of parts and accessories.

Greatly facilitated the handling, shipping and stock ing of parts and accessories.

The cardboard cartons employed as containers for Ford parts vary in size from the cubic-inch box that holds a float needle valve, to the cubic-foot box that holds a head lamp assembly. The identifying color - combinations are based on a "color chart," prepared by Ford artists so that, whatever their juxtaposition, they are pleasing to the eye.

The packaged-parts idea, probably in time, will be adopted by all motor companies and the unsightly parts bins of the old garage stockroom become as outmoded as the cracker barrel of the old-time country general store.

BUILDING PROGRAM

Lee Smith stated that final details for the loan are being worked out, and bids will probably be asked for within a short time.

Work is well underway on the paving of the section of the Clanton-Selma highway; and an effort is underway to secure five miles of paving on this road. Judge Reynolds stated in a special meeting of the Commissioners Court Monday morning that application has been made with Gov. B. M. Miller for funds from the federal appropriation to Alabama to construct five miles of hard-surfaced road on this project.

STRIKES NOT AFFECTING LOCAL MILL

Machines Humming Even On Labor Day At Clanton Cotton Mill

Despite the fact that approximately 650,000 fellow textile workers throughout the nation were scheduled to "walk out" and leave their machines idle in the nation-wide textile strike, the 200 employes of the Alabama Mills in Clanton were on the job Monday and apparently taking no interest in the strike activities.

Although it was Labor Day, the machines were humming and workers rushed about their tasks in much the same manner that marks the every day activities of the cotton mill. Only bulging pockets and furtive glances toward the entrance indicated the possible tenseness housed in the two-story brick structure.

Rumors among the employes were that almost every man was armed and ready to protect their rights and the Alabama Mills property. Many workers voiced the desire to be let alone and be allowed to go about their work. Several special deputies sheriff were on guard Monday and Monday night, and it was understood that the forces were to be doubled Tuesday as a precaution against outside interference.

Unless there is outside interference or outside influences brought to bear there is little liklihood of any trouble at the local mills was the expressed opinion of the officials. A petition circulated recently among the workers to determine their desires regarding continuing work was signed by all but one or two of the 200 employes. Many of the workers have asked that they be allowed to continue their work without molestation from outside elements.

A cargo of machine guns and tear gas bombs were added to the protection that has been thrown about the mill property Tuesday night, according to a statemest from some of the employes of the mill.

JACK DAVIS IS NOW WITH ALRED DRUG COMPANY

Many friends and patrons of Alred Drug Company were being pleasantly greeted by a new man last Saturday. Mr. Jack Davis, formerly of Greenville, Ala., is now connected with this popular drug store on Main Street, according to J. Htnce Alred, proprietor.

Mr. Davis is a registered pharmacist with years of experience in this line of work, and comes to Clanton highly recommended by his friends in Greenville. He states that his first impression of Clanton is very pleasant and that he wants to meet the people here that he may be able to better serve them.

He and his family have moved into the house formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Stapp. We extend to Mr. and Mrs. Davis and children a warm welcome to Clanton and Chilton County.

Spigener Funeral Home Employs New Manager

W. N. Cope has been named manager of the Spigener Funeral Home in Clanton. Mr. Cope is formerly of Brundidge, Alabama, and has been engaged in his profession for several years.

He stated that he is exceptionally pleased with his first week in Chilton County and expressed a desire to meet as many of the county's citizens as possible.

Mr. Cope stated that he will remove his family to Clanton at an early date.

THE LEADER AND BEN'S WILL BE CLOSED ALL DAY MONDAY

The operators of The Leader and Ben's have announced that these establishments will be closed all day Monday in observance of a religious holiday. They invite customers to make necessary purchases during the week end.

In this issue of the News will be found an attractive advertisement from The Leader, featuring many items of fall merchandise at prices that are astoundingly low. Mr. Lande urges all of his customers to visit The Leader early and make selection of fall and winter merchandise before this stock is depleted.

CURTIS BILLINGSLEY ATTENDS TEXACO SCHOOL, MONTGOMERY

Curtis Billingsley, manager of the Billingsley Service Station, one of Clanton's most popular gasoline emporiums, is attending the Texaco school in Montgomery this week.

Mr. Billingsley is a wide-awake young business man and the grasping of this opportunity to become better acquainted with his merchandise, thus rendering a greater service to his customers, is in keeping with the business policies heretofore practiced by this establishment.

Youth Held On $300 Bail In Negro's Death

L. Foshee, youth charged with the fatal cutting of Henry Garrett, 18-year-old negro, at Thorsby Saturday afternoon, was released on a $300 bond Sunday following the death of the negro.

Witnesses told Coroner J. Mell Martin and Sheriff W. H. Gillespie, who investigated the affair, that the fight started when the negro cursed young Foshee because he accidentally threw a cigarette stub near where the negro was sitting on the curb.

Foshee was said to have slashed the negro with a knife, almost severing his right arm. He was rushed to the Central Alabama Hospital in a Martin & Sons ambulance, where he died early Sunday from loss of blood.

EDWARDS HAS NOT ASKED FOR PRELIMINARY

Will Be Held To Await The Action Of Grand Jury September 17th

No preliminary hearing has been asked for Lawrence Edwards, charged with the fatal shooting of his brother-in-law, Lewis B. Bankston, last Wednesday afternoon, according to G. C. Walker, county solicitor.

Unless preliminary hearing is requested Mr. Walker said, Edwards will be held in jail awaiting action of the grand jury which will convene Monday, September 17.

Edwards is allegel to have shot young Bankston during a family quarrel at the Edwards home last Wednesday shortly after noon. Officers stated that Edwards and his wife, who is Bankston's sister, have been separated for some time, but had been reconciled shortly before the shooting. Bankston died almost instantly from a 12-gauge shot gun wound below the right eye.

When he surrendered to Sheriff W. H. Gillespie about thirty minutes after the shooting, Edwards stated that the youth was advancing toward him with a knife and that he shot him in self-defense, but Coroner J. Mell Martin said that when he investigated the case he found that Bankston's knife was in his pocket closed.

Mrs. Edwards stated to Coroner Martin and Sheriff Gillespie that her brother had walked on to the porch of her home and asked her husband to "let him see the baby once more." Her husband, she said, leveled a shot gun at young Bankston, who threw up his hands and began pleading for him not to shoot. Bankston fell forward on the porch with his hands by his side.

Funeral services for Bankston were held Thursday afternoon from the Chestnut Creek Baptist church, Cooper, with the Rev. Hughes officiating. Burial was in the churchyard cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

POPULARITY BABY CONTEST IS IN PROGRESS

First, Second And Third Places Will Be Named; To Raise Funds

The honor of being Clanton's most popular baby will soon be bestowed upon some lucky youngster.

Selection of the baby to wear this title will be made through a Baby Popularity Contest, which is being conducted under the auspices of the Missionary Circle Number Two of the Clanton Methodist Church.

With the contest underway only three days, forty babies were competing for the honor Tuesday night. Each baby entered must have a sponsor who solicits votes for her baby at one cent each and every Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock these sponsors are to meet at Calloway Drug Company to tabulate the votes. The contest will close the afternoon of September 18 and the awards will be made at the presentation of "Black-Eyed Susan" at the Chilton County High School the evening of the 18th.

First, second and third selections are to be made, it has been explained. Funds collected through this contest are to be added to the treasury of the Circle.

All mothers wishing to enter their babies are urged to see some member of the Circle and select a sponsor for the baby.

CHANGE WILL BE MADE IN MAIL ROUTES

E. W. Miller Transferred To Jemison Route Effective November 1st

Considerable change in the rural mail carrier service in this section is scheduled to take place after November 1, according to a statement this week from Acting Postmaster Billy Smith.

Because of the retirement of two carriers on the Jemison routes, E. L. Glasscock and A. H. Glasscock, both of whom have served for the past thirty years, E. W. Miller, carrier on Clanton route 4, will be transferred to Jemison.

After November 1, only two routes will serve the Jemison community. The third route will be divided between Mr. Miller and E. B. Langston, who is now a carrier at Jemison.

D. D. Easterling, who is now carrying Clanton route 6, will be transferred to Mr. Miller's route and route 6 will be combined with route 2 which is carried by John Armstrong. Route 7, which is carried by B. J. Sessions, will become route 6 after the change. Clanton will have only six routes instead of seven as heretofore.

Both of the Messers. Glasscocks have served the postal department as rural carriers for thirty years and are being retired in recognition of their faithful services for this number of years. E. W. Miller and D. D. Easterling, who are playing a major role in their replacement, have been with the service for more than twenty-five years.

Smith Succeeds Cone As Chilton Director

Floyd Smith, of Prattville, has been named successor to W. A. Cone as works director of Chilton County, in charge of the local FERA works program. Mr. Smith assumed his duties here Monday when Mr. Cone reported to Montgomery, to become supervisor over ten counties.

Both Mr. Smith and Mr. Cone appeared before the Commissioners Court at the regular meeting Monday morning. Mr. Cone expressed appreciation for the cooperation the county has given him during his administration and asked that Mr. Smith be given the same cooperation. Both men are natives of Autauga County.

Mr. Smith has been connected with the administration of the CWA and FERA in Autauga County since the beginning of the program last fall and is thoroughly familiar with the program in every way. He declared that it will be his ambition to render the greatest possible service to the county during his administration as works director of Chilton County.

REESE MULLINS TO GO TO EUFAULA, ALA., TO WORK

Reese Mullins, popular young man of Clanton, will soon be engaged in the distribution of Woco Pep products in the Eufaula territory, where he will be assistant to his brother, Burton Mullins, district agent for the Wofford Oil Company products.

Young Mullins is one of the most widely-known and best liked young men in Clanton and his numerous friends here will wish him the greatest success in his new undertaking.

For several months, Mr. Mullins has been connected with the administration of the local CWA and FERA and in this capacity he has been quite an addition to the staff of workers.

He will leave Clanton to assume his new positon Saturday.

ESCAPED INMATE OF BRYCE HOSPITAL CAUGHT HERE

John Weams, an escaped inmate of the Bryce Hospital, Tuscaloosa, was captured here last Saturday and returned Sunday by L. C. Reynolds to the hospital.

When the man in conversation with local officials Saturday could not tell his name, Judge Reynolds called Bryce Hospital and found that he had escaped from there.

Hunters Of Migratory Birds Must Buy Stamp

The recently issued Migratory Bird Stamps are now on sale at the Clanton Postoffice, Billy Smith, acting postmaster, announced Monday. All hunters above the age of 16 who expect to hunt any migratory birds are expected to purchase these stamps, he said.

Funds collected from the sale of the stamps, priced at one dollar each, will be used in purchasing breeding places for migratory birds in an effort to prevent their extinction. Each hunter must purchase a stamp and attach it to a card which bears the postoffice stamp and the signature of the postmaster issuing it.

The possession of these stamps does not excuse the hunter from complying with all federal and state hunting restrictions, it was explained.

SIX SLAYINGS TO FACE GRAND JURY SEPT. 17

Two Of Six Accused Are Still Being Held In Jail Without Bond

The Chilton County grand jury, when it convenes September 17, will have six slayings to investigate, and reports to make of charges against the following accused persons:

Lawrence Edwards, L. Foshee, Arthur Varden, William Henderson, Joe Gray, and Walter Quarles, negro.

Foshee is charged with the slaying of Henry Garrett, negro, at Thorsby last Saturday afternoon and is at liberty under a $300 bond; Varden is alleged to have stabbed to death Charlie Glass during a fight at the Mineral Springs voting place on last election day; Henderson is charged with the fatal shooting of his brother, Charlie Henderson, on the same afternoon as the Glass killing; Joe Gray will face charges for the slaying of his friend, Harvey Chandler, and Walter Quarles, negro, is alleged to have killed R. B. Wright, another negro, by crashing an axe into his head.

The accused are all at liberty under bond except Edwards and Henderson.

Ezell Ends Twelfth Year In Clanton

Last Sunday marked the end of twelve years of faithful and fruitful service to the Baptist church and Clanton, for Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Ezell.

During these twelve years Dr. and Mrs. Ezell have endeared themselves to thousands of people who have found in this Christian couple, faith, love and hope. Mrs. Ezell has been most outstanding in her work in religious and civic activites. Their presence in the county has meant much.

Next Sunday, Dr. Ezell will begin his thirteenth year as pastor of the Clanton Baptist church. He is anxious to see every member of the church present.

Pilot Club Members Enjoy Moonlight Picnic

One of the outstanding social events of recent weeks in Clanton was the moonlight picnic at the beautiful Thompson home, near Mineral Springs, recently when members of the Clanton Pilot Club were the guests of Miss Lillian Thompson.

Those attending this delightful function gathered at the home at an early hour and enjoyed various outdoor activities. Considerable discussion was given to future club activities and the consensus was for bigger and better Pilot Club programs during the coming months.

A final touch to the beauty of the scenery of the Chilton County mountains was afforded by lighting several bonfires around the rim of the hillside, placing the party in a natural arena. The membership of the club joined in the singing of several popular songs, following which was served a delightful course of sandwiches and drinks.

Commissioners Make Statement Regarding Gasoline Question

COMMISSIONERS TAKE UP GAS TAX QUESTION

Several Resolutions Read With Only One Being Adopted

Discussion of the alleged gasoline shortage and the use of County gasoline in private automobiles, resulting in the State Tax Commission filing a claim against the County for $11,654.65, occupied most of the time at the regular meeting of the Commissioners Court Monday.

Judge L. H. Reynolds read several resolutions which he had drawn up relative to changing the methods of handling the County's gasoline, but only one was endorsel by the Commissioners Court in the session Monday, the others being passed over for more mature consideration.

A resolution was passed calling for an investigation in the County of the alleged charges that gasoline has been used in private automobiles. Each of the commissioners stated that if any County gasoline has been used for private purposes that it has been without their knowledge.

The resolution calling for an investigation reads as follows:

"WHEREAS, considerable criticism has been directed toward the County's use of gasoline and whereas, it has been charged that the County's gasoline was being used for private purposes and that it is charged the County's gasoline is being used in private cars and that the County's trucks are being used for private purposes, and,

"WHEREAS, the parties who are being charged with the responsibility of handling the County's gasoline ought to have a public, open and fair hearing,

"THEREFORE, be it resolved by the Commissioners Court that we call a meeting at the Court House on——— and request all parties who have made charges against the handling of the County's gasoline or who know of any irregularity in the handling of the County's gasoline in the County come before the Court at——— and make such charges known to the Commissioners Court in open meeting."

Dates were not set for the proposed meeting at the court house, however, it is understood that it is to be at an early date.

Other suggestions made by Judge Reynolds were:

"WHEREAS, considerable criticism has been directed toward the County's use of gasoline and whereas, it has been charged that the County's gasoline is being used in private cars and that

STATE RECEIVED A BIG SHARE OF GOV'T MONIES

Governor Issues Figures To Show That "New Deal" Showered State

Few persons in Alabama could even hazard an estimate of the extent to which the State has shared in the distribution of government funds in the new deal programs which have been promoted by the national Democratic Administration in its battle against the depression.

Gov. B. M. Miller recently released figures which show that the State of Alabama has shared in the expenditure of the huge sums which have been expended by the administration in its efforts to restore this country to prosperity to the extent of $40,291,337.00.

These figures were compiled by Comptroller J. H. Hard, Jr., and include all the federal funds that have been available to Alabama in the form of appropriations of every nature. Governor Miller sent a copy of these figures to every state senator and representative that they might have first hand information regarding the expenditure of federal monies in Alabama.

Statistics indicate that $2,266,909.00 were expended for education in the state. Many schools would have been closed with incomplete terms had it not been for federal aid; for highways $15,783,975.00; for general relief, $22,200, 453.00.

Following is a copy of Governor Miller's letter to the various senators and

Deny Any Knowledge Of Gasoline Being Put In Private Cars

CITE DATES BEFORE THEY TOOK OFFICE

Denying any knowledge of the misuse of the County gasoline, the following statement was issued last Monday and is signed by each of the four commissioners:

To the People of Chilton County:

By reason of the publicity given, apparently for political purposes, to the claim filed by the State Gas Department against Chilton County on August 17, 1934, your county commissioners desire to make the following statement

At the time this examination was made in the office of the Judge of Probate, at his request, the examiner who examined the delivery tickets of the gasoline truck driver dil not have in his possession nor presented to him the delivery tickets for the months of May, June, July, August, September and October, 1933 (the period when I P. Kennedy was clerk of the commissioners court).

We are having signed duplicate copies of delivery tickets for this period presented to the State Gas Tax Department, which, when included in the report, will materially change the claim of the Tax Commission in respect to alleged shortage of county gasoine.

We believe the records and the examination, when properly and fully completed, will show that all gasoline not used in road machinery and county-owned trucks, was used to supply employees of the roads of Chilton County in going to and from their work on road duty. This practice and use of county gasoline was in effect and has been in effect for a number of years. This practice was also known to Judge Reynolds prior to the Republican primary on June 12, this year.

The chairman of our court, Judge Reynolds, in view of his own public statement, only saw fit to report this use of county gasoline to Mr. Tucker of the State Gas Tax Department since the Republican primary of June 12, 1934. Of this claim filed by the State Tax Commission, at the instigation of Judge Reynolds, the period from February 1, 1932 to November 1, 1932, this claim shows 56,533 gallons of gasoline withdrawn, on which the State claims tax. The people will recall that this period was during the administration of the old Commissioners, Vinson and Burnett, as we did not assume our duties until January 1, 1933.

The court has authorized presenting of records to the State Gas Tax Department of gasoline consumed by the county during May, June, July, August, September and October, 1933, which records we are advised were not available to the examiner at the time examination was made. The gas truck driver has signed, we are advised, duplicate copies of all delivery tickets made, and the same will be presented to the examiner.

We trust that the people of the county will withold their opinion until all charges can be duly investigated, and that after a complete examination is made by the State Gas Tax Department, when this is done we feel confident of the results.

COM. COURT HELP SCHOOLS IN COUNTY WITH DONATIONS

Two Chilton County public schools were the recipients of aid from the Commissioners Court at the regular meeting this week. Flint Hill school was given a donation of $25 for the purpose of repairing and purchasing new equipment, and the New Cedron School was given $100 to repair the building, which is said to be in terribly poor condition.

Several persons from both communities appeared before the Court and requested help for these schools, declaring that the coming term of school will be greatly handicapped without these improvements.

MISS DORRIS LAWRENCE IS NOW WORKING IN FAYETTE, ALA.

Miss Dorris Lawrence, popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lawrence, of Clanton, is working in Fayette, Ala- where she is engaged as a saleslady for the Chicago Sales Company, operated by Reedy Taylor, former Clanton business man.

Miss Lawrence reports that she is well pleased with her work in that city and invites her friends in this section to visit her at her new home.

Cutting The Weeds

Quite a bit of money has been spent recently in fighting the mosquito which carries dengue fever. Iit has been shown that this particular mosquito breeds mostly in old tin cans, cups, broken bottles, etc., rather than in naturally formed pools. We know of no more likely place for such containers of stagnant water than a weed patch on a vacant lot, which thought brings us to the point of this editorial effort.

There are a number of rank weed patches here and there about Clanton that are, to say the least, unsightly. It would not take a great deal of effort to clean these up. Apparently there is no scarcity of persons who would like to get a few days work. Property values in a neatly kept town are higher, it is a more pleasant place to live, and cleanliness is an aid to better health conditions. So, why not a drive to clean up all the weed patches in Clanton in the next few days?

A Practical Way To Create Employment

A large number of prominent industrialists, along with an army of public officials and economists, are of the opinion that stimulated residental construction offers the best chance of accelerating the pace of recovery.

Construction is a local industry. The money that is spent goes first to local people—to workers, contractors, building supply houses. Every business in the community is benefited, from the corner grocery to the electric utility. Every pocketbook feels the fattening effect of construction dollars

The great drive to boom construction is getting underway now. Private capital that has been tied up in unproductive channels is going to work. A vast need for housing exists, in both urban and rural localities—there has never been so great a potential demand for better and more modern homes.

So far as the individual citizen is concerned, he is now being offered an unprecedented opportunity to build on extremely favorable terms. Almost all the costs involved —from paint to interest charges—are well under previous levels. It is the part of wisdom to make the fullest possible use of that opportunity.

The Fire Microbe

If fires were caused, as is disease, by a microbe, the entire resources of science would be given to finding a cure for them. The waste of life and materials resulting from fire would be regarded as intolerable, and the physician discovering the cure would go down in history with the great healers of all time.

As a matter of fact, fire is caused by a mental microbe —though it can't be imprisoned in a test-tube. The microbe's name is Carelessness. It dwells in the human mind—and the fact that millions of people allow it free play, making no conscious attempt to control it, is reason for an utter, indefensible fire waste of 10,000 lives and $500,000,000 worth of property annually.

Fire can be prevented in a majority of cases. A little thought, a little knowledge—in other words, a little ordinary care—will do the job. Any fire marshal will be glad to tell you about the common fire hazards and how to eliminate them. The fire insurance industry publishes booklets and carries on an unremitting war against fire, and it too will give you the mental ammunition you need. Faulty furnaces—improper storage of inflammables—uncut grass—improper electric work—such little things as these are the friends of the fire-microbe, and his ally in his work of destruction.

Learn how to prevent fire—only by doing that can you discharge a definite duty you owe your community, your neighbors, your family. Every fire starts because some indivdual was careless, and prevention of fire is largely an individual matter. If you and other citizens will take the little time that is necessary to learn the importance of care in relation to fire, a great problem will soon be solved.

Turn Our Eyes Back

In a recent address celebrating the 151st anniversary of General Simon Bolivar, the great South American patriot, John L. Merrill, President of the Pan American Society, said:

"In this day of selfish men and selfish politicains . . . we are apt to become despondent and our simple American faith is apt to be shaken. It is fitting, therefore, that once in a while we turn our faces back to the glorious, matchless figures of our Washington and our Bolivar, for a new inspiration."

Never was it more important that we look backward for that inspiration than in these discordant times. Washington and Bolivar knew the true meaning of patriotism —patriotism that puts country above self, and the interests of the great masses of people above personal ambition and vanity. They threw off the chains of tyranny, and established freedom—freedom of thought, of action, of belief. They too looked to the past—as we should look now—and from the lessons it produced they built for the present and the future.

Cooperation Under NRA

Early in the work of the NRA it was declared that a main objective of the recovery program would be the restoration of balance in American economic life. The degree of progress attained in recovery from the depression may be measured in terms of the achievement of balance as month by month the fundamental work has gone forward.

When the recovery act was approved in June, 1933 the economic world was out of joint, to paraphrase Hamlet, and the NRA was devised to set it right. Agriculture, industry, trade, and commerce, communications, all were out of balance. Whole families were homeless in the shadow of vacant houses—the populace was starving in front of full granaries. This must not be forgotten now.

It was necessary to keep in mind the ideal of restoring balance, as the Herculean task of bringing the business of the entire country under codes of fair competition progressed. There was always a danger that one field of endeavor would be aided at the expense of the others.

The task before NRA has not been lightened—it may even have been rendered greater—now that the problem is one of code revision and consolidation. There is greater need than ever for cooperation among all the elements that go to make up the American populace, that long ill-balanced trio: Capital, labor, and the public. Industry and trade cannot prosper if agriculture is in the death throes and there can be no security for either industry or agriculture if millions are out of jobs.

The first steps toward better days were taken through the cooperation of the business forces of the country in formulating the codes. All cooperative agreements require a certain surrender of individual liberty just as all Governments are based upon compromises in the interests of the greatest good for the majority.

The remaining tasks can be completed only through continued cooperation in the administration of the consolidated codes under the Blue Eagle. On this basis alone can recovery become permanent.

The Textile Strike

Of paramount interest to large numbers of people this week, including many who are not directly connected with the manufacture of cloth, is the nation-wide textile strike. Though we are not sufficiently informed on the subject to judge the merits and demerits of the action, we think the strike is regretable at this time. Strikes have always been a common occurence when the country is coming out of a depression, and to this extent it indicates a strong confidence in better times ahead. Workers are not in the habit of striking when they think operators would be willing to close down indefinitely.

However, there is danger to taking too much for granted. It is true that general conditions are much better than a short time ago, but every person still has a duty to perform in pulling the country back to normalcy, and holding it there. We doubt if this duty can best be done by quitting a job that offers a living wage, when it may easily mean throwing one's family and self on relief. The American people are willing to be taxed to help those who want work and can't get it. They may not be so willing to contribute to the relief of those who are on a strike.

We think no one will object to collective bargaining Nor do we believe anyone will deny that textile workers have been materially helped by NRA. Our observation here has been that hours have been reduced and wages increased. Operators say this has been done as much as the business will stand, which may or may not be the case so far as we know, but it sounds reasonable.

Strikes should be used only as a last resort. Workers might remember that the textile industry was the first to sign under NRA, shortening hours and increasing wages, when it could have held back some months later before signing.

There must undoubtedly be methods of arbitration available to iron out the differences in this case, and it would seem to be the patriotic thing to use these methods. Winter is not far off. Textile workers as well as the rest of us, need jobs. Farmers will not be benefitted in the sale of their cotton with a strike in effect. Taxpayers are not able to take on additional burdens of relief.

So far as we can learn at this time there is little likihood of a strike in the local mill here. Some talk is heard of outside pressure being brought to bear on the workers here, but we trust that such will not be the case

Bankhead For Speaker

The sudden death of Speaker Henry T. Rainey of the national house of representatives robs the administration of one of its vital cogs in the New Deal program. He has rendered a valuable service to the present administration and has a splendid record of achievement through several terms in the national house.

Democratic members of congress next January will decide for the administration the next speaker of the house and the man who must guide the destinies of the administration in that body during the coming few years.

There is probably no better fitted member of the lower house for this important party post than William B. Bankhead, of Alabama. By reason of service, years experience and ability the veteran Alabama member of the house will reflect credit on the South, the party and the nation.

Bankhead has proven his value to the South and his party through his efforts and interest in legislation which directly benefits the masses of people.—LaFayette Sun.

Press Freedom Essential

In commenting on political terrorism in Germany, which is largely made possible by strict censorship of the press, and the insistence of American newspapermen that nothing in a newspaper code in thie United States should interfere with constitutional guarantees of freedom of the press, General Johnson, in a recent statement, said:

"For a long while I thought sincerely that the newspaper insistence on writing into their code a clause saving their constitutional rights was pure surplusages . . .

"But now I see more clearly why these gentlemen were apprehensive."

Absolute freedom of the press is the greatest guarantee the American people have for life, liberty and pursuit of happiness.

D. W. Haskew

I was watching the little lad as he played with his toys on the floor. He asked that I wind up his toy engine and see it run. I did so, winding the spring as long as the key would turn. Then I released the toy on the floor and with much noise it made a race toward the other end of the room. Before it had reached the wall the coil was unwound the strength was all gone and the little engine was dead still. It had to be rewound before any more running was done. That is the way with lots of church members—they only run a short distance after they are wound on the Sabbath. It has been my business for years to wind the heart strings and release church members for service. It is discouraging to see so many engines dead still on the road of life.

The soldiers of Cortez wore hammered iron on their breasts as protection against the arrows of Indians. This iron was very thin and the soldiers suffered much from the arrows penetrating the shield of iron. Their leader ordered that his men place a thick layer of wool between linen cloth and bind this mattress about their bodies for protection. The arrows came as before but they never penetrated the wool and the men were safe. The force of the arrows was lost in the tangle of the wool and the Mexicans could do them no harm. As we go out into the world we may expect the arrows of the enemy to be hurled against us. If we are protected only by a thin covering of righteousness, the arrows of criticism will do us great harm, but if we wear a breastplate of righteousness the force of criticism will shatter as it strikes our standards of right living. Men may revile us and persecute us and say all manner of evil against us, but still we can be exceedingly glad because these things do not get into the heart, and our reward is true and fades not away.

We were gliding along over the water of a beautiful lake. A calm had settled down over land and sea. On looking out towards the shore I could see reflected the trees that covered the hill tops far away. All was calm and the clouds, the hills and the trees along the shore were reflected in the water. I was on that same lake when the wind was blowing and a storm was brewing and the water was rough. Nothing could be seen in the tumbling waves. When our hearts are calm and we have perfect faith and trust in God, heaven is reflected in our very souls, but when we allow ourselves to become agitated and disturbed and fretful because of rolling waves and blowing winds, the world then fails to see heaven in us. Blessed are the peaceful souls of earth for they reflect heaven in their hearts.

It was the latter part of August as I sat on the front porch of a farmer's home. The man of the house looked with pride over the fields that stretched far to the south. He said to me, "Preacher, I have worked hard this year. At first this field was barren. Then under my toil and cultivation it turned green, then a golden color appeared and now if you will look you will see that my field is turning white." Almost as far as the eye could see the cotton was opening and the field was almost like a field of snow. That man had worked and his toil had resulted in covering his field over with whiteness. That is a picture of our toil for the Master. We pulverize human hearts, we cultivate the souls of men, we look out upon the golden harvest and last of all we are permitted to see the fruits of our labor turning into the whiteness of those who are dressed for the Marriage feast in heaven. Is your toil in this field of life such that it will create whiteness when life's toils are all over? Blessed is that one whose toil turns his fields white.

I saw an oak standing by the side of the waters of St. Andrews bay. When this oak was a little bush the Indian whoop could be heard on this shore. Now that oak is large and heavy but it still stands like a patriarch and lifts its head above every storm. Many a storm has lashed that tree, but it has stood erect in the passing of all of them. The storms have made it strong. Strong men are made by opposition. Like the oak and the kite, they grow and go against the wind. Opposition lifts a real man. Chaff scatters before the wind.

CONTROL PINE BEETLE BY DESTROYING LIMBS

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers cutting pine trees for winter wood should be careful to dispose of limbs and knotty cuts, declares Lyle Brown, extension forester, who advises that the southern pine beetle is likely to do great damage if this is not done.

"This small beetle is quite widely distributed over the South and is nearly always present to attack trees that are weakened or freshly cut down," Brown says. "From these they will spread to healthy trees and cause patches of dead pine trees such as are noticed in summer months."

IN MEMORY OF MRS. ALICE STROCK DEASON

Mrs. Alice Strock Deason was born Sept. 30th, 1878, at Verbena, Ala., the youngest of twelve children of W. B. and Susan Price Strock.

Her maternal grandfather Price was one of the first residents of Verbena, as were her mother's relatives, the Rays, among the pioneer Baptist preachers in missionary efforts in Central Alabama.

Early in girlhood she professed faith in Jesus Christ and was baptized into the fellowship of Verbena Baptist church.

Sept. 7th, 1909 she was married to Judge E. B. Deason, a former Probate Judge of Chilton County. Her pastor, Rev. J. W. Partride, officiating.

Two years ago her health failing, she patiently bore her suffering and in cheerful service to those about her, she waited the call which came on Sunday, August 19th, 1934, at her home in Boulder, Colo. Thursday, August 23, in Verbena Baptist church, a former pastor who officiated at burial of her parents, C. J. Bentley, conducted the worship in presence of a crowded house, relatives and friends coming from adjoining neighborhoods.

Mrs. Evelyn Buford, her first music teacher, presided at the organ, the choir made up of former friends, led the praise service, and Mrs. DuBose sang, "Crossing the Bar."

Active pallbearers under direction of Martin & Sons, Clanton, Ala., were: W. A. Willis, C. Fenn Jones, Irby Deramus, Tom Powell, John Deramus and Tom Littlejohn; honorary, H. B. Oliver, Will Kemp, H. T. Pipes, Mack Broadhead, L. F. Gerald, E. E. Upchurch, C. W. Mitchell, J. R. Mullins.

Her body rests in the family lot in Verbena cemetery. Her spirit rests with her God, waiting for the coming of her loved ones.

Surviving: Husband, Judge E. B. Deason, two sons, William and Charles of Boulder, Colo.; one sister, Mrs. M. K. Prescott; five brothers, Jno. A., Wm. H., Judson, Dr. C. S., Prof. S. J., and many nieces and nephews.

—Affectionately, by request, C. J. Bentley.

Kept Taking Cardui Until She Got Rid of the Severe Pains

When Mrs. Ida Hege, of Edinburg, Ind., was in a painful, rundown condition, she took Cardui, with the results she describes below: "I had just been what one might say dragging around, feeling miserable and all out of sorts. I remembered how Cardui helped my aunt. I sent for six bottles of Cardui and when I had taken them, I was much better and stronger. I did not suffer so much pain. I continued taking Cardui until I had taken nine bottles. I do not have the severe pains." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Stars Fell On Alabama

Have you read the book, "Stars Fell On Alabama"? Then you missed a mighty good chance of becoming angry with the writer for some of the things he said about our beautiful Southern girls. But all in all, it is a good book. It plainly as mud shows that the author has undoubtedly spent sometime in the South and is well acquainted with Southern lassies especially. In fáct, I understand he spent almost too much time in Alabama.

An Alabama Reply

And to Miss Alice Billings, society editor of The Birmingham News goes the gold-lined bed-stead for the splendid and well timed comment, or should we say reply, to "Stars Fell on Alabama." And now there is a song by that name. By the way, what the heck does "Stars Fell On Alabama" mean?

All Play, Etc.

All play and no work makes Jack a bad boy, so my great-great-grandmother once or twce told me, or maybe she said it three times, I can't just remember at this time, or perhaps any other time. But what I started out to tell you, or rather sat here and meant to tell you was that you see I am a bit off my kazoop a bit this week and not up to the usual standard of wise-cracking or nut-cracking, as you please. But I've a good alibi for that. The fact remains that I've been attending the Wadesonian Theatre a good many times lately anl they have been showing such good pictures that it has brought out a, or several good points in my vocabulary, or speech, which heretofore I presumed did not exist. Speaking of good pictures, you perhaps noted from the program of the Wadesonian for the past several weeks that some big pictures have been coming here. Take for instance "Eskimo" and "The Wonder Bar" the latter which played in Clanton even before it appeared in the show-conscious city of Montgomery where all's well on Goat Hill.

Speaking Of Goats

Speaking of goats, or rather I spoke of a goat hill which makes me think of an ant hill and other kinds of hills. But ant hills for instance. The little fellows will work and work and work to build up a splendid edifice towering stories high in which they began to store the necessities of life for the winter. It takes weeks and weeks for thousands of the little creatures to slave in building their winter homes to take care of their families and other things. Then somebody comes about and sits down on the hill. Can you blame them for stinging about it a little bit. Or what would you do? I'm asking you.

Whither Did They Go

For some reason or other this week, those jokes did not show up. Whither did they go, if they did go. They must have because they did not come. So what? But I meant to tell you something about goats awhile ago and forgot it. Anyway there is a lot about them whch might remind me of the title of this column. Speaking of sense.

Blowing Bubbles

I had a rich one to tell you folks about this week, but for the life of me, I simply cannot remember the details. It had something to do with bubbles (I hope the typesetter spells that right). And it wasn't about Sally Rand either, but I'll bet you wish it was. But it seems the bubbles bursted. And perhaps they did.

Here They Are

I've just heard what is perhaps the finest method of fighting the devastating bean beetles. The mixture calls for only one ingredient. Take a good quantity of flour given out by the relief agencies. Any agency will do. Simply sprinkle this flour over the bean vines or bushes in good quantities. The beetles will eat the flour, satisfy their appetites, and will not work anymore on the vines but will sit down and wait until you give them more relief flour. But by all means keep feeding them because if you don't they will certainly get busy and at work again.

DR. PEPPER QUARTET TO ATTEND COUNTY CONVENTION

Word has been received from the manager of the Dr. Pepper Quartet of Birmngham that they will attend the Chilton County singing convention to be held at the court house the first Sunday in October. The convention will also sponsor a concert by this quartet on Monday night following the first Sunday, at the court house. Lovers of good singing are urged to bear this in mind.

The election of officers will be attended to at this session of the convention, probably the first thing in the morning. Members of the convention should be prepared for this.

There will be no singing at the court house the fifth Sunday afternoon in September.

ALL DAY SINGING AT ENTERPRISE SCHOOL HOUSE SEPT. 9

There will be an all day singing at Enterprise school house next Sunday, Sept. 9. The old Sacred Harp and Christian Harmony books will be used. Everybody invited to come and help out in the singing.

THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF INSURANCE OF THE STATE OF ALABAMA
FOR THE YEAR ENDING DEC. 31, 1933, READS:

"The State has upon its statute books numerous unsound, unwise provisions of law relating to insurance. The case is the Burial Insurance Law enacted by the Legislature of Alabama during the special session of 1932. This is the most unsound, unwise law that it has ever been my privilege to see!

"The reserve required by this law is almost wholly inadequate to guarantee the completion of the contracts at maturity. If companies operating according to this law respecting reserves comply with this provision, and do no more, failure of such companies is bound to be the ultimate result. And the policyholders who are living at that time will be disappointed and legally defrauded."

The Alabama Funeral Directors Association has always warned the public against Burial Associations and has suggested that they buy Legal Reserve Life Insurance, which is the only safe method of insurance protection.

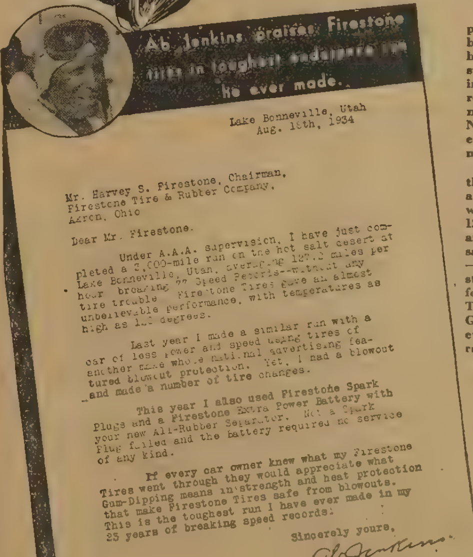
SAFEST TIRES IN THE WORLD!
PRICES REMARKABLY LOW!
Here's PROOF OF SAFETY

TWO BREATH-TAKING ENDURANCE RUNS LAST WEEK ON SAME TRACK—A DRAMATIC COMPARISON OF SAFETY! READ BOTH LETTERS!



Ab Jenkins praises Firestone tires in toughest endurance run he ever made.

Lake Bonneville, Utah
Aug. 1[illegible]th, 1934

Mr. Harvey S. Firestone, Chairman,
Firestone Tire & Rubber Company,
Akron, Ohio

Dear Mr. Firestone:

Under A.A.A. supervision, I have just completed a 3,000-mile run on the hot salt desert at Lake Bonneville, Utah, averaging 127.2 miles per hour breaking 77 Speed Records—without any tire trouble. Firestone Tires gave an almost unbelievable performance, with temperatures as high as 120 degrees.

Last year I made a similar run with a car of less power and speed using tires of another make whose national advertising featured blowout protection. Yet, I had a blowout and made a number of tire changes.

This year I also used Firestone Spark Plugs and a Firestone Extra Power Battery with your new All-Rubber Separator. Not a Spark Plug failed and the battery required no service of any kind.

If every car owner knew what my Firestone Tires went through they would appreciate what Gum-Dipping means in strength and heat protection that make Firestone Tires safe from blowouts. This is the toughest run I have ever made in my 25 years of breaking speed records.

Sincerely yours,
Ab Jenkins

THE Proof of leadership is performance! Many claim it, but Firestone proves it. Never before have tires withstood such severe, continuous, grinding torture, breaking 77 speed records for 3,000 consecutive miles at 127.2 miles per hour. Not a Gum-Dipped cord loosened, not a tread separated, not one blowout.

Hour after hour, on through the scorching heat of the day and inky blackness of the night, with temperatures as high as 120 degrees—breaking record after record for speed, strength, safety and blowout protection—all in a stupendous demonstration of safety performance for the car owners of America. This was made possible by Gum-Dipping, which coats every cord fiber with liquid rubber.

For your next trip have the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store equip your car with Firestone Tires and Spark Plugs, install a Firestone Battery and reline your brakes with Firestone Aquapruf Brake Lining. Protect your life and the lives of your family with the safest tire in the world. Buy them this week before prices go higher.

Lake Bonneville, Utah
Aug. [illegible], 1934

Mr. Harvey S. Firestone, Chairman,
Firestone Tire & Rubber Company,
Akron, Ohio

Dear Mr. Firestone:

I have just finished a 3,000-mile test at Lake Bonneville, Utah, driving a stock car of a leading manufacturer, equipped with tires which a large manufacturer has recently brought out as the newest development in tire construction. I had eleven tire failures and made two precautionary tire changes.

When a right front tire blew out, I was unable to get the car under control for a quarter of a mile, leaving a trail of rubber and fabric on the hot salt beds.

After this experience, I appreciate what a vital part Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have played in my success during the fourteen years I have used them on my racing and personal cars. Without them I know I could never have made the many speed records I have established.

Very truly yours,
Wilbur Shaw

RECOVERY DEPENDS UPON INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY

"There are national perils and emergencies in which individual responsibilities multiply, and this happens to be one of them.

"The real objection of the few enemies of the Blue Eagle goes much deeper than they are willing to admit. They are of an ancient, Tory school of thought. Although we call ourselves a democracy, their idea is that the people must never be trusted to think or act for themselves. Alexander Hamilton said: 'The people are a great beast,' and proposed a system under which all their affairs would be taken care of by the good, the wise, and the great.

"The trouble with that has been that the good, the wise, and the great have fallen down on the job. Education and training have so evened up things that nobody has a monoply on goodness and wisdom any more. Times have changed. The newspapers and the radio and the moving pictures have enabled the people to know instantly what is going on, and more nearly every year to think and act as one. Given a trusted and able leadership, and with such a medium of unified action as the Blue Eagle, our people, for what I believe to be for the first time, have the opportunity to solve a national economic problem by their own action. Instead of sitting hopelessly and helplessly under the impact of forces of disaster, every person has an individual and important part in a symphony of action."—General Johnson.

IN MEMORY OF GERTIE MAE HEADLEY

Gertie Mae, age 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude C. Headley, died Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Central Alabama Hospital with appendicitis.

She was a faithful Sunday School worker and was always willng to take her part n the Sunday School work. She always wore a smile for everyone. We feel assured that she has gone to rest and we hope meet her in heaven some day.

Surviving her are her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Claude C. Headley; five sisters, Alice Mae, Flora, Eunice, Ollie and Dollie; tow brothers, J. C. and Bobbie, and a host of friends and relatives. Weep not, dear friends, for our loss is heaven's gain.

The Rev. Edgar Hodo conducted the services. She was laid to rest in the Mt. Pisgah cemetery Wednesday at 10 o'clock with Martn & Sons in charge.

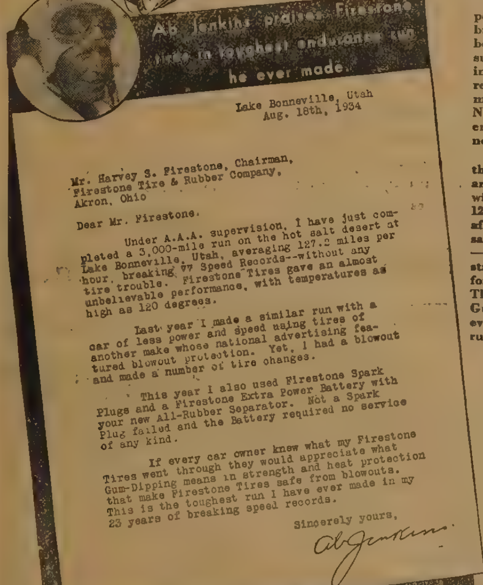
TWO BREATH-TAKING ENDURANCE RUNS LAST WEEK ON SAME TRACK—A DRAMATIC COMPARISON OF SAFETY! READ BOTH LETTERS!



Ab Jenkins praises Firestone tires in toughest endurance run he ever made.

Lake Bonneville, Utah
Aug. 18th, 1934

Mr. Harvey S. Firestone, Chairman,
Firestone Tire & Rubber Company,
Akron, Ohio

Dear Mr. Firestone.

Under A.A.A. supervision, I have just completed a 3,000-mile run on the hot salt desert at Lake Bonneville, Utah, averaging 127.2 miles per hour, breaking 77 Speed Records--without any tire trouble. Firestone Tires gave an almost unbelievable performance, with temperatures as high as 120 degrees.

Last year I made a similar run with a car of less power and speed using tires of another make whose national advertising featured blowout protection. Yet, I had a blowout and made a number of tire changes.

This year I also used Firestone Spark Plugs and a Firestone Extra Power Battery with your new All-Rubber Separator. Not a Spark Plug failed and the Battery required no service of any kind.

If every car owner knew what my Firestone Tires went through they would appreciate what Gum-Dipping means in strength and heat protection that make Firestone Tires safe from blowouts. This is the toughest run I have ever made in my 23 years of breaking speed records.

Sincerely yours,

Ab Jenkins

THE Proof of leadership is performance! Many claim it, but Firestone proves it. Never before have tires withstood such severe, continuous, grinding torture, breaking 77 speed records for 3,000 consecutive miles at 127.2 miles per hour. Not a Gum-Dipped cord loosened, not a tread separated, not one blowout.

Hour after hour, on through the scorching heat of the day and inky blackness of the night, with temperatures as high as 120 degrees—breaking record after record for speed, strength, safety and blowout protection—all in a stupendous demonstration of safety performance for the car owners of America. This was made possible by Gum-Dipping, which coats every cord fiber with liquid rubber.

For your next trip have the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store equip your car with Firestone Tires and Spark Plugs, install a Firestone Battery and reline your brakes with Firestone Aquapruf Brake Lining. Protect your life and the lives of your family with the safest tire in the world. Buy them this week before prices go higher.

Lake Bonneville, Utah
Aug. 18th, 1934

Mr. Harvey S. Firestone, Chairman,
Firestone Tire & Rubber Company,
Akron, Ohio

Dear Mr. Firestone:

I have just finished a 3,000-mile test at Lake Bonneville, Utah, driving a stock car of a leading manufacturer, equipped with tires which a large manufacturer has recently brought out as the newest development in tire construction. I had eleven tire failures and made two precautionary tire changes.

When a right front tire blew out, I was unable to get the car under control for a quarter of a mile, leaving a trail of rubber and fabric on the hot salt beds.

After this experience, I appreciate what a vital part Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have played in my success during the fourteen years I have used them on my racing and personal cars. Without them I know I could never have made the many speed records I have established.

Very truly yours,

Wilbur Shaw

Davis Makes Statement Regarding Syrup Tax

In explanation of the tax placed on the manufacture of syrup, the following statement has been issued by Harold G. Davis, Birmingham, collector of internal revenue:

"There appears to be a widespread report in Alabama to the effect that owners and | or operators of cane mills are required to pay a special tax or license to the Federal Government before they can operate such mills. So many reports of this nature have reached this office until it is believed some action should be taken to counteract the effect it is having on interested persons. We can think of no better source of information than the newspapers of the state for attaining the end desired.

There is a processing tax on edible molasses made from pure sugar cane juices. There is no such tax on sorhgum molasses. The tax on sugar cane molasses is imposed only upon its sale and producers who grow the cane are exempted from any tax on the sale of the same to the extent of 200 gallons, except in cases where 500 gallons or more are sold, in which cases no exemption whatever is allowed.

Where a producer sells in excess of 200 gallons of sugar cane molasses, the rate of tax is .94 of a cent per gallon of 11 1-3 pounds, or a tax of slightly less than one cent per gallon.

ENTERRRISE HOME DEM. CLUB

The Enterprise Home Demonstration Club met Tuesday p. m., September 4, at the school house ~~with only a few~~ members present.

Our subject was Late Summer, Fall, and Winter Gardening, which was enjoyed by all.

We elected officers for the year as follows: President, Mrs. F. J. Thomas; Vice-president, Mrs. C. B. Stroud; Secretary-Treasurer, and Reporter, Mrs. C. L. Wilkins; Community Leaders, Mrs. A. L. Pierce and Mrs. C. B. Stroud; Project Leaders, Mrs. F. J. Thomas and Mrs. J. C. Boockholdt.

We hope to have a larger attendance at our next meeting. We want to urge all of our members to come. There is a lot that we can learn at these meetings that will help us along and if you don't come and get the information you have missed something good for you and your family. So be sure to come to all of our meetings.

LEGUME HAY BEST

"The best forage plants are alfalfa and vetch. Alfalfa may be placed in the front rank of such plants; for once sown it lasts 10 years, fattens lean cattle and is good for the sick."

Thus in substance, did the leading agriculturist of his day advise his fellow farmers. The quotation is from the writings of Lucius Columella, author of the most complete ancient treatise on agriculture, who lived in the first century of our era, about 1,900 years ago.

Similar advice is contained in a bulletin of the Department of Agriculture. It is declared that "an abundance of home-grown legume hay is the basis for an economical ration for dairy cows." Such hay is not only more palatable, but furnishes more milk-making nutriment at less cost than other feeds.

Although the superiority of legumes has been taught by experts from Columella's time to the present, only about 40 per cent of the hay grown in the United States is lgume hay, and in the dairying states, where feeding it would be the most advantageous, the percentage is even less.

Both for nutriment and soil building, legume hay should have a prominent place in every farmer's program. Columella's advice is as good today as it was 19 centuries ago.

A FORTUNE OUT OF AIR

Shortly after the close of the civil war a young inventor, just past 21, endeavored to interest old Commodore Vanderbilt in a new brake for railroad trains, to be operated by compressed air.

After listening with impatience to the proposition, the Commodore asked whether the inventor really meant that he could stop a rushing train with nothing but air. He was answered in the affirmative.

"Then get out of here," he said, "I have no time to waste on fools."

The young inventor was George Westinghouse, who shortly afterward perfected his air brake and after many discouragements succeeded in placing it on the market.

To make his triumph complete, the first big order for the new Westinghouse air brake came from Commodore Vanderbilt.

This invention and others made Westinghouse a fortune and when he died in 1914 he was rated among the wealthy men of America, the use of his air brakes having become almost universal.

His early struggles were typical of those of many other young men with an idea and nothing else, but he was more fortunate than most of them. He did ultimately reap the rewards of his genius, while many inventors, through lack of business ability, are defrauded out of theirs.

Farmers Advised To Control Mites, Lice

Auburn, Ala.—H. R. Bailey, extension poultryman, is warning Alabama poultrymen and farmers to be on the lookout for mites, lice, and fleas and to take proper steps to destroy them when they appear.

Red mites may be controlled by keeping the poultry houses clean by spraying with 50 per cent used motor oil and kerosene, says Mr. Bailey. "Pure kerosene, killomite, carbola, and crewood oil are often used."

There are two methods of controlling lice. One is by treating the entire flock by applying a small amount of Black Leaf 40 (nicotine sulphate) on top of the perches just before the birds go to roost. To treat the individual birds put two or three drops of Black Leaf 40 under each wing. This can best be done with a small oil can. The birds may be dusted thoroughly with sodium fluoride, being careful that it comes in contact with the skin. A pinch of blue ointment and vaseline (equal parts) placed under the vent is often used for body lice.

Mr. Bailey gives the treatment for fleas as follows: Gas ashes scattered around the houses and on the floors; salt water sprayed around (be careful not to allow it to puddle so the birds can drink it); drip oil sprayed on the premises; brine scattered about the premises; one part carbola and 30 parts kerosene used as a spray is also very effective.

Government agencies loaned $1,250,000,000 to farmers last year, a daily average of about $4,000,000.

Rental payments to cotton far cooperating in the 1934 acreage adjust ment program totaled $39,655,000 on August 24.

Lives Which Are Needlessly Sacrificed

Montgomery—The lives of more than 400 Alabama mothers were needlessly sacrificed during the last year.

This appalling figure was revealed this week in a report issued by the state health department, which showed approximately 16,000 women died in childbirth in the United States during the year, 415 of which were in Alabama.

"Year after year the maternal death rate for the United States remains among the highest of any of the civilized countries, despite this country's boast of progress along every line," said Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer. "Alabama maintains her unenviable high place among the states of the union in this regard."

Careful study of the causes of such deaths has shown that about two-thirds of them could have been prevented with proper care of the expectant mother, Dr. Baker said, and "therefore, it is quite evident that adequate medical supervision should be given to more expectant mothers if this death rate is to be markedly decreased."

In spite of efforts of the medical profession and the health department to improve unsatisfactory conditions, the majority of the thousand of midwives practicing in Alabama are ignorant, unskilled and untrained. Thousands of expectant mothers fail to seek the advice of a physician early enough, because of ignorance, inaccessibility or economic reasons.

"The logical person to assist and encourage women to obtain medical care is the public health nurse," Dr. Baker said. Demonstrations show that there is a proportionate decrease in maternal deaths with an increase of proper supervision. The citizens of Alabama should strive to make possible the employment of sufficient public health nurses to assure this service to a far greater per cent of expectant mothers than are now enjoying it. The nurse in no way takes the place of the physician, but is the connecting link between the physician and the patient."

ENJOYING WORLD'S FAIR

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Littleton of route 4, Clanton, are enjoying the World's Fair and visiting their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Clark, who have made their home in Chicago for the past five years.

Mr. and Mrs. Littleton will take a trip on the Lake before returning home. They are enjoying the cool weather in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Littleton will return home in a few days and tell their friends about the many points of interest they have visited."

Oats Should Be Planted Early

Auburn—Fall sown oats produce twice as many bushels per acre as do spring-sown oats, declares J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, who is urging farmers to plant oats the last half of September and early October.

In emphasizing the importance of sowing oats early, Mr. Lowery declares that "it has been observed in many cases that early fall oats outyield late fall-sown oats to about the same extent that fall-planted oats outyield spring oats."

Results of experiments at Auburn show it to be advisable to drill oats in the cotton middles before picking is finshed rather than delay the planting until the land can be broken.

Red Rustproof, Fulghum, Appler, and Norton varieties have been the best producers in tests by the experiment station.

Texas Lady Tells How Black-Draught Laxative Helps All Her Family

Here's how Black-Draught fills the needs of a family laxative in the home of Mrs. J. S. Stoker, Fort Worth, Texas: "The grown-ups in my family," she writes, "have always taken powdered Thedford's Black-Draught for biliousness, headaches and other ailments (due to constipation) and found it a reliable remedy. I was very pleased when I saw Syrup of Black-Draught advertised. I bought it and gave it to my little daughters, ages 6 and 4. They needed something to cleanse their systems and Syrup of Black-Draught acted well." . . . Your druggist sells this reliable laxative in both forms. "Children like the Syrup."

representatives:

To the Senators and Representatives of Alabama:

My Dear Sirs:

This is to inform you of the gifts to the need of Alabama by the United States Government since March 4, 1933.

They aggregate the enormous sum of $40,291,337.00.

An itemized statement thereof made by the Comptroller, Mr. Hard, is enclosed.

For benefit of unemployed—needy—the gifts to Alabama amount to $22,200,453.00.

Road Building in Alabama to give employment to the unemployed aggregates the sum of $15,783,975.00.

The depression and reduction in Alabama tax values and incomes shortened the school terms and the Government generously contributed to this cause, to keep the schools running, the sum of $2,266,909.00.

The Federal Government, through the Tennessee Valley Authority, is spending millions in Alabama now, developing the water power of North Alabama and from this source, by Act of Congress, the United States has contributed as taxes the first year 5% of its gross earnings, which placed in Alabama's treasury on partial settlement sum of $40,000.00.

This tax of 5% of its gross earnings will increase as the business of the Tennessee Valley Authority develops; and in the course of time will bring millions annually to Alabama from this great and growing agency of the United States.

This shows Alabama's treatment by the Federal Government has been generous—yes, really royal.

Alabama should be and Alabama is profoundly grateful for it.

Alabama will place no blocks in the way of the wonderful works and great plants being now established, constructed and run in our State by the Government in the name of the Tennessee Valley Authority for the people of the South.

With warm personal regards, I am

Yours sincerely,
B. M. MILLER.
Governor of Alabama.

Baptist Church To Be Built At Mt. Carmel

The people of Mt. Carmel community, the neighborhood surrounding the old Childress Cemetery, met last Wednesday night at seven o'clock and organized themselves into building committee, entertainment committee, etc. for the purpose of building a Baptist church on the cemetery grounds. We have felt the need of a church here for some time, since many people of surrounding communities bury their dead here. Then too, because the community is being settled up, and we want to build a church as a center.

We shall appreciate the cooperation and help of all people who are interested, directly or indirectly, in the cemetery here or the building itself. Those wishing to help will confer with M. F. Childress, Chairman building committee, or either of following men: Newt Foshee, Theb Kendrick, Bertie Liveoak, M. E. Champion, Hugh Davenport, Lubie Wrght, or S. J. Higgins. Any donation of money, work or materials for building will be genuinely appreciated.

GAS TAX

the County's trucks are being used for private purposes.

"In view of the above charges we, the Commissioners Court, in regular session, hereby urge and request Honorable J. H. Hard, the State Comptroller to have the record of the Commissioners Court examined at once by fair and competent examiners."

"WHEREAS, considerable criticism has been directed toward the County's use of gasoline and whereas, it has been charged that the County's gasoline was being used for private purposes and the County's gasoline is being used in private cars and that the County's trucks are being used for private purposes, and

"WHEREAS, the records show that from September 1st, 1931 to March 1st, 1933, a period of eighteen months, the County gasoline trucks and from March 1st, 1933, to September 1st, 1934, a period of eighteen months, the County purchased 143,914 gallons of gasoline, whch was delivered to the County gasoline trucks, an increase over the same period of time of 52,600 gallons, and

"WHEREAS, the State Tax Commission has filed a claim of $11,654.65 with the Commissioners Court for taxes on gasoline which the State Tax Commission has charged with use for other than county purposes.

"NOW, THEREFORE, as Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, I make the following recommendations:

"1. That the Commissioners Court select a competent person to deliver the County's gasolise to the road machines.

"2. That the Commissioners Court place such person under sufficient bond for the faithful performance of his duties.

"3. That an order be made by the Commissioners Court that the gasoline truck be locked in the garage, which has been prepared for the County's property, overnight, and that the gasoline truck not be permitted to leave said garage at night.

"4. That an order be made by the Court having tickets or receipts for gasoline prepared and when the gasoline is delivered to the County's machinery that the same be signed by the person receiving the gasoline and prohibit the person who delivers the gasoline from signing the receipts, and that said receipts be filed along with the other records of the Commisisoners Court and that the same might be made public and entitled to public inspection at all reasonable times.

"5. I recommend that the use of the County's gasoline be more closely scrutinized in order that no gasoline that might be delivered or used in any manner except strictly for County purposes and that all persons in the employment of the County who use the County's gasoline for other than County purposes, be discharged after a fair hearing.

"6. I recommend to the Court that the County sell the five trucks that they now own, as it is my opinion that the County's hauling can be done cheaper by hiring it done than by owning their own trucks, and this will also give the work to the people of the County.

"7. I further recommend to the Court that if the Commissioners will not agree to sell the County trucks that a place be prepared in each Commissioner's district and have said trucks locked up at night and prohibit the use of said trucks at night unless in cases of emergency and necessity.

"8. I further recommend to the Court that no County gasoline be placed in any vehicle except County road tractors and County owned trucks and that such County road tractors and trucks be operated only and exclusively when actually performing services for the County."

SENATOR BLACK TO SPEAK HERE

TEN SPECIAL DEPUTIES ARE GUARDING MILL

Local Workers Apparently Are Satisfied With Conditions Here

Continued calmness is being maintained at the Alabama Mills in Clanton. There is no evidence that there is any liklihood of employes of this mill taking any part in the nation-wide textile strike which has paralyzed the industry during the past week, according to officials.

Although a heavy guard has been maintained since employes of most of the textile mills throughout the nation walked out and left their machines idle more than a week ago, there has been exhibited no special interest in these activities by employes of the Clanton mill, officials stated early this week.

Ten special deputies have been assigned by Sheriff W. H. Gillespie to maintain guard throughout the disturbance in event that outside influence might be brought to bear in an effort to force employes to leave their jobs. The sentiment of all workers at this mill is that they are satisfied with the conditions under which they are working and have no desire to become entangled in any manner with the strike activities. A petition circulated shortly before the general strike was called received 100 per cent endorsement for continued work by the 200 employes.

Several workers in conversation with a reporter for the News stated they desired only to be left alone by outsiders and allowed to continue their work. Declaring that they are satisfied with the protection guaranteed them under the National Recovery Act, several workers voiced resentment of possible interference by outsiders.

Many workers were still armed Monday, but they all admitted that they do not expect any trouble. Once or twice during the past week it was feared that an effort might be made to picket the Clanton Mill. Several cars, loaded with strangers, cruised in the vicinity of the mill property, but no other indication of possible trouble has been seen. A reputed union agitator who attempted to distribute literature regarding the strike met with a rather unwelcome reception from the employes, according to one of the officers on duty.

The Bradford Mills, in Prattville, were closed down Monday morning placing 400 workmen temporarily without employment. Management of the mills are said to have ordered a suspension of work for an indefinite period. It is believed that a strike was anticipated. Both employers and employes are said to have declared that there will be no violence.

Deputies on guard at the Clanton mills are: Lewis Gillespie, Grady Gillespie, sons of Sheriff W. H. Gillespie, W. C. Smith, John Boockholdt, Marvin Kelley, Ellis Ellison, John C. Partridge, A. A. Raines, Ernest Jones, and C. R. Copeland.

YELLOW FRONT STORE TO OPEN SALE ON 15TH

"Fall Opening Sale" Is An Event Of New Concern In Clanton

Chilton County buyers have an event to look forward to with pleasant anticipation, declared D. L. Blackketter, manager of the Yellow Front Store, in commenting on the week's "Fall Opening Sale," which will be staged at the Yellow Front, beginning Saturday, September 15, and continuing through Saturday, September 22.

This sale, Mr. Blackketter announced, will feature a complete line of general merchandise at prices far below current prices a few months hence. Because of early buying, he stated that it is possible for this store to give its customers the advantage of bargains that would not be available at current prices.

Operating in this county only a few months, the Yellow Front Store has rapidly become one of the county's most outstanding business establishments, and this Fall Opening Sale will be an event that will leave all who visit this store and take advantage of its numerous bargains even more appreciative of it business methods, is the opinion of the genial manager.

The sale will feature hundreds of items of fall and winter merchandise, including men's, women's and children's sweaters, ready-to-wear for women, caps, hosiery, all types of cloth, shoes, groceries, toys, enamel ware, dresses, hats for both men and women, school supplies, garden seeds, and scores of other items.

In this issue of the News will be found an advertisement from this popular Clanton store, featuring many of the low prices that will be an attraction during the week's sale.

CITY ELECTION WILL BE HELD NEXT MONDAY

Mayor And Five Councilmen Are To Be Elected For Clanton

Next Monday, September 17, the citizenship of Clanton will elect the town officials for the ensuing term of two years. Apparently little interest is being manifested in the election, the reason likely being that it is being submerged in the activities of the county campaign.

The ticket will feature eight candidates and of course the names of others may be written in. Two have qualified as candidates for the office of mayor and six for members of the council.

Several weeks ago, C. Fenn Jones, retired Clanton hardware dealer, made known his intention of seeking the position of chief executive of the town government; and little more than ten days ago, P. D. Wilson, prominently known Clanton hotel operator, qualified and announced his candidacy for mayor.

Each of the five members of the present council are seeking re-election. Dr. J. E. Gowan is the only other candidate for membership in this body. The present council is composed of: W. L. Popwell, Grady Heflin, J. Watts Moore, L. E. Diefenderfer, and H. S. Shaw.

ED COOPER NOW WITH HILL'S; INVITES FRIENDS TO VISIT

The management of the Hill's Store in Clanton announces the connection with its staff of Ed Cooper, who has been associated with the operation of various mercantile establishments in Clanton and is well known to the buying public.

Mr. Cooper has been connected with many of Clanton's outstanding firms and is an experienced salesman. He invites his friends to visit him at his new location.

MAINE GOES DEMOCRATIC FOR GOV'NOR

Democratic Governor Goes In Over A Republican Last Friday

Portland, Maine, Sept. 10. — Gov. Louis J. Brann, Maine's first Democratic governor in 16 years, was reelected tonight in the face of Republican demands for his defeat as a symbol of Maine's repudiation of the "new deal."

Brann's victory was conceded by the Republican Portland Press-Herald.

It was the first time in Maine history that a Democratic governor had won a second term. Brann, who went into office in the sensational Democratic overturn two years ago, was the fifth member of his party to occupy the executive chair in ths state since the War Between the States.

With numerous urban precincts, generally Democratic strongholds yet to be reported, Gov. Brann had a lead of 2,700 votes over his Republican opponent, Alfred K. Ames, wealthy retired lumberman in returns from one-half of the State.

Brann ran far ahead of the rest of his ticket in his surge toward victory.

Another Maine tradition was shattered as the State voted by a three-to-two margin to repeal its half-century old constitutional prohibition amendment.

Representative Carroll L. Beedy, Republican prophet of the anti-new deal forces was fighting a losing battle in the First Congressional District with Simon M. Hamlin (D), "dirt farmer" and former school teacher.

Clanton Grammar P.-T. A. To Meet Next Friday

The Parents-Teachers association of the Clanton Grammar School will hold its first meeting of the year at the school building Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, according to an announcement.

All members are urged to be present as this meeting is one of vast importance, it was explained. Plans for the coming school year will be formulated and various phases of school work will be discussed.

An interesting program has been prepared for the Friday afternoon session and those who fail to attend will miss a great opportunity to be of assistance to this organization and to the teachers in making this school year one of outstanding value to the community.

Two Are Killed In Accidents

EIGHT OTHERS ARE INJURED ON HIGHWAYS

An Epidemic Of Accidents Occur On Highway In County

Two persons were killed and eight others were injured in a series of automobile wrecks Sunday on the Montgomery-Birmingham highway in the vicinity of Clanton.

Z. H. Sanders, 32, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Campbell Morrison, 39, of DeFuniack Springs, Fla., died at the Central Alabama Hospital here during the day from injuries suffered in two crash-ups.

Sanders died before he could be removed from the ambulance cot at the hospital a few minutes after his car had collided with another car, in which several negroes were riding, one mile south of Clanton about 8:45 o'clock Sunday morning.

Morrison died Sunday night about 11

COTTON CROP BEING MOVED OUT SLOWLY

Only 85 Bales Were Ginned To Sept. 1, This Year, 521 Last Year

The heavy rains prevalent in this county during recent weeks have resulted in the county's crop of cotton opening much more slowly than in former years, according to information from the office of County Agent J. W. Fant. Mr. Fant stated that although the amount of the staple gathered to date this year is far below normal, almost every field is filled with pickers now and no doubt with continued favorable weather the crop will soon be ready for the gin.

Until September 1, there was only eighty-five bales ginned in Chilton County, compared to 521 bales for the same period last year. Another reason assigned for the abnormal gin report is that many farmers are waiting for government allotment certificates before having any of the crop ginned.

County Agent Fant explained that he is expecting these certificates at an early date. Until they are received, he said temporary certificates are being issued those who wish to sell cotton, or return it to their homes for storage after ginning.

The recently issued government report placed the 1934 crop at 9,252,000 bales, which is approximately four million bales less than a normal crop.

A NEW BUSINESS CONCERN OPENS IN NEAR FUTURE

"Mazar's Store" Occupies Remodeled Building On Main Street

In step with the growth and development of Chilton County and the Town of Clanton, there will soon be opened on Main Street, in the new Mullins' Building, a general department store which will be a monument to the progress of this section.

This establishment, Mazar's Store, featuring all types of general merchandise and specializing in women's ready-to-wear, will be the latest addition to Clanton's several modern merchandising marts, when it swings open its doors for business with a week's sale, beginning Saturday, September 22, and continuing through Saturday, Sept. 28.

With a stock of merchandise estimated at between $35,000 and $40,000 value, this store will serve an important need in this community and will doubtless soon be recognized as one of the County's leading business establishments. This store will be managed by E. A. Lewis, who has been connected with various mercantile establishments in New York City for the past eight years. In commenting on the policies of the establishment, Mr. Lewis declared that it will be his aim to render the greatest

NEW STATE SUPT. APPEALS TO TEACHERS TO RAISE STANDARDS

J. A. Kellar Outlines Several Objectives Of His Administration Before Group Of Teachers Last Thursday

J. A. Kellar, democratic nominee for state superintendent of education, speaking to an assembly of Birmingham teachers, Thursday, appealed to them to cooperate with other groups to raise rural educational standards. He commended particularly the officials, the teachers and the program of the Birmingham schools, but he told city teachers it is not enough that they belong to good school systems maintaining high standards and providing excellent school facilities. "The rural sections of Alabama," said he, "must be provided with similar facilities, if we are to become a great people in a great state." Only through state-wide cooperation for improved schools can city teachers hope to retain the advantages they now enjoy.

Some of the objectives for his administration were outlined as follows:

1. Trained teachers for all schools.
2. Equalization of educational opportunities to improve rural schools.
3. A term long enough for a normal child to complete one grade each year.
4. More adequate provisions for consolidation and transportation of rural schools.
5. The re-establishment of a building and equipment fund for schools.
6. The availability, if possible, of free text books for the first three grades.

FARMER HELD AFTER THREATS ARE RUMORED

Alleged To Have Threatened The Life Of Accused Slayer Of Son

An alleged threat to take the life of the slayer of his son resulted in G. E. Bankston, farmer of the Enterprise community, being arrested by Sheriff W. H. Gillespie and locked in the county jail Sunday.

The man was arrested on a peace warrant sworn out by Joe Dennis, a neighbor, who stated that Bankston has repeatedly made threats against the life of Lawrence Edwards, who is at liberty under a $500 bond for the slaying recently of Lewis Bankston, his brother-in-law.

When Sheriff W. H. Gillespie went to his home to make the arrest, he said that the father of the slain boy told him that 'both he and Edwards could not stay on the ground.' He was in an intoxicated condition, Sheriff Gillespie

AIRPORT IS NOW ALMOST COMPLETED

Dr. Gragg Places First Plane And Hangar On Airport

The Clanton Airport, under supervison of Floyd Smith, director of work, and Tom Tracy, foreman of the porject, is nearing completion. When finished the feld will cover sixty acres of land, with runways extending 2,400 feet NE and SW, and 1,800 feet NW and SE. Plans also call for the erection of a hangar on the landing field.

This project promises to be one of the outstandnig C. W. A. accomplishments in Chilton County. The location midway between Birmingham and Montgomery will make it a very popular airport for pilots flying over this route.

Dr. V. J. Gragg, who has been very active and influential in securing the location and erection of this airport for Chilton County and the city of Clanton, now has his own plane on the field, and has also erected a hangar for housing his ship.

J. W. Allen, who is on the field as transport pilot and instructor, invites everyone who is interested in flying to come out and he will be glad to co-operate with them in every way. As soon as the field is fully completed it is planned to have an official opening day, when ships and pilots from the airports in this section will be invited to attend. There will also be various events of interest to the public held on the field that day. Announcement of the official opening day will be made some time in the near future.

HOGAN-BELL ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED LAST SUNDAY

The engagement of Miss Jerome-Vashti Daniel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hogan of Clanton, to Mr. Henry Pratt Bell, of Prattville, was announced last Sunday.

While Miss Hogan makes her home in Prattville, she has a large number of friends in this county. Her father is L & N Agent at Clanton. The marriage is to take place in October.

Mrs. Wells Named Act. Postmaster At Jemison

Sunday's issue of the Montgomery Advertiser carried an AP story under Washington dateline to the effect that Mrs. Nora C. Wells of Jemison, has been appointed acting postmaster at Jemison.

No other information regarding this appointment is available to the News this wek. Mrs. Wells is prominently known over the county. She has long been prominently affiliated with various political and civic activities in her community.

Mrs. Wells succeeds Mrs. Sorrell and her appointment is effective at an early date, it is understood.

PLAN TO OPEN SCHOOLS FOR ADULTS HERE

Fifteen Schools Are Allotted To Chilton Through Funds Of FERA

Preparations are being made rapidly for the opening of fifteen adult schools in Chilton County under the provisions of the federal government to provide work for un-employed teachers in this section, according to information from Supt. Luther E. Little and Miss Kittye Clyde Austin, local social service director, who will have supervision of these schools.

Funds have been appropriated through the Alabama Federal Emergency Relief Administration to the State Department of Education for the operation of many schools of this type throughout the State. Supt. Little announced this week that he understands that fifteen schools will be alloted to Chilton County, and these schools will likely operate a full nine months term.

The purpose of the adult school, it was explained, is to provide for an educational program which will tend to make un-employed persons who are

Baby Contest Still In Progress Here

Clanton's Baby Popularity Contest got underway with a fine start last week, when more than 3,700 votes were cast for the forty entrants. The contest, which is sponsored by Missionary Circle Number Two of the Clanton Methodist church, will continue until September 18 when some youngster will cop the honor of being Clanton's most popular baby. Second and third honors will also be awarded.

The sponsors of the several babies competing for these honors met last Friday afternoon at the Calloway Drug Company to tabulate the votes that have been cast, but those in charge of the program declared that the tabulation was incomplete. Another meeting will be held next Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock, it was announced.

Public Is Urged To Hear Outstanding Senator From Alabama

FIRST VISIT HERE IN SEVERAL YEARS

An opportunity to become better acquainted with the operations of their national government will be afforded the people of this section next Saturday morning at 11 o'clock when Senator Hugo Black will speak at the court house in Clanton on the subject, "The New Deal and What It Has Meant to Chilton County."

Senator Black has notified leaders in the county that he will be here Saturday morning and will appreciate the opportunity to speak to the residents of Chilton County about the national government. He is one of President Roosevelt's righthand men and is thoroughly familiar with the inside activities of the New Deal. It is expected that much of his address here will be an explanation of phases of the program with which the average man in this county is unfamiliar.

Wide recognition has been accorded Senator Black for his efforts in the investigation of the recent airmail scandal. He is often referred to as the "Alabama Senator who saved so much money for the Government." Always a sympathizer with the man in the more common walks of life, the New Deal has found in him a worthwhile ally.

The Leader Boasts Fifteen Years Of Service

Fifteen years of service to the buying public of Clanton and Chilton County is a record of which to be proud. That at least is the opinion of M. Lande, operator of The Leader, one of Clanton's outstanding merchandising establishments. In this week's issue of the News appears an advertisement from The Leader in which the policies, which no doubt have been greatly responsible for the success of this business, are briefly outlined.

Mr. Lande declares that he is proud of the fact that this store and its employes have been able to render service to the people of this section, and now with a complete line of new fall and winter merchandise in stock, he feels that during the coming months the store will be able to continue its record.

On next Wednesday, September 19, both The Leader and Ben's will be closed in observance of a religious holiday, it has been announced by the managements.

Mrs. C. Fenn Jones and Miss Bettie Mullins spent Sunday in Birmingham.

NEW SERVICE STAT'N OPENS IN VERBENA

New Modern Building Is Erected On Montgomery Highway

Quite an addition to the business section of Verbena has been made with the opening this week of the new Howard Service Station, located on the highway on the former site of the Verbena Service Station, which was destroyed by fire little more than a year ago.

This new establishment was opened last Saturday and is being operated by J. W. Howard, who has been connected with the operation of the Howard Garage for the past several years. Mr. Howard's training and experience will be invaluable in the operation of his new business undertaking. He announces that the place will endeavor to render the highest possible service to the local and traveling public both day and night.

In commenting on the new Howard Service Station, he stated: "The products we handle are of the first quality, our help is thoroughly trained, and we are in position to render high quality service to our customers."

Besides gas and oils, the place will carry a complete line of staple groceries, cold drinks, and many other items of merchandise.

The service station is housed in a recently completed brick building, Mr. Howard invites his customers and friends to visit him.

Tragedies Of The Road

The past few week ends have seen exceptionally beautiful weather. The call of the road is strong when the sun is shining and there's a tang of early autumn in the air. It is pleasant to see people able to enjoy the fine weather in beautiful automobiles along smooth highways, but when the stream of traffic turns red and the shriek of ambulance sirens intermingle with the murmur of speeding motors, it means tragedy for somebody.

Two are dead and eight injured as the toll of accidents in Chilton County last Sunday. It's too late now for us to say who was to blame. But the dangers of the road should be emphasized in our minds because of these tragedies. The News has heretofore urged careful driving, and it again calls attention to the need of extra precaution to avoid accidents.

Modern cars are well-made, our roads are good, but some day drivers must learn that top speeds are for emergencies, that it is suicide and manslaughter to habitually pass cars on curves and over hills, that there is a code of courtesy on the road as well as the ball room, and that the fruit of carelessness is death. That lesson must be learned eventually—why not master it now!

Roosevelt And The Growlers

Those who were already poor, love Roosevelt, some of those who are afraid they will be poor are turning against him. A few of them even hate him bitterly, yet all he has done was to throw the remaining resources of the republic into the breach. re-employ some of the idle, feed all of the famished and dispossessed in the meantime, and give capital a fresh intake of oxygen.

Harding, Coolidge, Mellon and Hoover were the gods of the prosperous in the great days before national exhaustion and collapse, when nobody—not even Harding, Coolidge, Mellon and Hoover—had the gift of prophecy. They could not foresee what was coming.

We do not suppose that Roosevelt saw what was coming either; but he seems to have been prepared psychologically for service to the wrecked and ruined. The others were not. Wall Street was not prepared, no American banker was prepared—bankers were not even prepared to take dignified leave of their families when now and then some of them found it necessary to go away to jail.

No doubt our collar-ad President has blundered in his groping for a formula. But by the Eternal, he has stopped bank failures! All banks were closed when he took his oath.

All of them are open now, and so fairly safe, even though they are afraid to lend money.

By stopping bank failures Roosevelt saved the railroads of the land, and more important still, he saved the great insurance companies. Most of the estates of our people are insurance estates. Roosevelt saved those, and a generation from this day lusty babies will have reason to coo in praise of his name—unless in the meantime our economic structure collapses, due to the Federal debt.

Roosevelt's NRA publicity agents assert that in a year and a half he has re-employed 4,000,000 Americans. These had no employment before he lifted his right hand. They are not yet well paid for what they do, but they can buy food and cigarettes, and in Alabama we have taken due note of the fact that cotton is nearly 13 cents a pound, while food prices—so farmers are told—are rising everywhere. Natural disasters had something to do with the rise of commodity prices, to be sure, but every economist (even those of the Harding-Coolidge school), has been bellowing for higher commodity prices all along. Now we have them.

It occurs to The Advertiser that if either Warren G. Harding or Calvin Coolidge had been President since March, 1933, it would have been necessary to impeach him for incompetency.

We were able to retire Hoover by a pleasanter process. If George Horace Lorimer, editor of The Saturday Evening Post, had been Presdent, we should have had to impeach him before now.

There is today some grumbling about the Rooseveltian policies, but no talk of impeachment. All the talk to date has been about his certain re-election.

Small Dealers' Code Levies Are Lightened

Washington.—The National Recovery Administration has taken a further step toward relieving wholesalers and, particularly, small retaiers, from paying multiple assessments. An administrative order issued by National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson puts a stop, until an improved formula can be worked out, to collections by code authorities governing one line of wholesale or retail distribution from wholesalers or retailers who deal principally in some other line.

The variety of merchandise handled by the small local store, or the general store which sells "anything the farmer needs"—types which are important factors in the total retail business—brings their operations under a number of codes. The local store owner has been harassed by demands to pay assessments to all of these code authorities. Department stores and wholesale distributors also are importantly affected. Under the order issued they will pay assessments only to the code authority for the code governing their principal line of business, with few exceptions.

The Englewood, Colorado, Monitor observes that mining activitiy is increasing in that state, and that many hundreds more miners are at work than in a number of years past.

School Bus Drivers

With the increasing number of consolidated schools throughout the country, the school bus has become an important transportation necessity, carrying many thousands of children daily.

It is impossible to emphasize too strongly the need for these vehicles. It is a great responsibility to be entrusted with the lives of these children and no one should be employed as a driver who does not fully realize that responsibility and possess the qualifications to insure their safety.

Immature or irresponsible persons have no business driving a school bus, as many deplorable tragedies have demonstrated in the past. It should be a rigid requirement that drivers must come to a full stop before crossing a railroad track. A failure to observe this rule has cost many lives and may cost many more. Excessive speed should not be tolerated and any disregard of safety precautions should be followed by a prompt dismissal of the offending driver.

School authorities are primarily responsible for the competency of the drivers they employ, and unless they investigate carefully each applicant and keep a watch on his performances they are guilty of gross negligence toward the children whose safety is in their keeping.

Safety On The Railroads

The American railroad industry has made a record in promoting safety. both for passengers and workers, that is the envy of the world.

Even in pre-war days the railroads were a safe industry—and since then they have reduced accident fatalities by more than half. Passenger and employe fatalities in 1933, for example, were but one-seventh of the number occurring in 1913. Only grade-crossing accidents, which are almost invariable the fault of the motor vehicle involved, have risen.

Much railroad work is necessarily of a potentially dangerous kind. Yet, last year, the fatality rate per million man hours toucshed the infinitesimal level of 0.22.

This is indicative of the progress the Amercan railroads have made in a hundred directions, all the way from promoting safety, to speeding up trains and making them more comfortable. The purpose of the rails is to give the American public the best, safest, cheapest and most efficient transportation service in the world, and they have succeeded.

They are entitled to a fair return.

"Aunt" Sallie Dupree

Last Thursday morning, Chilton County's oldest citizen passed on to whatever reward awaits us beyond the grave. In the death of "Aunt" Sallie Dupree, as she was known to hundreds of Chilton County citizens, the county lost its oldest resident.

And in the death of this old negro woman, the end of an era is marked. Her memory reached back into scenes and days that no other man or woman in Chilton County can recall Distinctly she remembered being sold as a slave three times during her early youth and in the days of the Civil War, which brought her freedom, she rode the hills of this section, carrying messages to her masters on the battlefields.

Recognition of the high regard in which she was held by "her white folks" was exemplified by the great number who crowded into the little church and paid a last tribute to this 107-year-old negro woman.

Drills Instead Of Bats

New reports of increased mining activity, affecting metal mining states, are constantly appearing.

How long it will be before real progress is made toward normalcy is a matter of conjecture. But it is a fact that mining districts which have been deserted for years are being opened up once more, and that the sound of drills is echoing from diggings that have known only the wingbeat of the bat since depression began.

This revival does not give cause for unrestrained jubilation because it relates largely to gold as the result of its artificially high price. Few industries are of such basic national importance as is mining—few, in good times, contribute as much to the national welfare. Any change for the better in the mining situation is thankfully received by thinking citizens.

Ungrateful Cusses

Friday of last week the Reaper insect saw one of these traveling peddlers stop two young ladies on the business streets within sight of four dry goods stores, open his satchel and uncork his ladies' hosiery talk on these two ladies. He took one lady's order for some hosiery, and incidentally her cash.

The salesman stepped into the drug store and bummed a drink of water and was not gentleman enough to even say "thank you."

We are not blaming this lady for spending her money the way she saw fit—for there are others who are doing the same thing with their money every day that rolls by.

But here are a few facts which it will do well for us all to jot down in connection with this particular case.

This young lady earns her money in Geneva and has depended upon Geneva practically all her life for a livelihood. She has two members of her own family in business in Geneva who depend mainly on this town for a living.

What chance has any business house in Geneva to ever see this money again? None whatever. And Geneva is just that much poorer. We are not holding this lady up to ridicule, for there are countless others doing just the same thing.

Spend your money in Geneva with people who have the interest of the town at heart.—Geneva County Reaper.

The President's Health

There would appear to be little basis for the published accounts of President Roosevelt's haggard mien and evidences of terrible strain which his responsibilities put upon him, for there is a counter story that the President is "getting fat" and taking on avoirdupois, and is weathering his difficulties and keeping in fine physical trim at the same time.

In a talk to his neighbors at Hyde Park the other day he jokingly referred to a newspaper story that he was taking on weight. He then said:

"I came up here with the intention of taking off five pounds, but with the qualities of Dutchess County milk, my mother's cooking and the Dutchess County air, I don't believe I will make good my objective."

There may be vast divergences of opinion about Mr. Roosevelt's far-reaching social and political experiments and their bearing on the fortunes of the nation, but there can be no two opinions about the President's engaging personality and the good will of the people which flows to him so abundantly as a man.—Selma Times-Journal

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Those who are acquainted with water fowls are aware of the traits and characteristics of the duck known as the Shoveler. He is the parasite of duckdom. With noise and gusto he follows his comrades and while his neighbor ducks are on the bottom of the pond stirring up things the old Shoveler is on top gathering up and swallowing everything in sight. He will not dive himself but he follows the diving ducks and makes an easy living. You would think that I was describing some folks whom you know—that is, if you know the same kind of folks that I know. In almost every community there are a few folks who follow the producers around and gobble up everything in sight. There are always a host of folks who are strutting around with gusto, making an easy living off of their working neighbors. They are parasites of society.

The school ground was near my parsonage door and on hearing much noise coming from the children at play I looked toward them to see the cause of excitement. I saw a man standing near the student body with a large bear by his side. The bear trainer made his pet animal do many dances and tricks for the children that amused them much. After the teachers had called the children into the school building I ventured to ask the man to tell me how he had trained his bear to dance. His reply was, "By putting the bear on a hot sheet of iron and then playing music as he lifted his feet to cool." He said that the bear soon learned to connect the music with the movements of his feet and then the hot sheet of iron was removed and the bear would keep up his dancing to the music. This bear trainer had kept this up so long that he could grind his organ anytime and the bear would dance. Like the bear, the most of us have learned to do the tricks of life after having gone through periods of suffering. Pain is a great school master. At first it hurts the musician when the fingers beat on the key board.

You can take a pound of lead and grind it into fine powder and then place it in front of a shell that is half filled with gun powder and fire the shell and no damage is done. Under pressure the lead scatters in all directions. On the other hand if you will take that pound of lead and make a solid ball of it and place it before the high explosives it will go far and do much damage. All of this is true in the realm of human society. As long as we move about alone as individuals we can accomplish but little, but when we are cemented into organizations and mutual interests and move together as a unit, we can go far and do much. Unity and cooperation are the real needs of all human society and effort. "United we stand, divided we fall."

One man saw a cool stream and he ran to it and quenched his thirts. Another man saw the same stream and ran to it and fell into the water and was drowned. The same stream helped one man and yet it killed the other. The first man mastered the water and it did him good, the other man was mastered by the water and it was his ruin. Much depends on the question of mastery. A man's temper is a good thing. Like the ax it gives to him cutting power, but if the man is mastered by his temper it will ruin him. The habits of life are not to be discredited. As long as a man is master of his habits he need suffer no alarm, but the very moment that the man is owned by his habits he is in great danger. Being able to appropriate any thing that will help the body, the brain and the soul is not dangerous.

I had a sensible old horse. One day he was trotting along and came to a bridge. Without slowing down his feet pattered on the planks of the bridge. When half way over one of the planks gave way under his foot and he came near meeting with a dangerous fall. After that my old horse was afraid of a bridge. When he came to one on the road he would stop and it would take much urging and coaxing to get him across. He seemed to remember that time when he trusted a plank and it gave way under him. I wish that men and women would have the sense of that old horse. We trot along in life and plank after plank gives way under us, but somehow we do not have the sense to be warned. The same thing makes us sick a dozen times. As you travel along the road of life if a plank gives way under you it is best to be warned. When we learn that it is broken planks that produce a fall then travel will become safe.

IN MEMORY OF MARGY NELL LIMBRICK

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Limbrick August 29 and took away their little three-year-old daughter, Margy Nell, out o misery and pain for which she had suffered from Saturday night of blood poisoning, to a place of eternal peace and rest.

All was done for her that loving hands could do. She was taken to St. Margaret's Hospital where doctors and nurses worked faithfully until the end.

We miss her sweet little face and footsteps in the home. She had a loving smile and word for all who were with her. To meet her was to love her.

As God needed another dear angel in heaven He took her away. Wee not, dear ones, as we all shall meet her again on high to part no more.

She is survived by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Limbrick, three brothers and one sister.

She was laid to rest at Pleasant Hi cemetery with Griffin of Prattville i charge and Rev. Harve Culp officiating.

Centurnarian Negress Of Chilton Passed To Reward

Chilton County lost its oldest citizen last Thursday morning when "Aunt" Sallie Dupree, 107-year-old negro woman, died at her home near Lomax.

The county does not boast another centurnarian, it is understood. This aged negro woman was well known throughout this section, having served many of the most outstanding families as nurse. The high regard in which she was held by "her white folks" was exemplified by the great number who crowded into the little church at Lomax to attend her funeral.

Born and reared in Chilton County "Aunt" Sallie saw most of the history of this section made. She distinctly remembered being sold as a slave three times, and during the War Between the States, which brought her freedom, she rode the hills of Chilton County taking messages to her masters on the battlefields.

Squirrel Season Opens Here On November 1st

Montgomery, Ala.—I. T. Quinn, state commissioner of game and fisheries, has announced that nine more counties have taken advantage of the amended 1932 squirrel law to move their hunting season back one month and start the season on Nov. 1 instead of Oct. 1.

These counties are Bibb, Chilton, Coosa, Hale, Macon, Perry, Pike, Randolph, and Tuscaloosa. In making the switch, they join Baldwin, Butler, Choctaw, Clarke, Conecuh, Covington, Crenshaw, Dallas, Escambia; Lowndes, Mobile, Monroe, Montgomery, Washington and Wilcox, which voted the change last year.

The opening of the squirrel season was moved up one month at the 1932 special session of the legislature, which fixed the dates from Oct. 1 through Dec. 31. An amendment to the act provided that on petition of at least 100 licensed hunters or landowners in a county to the commissioner of game and fisheries the open season could be moved back one month if agreeable with him.

Many of the counties in the southern part of the state found that opening the season on Oct. 1 conflicted with the squirrel mating season and under the permission granted by the game commissioner these 24 counties are now permitted to hunt from Nov. 1 through Jan. 31.

Weber Wagons

For 89 Years WEBER WAGONS Have Been the Popular Choice of Discriminating Farmers in All Sections of the Country

WEBER FARM GEARS AND BOXES ARE BEST KNOWN BY THE SERVICE THEY GIVE

The name "Weber" on a farm wagon means much to the man who owns one It is the identification mark of quality, backed by over 89 years of farm wagon manufacturing experience.

If your requirements demand a strong, light-draft wagon for hard use over all kinds of roads, we urge you to investigate the Weber first. Compare this fine wagon with others in its price class, then you be the judge.

When you inspect a Weber wagon at the McCormick-Deering dealer's store, do it carefully. Notice the thoroughly seasoned "A" grade wood stock in the wheels, axles, reach and tongue. Don't fail to examine the wheels, for in Weber wheels only the finest of oak and hickory spokes are used. The hubs and rims are made of "A" grade oak and the steel tires and hub bands are placed on the rims by a hydraulic press. Weber farm gears and boxes are built to give satisfactory service over a long period of years and can be supplied in various capacities and sizes to meet practically every hauling need. Your investment in a farm wagon can be made doubly profitable if you select a Weber.

We have just received a solid carload of WEBER WAGONS, one- and two-horse in all sizes. Our prices are right for we will give you the benefit of lower prices made possible by car lot purchasing. Let us show you these wagons and quote you prices. We will accept your old wagon in trade. We will also accept your used car in trade on wagon.

All WEBER WAGONS can be bought with small down payment and liberal terms on balance.

J. T. CONNELL SELLS BALE OF COTTON FOR A FANCY PRICE

J. T. Connell, of Clanton Route 5, has a right to feel proud of his ability to produce cotton. Mr. Connell recently was the recipient of commendable recognition as a cotton farmer, when he received 13.25 cents per pound for a 547 pound bale of the fleecy product, which is considerably above the regular market price for this section.

This bale of cotton was purchased by R. K. Welch for the Alabama Cotton Cooperative Association, who explained that Mr. Connell's cotton measured one inch staple, thus bringing the fancy price.

They sang, made pictures and as everyone was making ready to go home they heard a wonderful talk on what we should be thankful for by the Rev. R. F. Yeargan.

Judge Reynolds Charges Commissioners With Flagrant Misrepresentation Of Facts In Recent Article On County Gasoline Question

Editor, Chilton County News:
Clanton, Alabama.
Dear Editor:

I do not care to keep prolonging the controversies in the county papers, and I might say that I have not had a word to say of politics in either of the papers since the Primary, other than to thank my supporters, and yet several have written pieces criticizing me. However, the article signed by the four commissioners was so far from the truth and real facts regarding the gasoline situation, which is now before the people, that I feel compelled in justice to my own record to state my side of this controversy.

I think the financial record that I leave behind me will testify to the fact that I have never believed in or condoned graft or corruption in public office and regardless of party or politics, I cannot condone this. The commissioners in this statement state that I knew of gasoline being used in private cars prior to the Primary on June 12th, and to this I say they are correct, but the commissioners did not tell you that in many of the sessions of the Commissioners Court that I have repeatedly brought this matter to their attention and not a single commissioner has ever offered any suggestion to remedy the situation or even made any reply to my suggestion of the gasoline being illegally used. I might say that on many occasions I have called particular instances of gasoline being illegally used to the different commissioner's attention in their respective districts and yet I do not know of any commissioner ever taking any steps to remedy this situation. If the commissioners and Mr. Percy M. Pitts, who I am reliably informed prepared this article for the commissioners, were present at the many public speakings of mine held in all parts of Chilton County, prior to the first Primary election, I am sure that they heard me denounce in strong terms the illegal use of Chilton County's gasoline. The people will remember, too, that Mr. J. E. Easterling, the driver of the gasoline truck in answer to my criticism to the way the gasoline was handled stated that he had a record of all the gasoline handled by him at his home in Chilton County before the primary, and I also publicly denounced this as being a dangerous and unsafe practice for the Commissioners Court to allow, and now the commissioners state in this article that they are going to have these receipts copied and signed by Mr. Easterling and present the copies to the examining authorities. The four commissioners and their attorney, Percy M. Pitts, know full well that I have been criticizing, and on many occasions, calling the mis-use of the county's gasoline to their attention and yet all of this knowledge and criticism has been ignored by them, and I feel that my record is clear upon this because I am helpless to act without the cooperation of the commissioners.

In this connection I presented to the Commissioners Court at a regular meeting September 3rd, the following recommendations:

"1. That the Commissioners Court select a competent person to deliver the county's gasoline to the road machines.

2. That the Commissioners Court place such person under a sufficient bond for the faithful performance of his duties.

3. That an order be made by the Commissioners Court that the gasoline truck be locked in the garage which has been prepared on the county's property every night, and that the gasoline truck not be permitted to leave said garage at night.

4. That an order be made by the court having tickets or receipts for gasoline prepared, and when the gasoline is delivered to the county machinery that the same be signed by the person receiving, and prohibit the person who delivers the gasoline from signing the receipts, and that said receipts be filed along with the other records of the Commissioners Court and that the same might be made public and entitled to public inspection at all reasonable times.

5. I recommend that the use of the county's gasoline be more closely scrutinized in order that no gasoline might be delivered or used in any manner except strictly for county purposes, and that all persons in the employment of the county who use the county's gasoline for other than county purposes be discharged after a fair hearing.

6. I recommend to the court that the county sell the five trucks that they now own, as it is my opinion that the county's hauling can be done cheaper by hiring it done than by owning their own trucks and this will also give the work to the people of the county.

7. I further recommend to the Court that if the Commissioners will not agree to sell the county trucks, that a place be prepared in each commissioner's district and have the said trucks locked up at night and prohibit the use of said trucks at night time, unless in cases of emergency and necessity.

8. I further recommend to the Court that no county gasoline be placed in any vehicle except county road tractors and county owned trucks and that such county road tractors and trucks be operated only and exclusively when actually performng services for the county."

And Mr. H. E. Robinson made a motion to adopt said recommendation but there was not a second to said motion and thus the recommendations were not adopted. I submit to the taxpayers whether or not these recommendations are timely in view of the situation regarding the gasoline in the County and the only offer made by the Commissioners Court, and I might say the first, to remedy the gasoline situation, was to call a mass meeting, the purpose of said meeting to give them and the people an opportunity to explain what they knew about the gasoline being illegally used, and as to this they refused to fix any date for the mass meeting.

If the people of Chilton County are satisfied for the records be kept at a man's private residence when the man, himself, is the person charged with the responsibility of handling and accounting for this gasoline, then I have no further statement or criticism to make and if the people of this county are content to permit the county's gasoline to be used in private cars, then I will have to submit to this also.

This is not the only matter that has come before the Commissioners Court in the past year or more in matters of which I stood opposed to the Court, as there have been many illegal claims presented to the Court and passed by the Commissioners and approved by their attorney, Mr. Percy M. Pitts, which I have turned down, and also three of the Commissioners, themselves, have had bills which were illegal and which I have turned down and they later amended the claims and accepted considerable less amounts than originally filed and these claims are now on file in the Probate office. The claim of Mr. Pitts, himself, for $500.00 as county attorney was passed by the Commissioners Court and I turned this down in view of Code Section No. 5024 which clearly says that no county or state officer can make a contract or be in the employment of the Commissioners Court, and Mr. Pitts being a member of the Legislature and a state officer, is prohibited from drawing this money, and I, therefore, turned this claim down. I have discussed the legality of these claims with Mr. Pitts and the Commissioners and have suggested that they bring action against me in Court in the form of a mandamus proceeding and let the Court determine whether or not these claims are legal, but none of the parties have seen fit to take such action.

The commissioners in their article charge me with politics and if it is politics for an officer to try to safe-guard the county's money and to see that it is spent in a legal way, then I am guilty.

Two years ago Mr. J. C. Atchison and Mr. C. D. Duke circulated a campaign card over Chilton County where they stated that the debt of Chilton County was only $75,000.00. At the present time the debt of the County is $83,000.00, an increase of $8,000.00, and the present Commissioners in their term have spent over $200,000.00 more than was spent in the same period of time by their predecessors, and Chilton County today for the first time in many years is unable to pay its bills. It is apparent to anyone that Chilton County is headed for bankruptcy and I have done my best to fight against this and to save the county's financial standing, but a man alone cannot do much, and if the situation into which Chilton County is not enough to arouse the people of this County, then I am helpless to prevent the ultimate outcome.

September 12, 1934.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

Mr. Haber Hanson is now in Detroit Michigan.

Miss Edith Johnson remained in Gary, Ind. for an extended "good time."

Miss Esther Johnson returned to her teaching at Baker School in Birmingham Monday. She said she had been asked by some to write something again about the Fair, so has made these few remarks:

If any here are still contemplating attending the Fair, I advise taking a heavy wrap. There are many points of interest for anyone. The Venetian Glass Blowers make all sorts of beautiful glassware as in Vence. The pageant "Wings of a Century" depicts the progress of transportation from the first trains and steamboats up to present-day streamline buses and automobiles. There the older people may recall the days of the horse car, railroad and perhaps courtships on the bicycles built for two. The Travel and Transport Building displays the oldest and newest in trains, mail cars, automobiles, etc.

There for exhibition are the first all aluminum Pullman and the aluminum Burlington Train. There is the "Zephyr" built of stainless steel is electric shot-welded, rides on articulated tracks, is powered by an eight-cylinder, two-cycle, 660 horse-power, oil-burning Diesel engine, runs on roller bearings, is air conditioned, and is equipped far radio reception. The Zephyr broke all long distance non-stop World's Records for railroad trains when it ran 1015 miles from Denver, Colo., to Chicago in 785 minutes. Its average speed on the dawn-to-dusk flight was 77.6 miles an hour and its top speed was 112.5 miles an hour.

In this same building is a Studebaker built for exhibition that is 125 times the size of an ordinary car. It can seat fifteen people across in the front seat. An eight-year old boy there did not reach up to the hub cap on the wheel.

In the Alaskan Village is an Eskimo dog team. The dogs have fur as heavy as bears and weigh from 80 to 110 pounds each. On the Chrysler Motors Tracks Barney Oldfield speeds several times daily in a Plymouth six showing how it holds its balance though driven at 45 and 50 miles an hour at a 45 degree angle. His "Hell Drivers" test the strength of the Plymouth as they drive over continuous ruts 4 and five feet deep at a speed of 50 miles or so an hour. The cars leap the ground several feet as they literally leap from one rut to the next.

In the Science Building Washington's false teeth are on display. Folks may be thankful for modern dentists after seeing these teeth. They are certainly crude and even have a little gold chain joining the upper and lower paltes

The ten new villages add a different atmosphere to the Fair this year. In these are floor shows typical of the countries they represent. The German "Black Forest" Village is the favorite. It has a winter setting with snow on all the buildings, icycles hanging from the roofs and ice-skating done by Olympic Champions. In "Merrie England" there is a Queen Elizabeth pageant, and Shakespearian plays are put on at different hours. The Colonial Village has the spirit of '76. In it are a replica of Mt. Vernon, the old North Church, and the like.

The fountains at the Fair are lovely. There is the one in the Electrical Group the huge Lagoon Fountain, and the Firestone Fountains all playing in different changing colors. The Firestone Fountains are controlled by recorded music. As the music gets louder, the fountains are high and bright but when the music wanes, the fountains also wane in size and vividness.

In the Ford Bulding all sorts of old vehicles are exhibited. The Ford Exhibition is the largest on the Fair Grounds It takes a mechanically minded person to get full benefit from it but I might mention that Ford shows the use of the oil from the soy bean and that from a wheel fastened to the ceiling there are four Fords suspended, each car fastened to and hanging from a single spoke of this wheel.

Lovers of music could find every type of music at the Fair from the W. L. S. Barn Dance (during Farm Week) to the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at the Ford Symphony Gardens and the Chicago Symphony at the Swift Bridge. Both of these orchestras played afternoons and evenings daily and there was no charge.

In case any of you should go to Canada and want to mail some cards look for the "Dominion Public Building." That is what the Post Office is called there. And by the way, people in Canada who want beer, now go across to the U. S. A. to get it because it cannot be had in Canada without a permit.

McCary-Dawson

A wedding of much interest to their many friends and relatives was that of Miss Ida McCary and Mr. Evan Dawson of this community. The wedding was solemnized Sunday at Jemison about 10:00 o'clock. Their many friends and relatives congratulate them and wish them many happy and successful years together. God be with you both.

Misses Mildred and Martha Hayes and Lydia McCary and Mr. and Mrs. Evans Dawson were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hayes.

Mrs. Hesteranne Merchant of Thorsby and Miss Hazel Maddox were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Maddox Sunday.

Miss Lucille Cleckler was a dinner guest of Miss Zemma Hayes Sunday.

We are glad to report that the sick of this community are better and able to come back to church.

Mrs. Wilbert Maddox spent Saturday night and Sunday with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. F. Childress of Mt. Carmel.

We are very thankful to Pleasant Grove community for their compliment passed on our ice cream supper and remember us next time. Come back next Saturday night and help us out again. We will guarantee good cream next time. This will be announced in this paper.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

The W. M. U. ladies and some members of Pates Chapel church are chosen to announce that there will be another ice cream supper at this place Saturday night, September 15. There will also be other little things for sale such as candy, chewing gum, etc. Everybody come and bring someone with you.

We are very sorry we had some bad cream before but we asure you that the cream Saturday night will be good. We wish to thank those who helped us before. The proceeds will go to the church for the purpose of church benches. Everybody come and let's eat ice cream.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Columbus, Miss. (ed)
The Fifth Day Of September, Nineteen Hundred Thirty-Four

Well here we are over in Columbus, Mississippi. You know ever since I've been here, I've been trying to figure out some way to change the name of this state. It's enough to run a guy utsnay to write that word all day. Do you remember the time we used to spell it like this—M-i-crooked letter crooked letter i-hump-back hump-back-i? Boy, them was the good old days, when we had only one hat and wore it only on Sunday to go to church under, and when we returned home we placed it right back in the bag on the shelf. But that has nothing to do with Mississippi nor Columbus. Unless Columbus had a hat one time before he discovered America, and the Queen locked him up in the calaboose. Columbus must have been a great guy. In fact, I don't believe he ever had a hat because every picture I've seen of him he was hatless. But even at that maybe he had nothing to do with Columbus, Miss., so we'll try to get back where we started but didn't go. On second thought the Queen might have locked him up because he didn't have a hat or something.

You remember the other day I was telling you about the mud in Louisana? Well, you ain't seen nothing yet until you get over here in Miss. I can see now where the inspiration came from for that song about "Mississippi Mud." Say, you know if I write that word many more times I'm going utsnay, or back to old Alabama where you don't have to wear shoes to keep the mud from oozing up between your toes and spreading them out, and where it don't hurt you either to sit in it, and stuff like that.

Let's forget about that mud business. Almost every time I think about mud it brings back memories of the time the lady frightened me beyond recognition when I saw her with a mud pack on her face. Phew!

What I really started out to tell you, or rather was sitting here to tell you, was about goats. You know about goats. Or maybe you don't. They have another word for them, and can you imagine what I found they call them in Arkansas? Why they call them goats, you nut. Now let the cork come back up.

I was telling someone the other day about a slow town. Well, I've found one in Mississippi (there goes that word again) that gets the fur lined bath tub. I got on a train there and discovered they had a cow-catcher on the last coach. On inquiring I was told it was to protect the train and keep the cows and things from running into the back of it. And do they have their towns close together. Why in some cases when a train stops in one town, it has to back up to blow for the next stop. Well, I'll be round again sometime, most anytime.

—"Uncle Dudley"

SAYS HIS MARK WILL GO BENEATH THE ROOSTER

Editor, Chilton County News:

I am begging for a little space, if you please, to reply or rather explain a few things to my "critics". I'm sure you understand the plight Reuben Jackson and I have been in. We have had a lot of bumps and knocks to even get where we are. Some charge that I ain't no Democrat, that my father was a strong Republican, etc. Now, listen to this, my father voted in the Populist party, voted for William Jennings Bryan for the presidency, followed "Teddy" Roosevelt to his own Bull Moose party, later he joined the Republican party. Under present conditons who can say how he would be voting? You that believe somewhat in inheritance, don't blame me. Some do not like my stand on prohibition. I consider it a national public issue, an open and above question, subject to discussion by one and all. My father did not believe in prohibition. He thought the two-quart law the best law we ever had, and I think so too. You readers that are somewhat informed realize that prohibition did not help Mr. Hoover, and if those fellows around the court house will come out and tell us they believe in prosecuting and persecuting a man for having a drink they will find plenty of room on the back seat with Mr. Hoover.

I have associated with both parties locally. One party is just as much wet as the other. I believe the Democrats are a little more partcular about the quality and quantity. Others say I ought not to say anything 'cause I'm not a taxpayer. I reply here that everybody and his wife pay taxes, and that brings in me and my wife.

I hope I will not be drawn into any tax controversy and have to tell what little I know about the different forms of taxation. Someone would be sure to say I was talking out of school, and I don't want to do that. It has been hinted around that someone was dictating my letters. All I have to say to this is: I thank those that are guilty very much for their compliment.

Some say I am a mad or dissatisfied Republican. I partly agree with them, and I believe there are about four or five hundred "Teddy" Roosevelt Republicans in the same boat with me.

When you get a progressive Republican stirred up just right he is pretty sure to vote against something. I will have to admit that I still have a good feeling towards these kind of Republicans.

There are many things I might mention, but I will close by saying I will make my mark in the circle right under the rooster. You may hear from me again when I get my subscription paid up.

Yours truly,
S. Y. DORMINEY.

OUR ERROR

In last week's issue of the Chilton County News, an error was made in the signature of the advertisement signed The Verbena Cash Grocery & Feed Company. This signature should have been Deramus Cash Grocery & Feed Company, Verbena, Ala. The News regrets this error.

The Deramus Cash Grocery & Feed Company is operated by T. B. Deramus and is one of Verbena's leading stores. Mr. Deramus features a complete line of groceries and feeds, also many other items of merchandise.

Black-Draught For Dizziness, Headache Due To Constipation

"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught several years and find it splendid," writes Mr. G. W. Holley, of St. Paul, Va. "I take it for dizziness or headache (due to constipation). I have never found anything better. A short while ago, we began giving our children Syrup of Black-Draught as a laxative for colds and little stomach ailments, and have found it very satisfactory." . . . Millions of packages of Thedford's Black-Draught are required to satisfy the demand for this popular, old reliable, purely vegetable laxative. 25¢ a package. "Children like the Syrup."

Safeguarding All Interests

The Bell Telephone System is so organized and regulated that your interests as a user of the service are safeguarded, as well as the interests of the 800,000 or more individuals who have invested their savings in the business. The welfare of the army of 270,000 Bell telephone workers who build, maintain, and operate the business is equally safeguarded. To favor any one of these groups at the expense of the others would not only be poor judgment, but contrary to the fundamental policy of the business.

If the best interests of all the people are to be served, then revenues should be sufficient to assure the continuation of the best possible grade of telephone service and to insure the continued financial integrity of the business.

The earnings of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company during the best years of its history have never exceeded 7% on its investment. During the past three years the average was less than 5%, and in 1933 it dropped to about 4%.

Such inadequate earnings might easily have endangered the foundation structure of the business and hampered the service but for the Company's farsighted policy of retaining each year a small part of the earnings to care for financial stress during unprofitable years.

As a result of this sound policy, telephone service has not been allowed to suffer, but on the contrary has been constantly improved during the past four years. And the scope of the service has been extended to the far corners of the earth, so that you can now talk to almost anyone, anywhere, at any time, quickly, and at a surprisingly small cost.

In this way the telephone company has fulfilled and will strive to continue to fulfill its obligation to the public, that of furnishing the best possible service at a cost as low as is consistent with financial safety.

State of Alabama

A PROCLAMATION

by the

GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the legislature of Alabama at an extraordinary session held during the year, 1932, ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held at the General Election in November, 1934, and

WHEREAS, the General Election in November, 1934, is to be held on Tuesday, November 6, 1934, as provided by law, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law, and by the provisions of the Act submitting the said amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each County in the State of Alabama once a week for eight (8) successive weeks immediately preceding the said 6th day of November, 1934;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 6th day of November, 1934, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> The Legislature of Alabama hereafter from time to time by general or local laws, but subject to the provisions of Section 281 of the Constitution of Alabama, may fix, regulate and alter the costs, charges of court, fees, commissions, allowances or salaries be charged or received by the following county officers of Mobile County, Alabama, the Judge of Probate, the Tax Assessors, the Tax Collector, the Clerk of the Circuit Court, and the Register of the Circuit Court, including the method and basis of the compensation of such officers.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 6th day of November, 1934, in each County of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 19th day of July, 1934.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

Attest:

PETE B. JARMAN JR.,
Secretary of State.

MRS. CHAS. L. MILLER SEVERELY BURNED BY GAS EXPLOSION

Mrs. Charles L. Miller (Virgia Owen) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Owen of near Clanton was severely burned at her home in Coling, Ala., on Sunday afternoon.

The accident occurred when Mrs. Miller struck a match unthoughtedly near a quantity of gas which exploded, igniting her clothing. Her arms, neck face and head are most seriously burned.

The noise of the explosion was heard several blocks away, causing quite a bit of excitement.

Mrs. Miller was rushed to a Tuscaloosa hospital and latest reports state she is resting very well.

Her many friends here regret to learn of the unfortunate accident and wish her a speedy recovery.

Holiday and late mail caused us to miss our news last week. But here we are again.

Some of last week's news was the arrival of Mr. J. A. Champion of Loxley, Ala., for a few days visit among relatives and friends here. He went to Bessemer with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Champion and sons, Dalton and Sanders, to visit their sister, Mrs. Will Kellum, Saturday and Sunday.

The Misses Champions had as their Sunday night guests their brother, Mr. J. A. Champion, who started back home Monday morning, and their sisters, Mrs. Dovie Dawson and Mrs. Frank Davenport and husband, Frank Davenport, and children, Edith and James Frank; also their niece and little son, Cecil, Mrs. Monroe Franklin and Mr. Phillip Franklin. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Miskelley spent a while with them Sunday evening.

Mrs. Adair went to Birmingham last week.

Mrs. Vollie Glass and little son, Douglas, who have been in the T.C.I. hospital have returned home very much improved.

Messrs. Isaac and Allen Waldrop visited Mr. Monroe Franklin Sunday p. m., who is sick again.

Mr. Lewie Wright fell on some old rubbish last week and cut his hand badly. It took six stitches to sew it up.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Woodley are the happy parents of a fine young son, born Sunday morning, September 9. Mother and son are doing nicely.

Mrs. Jimmie Franklin and children spent Saturday night with her sister, Mrs. Maye Foshee and also Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Emma Waldrip.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wright visited their daughter, Mrs. Erskin Martin of Union Grove Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vasteen Davenport and little daughter, Frances Gene, were guests of his home folks, Mr. E. C. Davenport and family, Saturday night and Sunday.

Mrs. Hermie Hodgens and children visited her home folks, Mr. Jim Miskelley and family, Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Justice Waldrop of near Randolph have carried their little three-year-old daughter to the Baptist Hospital. She fell on an ax two weeks ago last Friday and cut her knee very badly and it has become so badly infected that it seems that there is almost no hopes, but let's trust in the One who heals all diseases and if it is His will she will be healed. His way is best. Mrs. Waldrop was formerly Miss Jessie Gibson of this community. She has a host of relatives and friends who are very much interested in her and we are all hoping for the best.

The sick people of this place seem to be feeling some better.

Mrs. Carlos' sister, Mrs. Burkett of Canoe, Ala., who made an extended visit here has returned home.

Thrills The Watchword At Alabama State Fair

Birmingham, Ala.—Sensations and thrills are to be the rule rather than the exception at the Alabama State Fair when it throws open its gates Monday morning, Sept. 24, for a week's run in Birmingham. Manager P. T. Strieder has been burning the wires up for big acts with which to give the thousands who will visit this year's Fair plenty of thrills.

One of the real nerve-shockers for that big week will be the appearance of Elfrieda Mays, champion dirt track automobile driver of the world in feminine competition, who will crash thru a flaming board wall while driving her high powered racer at seventy miles an hour. This sensational human catapult will swirl through space and into a solid board wall twice daily directly in front of the grand stand. Those who have seen Miss Mays accomplish this seemingly impossible feat say that it is one of the greatest breath-taking episodes the American public has ever witnessed.

Other features that will go to make it a week of thrills at the Fair Grounds include the first appearance in the south of Dr. Carver's world famous diving horses. These athletic equines while standing on a platform forty feet in mid air, with girl jockeys sitting astride them, plunge through space and dive into tanks of water ten feet deep. Then, there is the lion that rides as passenger with a girl motor cyclist as she swirls at a death-defying pace around the wooden walls of a motordrome.

Yes, indeed, it would seem as if thrills make up the watchword at the Fair this year, what with automobile races in which the foremost dirt track drivers of the world will compete for the huge purses offered by the state fair management this year, being held two days instead of one. Heretofore, it has been customary to stage the auto races on Saturday, the last day of the Fair. This year the dare devils will give fair visitors thrills on Tuesday, as well as Saturday.

In regard to other departments of the Fair, Manager Strieder states that everything points to capacity exhibits in every building. The Poultry and Rabbit shows may have to arrange for extra housing, so great is becoming the demand for space in those buildings. Dr. M. F. Jackson also states that it looks like the biggest agricultural show in the history of the exposition. Commissioner of Agriculture, Seth P. Storrs and his associates at Montgomery have already arranged for 150 feet of space for their eleven units in the agricultural building. Dr. Jackson also states that a great flower show is in the making, with individual exhibits and those from florists as well, coming in at a fast pace.

Contracts were let the past week for conditioning the race track, for installing thousands of dollars worth of extra electrical equipment, for installing new plumbing throughout the grounds and for the construction of the many booths in the woman's department, the fine arts department and the educational department. Mrs. W. W. Harmon, of the woman's department, is elated with the cooperation she has received thus far in insuring feminine visitors the greatest exhibit of their own creative efforts that their eyes have ever feasted on.

All school children in Alabama are invited to attend the Fair absolutely free Monday, opening day, between the hours of 9 in the forenoon and 6 p.m.

FARMER HELD

stated.

"I'm glad that you came after me for I don't want to get in any more trouble, but I'm going to kill Edwards if we both stay on the ground," he is alleged to have said. He was placed in jail on peace proceedings.

Edwards was released a few days ago on a $500 bond. Young Bankston was killed at the home of his brother-in-law on September 28 during a family quarrel, according to information given officers who investigated the case. Edwards is alleged to have shot him with a 12-gauge shotgun, when he said that the youth advanced toward him with a knife. Mrs. Edwards, sister of the dead youth, is said to have told officers that her husband shot her brother while he had his hands in the air pleading for him not to shoot.

Edwards and his wife had been separated for sometime and had just become reconciled when the shooting occurred. Edwards declared that young Bankston was angry because of this reconciliation and came over and started an argument. He shot him in self-defense he told officers.

Will Vaccinate More Dogs Tuesday, 18th

According to plans now completed and announced Clanton and Chilton County dog owners will have opportunity to get their dogs vaccinated against rabies next Tuesday, Sept. 18. A great deal of this work was done in Clanton a short time ago, but due to shortage of vaccine it could not be completed.

Dr. P. T. Hinkle will be located at Geo. McCain's barn, and Dr. W. L. Parrish will be at Joe Baker's store in Clanton. The city will pay costs of vaccine for dogs located in the corporate limits, while those outside will be charged for at the rate of 35 cents each, according to information given the News.

Thorsby Theatre Gets New Sound System

C. W. Wade Is Making Preparations For Show To Open October First With C. D. Gibbons, Mgr.

Thorsby will have the opportunity of going to a first class talking picture on Monday, October 1st, 1934. They will have the kind of shows to be entertained with that they will not regret going to see. Mr. C. D. Gibbons has been made manager of the theatre. He announced that he has already two months bookings, and s very much pleased with the class of pictures that will be shown.

It is to be remembered that Mr. Gibbons had charge of the old theatre several years ago when silent pictures were here. It is to be remembered that he always cooperated with every organization for the benefit of all concerned.

Nothing but first class, clean, moral pictures will be shown and everyone is invited out to the first show on Monday and Tuesday, October 1st, and 2nd, showing "Let's Be Ritzy."

now on relief rolls and other adults who are in need of further general education well informed, responsible, contented and self-supporting citizens.

Training will be offered in Literacy Education; Common School Branches; Advanced Adult Education; Public Aftrial and Commercial Courses, and varimaking and Health Education; Industrial and Commercal Courses, and various types of Vocational Education.

Percy Johnson, of Jemison, has been selected to supervise this work in Chilton County and for some time has been busy formulating plans for the work in the various communities, and taking applications from unemployed teachers who are interested in securing one of these adult schools. He announced this week that teachers who have not registered with him for this work and who desire to secure this employment should see him at once at the office of the county superintendent of education.

Teachers for adult schools will be selected from the unemployed teachers in the county. All teachers must have certificates, it was explained, before they can be given employment under these provisions.

Especially will every effort be made to reach those in the county who can neither read nor write, Mr. Little stated. Through these sessions it is hoped that the county's illiteracy can be greatly minimized.

Pay for teachers in these adult schools will range from $12 to $15 per week for thirty hours work. A part of this time to be spent in the class room and the remainder in community work.

Mr. and Mrs. Foshee Observe Sixtieth Anniversary

Both in good health and enjoying the warm friendship of all who know them, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hugh Foshee, one of Clanton's highly respected couples, have been receiving the congratulations of their countless friends on having reached their sixtieth wedding anniversary which occurred last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Foshee, one of Clanton's most prominent families, were among the first to come to this county years ago. It is most interesting to hear either of them speak of the day they were married, about the time they rode horseback mile after mile in their determination to establish themselves a little home.

The News joins these many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Foshee in extending warmest congratulations and wish them many more years of continued happy and prosperous married life.

EIGHT INJURED

o'clock at the Central Alabama Hospital where he was taken for treatment, when his car collided with a truck on the highway near Pleasant Grove, several miles north of Jemison, shortly after noon Sunday.

Others injured in the two wrecks are: Howard Mathison, Phillip Garrett, Mrs. Phillip Garrett, Miss Minerva McLane, all occupants of the Morrison machine, and residents of DeFuniack Springs, Jimmy Cofer, of Clanton Route 3, who suffered a broken leg when he was struck by one of the cars at Pleasant Grove wreck. He was walking along the highway. Three negroes, Zephur Austin, Callie Fogan and Willie B. Cash, all of Birmingham, suffered slight injuries in the smash-up in which Sanders was killed. They were all treated at the Central Alabama Hospital, where they were rushed by a Martin & Sons ambulance.

Sanders never regained consciousness. His head was badly crushed and his face was marred beyond recognition. His head struck the windshield and framework of his sport model roadster. Occupants of the negro car declared that Sanders topped the hill, near the J. N. Dennis home, at a rapid rate of speed and was on the wrong side of the road, and apparently shoved on his brakes, losing control of the car. The left front wheels of the two cars struck and the Sanders car overturned in a ditch.

Morrison was badly mangled, suffering fractures to both legs, lacerations about the face and head, and internal injuries. He lived several hours. The Morrison party was returning to DeFuniack Springs from a trip to the World's Fair in Chicago. Witnesses of the collision declared that the Morrison machine and the truck, which was driven by Arthur Davis, of Clanton Route 3, struck head-on when the driver of the truck apparently tried to avoid hitting Cofer, who was walking along the highway.

Sanders, who was accountant for the Ward Baking Company in Jacksonville, Fla., was enroute to Hartselle, where his wife was visiting her parents. His body was prepared by Martin & Sons and was taken to Hartselle late Sunday night. Sanders was identified by a card in his pocket which bore the name of Z. H. Sanders and directed that A. L. Sanders of Trenton, Fla., be notified in case of accident.

A. L. Sanders, who is the father of the dead man, arrived in Clanton early Monday morning and proceeded on to Hartselle. He said that he planned to have the body of his son removed to Trenton for burial.

The body of Morrison was taken to DeFuniack early Monday by ambulance. Several members of the family and friends arrived in Clanton shortly after midnight Sunday and made arrangements for the body to be taken to his home. Mr. Morrison was a World War veteran and was commander of the DeFuniack Springs Post of the American Legion. He was operator of a gas service station and accessory business in DeFdniack. Garrett, who was with him and was among the injured, is assistant postmaster at DeFuniack Springs.

The injured had all been removed from the hospital Monday, with the exception of Jimmy Cofer, who is being treated for a broken left leg.

Aides at the hospital were busy all night in an effort to relieve the suffering of those injured and making preparation for their removal. Garrett and Mrs. Garrett were taken to a Montgomery hospital. The others were able to be removed to their homes.

Two other wrecks on the highway, near Clanton, resulted only in minor injures. Elijah Mims, of near Clanton, narrowly escaped injury when his car was practically demolished in a collision in South Clanton. He had just driven on to the highway, witnesses said, when a northbound car struck his car.

Miss Nolen Meroney with her sister, Miss Mamie Meroney of Verbena, and Miss Mary Bryan of Montgomery, too, narrowly escaped serious injury when their car overturned near Boswell's Tourist Camp late Sunday afternoon. They were pnned in the car, but suffered only minor injuries. The car overturned when Miss Meroney lost control of the machine after attempting to stop to avoid a collision.

W. S. Cox Will Vote All Of Democratic Ticket

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I am informed that there is some rumor going the rounds in the county to the effect that I may not vote the entire Democratic ticket in the coming election; and I want to say that this rumor is entirely groundless and those who are circulating any information to this effect are doing so without my knowledge or consent.

I am a Democrat by choice, because I believe in the policies of the Democratic Party. The Democratic Party in Chilton County is exceptionally fortunate this year in having a ticket composed of men of outstanding ability, and I can see no reason for any Democrat not voting for every name on the ticket as I am sure that most of us will.

A failure to support the Democratic ticket in our county at this time would be a direct criticism of the National Democratic Administration and a lack of appreciation for the generous aid that has been given us.

Yours for Victory in November,

W. S. COX.

TATE CHARGES JURY SHOULD INVESTIGATE

Says They Should Give A Thorough Sifting To The Gas Tax Matter

In delivering his charge to the Chilton County Grand Jury, which convened Monday morning, Circuit Judge F. Loyd Tate charged its members with the duty of making a thorough investigation of the alleged misuse of county gasoline. "It is your duty," he told them, "to make a thorough investigation of these charges in the same manner that you would any other alleged violation of law, and if you find that these charges are true, it will be your dufy to return true bills against those guilty."

"No doubt in making your investigation, you will be confronted with the charge that politics are responsible for the accusation," he told them, "but your duty will be only to determine whether or not gasoline belonging to to Chilton County has been illegally used; and if you find that it has it will be your duty to return true bills against all guilty persons."

In connection with this charge, Judge Tate made an attack on the members of the recent Legislature, when he told the Grand Jury that they had set an example of law violation before the citizenship of the State with the acceptance of eight dollars per day for their services when they were constitutionally due but four dollars. "This does not, however, license anyone else to violate the laws and if you find that they have. it is your duty to return true bills against them," he stated.

The State Tax Department recently filed a claim against Chilton County for $11,564.75, taxes on gasoline used during the past two years, chargng that the county's gasoline was being used indiscriminately for private use.

Thirty-three other cases are on docket to be investigated by the present Grand Jury. Six of these are homicides, according to information from the office of the Circuit Clerk.

Members of the Grand Jury are:

Joe T. Childress, Jace L. Holley, Clyde C. Lenoir, Wilbur Ward, R. Mose Robinson, Adolphus Gentry, William G. Shaw, John A. Boockholdt, Lee Headley, W. Eddie Childress. George W. Calloway, W. Frank Reynolds, John T. Cooper, Wm. D. Oneal, Lee Ellison, Henry H. Armstrong, Timothy Donovan, W. Monroe Roebuck.

LARGE NUMBER TO BE DROPPED OFF RELIEF ROLL

Good Crops And Other Helps Are Given Credit For Fine Program

In Alabama more than 5,300 families will bid adieu to relief this Fall as a result of the Alabama Rural Rehabilitation program, R.K. Greene, State director of rural rehabilitation, announced yesterday.

The number he said, represents approximately 90 per cent of the total of 5,885 destitute and stranded farm families enrolled in the rural rehabilitation program late last Spring.

Favorable weather conditions which produced abundant crops and gardens plus the use of the steer were credited by Mr. Greene as being strong factors in the success of the program.

In this program an amount in line with the sum which otherwise would have been required to maintain the families on relief for a period of eight or ten months was advanced for the purchase of groceries, equipment and work animals, the families agreeing to repay the amount advanced in work relief labor and in surplus farm produce.

Mr. Greene estimated that fully 90 per cent of those enrolled would repay their obligations in full this Fall.

Reports have already been received from 32 countes showing the progress made by families in repaying obligations. These range from 19.4 per cent of liquidation of indebtedness in Lee County to 93.80 per cent liquidation in Barbour County as of Sept. 1.

A. J. Mayes, work director of Barbaour County, in a report of R.K. Greene. said yesterday that by the end of the current week all of the Barbour County rehablitation formers will have repaid in full their obligations.

Once the obligations are paid the rehabilitation farmers will own all farm equipment and work stock purchased for them, in addition to ample food and feed for themselves and livestock during the Winter.

Of the 32 counties reporting on liquidation of obligations to Sept. 1, among those who reported that two thirds or more of the total obligations had been paid are Baldwin, Conecuh, Crenshaw, DeKalb, Sumter and Washington.

Resume Of Sen. Hugo Black's Address Here Last Saturday

"I appreciate very much the pleasure of being with you people in Chilton County today. I have never felt when I come to Chilton County that I am in the presence of strangers. This county is related in every conceivable manner to the county in which I was born and reared. I came from over in Clay County, where they have the same rugged, sturdy type of citizenship that is found in Chilton County. Unfortunately I also can see evidences that mark this county similar to many other counties, which causes a thoughtful man to wonder why a county, blessed with a people who work in every respect as diligently as they do in any state of the Union, should not enjoy that degree of success which I believe that their work entitles them to have. I refer to the entire section, and not to any individual county, when I make the statement that the South has not received for some reason that development that its natural wealth, and the staunch devotion of its citizens to their ideals, entitles it.

"I am not unmindful as I go through this county I find a beautiful stretch of highway built of federal funds, which evidences a far seeing vision of someone, for they saw that it should be as nearly straight as possible. I think that I know something of the characteristics of the people of this county. I certainly know the characteristics of the people in the county in which I was born. I think we are very much the same. I have never criticized any man for doing what he thought was best for his county, state or nation. If he votes conscientiously and thinks that he is doing that which he considers is right, he is entitled not to criticism, but to public applause. I may disagree heartily with his judgment in the decision which he reaches, but I respect his privilege to exercise the sovereign right of a sovereign citizen. I have never been before you to criticize any man for voting the Republican ticket, and I never shall. If you think that in voting the Republican ticket you are doing the best for your county, state and nation, then that is what I would expect you to do. I am somewhat familiar with the history of this county. I have tried to become familiar with the history of the state since its admittance into the Union in 1819. I, too, am somewhat familiar with circumstances which caused some of you to break away from the Democratic party many years ago.

"What I want to show today is that if there was ever a time when you felt that you were justified in leaving the Democratic party for another which you believed would deal more fairly and justly by you, that day is passed. What I want to show you, if I can, is the humanized government under the new deal. I want to show that at last a party with a leader, who has a human heart, has been developed. A party which feels the pulse beat of the average man; which looks into his heart; goes into his home-life by endeavoring to give him a fair price for the products of his farm and a fair wage to the laborer for his labor.

"If you will recall that was not true of the party who was formerly in control. You will remember that that party took away from labor that which was its own. When I say labor, I mean not only the man who works in the factory and the mine, but also the man of the farm. In those days the man on the farm, the man in the mine, and the man in factory were not getting fair compensation for their labor. What I want to show you people, my friends, my kind of people, that I am today speaking on a program which is to your advantage, and which is to the disadvantage of those beneficiaries of the regime who have had their hands straining the life-blood out of their bodies of the men who toil for a living. I trust that you will not consider this a criticism, because of your political affiliations in the past. But what I want to tell you today is that you have a party that you can turn to in your hour of need and receive help. In the first place this is a new kind of program, based on an entirely different theory—a theory which will mean happiness and satisfaction to the good people of Chilton County and the nation. The old order has always gone on the theory of concentration of the wealth in the hands of the few, without giving consideration to the fact that that 90 per cent of that which is bought is purchased by the men who work in the factories, in the mines, and on the farms. It is true that whatever you raise on your farm n this county, 90 per cent of it must be purchased by the average man.

"We certainly woke up to the fact that two years ago that every one, except for a favored few who had been drawing on fat contracts from the government, were broke. The merchants in your town were broke; you were broke. There was only one business that was flourishing in those days. That was the red ink business. Some believe that we have taken away your liberty wth the new deal regulations. We have taken away your liberty to sell your cotton for five cents per pound. In 1932 we were getting five cents per pound for cotton, and it hardly paid for the fertilizer and the interest on the mortgage. Since 1921 the value of the dollar has been gradually going down. The farm dollar has gradually gone down until it was 48 cents compared to $1.18 a few years ago. Often he was faced with the problems 'must he sell his cotton, or should he hold it?' He asked his merchant and banker. They told you that you had better sell— it may go as low as three or four cents. If I heard that

COTTON PLAN AIDS FARMER IN LONG RUN

Twelve Cent Guarantee Will Enable Farmers To Save On Their Crop

Many farmers in the cotton belt have ginned their cotton, need money for it and are holding it waiting for details on the proposed government loan. Thus, farmers who need money are being forced to sell their cotton or make a small loan at some bank. This program, according to Mr. Williamson, will enable farmers to get at once sixty dollars a bale for their cotton to take care of immediate needs and enable them to hold their cotton until they are ready to sell. If the market rises they can call their cotton and sell it anytime they want to, receiving the benefit of increase in price. If the market goes down they will have their twelve cents per pound, and will not be responsible for any losses."

The American Cotton Cooperative Association was a leading factor in the working out of the proposed Federal loan and has been leading a move since 1932 to securing the parity price of fifteen cents for cotton. During the present season farmers who signed the reduction contracts and received rental benefits and who take the twelve cent loan will just about receive the 1910-1914 parity for their cotton.

The directors and managers of the fourteen state and regional associations represented in the board of the American Cotton Cooperative Association, which is the central sales agency for the state associations, have been meeting in New Orleans for the past two days working out the details on the association's twelve cent loan and handling routine affairs of the association. Directors representing every section of the cotton belt were present. There are some 250,000 farmer members of the state and regional associations with representatives attending the meetng.

BABY CONTEST ENDED HERE LAST TUESDAY

Much Interest Created By Affair Sponsored By Local Church

The Clanton Baby Popularity Contest, which has been under way here for the past two weeks under the auspices of the Missionary Circle Number Two of the Clanton Methodist church, closed Tuesday afternoon. Little Sara Maude Mullins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reid Mullins, was crowned Clanton's most popular baby with a vote of 1,944.

First, second and third awards were announced Wednesday night at the presentation of "Black-Eyed Susan" at the Chilton County High School building. James Heflin Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Taylor, won second place with 1,600 votes, and George McCain, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George McCain. received third award with a vote of 1,481.

The contest was conducted by each entrant having a sponsor who solicited votes for her baby at the rate of one cent per vote. A total of $133.11 was collected during the contest. This money is to be added to the treasury of the missionary circle.

Other entrants were:

Cotton Growers Beware

It is rumored that strangers have approached farmers in the county offering them above the market for their cotton. Place your cotton in the government loan or sell to a reliable cotton buyer. Any person who offers you above the market will bear watching. Before trading with strangers consult your banker or your county agent.

Cotton Loan Forms Have Been Received

The proper forms for securing the 12-cent cotton loans from the federal government have been received in Chilton county, according to R. K. Welch, local representative of the Alabama Cotton Cooperative association. Farmers wishing to take advantage of this loan may do so by getting in touch with Mr. Welch at the office of the county agent, it was stated.

There will be no charges except the regular fee of 25 cents per month for storage on each bale and the 4 per cent interest on the loan, it was explained. Cotton may be stored in Clanton, he said, as cheaply as in any other place in the State.

When coming to the office to effect this loan, farmers are required to bring with them samples of the cotton for grading. Banks will charge no exchange for cashing drafts for farmers.

HUGO BLACK SPOKE TO HUGE CROWD HERE

Alabama Senior Senator Tells People Of Splendid Improvements Made

Speaking to an audience that crowded to capacity the court house auditorium at Clanton last Saturday, Senator Hugo Black painted two contrasting pictures of modern government in which his listeners had reason to be interested.

From the gloomy days of the Herber Hoover regime until today, he traced in minute detail the steps of President Roosevelt's gigantic new deal recovery program, declaring that at last the people of America have a party with a leader who feels the pulse beat of the average man.

Senator Black was introduced by Dr. V. J. Gragg, who has been closely acquainted with him and his activities since first being inaugerated into public life several years ago.

Two contrasting pictures were the theme of the fifty-minute address which

CITY ELECTION HELD MONDAY IN THORSBY

M. J. Soberg Elected Mayor; Pate, Martin, Wyatt, Willis, Smith, Winners

City officials for the town of Thorsby, one of this section's most enterprising little towns, were elected in the regular election Monday. M. J. Soberg was named mayor, winning over his opponent Grover A. Bice, by a substantial vote. Mr. Soberg was named mayor-protem several months ago to serve the unexpired term of Mayor Carl Christian Peterson, who died about a year ago.

Members of the council named in Monday's election to serve the coming term of two years: Sam M. Pate, N. L. Martin, V. E. Wyatt, M. E. Willis, and J. M. Smith. Several others were candidates for membership on the council of the little Chilton County metropolis, including W. A. Honeycutt, C. S. Howard, E. E. Porter, John Childress and D. Gentry.

The council is composed of five members, and in the city election the five receiving the highest number of votes are elected to this capacity. Those men elected are all well known business men of Thorsby and it is believed that under their administration, the Town of Thorsby will continue its march of progress.

O. H. Stone Succeeds W. Kelley In U.S.R.S. Here

O. H. Stone. of Montgomery, has been named successor to W. B. Kelley as manager of the Clanton office of the United States Re-employment Service with supervision of the employment of all workmen for the several federal projects which are underway in this county. He assumed his duties here Monday.

Mr. Stone has been connected with this program since its anaugeration about a year ago. Before coming to Clanton, he was associated with the re-employment service in both Elmore and Houston counties, but was transferred to Chilton from Houston County.

In commenting on the local program, Mr. Stone announced that he has not learned just when work may be expected to begin on the Clanton Post Office and the several other projects in Chilton County, but anticipates the work to be well underway within a few weeks.

He issued a warning to all persons who wish to secure work on these jobs to be sure that their registration is kept active, pointing out that all applicants for work must contact the office once each thirty days.

C. FENN JONES ELECTED MAYOR LAST MONDAY

All Former Councilmen Are Retained By Voters Of Clanton

The voters of Clanton named their city officials for the coming term of two years in the regular election Monday. C. Fenn Jones, retired Clanton business man, was named mayor with a vote of 374 against 109 for his opponent, P. D. Wilson.

Every member of the present council was re-elected. Grady Heflin, cashier of the Peoples Saving Bank of Clanton, lead the ticket with a vote of 444. The next highest was J. Watts Moore, former member of the firm of Mullins & Moore, who received a vote of 424. The votes received by the others were as follows: L.E. Diefenderfer, 403; H.S. Shaw, 395; W.L. (Fate) Popwell, 348. Dr. J.E. Gowan, the only candidate not a member of the present council, received a vote of 260. The five highest are elected.

Several names were written in on the ticket. Horsely White, local agent for the Nehi Bottling Company, received 38 votes for member of the council; Otto Jones, employe of the First National Bank, was given nine votes; Jeff Ruffin, local merchant, received 3; John C. Page, Armond Waggoner, Sankey Little, Pud Walker, Clint Wesson, and G. D. Little each polled one vote. These names were not on the ticket, but were written in a spirit of fun or admiration by their friends.

HIRAM T. LITTLEJOHN BURIED AT LIBERTY HILL LAST FRIDAY

Funeral services for Hiram T. Littlejohn, 68, who died suddenly at his home in the Littlejohn community last Thursday morning, were held last Friday from the Liberty Hill church, of which he was a member. Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist church, officiated. Burial was in the churchyard cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

He is survived by his widow and two small children. Mr. Littlejohn was a lifelong resident of that community, where he was known to be a man of high character. He had been complaining for some months, but his death came as a great surprise to members of his family.

MRS. LUDIE LENOIR MEMBER OF SELLING STAFF AT MAZAR'S

The management of the new Mazar's store announced the connection with its staff of Mrs. Ludie Lenoir in the capacity of saleslady. Mrs. Lenoir is well known to the people of this section, having been connected for a great number of years with the Robinson's Department Store, which was operated at the same location. She invites her friends to visit her.

The many friends of Tom Kemp, popular merchant of Clanton, will regret to learn that he is confined to his home with an attack of Typhus fever. Mr Kemp became ill several days ago, but is slightly better, according to information from members of his family.

MAZAR'S STORE TO HAVE A BIG OPENING SATUR.

New Dry Goods Firm Makes Announcement In The News This Week

Saturday, September 22, will mark the official opening of the new Mazar's Store in the Mullins Building on Main Street. This store will be one of the largest department stores in Chilton County and will carry a complete line of general merchandise, specializing in women's ready-to-wear.

During the week's sale, which will open Saturday, hundreds of bargains will be featured which will be an innovation to the buying public of Chilton County, according to a statement from E. A. Lewis, manager of the new concern.

"We expect this sale to acquaint the buying public of this section with our policies of higher quality merchandise at lower prices, and through this sale we expect to win recognition as a store which operates on the Golden Rule." declared Mr. Lewis in commenting on the coming event.

With a stock of merchandise estimated to be worth between $35, and $40,-000, this store will no doubt soon become recognized as one of the leading merchandising marts of this entire section of the country. "We believe that we are going to be able to serve an important need to the public of Chilton County, and with this in view we are urging everyone to visit our store during the opening sale and let us demonstrate to them our desire to serve with high quality merchandise."

Cooperation---Not Dictation

As the work of the National Recovery Administration goes forward into the phase of code administration the form and pattern of its future activities become more evident.

Its purpose, as announced when NRA was created by act of Congress in June 1933, was to cooperate with business in bringing the country out of the slough of depression. That purpose has been exemplified in official acts and has been reiterated in official statements. Its aim remains today what it was at the start—what it will continue to be in the future—not to dictate to business but to cooperate.

NRA officials, who from the first have invited criticism and have received a barrage of adverse comment along with words of appreciation, believe it is only fair that their accomplishments should be judged in the light of the complete picture. What does that picture reveal? What has been accomplished as a result of NRA cooperation with business?

First of all, the blight of child labor—most sinister shadow over American home life—has been banished from the land. A stroke of the pen achieved what legislative enactment had falied to accomplish in half a lifetime.

In the mammoth steel industry—fundamental to all other industry and trade—the code of fair competition made possible the elimination of most of the destructive competitive practices. It also gave labor the 8-hour day and, besides adding tens of thousands to the pay roll, increased average hourly wages by 19.8 percent, while total wages went up 21.1 percent.

The retail drug store is a fair barometer of neighborhood trade. According to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., drugstore sales have shown an increase every month for this year over totals for the same months in 1933. How the druggists themselves like their code was revealed in a Nation-wide poll in which 89.5 percent of the trade went on record in favor of having it contnued after the date of official expiration on June 16. 1935. And 95 percent of the druggists polled may be classed as small business.

While on the subject of small business it may not be inappropriate to recall that the first act of the Industrial Appeals Board—successor to the Darrow Board—was to recommend relief for a small industry in Pawtucket, R. I., regarding certain exemptions—a recommendation that was promptly made effective by the Administrator.

These are only a few of the accomplishments of the NRA in behalf of humanity, as well as business, big and little. Those who would judge the work of recovery fairly must have the complete picture in proper prospective. Astigmatic vision might throw the whole scene out of focus.

School Ahead---Slow Down!

During the summer months those warnings you see on country roads and in city streets, "School Ahead—Slow Down!" or "School Ahead—Watch Out!" mean little to you. You know the buildings are closed and the youngsters scattered to all points of the compass, and you continue your speed without slackening.

Now, however, those signs have a grave significance. Throughout the country, thirty million children have again picked up their textbooks and readers and are busy at their schoolwork. The signs are a vital warning to all motorists to watch out for the youngsters.

In spite of the efforts of school authorities and safety workers, automobile casualtes still account for more child fatalities than any other accidental cause. Last year, 4,100 boys and girls of school age were killed in such mishaps, and many thousands more were injured. according to figures supplied by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters.

The evidence underlying the statistcs appears to place the blame heavily on motorists, for the youngsters have shown a remarkable ability to watch out for themselves by observing safety rules and princples. In five years, for example, while motor vehicle accidents involving adults have increased 34 per cent, those involving children have decreased 20 per cent.

It has been said that the achievement in the schools is the brightest spot in the entire safety movement. Children can be taught to respect and obey the rules of governing their own conduct in traffic, but they are helpless if careless motorists refuse to cooperate.

Motorists, take care for school chldren. The sign: "School Ahead—Slow Down!" is a driving commandment.

Chilton's Democratic Ticket

The News is this week carrying the names of nominees selected by the Democratic party of Chilton County to contend for election November 6, 1934. We expect to carry this list of names for the next six weeks, and we most cordially invite the citizenship of Chilton County to make a close scrutiny of same.

These men are and have been leaders in their respective communities. They deserve your consideration upon their merits and because of your interest in good government. A patriotic urge and desire for broader service motivated these men in offering their talents for the good of the public. They are concerned about the welfare of Chilton County. They have studied the problems of government under present conditions. They have observed what has been accomplished by a Democratic administration in national affairs. They have an abiding faith in a continuation of that good, and for that reason have offered themselves for public office so that they may better cooperate in bringing this new order of things to Chilton County. In a Democratic primary they have been chosen as the men to carry the banner of a New Deal into the November political campaign. They expect the support of voters in this county because they believe the party they represent stands for the things our people of all factions want in government.

Our people are not forgetful of conditions existing a few short months ago, nor is it necessary to remind them that the aid which has come during the past year and a half resulted, not from the Republican administrations which had been in power, but was instituted by Democratic officials. It is being voiced by people of every political alignment that President Roosevelt is the first President who has ever concerned himself with the problems of the Southern cotton farmer. We think it has been well proven that governmental policies can have much to do with the economic welfare of our people.

When the present national Democratic administration went into office suffering was abroad in the land. We contend that Republican mismanagement was to a large extent responsible for much of it. There are still grave needs to be met, but during the last year and a half a lot has been done for the benefit of our people. The cotton farmer who was getting 5c for his product, the man without a job, the men, women and children in destitute circumstances, have been remembered by a Democratic administration—not only in the country at large, but in Chilton County.

These are facts which Republicans and Democrats alike know. It isn't necessary for politicians or political parties to inform them about what has been done in our own county.

The candidates above referred to are aligned with the party which has done these things. They believe in its principle of giving the common man a square deal. They are competent men of unquestioned integrity. They ask your support on the basis of giving to Chilton County the type of government that the people are demanding.

Maine has often been recognized as a barometer of political trends in the nation. Recently the voters there strongly endorsed the new order of things. Chilton County's turn to speak through the ballot comes on November 6, 1934, and we think that, too, will be an endorsement of the candidates who stand for a governmental policy that seeks to bring about better conditions for the common man. It may mean that some who have heretofore voted the Republican ticket will not do so this fall, but the man whose family needs the necessities of life, the man who wants a job, the man who wants a better price for cotton, is far more concerned with obtaining these things than he is with allegiance to a political party which has failed him in the past.

Fire Prevention Week
Comes Again

Shortly—between October 7th and 13th—Fire Prevention Week will be observed again. The week, which has become a national custom, will be formally initiated by proclamations by the President, governors of states, mayors of cities and other prominent persons in public and private life.

During the week every citizen will have a splendid opportunity to learn the fundamentals of fire prevention and control. Through speeches, newspaper and magazine articles, exhibits and other means, an intensive effort will be made to enlist the citizen's interest. He can blame no one but himself if he fails to learn.

Fire prevention is a civic duty which every citizen owes to himself and to every other person. We all pay for fire—we pay for it in lost business, destroyed jobs, higher taxes and insurance rates. On the average, each family contributes $4.00 a year as a tribute to Moloch—dollars which are destroyed as surely as if we tossed them into a stove. Worse still, three people—two adults and a child—out of each 39,000 of our population, are sacrificed to the pagan god—because we are ignorant and careless when it comes to fire.

In the past, it has often been the experience that fire losses dropped during the week and for a short period thereafter, only to rise again as the public gradually forgot the information gleaned. This year we should look forward to the week and devote a little time during it to really learning the fundamentals of fire prevention, then remember and practice them in the future.

Tragic Promotion

Acting Captain William F. Warms, of the ill-fated liner Morro Castle, seems to have lived through one of the strangest personal tragedies that any seafaring man could be called on to face.

Here was a man who had won a position as first officer on a large modern steamship. Being human, he was undoubtedly looking forward to the day when he himself might command such a vessel. He had a right to dream his dreams of what would happen when he got to the top of the ladder.

Then, unexpectedly compressed into a few hours, came command—accompanied by the most overwhelming emergency responsibilities that can go with it. His captain dead, he himself put in charge, a sudden fire as mysterious as any in the annals of the sea, the ship lost and scores of passengers dead almot before he had time to realize that the command was his—did any sailor ever pass through a more tragically amazing set of circumstances?—Selma Times-Journal.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I shall liken human nature unto a farmer who had two horses and one wagon. One horse was white and the other horse was black. The farmer owning two sets of shafts, placed one set on each end of his wagon and hitched one horse in each shaft. Then the farmer mounted to his seat on the wagon and picking up the reins of one horse shouted for him to go ahead. If the driver held the reins of the white horse then he would drag the wagon and the black horse along with him. If the farmer held the reins of the black horse he would draw the wagon and the white horse along with him. I am that farmer and you are that farmer. We have two natures within us, one is black and the other is white, one is bad, the other is good. But we must not forget that we sit in the driver's seat. When we take up the reins of the black horse he dashes away into depravity carrying us with him, but if we take up the reins of the white horse he dashes away toward right living. Which one of the horses in your two-fold nature are you driving? The black horse rushes away to death while the white horse rushes away to life.

In my travels I saw two fields, one on each side of the highway, and the two farmers were plowing for dear life. One farmer was plowing his land to get rid of the weeds that covered every foot of the soil, while the other farmer was plowing his field to cultivate the corn that was as tall as his shoulder. Each farmer was working hard, but each one had a different motive. One was working to keep the tigers from among his flock, while the other was cultivating a growing crop, sheepherding a fine flock of God's sheep and preparing them for a fruitful harvest. As farmers and as preachers when will we learn that in the cultivation of a crop we keep down the weeds. A farmer and a preacher is rated not by the weeds slain, but by the harvest produced.

I was called to see a man who was dying with Pneumonia. He was in need of oxygen. There were millions of tons of oxygen all around him. I watched the poor fellow as he struggled for life but his lungs were so congested that it was impossible for him to inhale sufficient air to keep him going. He had to die, not because there was no oxygen for him, but because of internal congestion that held back the oxygen. In like manner have I dealt with many a man who was suffering from soul pneumonia. They were dying without God, not because there was no power of God to save, but because they had so congested the soul with the world until God's Spirit could not find a way into their hearts. Many who read these words are now suffering with soul pneumonia. If you die with this soul disease it is not because there is no salvation for you, but it is because you congest the soul with the ways of the world.

Being among the first to enter the coach of the passenger train I took my seat and with keen interest I listened to the remarks of the passengers as they came in and as they rode on that train. Some had nothing to say about the train and rode in silence. Some were critical to the extreme, lashing the train owners and operators for such a bum coach and such bum travel. It was sad to think that so few had one word of approval. At last one bright faced little girl came in and she was happy and thrilled with the train and as it ran down the track she never lost words of delight. Everything made her happy. She had the right spirit of apprecation. Blessed is that traveler who speaks kind of his train and then speaks kindly to the train crew.

In Southeast Alabama a tempestuous woman had a family spat with her husband in the early morning. She thought much of the hot words spoken until near the noon hour and then she decided that she would let herself down into the well so as to excite her husband when he came home to dinner. She tied the rope to the pillar of the house and when the husband came in he found her standing in the water up to her neck. Being in the well was not what she had expected and her first words to her husband was an appeal that he draw her out. The husband's temper had not cooled off completely and after taking in the situation, he went into his house, had dinner and returned to his work. In mid-afternoon all anger had subsided on both sides and the husband returned and drew his penitent wife out of the well. They kissed and made up. Learn from this that it is bad policy to allow your temper to lower you into a well. A mad husband might delay drawing you out.

Failures During Aug. Kept To Low Level

New York.—The monthly statement of the number of business failures in the United States for August, as compiled from the records of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was slightly above that for July, but was below the total for an other month in 14 years. The trifl increase in the number of failures o July is without significance, as the report shows a further reduction in the amount of liabilties.

With the exception of July, the number of business defaults in August was the lowest for any month back to October 1920. The record shows 929 failures during the past month. In Jul there were 912 such defaults; but, on account of the Independence Day h day, that month had one less business day than August this year. Account of this appears in the Insolvecy Index which for August was 54.3 against for July.

TIME IS HERE FOR PLANTING PEAS AND VETCH SAYS FANT

The time is here for planting Hairy Vetch and Austrian Winter peas. The best time to plant according to the Experiment Station at Auburn, is between September 15th and October 15th. A mighty good rule to follow is to plant after the first good rain in September. The earlier winter cover crops are planted the earlier they can be plowed in next spring.

I would like to suggest the following procedure in planting Hairy Vetch and Austrian Winter Peas:

1. Purchase good seed.
2. Get at least 20 pounds of vetch or 30 pounds of peas for each acre you plan to plant.
3. Get good inoculation and follow the instructions on the package when using it. Be sure to inoculate the seed.
4. Either sow broadcast or drill. Cover the seed 2 to 4 inches deep, depending on the type of soil. On heavy, clay soil the seed should be covered about two inches. On sandy soil, cover 3 to 4 inches.

These crops will usually do better if the land is ridged at planting time so that water will not stand and cover the plants. Austrian Winter peas are very easily drowned

The best results I saw last spring was where the seed were broadcast and a middlebuster used in the cotton middles to cover the seed. This makes the ground rather difficult to plow in the spring, but assures an early growth of peas.

On poor land, or any land that has not been heavily fertilized for the past few years, phosphate will pay big dividends under vetch and peas.

Basic slag is the best fertilizer for these crops due to the fact that it contains a high percent of lime and is cheaper than superphosphate. 400 pounds of basic slag should be used per acre.

Reading Fun In Store For Boys

Here's important news for the boys of America. THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION, the nation's quality magazine for boys, has been reduced from $2.00 a year to $1.00. The three-year rate, formerly $3.50, has been reduced to $2.00.

"For a long time we have been seeking a way to reduce the cost of THE AMERICAN BOY to readers," states Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor. "Recently we have effected savings that make the cut possible, and we think boys will agree that the new price is big news on the reading front. We hope boys will help us to spread the good news by telling their friends."

Along with the cut in cost, the magazine's publishers are planning a magazine that will continue to set the pace in fiction, articles, and departments. The favorite characters of millions of boys will parade throughTHE AMERICAN BOY in new stories. Douglas Renfrew of the Royal Canadian Mounted, Hide-rack, the red-and-gold collie, Bone-head Jim Tierney, the detective, will give the reader many exciting hours in the months to come.

William Heyliger, whose true-to-life gripping vocational stores have won him wide acclaim from parents and librarians, as well as the hearty approval of boys, is working on new stories. Staff writers are interviewing famous coaches and atheletes and world-renowned explorers, to bring boys the color and fun of sports and travel.

In short, THE AMERICAN BOY, under its new price, will continue to give boys a magazine that measures up to the best standards set by adult magazines. Send your subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Mchigan. Enclose your name and address and the proper amount of money, and THE AMERICAN BOY will soon be headed your way, loaded with reading thrills.

NEW SALEM SOCIAL CLUB

The New Salem Social club held its regular meeting on September 13. We are planning on quilting some quilts before long, so watch for the announcement.

We made a small donation to the Mt. Carmel community to help in the building of their church and hope to do more. We hope others will help in the building of this church.

We still urge all church members to be present with us on Thursday before the third Sunday of each month. We are working for the church and you will find that we have helped it in many ways.

UNITY BAPTIST ASSOCIATION TO MEET AT CONCORD 9-10

You will please take notice that the Association will meet in its annual session with the Concord Baptist Church, two miles east of Clanton, on October 9 and 10, 1934.

I would suggest that each church appoint its delegates and prepare their minutes for the Association and get them to the Clerk by that time.

J. Z. MIMS, Moderator.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at the home of Mr. G. C. Billingsley near Indian Grave church, Saturday night, September 23. We will also serve sandwiches.

We invite everybody to come and be with us and let's all have a good time together. It will be sponsored by the W. M. S.

How To Select Good Seed Corn

J. W. Fant, County Agent

Selection of a supply of good seed corn is an important October job for every Alabama farmer.

Careful selection on the farm will give a corn that is superior to varieties grown in some other section under different soil and climatic conditions. Selection should be done both before and after harvest. Before harvesting go through the field and select seed ears, keeping in mind the following points:

1. Select for vigorous stalks as shown by superiority over surrounding stalks. Do not select stalks that are good because of extra space or other favorable conditions. Select stalks of medium height that do not break.
2. Select for two or more ears per stalk and preferably with ears turning down. Use both ears from a stalk.
3. Select ears with shucks extending well over tips.
4. Select ears from stalks which are free from disease.

It is necessary to select many more ears than will be needed for planting for these should be reselected after harvesting. In this last selection the following points should be kept in mind.

a. Select ears having smooth, hard, dense, heavy, and relatively large grains.

b. Select long, heavy ears, with not too many rows of kernels.

c. The shuck and cob should be clean and show no discoloration.

d. Preferably the ears should be well filled out. This character, however, is of minor importance.

e. Store seed corn so that it will be protected from mice and insects.

PLEASANT GROVE SINGING SOCIETY

Route 7

Our Singing Society met again last Sunday afternoon. We had a real good singing.

Opening song was by the Rev. N. H. Culp. The directors for the afternoon were, Miss Inez McKee, W. L. Henley, special song by Inez McKee, Geraldine Payton, Mrs. Ella Culp, Mr. Bill Henley; a duet was sung by Mrs. Ella Culp and Mrs. Zella Scott.

I have been requested by the chairman of our singing society, Mr. W. J. Cox, to announce that our annual singing, which is supposed to be held the first Sunday in October has been changed to the fifth Sunday in September on account of the singing at the court house, which is to be held the first Sunday in October. We are asking everybody to come and bring well filled baskets, especially all the singers come and bring your new song books and let's spend the day singing.

A Birthday Dinner

On Sunday, September 9, about nine o'clock, a goodly number of relatives and friends began gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Deason to celebrate with Mr. Deason his 50th birthday.

Many met who had not seen each other for quite a while. The morning was passed by exchanging opinions and ideas on various subjects. Everyone was looking forward to the noon hour. A most tempting lunch was spread underneath the big shade trees.

Singing and music was enjoyed by everyone in the afternoon.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Deason and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Deason and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ratliff and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dobbs and family, Mr. and Mrs. Kent Minor and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Mims and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Boyd and family of Enterprise, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Deason and family, Mrs. Dee Weathers and son, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Deason and family, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Powell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hughey Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hand, Messrs. Columbus and Carlos Ratliff of Selma, Mrs. Harvey Dobbs, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mims and Misses Letha Bonnett and Willie Pearl Roseberry.

About four o'clock everyone began to leave for their homes, wishing Mr. Deason many more happy birthdays.

HIGHLAND

Our singing society met last Sunday afternoon. The crowd was small on account of bad weather but we had a good singing and we hope to have more next time. The opening song was led by Mr. Fonzie Coe, after which prayer was led by Mr. Sovereign Dicky. Directors for the afternoon were Messrs. Fonzie Coe. Sovereign Dickey, Coy Lockhart, Herman Culpepper, L. Z. Dickey and Misses Willie Merle Lockhart, Catherin Coe, Ruby Weldon, Gladys Wyatt. Pianist for the afternoon was Miss Dessie Wyatt. Closing prayer was led by Mr. Jim Lockhart.

Everybody come back next third Sunday afternoon and let us try to make it the best singing we have ever had. We invite any and everyone to come and be with us. You are always welcome at Highland and everyone come and bring someone with you. We like to have lots of singers and listeners too.

PLEASANT GROVE

Jemison

Pleasant Grove people are doing very well these days. Our sick people are feeling better except little Douglas Glass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vollie Glass. He has been to the hospital and is back home, but probably may have to go back, but we hope not.

Mr. and Mrs. Justice Waldrop's little daughter who is in the Baptist hospital in Selma is improving some. We hope for her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Sewell and Mr. Erastus Cleckler were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Zuber one night last week.

Mr. Sanders Champion visited his aunt, Mrs. Pratt Crumpton, of Macedonia community Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Spivey and the Rev. Paul Oden and some other friends from Mulberry were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Childress Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Paul Oden preached a very wonderful sermon here Sunday morning. We thank God for such young men as Paul, although handicapped with blindness to the things of this world, he has a clearer vision of heaven than many who have their eyes open to this world.

We had a B. Y. P. U. social at Mr. Tom Zuber's Saturday night and had a real enjoyable time. We thank those who were not members for their nice behavior, and sincerely hope that all the dear boys and girls around here who are not Christians will soon realize the necessity of a Christian life for real happiness here and for the joys of eternity. We are praying for you.

Rev. Maurive Hodgens has entered Howard College for another year. May God's richest blessings go with him throughout the year. He preached at Jemison Sunday. We are very proud of such a staunch Christian boy as Maurice. So, let's all help him to go forward in his great calling. May God bless him.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wright visited Mr. and Mrs. Jim Woodley Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Clarence Marcus and little son, Aldene, visited the Misses Champion Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Govers Price and sisters, Misses Velma and Myrtle, and Mrs. Evans went to Clanton Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Zuber were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Miskelley Sunday.

NEW CEDRON

Bro. Paul Oden will preach here next Sunday at 11 o'clock and also all church members are requested to be present for the purpose of calling a preacher and electing Sunday School teachers and officers for another year.

We are sorry to learn Mr. Alfred Penton is on the sick list this week. We hope him a speedy recovery.

Miss Pauline Collins returned home last Sunday after spending several weeks at Rockford.

Mrs. A. S. Johnson and little daughter, Evelyn, are spending this week in Perry County.

Mr .and Mrs. J. W. Cox and family visited Mr. George Owen and family near Selma Sunday.

Master Junior Turner of Houston, Texas, returned home Thursday after spending the Summer with relatives of this community.

Miss Louise Cox, Mr. Morris Keen visited Misses Rena. Ressie, and Lela Devaughn Saturday night.

Mrs. T. L. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Harvie DeVaughn spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Jones.

Mrs. Lula Jones and family, Mr. William DeVaughn visited Mr. and Mrs. Joe Williams of Billingsley Sunday.

Mrs. J. L. Penton, Mrs. Canzada Williams, Aunt Nannie Bone visited Mrs. J. F. DeVaughn Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Mattie Wilkins and children, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Edwards spent Sunday with Mrs. W. D. Burnett.

Miss Jewell Williams left Saturday for Hartford, Ala., where she will attend school during the winter months.

Mr. Leonard DeVaughn spent Saturday night with his brother, Harvie DeVaughn, near Billingsley.

Miss Pauline Collins visited her aunt, Mrs. Freddie Waites, of Concord Sunday.

Misses Vondell Penton, Arrie Lee Downs visited Misses Rena, Ressie, and Lela DeVaughn Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Lillian Edwards spent Sunday with Mrs. John Burnette.

There will be an ice cream and hot dog supper at this place Saturday night week, Sept. 29. Everyone has an invitation. Proceeds will go for repairing the church.

Lady Says She Took CARDUI for Cramps; Was Soon Relieved

Women who suffer as she did will be interested in the experience of Mrs. Maude Crafton, of Belleville, Ill., who writes: "For several years, I suffered from irregular trouble and cramping. There would be days when I would have to stay in bed. I would get so nervous, I was miserable. My aunt told me to try Cardui. She believed it would build me up, regulate me and help the nervous trouble. I knew after taking half a bottle of Cardui that I was better. I kept on taking Cardui and found it was doing me a world of good. I am in good health, which means a lot to me." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. . . . Price $1.

1934 Schedule For Chilton H. S. Tigers

Football fans of this section will see an almost new team in action when our first game opens. While we have lost quite a few of our old men by graduation, we will have a light but fast team. Coach Searcy is whipping them into some splendid training with the assistance of Varnell with the first year men. The spirit is as fine as could be expected under the conditions of the hot weather, and the fact that some of the boys have broken trainng duling the summer months. The new equipment has arrived and the boys look fine in their new suits. It is not known just what the line-up will be when the whistle blows, but each player is fighting for his place.

Chevrolet Announces August Production

Detroit, Mich.—The largest August production for five years, totaling 74,437 units for all plants, is reported by the Chevrolet Motor Company. This total includes domestic, export, and Canadian production.

For the first eight months of 1934 Chevrolet production totals 692,477, and exceeds by 66,200 the 1933 twelve months' total, which was passed early last month.

Retail sales reported by dealers took a decided upward turn in the last ten days of August, promising continued demand in September. The reported deliveries in the United States exceeded the domestic production.

Trained Animal Show Here, Benefit P.-T. A.

On Friday, September 21. when most people of Clanton are thinking about getting up, the long line of trucks of the Mighty Haag Shows will start to arrive in Clanton and pitch their vast city of tents on the High School Ball Park where they will give two performances for the benefit of the High School P.-T. A. The Haag Shows are featuring such well known acts this year as the Tan Arahi Troupe direct from Japan, Zeldo Duo of Head Balancers featuring the only man who walks on his head, Johnson Trio in tight, slack and bounding wire acts, Fisher family of acrobats, Perez Troupe in death defying acts on trapez and bars, wild animal acts including Haag herd of elephants, the largest and best performing elephants in the world.

A host of funny clowns headed by that internationally known funny fellow, Albert Miller, and featuring America's youngest clown, Harry Haag, Jr., will entertain you with many a laugh during the entire show.

The Haag Show has always been known as the cleanest show in America and this year is no exception. The show opens with a big colorful spectacular feature. "Marianna" in which more than 200 people and animals take part.

They will give a big street parade at 1 p.m. and doors open immediately after parade. Admission will be: Adults, 35c; Children, 25c.

Texas Employment and Pay Rolls Exceed 1933

Austin, Tex.—Employment and pay rolls in Texas continue above those of a year ago by a considerable margin, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Reports from 1,561 establishments with a total of 82,669 employees show a gain of 9.6 percent in number of workers, an increase of 11.3 percent in pay rolls during the week ended August 18, in comparison with the corresponding week last year, the bureau's report said. There was practically no change from July to August.

During his recent illness W. Hare, of Syracuse, N. Y., had as his nurse a Miss Rabbit.

Board Named To Appraise Road Damages

In view of the misunderstanding regarding the widening of right of way of that portion of the Clanton-Selma highway which is being paved, Judge L. H. Reynolds recently appointed a reviewing committee to appraise certain property to be encroached on through one mile to the city limits.

The duty of the committee, which is composed of V. J. Elmore, M. D Foshee, and W. J. Billingsley, will be to study property along the roadside and appraise the amount of damage incurred by the addition of ten feet to the former forty foot right of way.

Reason given for the increased width of the highway as given by state engineers is to permit a widening of the road in future years to take care of the normal increase in traffic. With the constant growth of traffic, it was explained that within a few years present roads will be inadequate.

Mrs. Mattie Williams, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Guffin and Mrs. Annie Armstrong motored to Birmingham last Friday.

PRESENT DAY PRICES ON LOGS

J. W. Fant, County Agent

Farmers who are in position to harvest and sell logs and thereby realize cash on spare labor should be interested in the following prices on logs delivered at the mill. Most prices are on the No. 2 and better grades with the better grades bringing several dollars premium over the common grades. A few make offerings on No. 3 logs.

Longleaf ranges $6.00 to $15.00 and averages $10.00

Shortleaf ranges $5.00 to $12.00 and averages $8.00

White and Red Oak ranges $7.50 to $20.00 and averages $10.00.

Red and Black Gum ranges $7.50 to $25.00 and averages $10.00.

Yellow Poplar ranges $8.00 to $30.00 and averages $12.00.

Hickory ranges $8.00 to $30.00 and averages $13.00. (One mill makes a difference in price of $10.00 from No. 1 to No. 2 grades).

Ash ranges $8.00 to $25.00 and averages $13.00.

Of course, code rates govern the prices on different grades of lumber and are more or less constant over the State.

Cross ties are quoted at 60c for No. 3, 70c for No. 4 and 80c for No. 5 in northwest Alabama. These are presumbly hardwood ties. Dense pine in southeast Alabama are 30c, 40c and 50c.

Pulpwood at the paper mill in west Central Alabama is bringing around $3.25 per standard 4x4x8 cord delivered at the mill, and below $3.00 for 4x4½x8 cord at the mill in southwest Alabama.

The outlook in the minds of the majority doesn't seem very bright. Some are pessimistic, others believe it will be better. A great deal seems to depend on the Government's Housing Act and the newly created demand for wood products. Possibly an improvement after a short time.

Farm Wives To Learn Make Cheese At Home

A new use for the surplus milk products of Chilton County is being inaugerated. Miss Ruth Pardue, county home demonstration agent, is formulating plans for the education of the farm familes in this section in the art of cheese-making at home.

The first step in the new home industry in this county will be taken next Friday, when a meeting of the club leaders from every section of the county will be held at the Methodist church in Clanton. Miss Pardue will expalin the process and distribute literature on the subject.

There is no more profitable way to utilize the surplus milk than in the making of cheese, Miss Pardue explained. No special equipment is needed, she said.

Letters have been sent to the leaders throughout the county urging them to attend the meeting. Following is a copy of the letter:

Clanton, Ala., Sept. 14, 1934

MAKE DELICIOUS AT HOME

It's easy, inexpensive, Interesting and profitable for you

Dear Club Leaders:

There is no more profitable way to use surplus milk on the farm than to make it into delicious cheese. Not just ordinary cottage cheese, but the solid cheddar or American typle of cheese sold in every grocery store. No special equipment is required—only utensils found in any kitchen.

Let us help you get started:

Friday afternoon, September 21st; Time, 1:30 p. m.; Place, Clanton—Basement of Methodist Church.

It is very important that every leader attend. or send someone to this leadership meeting. Let's start our new year off with a 100 per cent meeting.

We, as leaders, should be anxious to learn all we can so we can be of service in helping those back in our clubs who can not attend leadership meetings.

Looking forward to making cheese with you September 21st, I am

Sincerely yours,
RUTH PARDUE,
Home Demonstration Agent

Alabama Grows Third Largest Corn Crop

Auburn, Ala.—The United States is producing the smallest corn crop since 1881 but Alabama farmers are growing the third largest ever produced in the state.

Department of Agriculture officials estimote that the entire country will harvest only 1,484,602.000 bushels of corn. On the other hand, F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistician, estimates that Alabama has produced 47,885,000 bushels compared with 36,710,000 last yeor. Alabama's two largest corn crops were in 1917 when 59,365,000 bushels were harvested and in 1921 when 48,146,000 bushels were stored in cribs of the state.

State Fair Offers Carnival Midway

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 20.—The Alabama State Fair, opening here Monday, is bringing the world's largest carnival midway to this district for the first time.

The midway is made up of the Royal American Shows with 24 attractions, 14 thrilling new rides, and a score of other features. This organization brings a personnel of 1,100 performers, managers and helpers to the Alabama State Fair on 42 double-length railroad cars.

In addition to the midway the Alabama State Fair has the largest group of grandstand attractions ever assembled anywhere in the South. There will be automobile races, government and local agricultural exhibits, and the most complete assortment of free performances ever assembled here.

Fair Board officials are determined to make the 1934 event the greatest in the history of Alabama and have reached out into the centers of amusement to obtain such outstanding attractions as the Royal American Shows which this season played the largest state fairs throughout the north and Canada and ore on their first visit to this state.

The featured attraction of the entire Royal American Shows is the Lion Motordrome which comes to the Alabama State Fair direct from outstanding successes in the World's Fair midway of A Century of Progress in Chicago. This show brings Miss Marjorie Kemp, world's premier wild animal trainer, and her famous automobile riding lion, said to be the most daring performance in show history. Miss Kemp and her lion ride in an automobile on the vertical motordrome wall at 60-miles an hour. This show also brings Capt. Walter B. Kemp, famous movie stunt rider. who performs sensational tricks on the perpendicular wall

The Hippodrome Show with the Atlantic City Steel Pier high diving horse, ridden by an 18-year-old Georgia girl in a sensational leap from a 40-foot tower, is another outstanding show.

Other world's fair features include the Sandusky Sea Monster, the Life Show, American Midget Village, Havana Rhumba Show and Thad Rising's famous Southern Brown Skin Vanities minstrel. The Odditorium of Ripley's Freaks, direct from the world's fair, include 15 strange and unique people of which Pop-Eye Perry is the star. The Tropical Night show, Hiwaiian Beach Girl show, and the Temple of Mystery are other unusual attractions.

Among the rides are the only four-in-line giant ferris wheels in the world, Ridee-O, Whip, Lindy Loop, Skooters, Caterpillar, ond Hey Dey. There are such fun houses as the Jasser, Glass House, Bug House, Buggy Ride and Rocky Road to Dublin.

An unusual free attraction is the battery of four warship searchlights which have a combined intensity of 200 million candle power. These lights can be seen for 60 ciles around Birmingham and are manually operated by a crew of nine former sailors.

Monday is children's day. All schools in Jefferson County will be closed so that youngsters can take advantage of the free admission for pupils. Other counties are joining in the movement

The Alabama State Fair will continue throughout the week with afternoon races as well as grandstand attractions and fireworks at night.

WHEREAS, the legislature of Alabama at an extraordinary session held during the year, 1932, ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held at the General Election in November, 1934, and

WHEREAS, the General Election in November, 1934, is to be held on Tuesday, November 6, 1934, as provided by law, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law, and by the provisions of the Act submitting the said amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each County in the State of Alabama once a week for eight (8) successive weeks immediately preceding the said 6th day of November, 1934;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 6th day of November, 1934, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> The Legislature of Alabama hereafter from time to time by general or local laws, but subject to the provisions of Section 281 of the Constitution of Alabama, may fix, regulate and alter the costs, charges of court, fees, commissions, allowances or salaries be charged or received by the following county officers of Mobile County, Alabama, the Judge of Probate, the Tax Assessors, the Tax Collector, the Clerk of the Circuit Court, and the Register of the Circuit Court, including the method and basis of the compensation of such officers.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 6th day of November, 1934, in each County of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 19th day of July, 1934.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

Feels a Lot Better When Black-Draught Relieves Constipation

From many states come reports like the following from Mr. W. M. Henderson, of Jasper, Fla: "I have been taking Thedford's Black-Draught twenty years. I take it for constipation that gives me a dull, tired, aching feeling, and I have headache, too. Black-Draught relieves me of this trouble. After a few doses, I feel as good as new. I keep it in my home. I have a big family. When one of us is ailing (from constipation), we take Black-Draught and almost always feel a lot better. It has been worth its weight in gold to my family." . . . Sold in 25¢ packages. "Children like the Syrup."

Warehouses Have Licensed Classers

Betweep 60 and 70 Alabama Warehouses have or will soon have State licensed cotton classers to class cotton for the benefit of farmers who desire to procure a government loan on their cotton this season, according to official announcement yesterday by Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries.

As a result of a special cotton stapling and grading school conducted at Boaz this summer 42 representive cotton warehousemen from various sections of the State are at present being licensed by the department of agriculture and Commissioner Storrs expresses his belief that more than 20 others will pass the next State examination held Friday, September 7th.

Instruction given at the grading and stapling school was in accordance with Federal official cotton standards which will be used in Alabama as the basis on which all cotton will be classed by thoe who are issued a State graders license once, I heard it a thousand times. When they went home in the autumn time, when the children were getting ready to go to school, you had to tell them that you could not get them the shoes and clothes they had a right to expect in order that they might hold up their heads with the pride which they ought to have. You had to tell them that you just couldn't get by on five cent cotton. You went home, but you hated to go in and look the wife and those children in the face and tell them that you had no money left after you paid the fertilizer bill. You worked as hard as ever for the family you loved, but it just couldn't be done on five cent cotton. Yet they told you that the only thing that could be done was just to sit by and let the laws of nature take their course.

Resume Of Senator Black's Address

"The result was that 15,000,000 persons were tramping the highways of our country begging for food and shelter. Millions of others stood in bread lines in every section of the nation. Yes, we have destroyed their liberty; we have destroyed those people's liberty to tramp the highways of our country hungry and cold. Certainly I don't think anybody, unless he is one of those who was getting huge sums of money from the government, is pining for those good old days. Recently I was talking to a man who criticized the new deal. He said that we ought not to interfere. We should just sit idly by and let the thing solve itself. It's just the American system, he said. I asked him what those 15,000,000 would be doing while the thing was adjusting itself. I asked him if many cemeteries would not be filled in the meantime. They would he said, but it was all a part of the system. Every eight or ten years we must have a panic, he claimed. It is the only way, they tell you, to regulate production and consumption. I would say why not try something else. Are we supposed to sit by and let people starve to death just because someone says that it is a system?

"Now I have here in my hand the facts on the amount of money that is coming into Chilton County from your cotton crops. I have taken into consideration everything except over-production of your allotment, which you can sell or hold. In 1932 your cotton crop in this county brought you $342,092. This year you will receive $1,095,695 for your cotton crop. I would like to see the man who would not rather have $1,095,695 than to have $342,092. Have we taken any of your liberty in paying you three times as much for your cotton? Have we taken your liberty by making it possible for you to go home when you sell your cotton and look your family in the face?

"We are ready to listen to crticism. We know that we have made errors, but they were honest errors. We had an objective in view and that objective was to raise the standard of living for the average man. We believe that we are approaching the realization of the objective. We had authority for the fundamental principle of this cotton program. Long years ago, Alexander Hamilton said that the only way to protect our trade was to place a tariff on our products, and that he said can not be done without working a hardship on the farmer. This can be overcome by taking some of this money and giving it back to the farmer in the form of a bounty. After 150 years we are following the philosophy of Alexander Hamilton.

"As I go over the country, I see many fine school buildings erected by the CWA. In many instances they are replacing old fallen down, inadequate buildings. I am moved to wonder when I see these things if we are destroying liberty by giving the youth of America adequate school buildings. Again I see T. B. hospitals in various sections of the country. I wonder if we are destroying liberty by building hospitals where those afflicted with this malady may be built back into useful, healthy citizens. I am not regretting a single government dollar spent on highways, school buildings, and hospitals in Alabama. I am in favor of spending more.

"Thomas Jefferson loved human liberty. And if you will go back and read again that immortal document, the Declaration of Independence, you will find in one corner an itimized statement of the reasons why the colonies felt they had a right to rebel against the tyrany of Great Britian. They believed that it was the duty of any government to so organize its functions to bring happiness and comfort to its citizens. Back in 1930 when you could not earn enough to buy meat and bread, was this government so organizing its functions to bring happiness and comfort to you and your family? When you had to go home in the fall and tell the children that you could not buy them any shoes, was the government so organizing its functions to bring happiness and comfort?

"I don't care what kind of ticket you have voted in the past if you have voted what you believed to be the best intesest of your county, state and nation. But sometime there comes a time in the life of a man when he must reach the conclusion that it is better for him and his family that he leave something and go with something else. Do you think that party we have spoken of in 1930, 1931, and 1932 dealt fairly and just with you?

"In this final appeal, I want you to remember that the conditions are not the same as they were when you and your ancestors marched away from the Democratic Party. The leaders are not the same. The objectives, whatever they may have been then, they are different today. The Democratic Party has been humanized and it has at its head a leader with a heart that beats in unison with that of the average man. It is a party that recognizes human values and places them first. That is the reason why I love it so. That is the reason why I am asking you to study the issues in the coming election and walk to the polls like the courageous man or woman you are and mark your ballot for the interest of all the people and not the interest of the favored few.

"When this election is over, if you love social justice and right and you believe in the policies of the new deal and your heart throbs with that of that great leader, when I hear the results I know that it will be that Chilton County has returned to its ancestral faith and is leady to march side by side with Franklin D. Roosevelt to a higher standard of living and a greater social justice for the average man."

Clanton Airport Fast Receiving Touches Of Real "Aviating" So Reporter Finds On Visit

Clanton is fast winning a place for itself in the stratosphere. The Clanton Airport is rapidly approaching completion and is said to be one of the best little landing fields in the entire state. W. A. Cone, former works director for Chilton County, who has been named supervisor over ten counties in Alabama, reports that he has not seen another small landing field in this section that surpasses the local field.

Dr. V. J. Gragg, local flying fan, is adding quite a touch to the field with the construction of a modern hangar on the north side of the field. It will soon be completed and Dr. Gragg is keeping his plane here, thus the one definite claim to a place in the aviation annals.

This reporter was recently the recipient of a trip "Along the Skyway" in the the Gragg plane. At least we suppose it was along the skyway, however, we were so busy keeping an eye on the old terra firma that we made no efforts at garnering any data on astrology. The one thing that puzzled us most is how there could ever be a shortage of vegetables in this section, when every home has the appearance of being located in the middle of a minature garden.

J. W. Allen, transport pilot from Montgomery, is located here now and is giving Dr. Gragg some final points on the subject "Coming Back to Earth." Mr. Allen is an experienced pilot, having begun his flying in 1929. Since that time, the lure of "the open road" has taken him into many sections of the country, including South America.

Plans are being discussed for an extensive dedication program for the field, however, Floyd Smith, works director in charge of the work on the airport, expressed the opinion that the field may be finished some time during the fall months.

Coach Paul Grst, of the Selma Y. M. C. A. had charge of the program. Some interesting points were brought up and made clear at this meeting.

concerned to the approach of the end of the grace period on tax payments. I have gone the limit of my ability to extend time of payments of taxes in my desire to help those who are delinquent. My powers to make further extension are exhausted. After next Saturday, September 22, all unpaid taxes will have to carry the addition of such fees, penalties, and extra costs as are provided by law. I can make no further extensions.

Speaking

held his listeners on the edges of their seats. First was presented a picture of gloom and desolation, with 15,000,000 persons tramping the highways of this country begging for food, while millions of others stood in bread lines in every section of this nation. Banks were closed and the people were without hope. The second picture which Senator Black declared is being painted on the canvas of life today, presents a more beautiful scene. A gradual climb toward recovery and prosperity for the people of this nation. Today the laborer is more nearly compensated for his labor, and the man on the farm is receiving higher prices for the products of his farm. Throughout the land is felt a spirit of optimism. Senator Black opened his speech with a declaration of kindred spirit with the people of Chilton County.

Declaring that he has never criticized any man for voting what he believes to be the best interest of his county, state and nation, the speaker urged every citizen in Chilton County to lend their cooperation in guaranteeing the continuance of the recovery program. "If you believe that it is for the best interest of your county, state and nation to vote the Republican ticket, then that is what I would expect you to do, but I believe that you can find that justness and fairness in government for which you have long been seeking by joining hands with Franklin D. Roosevelt, the leader, with the human heart." The Democratic Party has been humanized, Senator Black told his audience.

The speaker cited figures which show that the cotton crop in Chilton County this year will bring more than three times as much money into the county as the crop did in 1932, before this program was inaugerated. In 1932, the cotton crop of Chilton County brought its growers $342,092. This year it will bring at present prices $1,095,695. Cotton, he pointed out, was five cents and even less—today it is thirteen cents and cotton seeds are worth $30 per ton, almost four times as much as they were two years ago.

Senator Black traced the cycle of buying and selling, declaring that the man who works must be paid a living wage in order that he may be able to buy. More than 90 per cent of the products raised on the farm, he said, are sold to the men who work in the mines and factories and on the farms. If these men aren't paid a compensation which enables them to purchase then there is no market. The theory during many years has been to strangle labor and give all the profits to capital. Two years ago the only business that was flourishing was the red ink business, the audience was told.

"Some believe that we are taking away your liberty with the various phases of the new deal program. We have taken away your liberty to sell your cotton for five cents. We have taken away your liberty to go home in the fall after you sell your cotton and tell your children that you cannot buy them shoes; that it took all the money to pay the fertilizer debt and the interest on the mortgage. We have destroyed the liberty of some fifty million persons to beg food. We have destroyed their liberty to stand in bread lines. We have destroyed their liberty to tramp the highways looking for work and begging for enough food to live.

Those who have been in charge of the government have let contracts where men with practically no investment could become ultra-wealthy overnight. He cited one instance where $500 was invested and at the end of a year had grown to $8,000,000, and another of a $1,000 investment which became more than $86,000,000 in the short period of one year. During those days when the government was allowing these beneficiaries to amass huge fortunes by sucking the blood of the taxpayers, men with families in this country were working for forty and fifty cents per day and others were begging for work at even that price. Those are the people you find criticizing the New Deal.

COTTON PARITY PAYMENTS WILL BE MADE SOON

Alabama Farmers To Receive $11,604,248 In Benefit Payments This Year

Auburn, Ala.—Within the next few weeks, Alabama cotton farmers will begin receiving approximately $7,803,316 in rental and parity payments, according to official information from the Agricultural Adjustment , Administration Washington, to Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the State extension service here.

It is estimated that Alabama farmers will receive a total of $11,604,248 in benefit payments this year. Of this amount they have already received $3,800,932, leaving approximately $7,803,316 to be distributed in the State before the end of the year.

Cully A. Cobb, chief of the cotton section of the AAA, reports that the third cotton "parity" payment due in December this year will be combined with the second rental payment and both will be distributed to farmers during October.

"Payment of the second and third installments due under the cotton contracts was combined in order that the distribution of the payments to the interested parties might be more easily and more promptly effectuated."

THREE FREED FROM MURDER CHARGES HERE

Grand Jury Fails To Find Varden, Foshee And Edwards Guilty

Three of the six persons who were being held on charges of homicide in the coutny were exonerated by the grand jury in session last week. Arthur Varden, Lawrence Edwards, and L. Foshee were exonerated when the grand jury failed to return true bills against them. All three were at liberty under bond when the grand jury convened.

Varden is alleged to have stabbed Charlie Glass to death in an altercation at the Mineral Springs voting place on the date of the June primary. He claimed self defense in that Glass attacked ed him and had him down in the road beating him, when he slashed Glass

Man Tries To Shoot Family; Held In Jail

Tommy Martin, middle-aged resident of Thorsby, was arrested Sunday night by Sheriff W. H. Gillespie and locked in the county jail on a charge of assult with intent to murder. Martin is said to have attempted to shoot members of his family Sunday while drinking and later in the afternoon after all attempts to quiet him failed, neighbors swore out a warrant for him in an effort to protect his family.

He was still being held in jail Tuesday morning. Sheriff Gillespie said that he believed that his reason was distorted with the whiskey that he had been drinking. It is understood that he has a reputation of a quiet, peaceable citizen.

What The "New Deal" Means To You

[AN EDITORIAL]

We do not intend this to be a defense of the New Deal. We do not believe that a defense is necessary. In saying that, however, we do not mean to imply that it has been perfect in every respect, but we are convinced that the "good" has so far outweighed the "bad" that there is absolutely no reasonable comparison. Under the "New Deal" we have seen a steady march toward a desirable goal. Democratic leaders who conceived the "New Deal" recognized the fact that they were human beings and subject to error, and therefore have been the first to find and correct whatever phases that prove impractical.

There are a few, however, even in Chilton County, who in the heat of a political campaign attempt to criticise this program, knowing that much progress has been made. That is the reason their criticism is little more than the grasping of a drowning man at a straw. They are aware that the people of this county have seen the light and are determined to march with that peerless leader of men, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, toward the goal of a New Deal for the average man.

There is one thing they have apparently overlooked, and that is that many people in Chilton County—Republicans and Democrats alike—are opposed to anyone who is against the "New Deal". Every day criticism is heard of those who are unwilling for the average man or woman in Chilton County to share in the bounty of this land.

Even in their weak attempts at criticism they are forced to admit that "everything is all right so far." But they would have the people of Chilton see some great yawning danger out there ahead. They point out nothing definite—it's simply a fancy they have conjured up in the nightmares that are prevalent among their ranks these days. We can't say, nor can any man say, what the final outcome of this or any other program will be, but we agree with the critics "that everything is all right so far," and that's a lot more than they or we could say in the good old days of Herbert Hoover, when we could sell our cotton for five cents, when we had millions of people tramping the highways of our country begging for food. They told us then prosperity was just around the corner, but it never came until the "New Deal" brought better wages for the average man.

The gain in employment in the 15 months from March last year to June this year was 5,678,000, according to a statement made by Representative Joseph W. Byrns, majority house leader.

If you want to know something about the success of the new program—if you want to find out what progress has really been made, ask yourself the question: Am I in better circumstances now than in the fall of 1932? Ask anyone you meet on the street to compare his condition today with that of two years ago; ask him how much he was making then; ask him if he is hankering for the good old days of Herbert Hoover? Ask the cotton farmer of Chilton County if he is longing for the days of five-cent cotton instead of the twelve he can get now?

They tell you of the danger of autocracy. But they fail to tell you that in the days of their beloved leader, Herbert Clark Hoover, that 90 percent. of the wealth was concentrated in the hands of 2 percent. of the people. What makes an autocracy? Is it not the concentration of power in the hands of a few? And what is power today—is it not money? Then 90 percent. of the power in those days must have been in the hands of 2 percent. of the people. In giving the average man more and taking away from the 2 percent. class, is that not dividing money (power) more evenly than it was before?

Just which of the two administrations now fit in the class of an autocracy? Did they tell you that under the old regime a few big men were becoming rich overnight from government subsidies? Did they tell you that one man's $500 became $8,000,000 in one year? Did they tell you that another's $1,000 grew to be $86,000,000 in the brief space of twelve months? No! They tell you that out yonder ahead lies danger. They tell you that you are likely to lose your liberty. You have lost your liberty to sell your cotton for five cents; you have lost your liberty to tramp the highways in a land of plenty begging for food; you have lost your liberty to go home in the fall and tell your children that you can not buy them any shoes and winter clothes.

The phantom of liberty they would have you follow is liberty of a few to amass a fortune while millions of others go hungry. They said a Democratic administration could not give employment to those out of work, that it could not increase the price of the farmer's products—that we would have to wait, and keep on waiting—"tuff it out" if you please, until by some miraculous twist of fate we would round a corner into the highway of prosperity. Now, when they admit it is being done—when the whole world can see that conditions are better—they call it communism. We call it a square deal for the common man!

They call it Democratic bait. If food and clothing for the needy, employment for the unemployed, and thirteen-cent cotton instead of five, is Democratic "bait" let them make the most of it. They say this bait is more alluring when offered to a fellow "about two-thirds in rags and whose stomach has not been good and full for weeks or months." We think the expression is well taken. A lot of our people were in rags and their stomachs empty during the winter of 1932-33. We don't think these people will forget that it came as a climax to years of Republican leadership, when the country was literally overflowing with all needed artices to relieve this suffering.

They express grave fears for our financial balance when they see the farmer and laborer getting a full share of our nation's money. It is true these things cost a lot. The bill will also have to be paid. That may even cause a howl, when those who have gathered about them the fat of the land have to pay heavier income taxes so that the ordinary fellow can have a fair deal. Much, however, has alrealy been done to take care of this. For the first time in years the post office department is operating within its income, and stopping the flow of gold from this to foreign countries has saved many millions. This administration is spending more because it's doing more than preceding administrations. Financial institutions have shown no hesitancy in buying government bonds, and this would seem to discount any bankruptcy bogey man.

Not only did these criticisers of this recovery program fail to tell you these good things, but they also failed to tell you that it is a fact that deposits in local banks have increased over two-hundred thousand dollars in the past two years. And did they say anything about the almost total absence of bank failures under the "New Deal"? And that your deposits in banks are now insured by the government? No, they did not tell you these good things. Nor was your attention called to the fact that in the Town of Clanton approximately twenty business houses were vacant two years ago, and now they are practically all filled.

The citizenship of Chilton County has seen what the "New Deal" means to our own people. They will not forget, nor will they be misled. Local Democratic candidates are in full sympathy with the new program under President Roosevelt. This is an important item to consider. In spite of cries of autocracy, many benefits of the "New Deal" will not be forced upon us. We had to ask for relief for the needy, we had to ask for an airport, we had to ask for an appropriation to pave a section of the Selma highway. Cooperation MUST be given the federal government in such things. Failure to cooperate will not in any way lessen the taxes we will pay as our share of the bill. Democratic candidates of Chilton County want to cooperate. They want to obtain for their people every benefit that rightfully belongs to them.

Is that true of the local Republican candidates? If the attack on the "New Deal" printed as a front-page editorial in last week's Union-Banner, official organ of the Republican party, is indicative of the attitude of their candidates, it would seem they are not in the mood to lend their cooperation to President Roosevelt in his program for the average man.

When President Roosevelt was inaugurated, the country was not only confronted with a threatened breakdown of all credit organizations but, due to depreciated foreign currencies our domestic producers and merchants were at great disadvantage in carrying on foreign commerce. The Roosevelt policies included the revival of foreign trade as essential to prosperity.

President Roosevelt, speaking to Congress on June 8 said, "Among our objectives I place the security of the men, women and children of the Nation first. This security for the individual and the family concerns itself primarily with three factors: People want decent homes to live in; they want to locate them where they can engage in productive work; and they want some safeguard against misfortunes which can not be wholly eliminated in this man-made world of ours."

Is that not something worthwhile for you to consider?

It makes no difference what phase of the "New Deal" you have in mind, you will find the roots of the idea in the declaration made by the Democrats in the Chicago convention. There is ample proof that the administration program for national recovery meets with the approval of the majority of the citizens, and that this approval in no sense rests on mere partisan considerations.

After the President had witnessed the naval review a few days ago he was so enthusiastic in his praise of the maneuvers that he signaled from his flagship to the ships in review "Well done." We believe when the people of Chilton County have an opportunity in November to render their verdict on the work that has been done for them by the President and the national Democratic Party, they will signal to the Nation's leader as he did to the Navy, "Well Done."

GRAND JURY TAKES UP GAS TAX QUESTION

Makes Recommendation On Handling Of Gas In The Future

Although those connected with the handling of the county's gasoline were exonerated of any criminal violation by the action of the recent grand jury, several recommendations were made for the revision of the system "in the belief" that these recommendations, if followed, will result in the elimination of much criticism and will be much better than the present system.

Judge Tate ordered the grand jury to investigate the alleged charges of illegal use of the county's gasoline, and directed that if it was found that those responsible for the handling of gasoline were guilty of criminal violations to return true bills against them. Several witnesses including members of the Commissioners Court and Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, were summoned to appear before the body in the investigation.

An amendment to the recent audit, in which 79,131 gallons of county gasoline was unaccounted for, by T. J. Carlton accounts for the alleged shortage with the exception of 7,122 gallons, which Mr. Carlton explained could have

Southern Seed & Plant Co. Opens New Store

The Southern Seed & Plant Company, of Clanton, is opening a new store this week in Thorsby, which is to be operated as a branch of the Clanton store, according to Evan Parrish, manager of the firm.

This firm is dealer in all types of seeds and feeds and buys in large quantities, so is able to give its customers the advantage of the highest type of merchandise at greatly reduced prices.

The management of this firm invites those interested in the purchase of any items in the feed or seed line to visit either the Clanton or Thorsby Stores and see the quality of merchandise and prices available by trading with this firm.

ADULT SCHOOLS PLAN TO OPEN AT AN EARLY DATE

Fifteen Schools For Adult Pupils Are Allotted By The Government

Four of the fifteen Adult Schools made available to Chilton County by the federal government are underway and several others are expected to begin at an early date, according to an announcement this week by Percy Johnson, visiting teacher, who has supervision of the schools.

Schools at the following places were begun recently under the provision which allotted Chilton County funds for the purpose of operating fifteen adult schools in the county to give employment to unemployed teachers: Cane Creek, taught by Mrs. Zula Jones; Fairview, teacher, Mrs. Dommie Mims; Mt. Creek, Miss Dorothy Pattillo, and a negro school near the County Training School, taught by Vanilla Barber.

Mr. Johnson stated that sessions will begin at seven other locations in the county within the next few days. Plans are to open adult schools at Enterprise, Mt. Creek, Vermont, and Ridersville within the next few days. Funds are available for four other schools in the county, but the locations have not been decided, Mr. Johnson stated.

These schools are operated on federal funds under an appropriation to the State Department of Education for the purpose of furnishing employment to unemployed teachers.

Pulchritude In Politics

In attempting to remove some of the glamour from the outstanding victory of Governor Brann, Democrat, in the recent Maine election, some Republican commentators introduce a novel note, suggesting that the governor is young and handsome while his Republican opponent was aged and not such a treat for the eyes of the voters.

Thus the element of "looks" is injected into the question of party nominees and if what these G. O. P. observers have to say is relevant, the point is one to be watched. Fortunately, the Democratic party is pretty well fixed insofar as a presidential candidate is considered, Mr. Roosevelt being a man whose facial appointments are easy on the eyes, but it is too much to hope that all places on national and state tickets can be so admirably filled with the arrival of the 1936 campaign.

Fortunately, however, the Republicans are in no better case in the several states while there is no one in sight who might be named to head the ticket who would exceed in looks the Democratic nominee.

True, the Republicans might invade Hollywood and find some male figure that is distinguished for pleasing facial adornments, but it is quite obvious that Hollywood could not be counted upon to fill the entire breach.

There is ground for suspecting, however, that the distinct victory of the Maine governor involved elements of much greater importance than those embraced in the question of looks, and it is perhaps too early to abandon issues of a more weighty nature in the interest of pulchritude. — Tuscaloosa News.

Misfits On The Farm

Everyone knows that farmers have not had a bed of roses for several years, and many of them are sorely pressed at present in spite of the numerous legislative act designed to aid them.

Still, regardless of the difficulties of their general situation, there may be found in nearly every community a number of farmers who have made progress, or who have at least held their own, even during the depression. These, it is needless to say, are men who really know farming, and plan their operations in an intelligent manner.

A leading banker in the Northwest, after checking up a large number of farmers in his community, has come to the conclusion that farm failures are largely due to lack of experience on the part of those who failed. He found that among those who have been least successful are a number of persons who do not belong on the farm, and lists a few, as follows:

Two circus musicians, a paper hanger, a sailor, a seagoing engineer, a race horse man, a bricklayer, and undertaker, a deep sea diver, a milliner, a professional gambler and three old maids.

All of these failed as farmers, of course, as might have been foretold, and their unfavorable experiences illustrate the futility of much of the "back to the farm" propaganda that has been spread about.

The farmer needs training and experience in the management of agricultural affairs, just as those in other walks of life must have training and experience before being entrusted with important activities. A misfit on the farm will be a failure, as he will be in any other calling for which he is unsuited.

The Victory In Maine

The result of the recent election in Maine, which state is proverbially, but not always, accurately assumed to forecast what is to happen in the following national election, is important politically because it reveals that confidence in the success of the "New Deal" has not been weakened materially by verbal assaults or by actual experience.

Maine voters as a rule evidently believe that the processes of recovery are going to work out and they are ready to "stand by" while future efforts are made to restore normal conditions.

But while this development is immensely cheering to the administration and to party leaders generally, it well may be considered an evidence of faith in works that are not to be performed—and the works must follow.

The result reveals a condition that probably is general throughout the country. There is widespread confidence in the administration's good intentions and widespread appreciation of what has been accomplished. At the same time, the fact is recognized generally that the job is far from complete and its completion is an essential factor in holding present gains and achieving others as the presidential election—toward which eyes now are turning—begins to occupy the minds of the public.

The administration is fully alive to this situation and there is no doubt that every effort will be made to have the recovery machinery working smoothly and efficiently with the least possible loss of time.—Tuscaloosa News.

Facts And Figures on The Progress Of The "New Deal" In The United States

A Straight From The Shoulder Picture Of What Has Been Done And Probable Outcome Of Democratic Program

An address delivered by Hon. James A. Farley, Postmaster General of the United States, at Groton, Conn., Wednesday evening, September 5, 1934.

"I think this is the time and place for plain talk, with all the cards on the table; with no reservations and a determination in the future, as in the past, to do our utmost for the country and for our party.

"In these days of political campaigning, you may hear the Democratic party attacked for some fancied infringement on the right of human liberty. There is nothing to the charge. It is as empty as it is false.

"Human liberty has ever been one of the cardinal tenets of Democratic doctrine. One hundred and forty years ago Thomas Jefferson first enunciated the liberal doctrines that definitely took form as a party organization. That party has survived. It has lived through one domestic and four foreign wars. It has lived through economic depressions; it has lived through periods of business prosperity. Wealth has not dulled its conscience, nor want subdued it. The Democratic party stands today, more than ever before, protector of the rights of the many as against privilege for the few. As a party, it has lived because it has served. Woodrow Wilson used to say that the reason for the virility of the Democratic party has been because it had a heart under its jacket.

"I rest content that the people of this country will decide for themselves whether they care to entrust their sacred liberties to the reckless crew of buccaneers who ran riot with the destinies of the people in the Hoover period of quicksand prosperity, or whether they will trust their destiny to the liberal, far-seeing and humane leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"In effecting the important legislation of the New Deal, I am happy to say we have had the whole-hearted cooperation of your Democratic legislative representatives from Connecticut -- Senator Augustus Lonergan, Congressman Herman Koppleman and Congressman Francis T. Maloney. I am glad to say this, and to express the hope that you may see fit to send a full, one hundred per cent loyal delegation from this state to Washington next January to aid in completing the Roosevelt program for recovery.

"In harmony with the New Deal and the principles of the Roosevelt program have been the state governments of most of the states of the Union. Connecticut, under the able direction of Governor Wilbur Cross, has been loyally behind the administration. I hope that the people of Connecticut recognize this fact, and return to power a Democratic state ticket, from top to bottom. You will profit from it in better government, more efficient government and I am confident, more economical government, and you will rest secure in the knowledge that your state administration is pulling together in harness with the national administration, all working for the common good.

"I would be less than human, upon an occasion like this, if I did not address myself to a word of thankfulness to those liberal-minded, loyal, Democrats who stood fast to their ideals in early 1932, and unyielding, assisted in the nomination of then Governor Roosevelt to the presidency. These are many, and all cannot be mentioned, but standing out are the Honorable Homer T. Cummings, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and now lending his fine character and distinguished ability to the office of Attorney General of the United States. And to my loyal friends, Dr. Edward Dolan, Archie McNeil, and Mrs. Welch - and a host of others, I give this word of greeting.

"I desire also at this time to express my most sincere and grateful thanks to your state chairman, David A. Wilson, for the splendid efforts he and his party workers put forth in the 1932 campaign.

"Let me here say a thank you, too, to those thousands of Republican voters who broke their party shackles in the last election to help put the Roosevelt program into effect. These Republican voters I hope to find permanently enlisted in the ranks of the Democratic party, helping us shoulder to shoulder this November just as they have in the past.

"No administration, as I have said, can be wholly successful without team-work. This is especially true in such a situation as the country now finds itself. The task of restoring prosperity; of recoordinating the parts of our vast industrial and commercial machinery so that it will function as it should with work for everybody and a legitimate profit for business itself, is at best only half done. The work must be completed and for that completion harmony is necessary — harmony at Washington and harmony in the party in each individual state.

"I am not concerned with the healthy rivalry of pre-primary and pre-election contests. Those are a part of the political picture. 'But we should never lose sight of the fact, that once our party leadership is settled, our duty as citizens and as party members is plain. We should support the party, and stand by it. Public concern is not with the party rivalries, but with the manner in which we as party members, entrusted with public responsibility, perform our tasks.

"If we serve the public well our party will be continued in office. If we do not, it is only a question of time when we shall be supplanted. That is how administrations are made or wrecked.

"You must remember that it is the policy of the opposition to fan the flames of any Democratic controversy. As long as we are united they are helpless; it is only when discord induces apathy in any considerable element among us that they have the least hope of even local success. In the country at large, I am happy to report they know that they have no chance. I have been over a great deal of the country several times in the past few months. In nearly every state I found the same situation—a stiff primary battle, which our political foes cheered and made the most of—and everywhere a united front following the primaries, determined to uphold the hands of our President.

"Under these conditions I have no hesitancy in telling you that in the coming election we will increase our majority in the United States Senate by at least six seats, and so far I have not heard a responsible Republican statesman specify a single seat in the House of Representatives now held by a Democrat that they expected to win.

"In some respects the Republican strategy in the pending campaign is without precedent so far as my political experience goes. They express not the remotest hope of getting control of either House of Congress—the natural goal in any Congressional election. Their aim, as frankly disclosed by the Chairman of their Congressional Campaign Committee, is to come out ahead in thirty-one districts to the end that they may have just over one-third of the House membership, and thus be able to block the legislation advanced by the majority. What a noble ambition! What an elevated aim! What a patriotic programme! What a deep sense of obligation to a country that is devoted to majority control, to strive to balk the popular will and obstruct the processes of Government, simply because the administration is of the opposite party! Their purpose, of course, is perfectly obvious.

"Their chief function is not what any reasonable student of good government would expect—to furnish a constructive opposition. Their conception of an opposition is just that, and nothing more—to oppose. Good or bad, in keeping with their own party ideals or at variance with it—they are against the New Deal.

"The national situation is too grave to be made the football of politics. The Recovery measures should never have been the subject of partisan controversy, and never were until the imminence of an election made those in charge of the Republican machine forget the welfare of the nation in the interest of what they deemed political expediency.

"You may remember that when those measures were first before Congress there was hardly a breath of criticism or a suggestion of faltering in the granting to the President of the authority he sought to deal with the emergency. Approximately 40 per cent of the Republican members of the Senate and House voted for the very acts which the distinguished gentlemen who are now running the Republican party are now describing as unconstitutional, with the additional suggestion that they are being exercised to draw the nation into Communism, Socialism, Despotism, Bureaucracy or Paternalism, or whatever other ism they can find in a dictionary of political bug-a-boos. Now I just wonder how processes which were deemed for the National interest and welfare last year are such bad examples of National suicide this year.

"However, they need this variety of terms to meet the necessities of their campaign. Here in the Industrial East they are telling you that the purpose of the Roosevelt administration is to destroy the profit element in business for the benefit of the farmer. Out in the agricultural West they are explaining just as clamorously that the desire of the administration is to turn the country over to the monopolists and exalt the city laborers at the expense of the tillers of the soil—and either of these two statements is as accurate as the other.

"Even the distinguished and incomparable economist, Henry Fletcher, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, is quite aware of the circumstances that the city dweller would have no job if the agriculturist didn't have money to buy the output of our mills and factories. Likewise, the farmer would have no market if the people in the towns and cities were not prosperous enough to pay for what the farmer raises. I don't think even your pious fellow citizen, J. Henry Roraback, would dispute these self-evident facts.

"No, do not be alarmed! Neither the Democratic party nor the Democratic administration have gone adrift.

"I think twenty or thirty cases have been brought to the attention of the courts bearing on various phases of the New Deal and in every case that has reached it the Supreme Court has up-held the constitutionality of the enactments. The Attorney General of the United States, your own Homer Cummings, in discussing the subject the other day said:

"'Those who affect to believe that the Constitution is in serious peril forget or ignore the fact that the courts of the land, in orderly fashion, will decide all such questions as they arise. In cases which they have thus far passed upon, no constitutional defects have been found in any essential measure connected with the so-called New Deal. Let me say, by way of comfort to the timid, who may be disturbed or bewildered by the outcries which arise from interested sources—Be of good cheer, the Supreme Court of the United States is not likely to place the seal of its approval upon unconstitutional measures; and the integrity of the Constitution is entirely safe in the hands of the Federal Judiciary.'

"We happen to have a very decisive index to the extent that the N.R.A., the A.A.A. and the other agencies of the Recovery movement have—to quote our Republican critics—'taken the profit element out of business'. The latest Treasury report, dealing prosaically with the income tax returns shows that during the year ending July 1, taxes were paid on incomes aggregating in the neighborhood of two billion dollars more than the incomes of the previous year.

"Those are not the figures of the Democrat-Chairman of the Democratic National Committee addressing a Democratic convention. They are the returns made by all our income tax paying citizens under oath.

"Among other sins we are charged with by our opponents is the sin of extravagance. That is rather amazing considering the circumstances that the normal expenses of the various Government departments in the first year of Roosevelt were $750,000,000 less than in the last year of Hoover. By normal expenses I mean the routine expenditures for services and administration that go on year in and year out; in good times and in bad times. Too often, members of the opposition in venturing into the realm of government finances, become all too reckless for their own or their country's good. They charge to expenditures every variety of government aid. If the Reconstruction Finance Corporation hands a banker two million dollars and takes it as security for the loan, collateral to the actual present value of two and a half or three million dollars, they charge the two million dollars as a government expenditure.

"If a distressed home-owner comes to the government's Home Owners' Loan Corporation and applies for a five thousand dollar loan, the government grants it, but takes a mortgage for it as security. Yet, the opposition lumps all home loans as expenditures. If a farm-owner wants to refinance a mortgage on his farm, he applies to the Farm Credit Administration. He gives security for what he gets, but the Republicans would have you believe that the government is on a wild spending spree. If a municipality wants to borrow money for the construction of a water works, the Public Works Administration exacts first a legal and collectible obligation from the city—and yet we are taken to task as reckless spenders.

"Naturally, there have been extraordinary expenditures, which are lumped under the head of relief and civil works. These every right thinking citizen cannot help but admit were necessary. People were starving; economic chaos faced us; the only humane thing and the only courageous thing to do was just what President Roosevelt did. But, in considering the fiscal balance sheet of the government, and I maintain that it is in sound condition—let us consider another type of balance sheet.

"The people have had in income $2,000,000,000 more than last year. The wage earners have received between two and three billion dollars more than last year. More than four million people have been given work. Business men are doing better than last year; commercial failures are less; finance is on an even keel after the storms of 1932 and early 1933. Confidence has been restored. Business is on the mend.

"I find in connection with the activities of the post office department, a very healthy and recurring note of late in increased postal receipts. We, of course, have balanced our budget. We have removed from the backs of the people of this country a tax burden that in recent years mounted to as high as one hundred and fifty million dollars a year. If the post office doesn't pay its way, the people have to pay taxes to meet the deficit. I want to pay tribute to the loyal workers of the postal forces, who have, by their splendid cooperation made this result possible. I am glad to have been postmaster general under an administration that balanced the budget of this important department, which has been done only eleven times during the past one hundred years.

"Now I don't suppose you are any fonder of statistics than I am; nevertheless I am going to give you a few more, so that you may yourselves give a verdict as to whether this administration has not discharged the sacred duty of relief justly, economically and with concern alike for the government and for the people.

"Twenty-one million, six hundred thousand dollars went to public works; new government building projects of merit. Would you have preferred that this money should not be spent in wages to your working people and for materials of construction, at a time when business was stagnant and unemployment was the biggest problem of the hour? Approximately $21,000,000 was loaned by the R.F.C. to your banks and similar institutions. That will come back to the Treasury with interest. C.W.A work accounted for $9,600,000 and eight and a half million went for direct relief. There are other items, among them, 14 C.C.C. camps which have cost $3,251,000 and have done more than that amounts to for the protection of your woods, the control of your water courses and such things.

"But the main benefit, worth much more than the whole cost lies in the fact that thousands of young men many of whom have come to age at a time when no places were open to them, have been given healthful employment and a training that will be of value to them and to you instead of being permitted to drift into the melancholy ranks of the jobless, doomed through no fault of theirs to be a wandering charge on the commonwealth.

"That is the story repeated with minor variations in forty-eight states. It represents one-half of the programme President Roosevelt conceived for our rehabilitation and restoration. The other half embraces industrial, commercial and agricultural restoration. Nobody assumes that every detail of it was perfect. As the President himself announced it would be modified as experience developed its strong points and its weak ones. That process is still going on and mut go on if we are ever to get back to where we belong in the economic field.

"I could recite indefinitely the instances and examples that demonstrate the success of the experiment—the translation of deficits in great industries into profits, the increase in payrolls and the dimunition of unemployment and more important than these the substitution of confidence for the psychology of despair. We are on our way upward but we are still a long stretch from where we must get to but we will make it despite the efforts of our political opponents to recreate a panic by deprecating the gains made and parading the ghosts and phantoms of mythical social perils.

"No constitutional government is all-powerful. We cannot prevent such happenings as the drouth that laid waste millions of acres of our farm lands. We cannot always avert industrial disturbances, though the constant effort has been to settle the controversies that arise and this has been done in many instances. A strike in a big industry is a dramatic head-line compelling thing. A strike settled before it becomes acute is only an inside page story for the newspapers, if it comes to their attention at all. The administration cannot order an employer to accept the terms demanded by labor; it cannot order labor to forego its right to strive for better conditions. If it did either of these things it would most certainly violate the liberties guaranteed by the constitution.

"I have gone into the processes and effects of the New Deal because that has been made the issue of the pending campaign by the minority party. Our President has been doing his job to the limit. It is up to the people throughout the country to do theirs. I do not need to tell you that he does his own thinking. He listens to the advice of all and then he acts according to his own conscience, his own good practical horse sense, his own concept of his duty to all the people. He cannot do it all, even if he wishes to. He must have the cooperation of Congress and he needs the cooperation of the state Governments.

"This is no ordinary election. Its outcome will be taken as indicating the faith of the country in the policies that have brought us so far along the trail back to prosperity."

Constipation Symptoms Soon Go Away After Use of Black-Draught

Mrs. S. G. Ramey, of Henryetta, Okla., writes that she has taken Thedford's Black-Draught about twenty-five years, when needed, and has "found it very good." "When I have a sour stomach and my mouth tastes bitter, and I feel bilious, sluggish and tired, I will very soon have a severe headache if I don't take something. I have learned to keep off these spells by taking Thedford's Black-Draught. Very soon I am feeling fine. I feel that Black-Draught can't be beaten as a family medicine." . . . PLEASANT GROVE

Jemison

Another week has past and we are still having beautiful weather to pick cotton and do other farm work.

Our sick folks are some better and some about the same. Mrs. Hermie Hodgens, Mrs. George Spivey are improving while Mrs. Bill Davenport and Mrs. Monroe Frnklin are about the same. Mrs. Emmett Miskelley is on our sick list this week. We ask God to bless each one of them.

Mrs. Newton Peeple and children, James, Junior, Juanita, and Mary Pansy; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davenport and little son, James Frank; Mr. and Mrs. Vasteen Davenport and daughter, Frances Gene, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Davenport Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Woodley and sons, Raymond and Erskin; Mr. and Mrs. Z. Woodley were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Woodley Sunday.

Mrs E. C. Davenport spent Wednesday night and Thursday with her son, Mr. Bill Davenport.

Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Woodley and daughter, Sarah Frances, and son, J.W., and Mrs. Bice of Centerville called by to see their old friend, Mrs. Martha Wilson Sunday evening.

Mrs. Clyde Champion visited Mrs Jim Woodley Sunday afternoon.

Miss Lorene Davenport spent Thursday night with her aunt, Miss Olis Davenport.

Mrs. Dayton Chapman spent Thursday with Mrs. Sam Woodley.

Miss Mattie Childress took dinner with her aunt, Mrs. Jim Miskelley, Sunday.

Miss Edith Davenport, with her friend, Lucile Adair, took dinner with Edith's aunts, the Misses Champions Sunday.

Mrs. Phillip Franklin and her nephews, Mr. Frank Cox and Cecil Franklin took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Zuber Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dawson and little son, Jimmie, spent the week end with their aunts, the Misses Champions.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Turner are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E.D. Dawson.

Mrs. Newton Peeple and children spent Saturday night with her brother, Mr. Bill Davenport.

Mrs. Martha Wilson spent Thursday with Mrs. Jim Woodley.

Mr. Carl Dawson spent Thusday night with his mother, Mrs. Dovie Dawson, and his sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Franklin.

Mr. Leo Spivey visited Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Franklin Thursday night.

Mr. Alvin Childress was the dinner guest of Mr. Leo Miskelley Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Caton were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Miskelley Sunday.

Mrs. Clayton Kincade and daughter, Clara Mae, and son Tommie, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dock Hodgens, Sunday.

Sunday was our regular preaching day. We also called our pastor for another year. The Rev. Maurice Hodgens was unanimously called. We are proud of our young man and surely do appreciate such boys as Maurice. We feel that God has a great work for him to do here in our church so christians, all of us, let's hold Maurice up and support him with our paryers. May God bless him in his great work for God. Our former pastor, the Rev. J. C. Mil'er, is to be with us next Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night. Let's all come out and welcome him and show him how much we appreciate his visits and sermons.

We had with us in our church service Sunday our good friend and neighbor, Mr. George Littleton. We enjoyed having him with us and invite him back again.

Our Sunday School and B.Y.P.U. are doing fine. May God bless us in this work and help us do a greater work for him this coming year than ever before.

PATES CHAPEL

We were very glad to have the visitors with us Sunday night and invite them all back again.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Maddox and children, Ruby, Roscoe, and Dorothy, of Thorsby, were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. E.J. Hayes Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Hayes and little son, Aubry Lee, and Mrs. Mealie Hayes spent Sunday with Mrs. V. A. Hayes's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rube Williams of near Thorsby.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rainwate and son. Johnnie, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hayes and Misses Ludie Mae Wallis and Rubye Maddox went to the singing at Mars Hill Sunday and some others went, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Champion and sons of near Cedar Grove were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Maddox Sunday night.

Saturday night was a week ago we had with us our pastor and his family. We were very glad to have them.

We wish to thank each and every one who came and helped us with the ice cream supper. It was a success.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rainwater and Miss Hazel Maddox motored to Birmingham Thursday to shop.

Knowing He Can Stop Is Comfort To Car Drivers

Tire Buyers Should Be Carefully Considering Treads For Wet Fall Roads

One of the greatest feelings of satisfaction a motorist can have results from his knowledge that he can stop in time if an emergency arises, is the opinion of Dief's Service Station, local dealer for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

"Motorists who are driving on smooth tires are subjecting themselves and others to a hazard that could be avoided," Mr. Dief declared. "Insurance records show that skidding causes five and one-half times as many accidents as blowouts—and the danger of skidding increases considerably as winter approaches. The man who is driving on smooth, worn tires simply cannot stop in time in event of emergency and cannot prevent a skid.

"However, cars equipped with tires having traction in the center of the tread—like the now famous Goodyear G-3 All Weather—can stop quickly, because of the husky, gripping diamond blocks placed where they should be for skid protection. 'Stop tests' on slippery pavements show that smooth tires slide 77 per cent farther and that other new tires slide from 14 to 19 per cent farther than G-3's. The greater number of diamond blocks in the center of the tread, the average of two pounds more rubber in the tread, the wider, flatter contact with the road and the Supertwist cord carcass construction—all combine to give 43 per cent more non-skid mileage in the G-3.

"With new G-3's the car owner knows that he is able to stop in a minimum of time in event of emergency," Mr. Dief concluded.

THE REV. J. W. JONES IS ILL AT HIS HOME IN THORSBY

Friends of the Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Thorsby Baptist church, will regret to learn that he is confined to his bed with an attack of neuritis. He became ill last Wednesday and was still confined to his home early this week.

The Rev. Jones is one of the most popular ministers in this section and his work is recognized as a great influence for good throughout the county. The News joins with his many other friends in hoping that he will soon be able to resume his work. The Rev. Dewey Robinson is filling his pastorate during his illness.

Barbecue, Mt Carmel

Everybody come to the barbecue at Mt. Carmel (old Childress Cemetery) on next Saturday, September 29. Beef pork, and kid will be plentiful and well browned, cooked by the Walker negroes.

We are expecting Bro. Bryan to be with us at that time. A platform will be provided for the speakers, seats for the listeners, etc. All candidates of both parties have a special invitation and will be given opportunity to say a few words to the crowd before the other services. Don't miss this treat. Benefit of new church.

MARGIN OF SAFETY

Skidding—cause of 5½ times more accidents than blowouts—becomes more dangerous as winter approaches. For quickest stops buy "G-3" Goodyears—proved safest by 8,400 tests.

When you must suddenly jam on your brakes, averting an accident often is a matter of inches. Well, stop tests on slippery pavement show: on smooth tires you slide 77% farther, on other new tires you slide 14% to 19% farther than on new "G-3" Goodyear All-Weathers. That's the Goodyear Margin of Safety—a big reason why more people buy Goodyears than any other tire. Since it costs you nothing extra, why not have this margin of safety on your car too?

Former Jemison Man Is A Suicide Victim

o

Birmingham, Ala.—George Stanley Millsap, principal of the Irondale Junior High school, fatally shot himself at his home in the suburb Monday. He is reported to have threatened to kill himself because of ill health.

Neighbors reported hearing a shot about 3 o'clock this morning. The negro janitress of the school, alarmed at Mr. Millsap's failure to come to school, went to the home at 8 a. m. and found the body in the bathroom.

Mr. Millsap's wife, Mrs. Elmo Booth Millsap, formerly a teacher in the Irondale school, was at the home of her mother, who is ill in South Alabama.

In his desk at the school was found a note saying that "The time has come to say goodbye." County Investigator Gip M. Evans returned a verdict of suicide.

Mr. Millsap, a graduate of Birmingham-Southern college and of the Chilton County High school at Clanton, joined the Jefferson county school system in 1928. He was principal of the Kimberly elementary school and was made principal at Irondale in 1931.

Mr. Millsap was 31 years old.

Survivors, besides his wife, include his mother, Mrs. Martha E. Millsap, 431 Fourth Ct. w., and two sisters, Miss Tempe Millsap, a teacher in the Newcastle school, and Mrs. W. A. Massey, 300 Seventh Pl., sw.

Mr. Millsap is prominently known in this section, having attended school at the Chilton County High School in Clanton and lived for a number of years at Jemison. He is the son of Mrs. Thomas S. Millsap and the family is well known in Chilton County.

Bertha Margolis, Complainant, vs Marvin Aldridge and the unknown heirs of Marvin Aldridge, Respondent.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of Lawrence F. Gerald, Solicitor for Complainant, that the Respondent, Marvin Aldridge is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and his place of residence and Postoffice address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort, and further that, in the belief of affiant the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years, that the names of the heirs of said Marvin Aldridge are unknown, as well as their residence and Postoffice address.

It is therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton and State of Alabama, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring the said Marvin Aldridge and the unknown heirs of Marvin Aldridge to plead, answer or demur to the Bill of Complaint in this cause by the 30th day of October, 1934, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro-confesso may be taken against them.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 25 day of September, 1934.

W. D. SPIGENER, Register.

Father Of Tax Collector Died Tuesday

Jesse Jasper Culp, father of Tax Collector W. G. Culp, died Tuesday morning at 8:15 o'clock at his home in the Mt. Pleasant community following an illness of two weeks.

Mr. Culp, who was 81 years of age, was born and reared in Chilton County and had been a lifelong resident of the county. He had lived in the Mt. Pleasant community most of his life, where he was a prominent farmer until his age caused him to retire from active work several years ago.

He was a member of the Liberty Hill Baptist church and had been active in church work for the fifty-three years of his membership.

Surviving him are: three daughters, Mrs. B. H. Jones, Mrs. J. C. Maddox, Mrs. R. W. Ward, all of Clanton; and three sons, M. O. Culp, of Birmingham, W. G. Culp, and Albert Culp, both of Clanton. He is also survived by eight grandchildren. His wife died several years ago.

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at 10:00 o'clock from the Liberty Hill church with Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist church, and the Rev. J. T. Daniel officiating. Burial was in the churchyard cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

The following friends of the family served as pallbearers: Lee Caton, Hershel Lowery, Allen Smith, Dewey Oakes, Raymond Crowe, and —Smith.

Chilton Women Learn Make Cheese At Home

A brand new industry is being introduced into Chilton County. The art of converting surplus milk products into cheese. This promises to become an important phase in agricultural development in this section, according to Miss Ruth Pardue, home demonstration agent, who is interested in promoting this activity.

She reported that those who attended the leadership meeting held at the Methodist church recently were very enthusiastic regarding the possibilities of this industry in Chilton County. Forty-five leaders of the leadership schools in every section of the county were present and participated in the demonstration which was being given by Miss Lavada Curtis, home demonstration agent of Dale County, and Miss Pardue.

Several pounds of cheese were made and Miss Pardue expects that these leaders will introduce the art into their various clubs and this new home industry will rapidly spread throughout the county. No equipment other than that which is had in every kitchen is necessary for the manufacture of cheese, she stated, and the product is made from surplus milk, so that the cost is comparatively nothing. Although for sometime the manufacture of cheese in Chilton County will be for home consumption alone, Miss Pardue declared that she believes there is a possibility of building it into a paying party of the farm work.

"Can, Can---All You Can"

Vesta Smith
Home Ec. III—Jemison High School

Home canning is the best means of providing a sufficient supply of nutritious foods during the winter months. Food Preservation save money, labor, time, and energy. By having a generous supply of home-canned fruits and vegetables, jelly, preserves, pickles, and dried fruits a well-balanced meal is insured at a few moments notice. Better health, better work, better sleep, better play can result only from having wholesom, well-balanced meals.

For these reasons I took a "Food Preservation" project during the summer months. We felt that we needed some instructions in this work, and a number of girls met with their Home Ec. teacher at one of the girl's home. We canned string beans, English peas, and beets. At two other meetings we canned corn, soup stack, and beans.

We were expected to learn to can fruits and vegetables. make jelly, pickles, dry fruits, and store all in a suitable place. In order to do this well we had to select containers and choose the best method of preservation of the foods. We also had to be careful about getting the right proportion of seasoning and determining the length of time for cooking. We studied the selection of food for preservation and the care of food after it was dried.

During the summer I have canned corn, string beans, kraut, chili sauce, tomatoes, peaches, blackberries, strawberries, soup stack, and squashes. I have made plum and strawberry jelly, peach, watermelon rind, and fig preserves. I have also dried peaches and figs and stored all in a suitable place.

These foods were home-grown and would have otherwise wasted. The total cost of the project was eight dollars and thirty-six cents, approximately four and one-half cents per quart.

The bulletins and magazine articles which I have read were very helpful. Some of these were: "Steps in Home Canning," "Simple Methods of Canning Fruits and Vegetables," "Success in Canning Fruit," and "Canning the Year Round."

Below is a recipe which might be helpful to someone.

Pear Relish

8 quarts pears, 2 quarts onions, 8 green peppers, 2 large cans dill pickles, 1 cup salt, 2 quarts vinegar, 2 pounds sugar, 12 teaspoons dry mustard, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 teaspoons tumeric in a little water. Mix water, tumeric, flour, mustard, sugar and vinegar. Put pears through food chopper, add salt and drain after standing one hour. Add onion, pepper, dill pickle. Add to first mixture which should be boiling. Let boil one hour.

This makes a delicious sandwich spread.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. G. White and two sons, Archie and Arnold; Mr. and Mrs. Winford Jackson spent last Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Sylacauga attending the Primitive Baptist Wetumpka association.

"Pains Gone," Says Lady, After She Had Taken CARDUI

In describing how her health improved after she had taken Cardui, Mrs. Ralph R. Courtney, of Wytheville, Va., said: "I was run-down and suffered from pain in my side. I wanted to feel well and get rid of the pain in my side, so I sent for Cardui and began taking it. By the time I had taken three bottles of Cardui, I was feeling much better. The pains had gone. I am very glad to recommend Cardui to other young women." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. $1 a bottle, at drug stores.

WHEREAS, the legislature of Alabama at an extraordinary session held during the year, 1932, ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held at the General Election in November, 1934, and

WHEREAS, the General Election in November, 1934, is to be held on Tuesday, November 6, 1934, as provided by law, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law, and by the provisions of the Act submitting the said amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each County in the State of Alabama once a week for eight (8) successive weeks immediately preceding the said 6th day of November, 1934;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 6th day of November, 1934, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> The Legislature of Alabama hereafter from time to time by general or local laws, but subject to the provisions of Section 231 of the Constitution of Alabama, may fix, regulate and alter the costs, charges of court, fees, commissions, allowances or salaries be charged or received by the following county officers of Mobile County, Alabama, the Judge of Probate, the Tax Assessors, the Tax Collector, the Clerk of the Circuit Court, and the Register of the Circuit Court, including the method and basis of the compensation of such officers.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 6th day of November, 1934, in each County of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 19th day of July, 1934.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

An American naturalist tells us how he discovered on the Atlantic coast the skeleton of an Eagle with an iron clamp clinging to the bone of one leg. Hundreds of miles away that noble bird had stepped into a trap and the steel jaws had clamped tight about its foot. It flew many a weary mile until worn and exhausted it fell upon the margin of the sea. Its burden was more than it could carry and its bones bleaching in the sun told the sad story of a hopeless struggle. We meet with many a like case in the human family. Many years ago a man stepped into a trap that was waiting for his thoughtless feet and a bad habit clamped down upon his life. The formation of that habit was long ago, but it is still clinging to him and it is gradually, steadily, pulling him down. I have got to see my first man who formed the habit of drink who did not sooner or later drop to earth under the burden and the load of an intemperate life. Beware of all the steel traps of bad habits.

I walked into the room at the hospital and saw a fine lad on the bed with a broken limb. He was crying aloud and my sympathy went out to him. I ventured to ask his mother if the boy was suffering from his broken leg. She replied, "No, he is not crying from the injury of his limb, but he wants a banana and I do not think it best for him to have it." That boy's leg may have pained him, but he wanted a banana at that time and that want overtopped any other pains that might have molested him. He had his head set on a banana and that was all that he could think about. When we get our heads set on a thing we forget about other things and we must have that desire regardless of whether we need it or not. The most of us in this world are just lads with a broken leg, crying for a banana. We want money, we want pleasure, we want liberty and all the time we are on crutches in regard to our spiritual life. The most of us do more crying because of what we want than we do because of our crippled condition.

I walked up to a peach tree in my back yard and seeing that it was loaded with large yellow peaches, I was soon feeling of them between my fingers. I found one that was soft and pulled it. The peach being of the clear-seed variety I soon had two halves in my hands. To my dismay and disappointment each piece of the peach had not less than six large white worms. I pulled several other peaches and found them infested with the moving, squirming insects, that made the peach repulsive to the appetite. Have you ever been disappointel in good looking folks? Jesus said of a bunch of religious leaders one day, "You are like whited sepulchres, without you look good, but on the inside you are full of dead men's bone." The keenest disappointment in life is to be disappointed in folks.

I was sitting at my window and a gale was lashing the shrubbery to and fro. In one of the furious pushes of the wind I saw a large bumble bee as he gripped the flower in search of food. I watched him with close attention expecting every moment to see him flung into the air, or maybe crushed against the side of the house. In spite of blowing winds and lashing shrubbery the bumble bee clung to the cluster of flowers until he was satisfied with his investigation. I have always admired a grit that would tackle and a grip that would not let go. Persistence should be a virtue of man as well as a virtue of bumble bees.

When I was a boy on a farm on Sunday afternoon the boys of the community would gather for play. We had a game that we called "The Animal Game" that we enjoyed very much. In that game one boy would be a hog, another boy a goat, another a sheep, another a cow, another a mule, another a dog, another a skunk, another a fox, etc. We made a circle and all the animals were gathered into the "Bull Pen." Then it was a struggle to see which animal could push the other animal beyond the circle and possess the pen. We did not have to go to picture shows on the Sabbath in those lays—we made our own shows. Since that day I have learned that we are still, more or less, animals pushing about in life to see who shall possess the pen. We still have human hogs, goats, mules and skunks. We are pushing each other about, hoping that we will soon be left alone in the possession of the "Bull Pen."

Winter Legumes Make 20 Bushels More Corn

Auburn, Ala.—Corn production can be increased by at least 20 bushels an acre next year by farmers planting winter cover crops—hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas—this fall, declares M. J. Funchess, dean and director of the Experiment Station, who urges farmers to "properly plant, fertilize, and inoculate to insure a successful crop of winter legumes."

Dean Funchess has a bulletin for free distribution on how to successfully grow these crops. The bulletin is available to farmers upon request. Farmers are urged to obtain bulletins at once as winter legumes should be planted immediately.

Rate Making Plan Of Alabama Liked

Many Other States Write For Information Regarding System Here

The Alabama plan for utilities rate-making in force since Oct. 1, 1933, is attracting country-wide attention with the result that inquiries are constantly being received from commissions of other states seeking information, Chief Engineer I. F. McDonnell, of the Alabama Public Service Commission says.

Paul Mallon, in his Whirligig column, a few days ago referred in a complimentary way to the Alabama plan, and Thomas A. Tatum, chairman of the South Carolina Public Service Commission, spent several days here last week conferring with Chief Engineer McDonnell, going over schedules and studying methods.

The Georgia Public Service Commission has adopted the Alabama plan, the California Public Service Commission has prescribed rates based on this plan for some of the utilities in that state, and the Tennessee Valley Authority recognized its value by requiring similar rates to be put into effect by the Tennessee Electric Power Company

Mr. Mallon, in his article, stressed the $338,000 saved to customers of the Alabama Power Company under the rates that became effective Oct. 1, 1933.

"The Alabama plan," as explained by Chief Engineer McDonnell, "involved the establishment of two schedules of rates, an immediate rate, and an objective rate, favorably affecting about 75 per cent of the total customers of the Alabama Power Company, the only corporation so far affected by the new rating system.

"The immediate rate reduced the bills of 70 per cent of the residence customers an average of 23.1 per cent, instituting for the entire group an immediate saving of approximately $338,000.

"By taking the monthly consumption in kilowatt hours for each customer for the year ended Oct. 1, 1933, and applying the immediate rate, a monthly base bill was established. These bills were used during the present year, which officially ends Oct. 1. These base bills will be progressively lowered 5 per cent each year until Oct. 1, 1936, after which the objective rate will be applicable to all residence customers.

"The effect of lowering the base bills each year, assuming the same use of the service by all customers, is to reduce the rates approximately $100,000 a year until Oct. 1, 1936, when the objective rate will apply to all customers, thereby increasing their annual savings from $338,000 to $600,000."—Reprinted from Birmingham News, Sept. 16, 1934.

REDDY KILOWATT YOUR ELECTRICAL SERVANT

Poultry House Lighting Proves Big Profit Maker

A poultryman, receiving electric service from your company, has made a practical test of the effect of morning lights on poultry and obtained very gratifying results.

A flock of 700 was divided into two pens of approximately 350 birds each. One pen was unlighted, the other equipped with electric lights which were turned on early every morning for five months. At the end of that time, the records showed that birds in the lighted pen had produced 545 dozen more eggs than those in the unlighted pen—an average of 19 eggs per bird. And those eggs were sold at twice the summer price. The additional feed consumed in the lighted house was 1290 pounds—less than 4 pounds per bird. Approximately 100 kilowatt-hours of electricity were used, at a cost of $3.00. The total cost, including feed, was less than $30.00.

For further information, write for our new booklet on Poultry House Lighting.

DID YOU KNOW

THAT 95% of all people over 60 have defective vision. More light is a great aid to these.

THAT one-fourth of our young people suffer from defective vision.

THAT good lighting aids defective eyes even more than it does normal eyes.

Better Light Better Sight

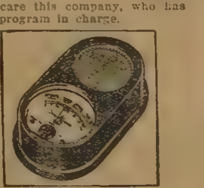
Object Of Nation Wide Campaign Against Impaired Vision

Better Light—Better Sight! That is the objective of a nation-wide campaign in which utilities, manufacturers of optical appliances, paint and wall paper makers, wholesale and retail lighting contractors and others are being drawn together in a solid phalanx in the battle against impaired vision and inadequate seeing.

In this campaign Alabama Power Company, electric dealers, and other agencies throughout the state, working hand in hand are playing an active role. Objectives of the movement are succinctly stated in the platform of the National Committee: "Our eyes, plus correction where needed, plus adequate light properly shaded and directed, plus proper reflecting surfaces on walls and ceiling, equals—better sight."

A unique feature of the Alabama campaign are the night garden parties, which have been held in various communities.

The Lighting Department of our company will gladly assist home owners or business establishments in renovizing their lighting effects. Those interested should write to Mr. J. C. Tyson, Jr., care this company, who has the program in charge.



The Sight Meter measures light. Under the New Study lamp it registers 30 footcandles — the right light for study.

AIR CONDITIONING IN MINE

Air conditioning 8,000 feet underground! It's a fact in one of the large gold mines in the famous Rand district in South Africa. An electrical system now furnishes cool, pure air to the 8,000 foot level, where intense heat has been slowing up production. It will permit working of vast ore deposits at even lower levels.

had an interest in the "parity" payment and that to put off payment until December, the usual season for many tenants and renters to move to ther farms, would cause unnecessary complications.

The "parity" payments due cotton producers of the South total $28,000,000. The second installment of the rental payments is approximately $44,500,000.

The AAA expects to pay benefits on the 1934 crop totalling $117,052,539. Payments on the first installment totalled $41,061,775 up to September 14, leaving payments yet to be made to Southern farmers on the 1934 cotton program of $75,990,764.

The first installment was one-half of the rental payment, with the second to be the remainder of the rental. The third installment is a parity payment, calculated on the basis of 1 cent a pound on the estimated share of each farmer's average past production which enters domestic consumption.

the skyway over Clanton is rapidly becoming a part of the routine activity of the day, and Mr. Allen stated that he believes with the number that is expressing interest in flying that it is not unlikely that several other individuals in Clanton will be flying their own planes within the near future.

Early this week, it was stated, that more than a half-dozen have announced their intention of enrolling in Mr. Allen's classes. He explained, however, that before he can give lessons the student must undergo physical examinations for a department of commerce permit.

Mr. Allen is recognized as one of the most efficient airmen in the state, having been flying since 1929. His experience has been gathered in almost every section of the country and in South America, where he spent quite a bit of time during recent years.

Foshee was charged with the slaying of Henry Garrett, negro, at Thorsby a few Saturday nights ago. The negro, according to witnesses, was drinking and cursed young Foshee. An artery in his right arm was severed when he was struck by a knife. Foshee had already been freed at a preliminary trial before Justice of the Peace Sam Collins.

Edwards shot his brother-in-law, Lewis B. Bankston, in late August during a family quarrel, according to information given officers who investigated the shooting. Edwards and his wife, a sister of Bankston, were the only witnesses to the shooting. The stories told by them to officers were conflicting. Edwards said that he shot his brother-in-law when the 19-year-old youth advanced on him with a knife, but Mrs. Edwards said her husband fired on her brother with a 12-gauge shotgun while the youth had his hands in the air.

Will Henderson, who has been held in jail since the night of June 12, charged with the slaying of his brother, Charlie Henderson, was indicted for first degree murder. Henderson shot his brother as a climax to a family argument, according to officers.

Joe Gray, retired Clanton business man, who recently shot his friend, Harvey Chandler, during a "spree" at the old Thornton hotel building, was indicted on a charge of manslaughter. Gray is at liberty on a $3,000 bond.

A first degree murder charge was returned against Walter Quarles, Verbena negro, for the ax-slaying of R. B. Wright. another negro.

GRAND JURY

been lost during that period covered by the examination.

His letter to A. B. Tucker, chief clerk of the Gasoline Tax Department, explaining the alleged shortage follows:

September 20, 1934

Mr. A. B. Tucker,
Gasoline Depart.
Capitol

Dear Sir:

On my first report, covering the period from March, 1933, through May, 1934, there showed no record for 79,131 gallons of gasoline. Attached hereto please find supplemental report covering this period:

Inventory plus receipts amounted to 138,888 gallons.

Withdrawn into road machinery, 123,729 gallons.

Withdrawn into other than road equipment, 8,037 gallons.

Please note that there is a difference of 7,122 gallons, a greater part of which could have been lost in handling of this volume over period stated.

Yours very truly,
The State Tax Commission
By T. J. Carlton, auditor,
Gasoline Department.

It is reported that Mr. Carlton also issued a statement declaring that the tax due by Chilton County will not exceed $1,000. Recently Mr. Tucker filed a claim against the county for $11,554.75. The supplemental report made by Mr. Carlton was based, it is understood, on information furnished him by Johnny Easterling, driver of the county gasoline truck, who had the tickets for a period of months at his home.

During the session investigation was made of 48 cases and 134 witnesses were examined. Thirty-one true bills were returned. Of the six homicides which came up for investigation, three of those being held were exonerated.

Following is a copy of the report which was filed with Circuit Clerk J. Z. Mims:

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.
Circuit Court of said County and State.
To Hon. F. Loyd Tate, as Judge of said Court:

We, the Grand Jury, empanelled for the July Term of the Circuit Court after receiving your Honor's most able charge, entered upon and herewith submit the following report:

During our investigation we have considered 48 cases and have examined 134 witnesses and are returning herewith 31 true bills.

We have made a personal inspection of the County Jail and believe it to be sufficiently safe for the keeping of the prisoners and find that the prisoners confined therein are being well fed and cared for with reasonable comfort.

We have examined the fee book of the Probate Judge and find it neatly kept and correct in so far as we were able to ascertain. We have examined the bonds of the various county officials and find that they are ample for the protection of the public, and in our examination of the sheriff's account with the State for feeding prisoners we find that it is being kept in accordance with the law. On our examination of the office of the County Superintendent of Education we find that his books, records and papers are neatly kept and in so far as we ascertained were being kept fully in accordance with the law.

The Grand Jury have the following recommendations to make to the Commissioners Court, with reference to the handling of the gasoline belonging to the county and believe if these recommendations are carried out that it will eliminate much reason for circiticism by the citizenship of the county and will be much better than the present plan that is being followed:

1. W recommend that the county gasoline distributing truck be kept in the county warehouse or garage that is located near the jail in the Town of Clanton when not in use in distributing gasoline to the various Commissioners' districts of the county and when so kept in the county warehouse or garage

2. That each Commissioner, and the Commissioners Court as a whole, let the employee of the county who is in charge of the distribution of gasoline to the various Commissioners' districts, understand that in no event is he to place county gasoline in any motor vehicle other than those that belong to Chilton County.

3. That the county employee delivering gasoline to the various county employees receive a receipt for the amount of gasoline or oil so delivered, which receipt should be signed by and in the name of the employee of the county that the gasoline is delivered to.

4. That the employee of the county who has charge of the county's bulk gasoline station, and whose duty it is to distribute gasoline to the various Commissioners' districts, should at least once a month account to the Commissioners Court as a whole for every galon of county gasoline that he has handled.

5. That the employee of the county who has charge of the county's bulk gasoline plant, and whose duty it is to distribute the county's gasoline, should be required by the Commissioners Court to make a bond, which, in no event, should be less than $1,000.00 to insure the faithful performance of his duties in handling the county gasoline.

The Grand Jury did not return a True Bill against Clyde Hudson and he should be released from jail unless other charges have been preferred against him other than the one investigated by the Grand Jury.

On our inspection of the Almshouse we find 27 inmates all of which are white. The Grand Jury is of the opinion that the Alms house is being well handled by those in charge and that the occupants get meals and attention in so far as the arrangement for taking care of the inmates will reasonably permit. The Grand Jury recommend to the Commissioners Court that the well at the Alms house and the piping in the well be cleaned, as we found the water to have a peculiar odor and taste, which in our opinion can be remedied by thoroughly cleaning the well and the piping.

The Grand Jury wishes especially to thank your Honor for the very able charge given us when we were first empannelled as it has been most helpful to us throughout our investigations.

Sheriff Gillespie and his deputies and Mr. Loss Robinson, the bailiff for the Grand Jury, were most courteous to us during our investigations and rendered us valuable assistance in the dispatch of the business before us, all of which we greatly appreciate.

We, having complied to the best of our ability with your Honor's charge, we respectfully ask that we now be dismissed until such time as your Honor may see fit and think proper to have us to again convene.

This September 21st, 1934,

JOHN A. BOOCKHOLDT,
Foreman.

School Books Will Not Be Changed This Year

o

There is considerable misunderstanding over the county regarding the changing of text books in the schools. Luther E. Little, superintendent of schools, explained in issuing a statement this week that text books will be unchanged this year, but a complete change will be made next year.

He stated that a book exchange will be operated at all the schools and the office of the superintendent for the convenience of those who wish to exchange or secure second hand books. Mr. Little also urged those who have old books which can be used this year and care to donate them to unfortunate children to notify his office or take them to the school nearest their homes.

Many children in the various schools will not be able to secure text books, he said, unless those who have old books are willing to donate them. Since these books will be no good after this year, he urges persons who possess old books to cooperate with his office in helping the unfortunate children to secure books.

The "New Deal" Moves Onward!

(AN EDITORIAL)

The "New Deal" for the average man moves on!

A new day has dawned for the working man, the farmer—the average man, who a few years ago did not know from where his next meal was coming; who did not know how he would answer the cries of hungry children.

A leader is at the helm of our country, guiding the millions of persons who are trusting him, on to a better life, keeping pace with their many wishes for better living conditions, decent wages and a fair deal.

That leader is President Roosevelt, the man placed before this nation by the Democratic Party as the one to whom fell the tremendous responsibility of bringing this country out of a crumbled, broken and chaotic condition; the man who could shake the hand of a dirt farmer or a greasy laborer and say "I'm glad to see you."

Let us, for the sake of an illustration, imagine this country without the "New Deal," without the NRA and the other government organizations which have been set up under this Democratic government.

We will say, as Will Rogers perhaps would, "take away the NRA, just go ahead and hire them as young as you please and pay them whatever you wish." Do you know what that means? It simply means that without the NRA and certain provisions contained therein, employers would be allowed to pay you, your children, whatever they wished, work them as long as they wished, and they would have no protection other than the privilege of quitting their job. And who wants to quit a job now?

Take away the government hand that is being held over the banks today. You can very easily see what happened to our banking business over the nation a few years ago before the Democratic administration took a hand and made it safe for you to bank your money.

Take away the hand of the government which is felt in Wall Street. That mighty trading center which wrought havoc to millions, caused suicide, lost fortunes and homes three years ago, now behaves like a child and no longer takes your hard earned money with which to speculate for the gain of the rich man.

Then, let us get back closer home. Why is it that you are guaranteed twelve cents per pound for your cotton? Why is it that you are able to receive over twice the price you were before the Democratic administration took over the reins of government. Simply because you have a party in power that believes in equal rights and a square deal for every man, even tho he be the smallest laborer in a two room hut.

Take away that great big friendly hand of the government which has been offering to every community in the nation jobs for all unemployed, and making it possible for trade to continue until it would be placed on a more stable plane. Suppose the CWA had never existed. Perhaps YOU did not need a job last winter. Perhaps YOU and your family had plenty to eat and wear. But there were others right at home here who would have been in most dire circumstances had not that friendly hand been thrust forward saying "Here, I will give you a job so you may earn an honest living for your family until we can get business back where it should be."

Despite the fighting by those of opposing factions, despite the unwarranted criticisms, the sneers, the jeers from those who are now seeing that the "New Deal" is a success and those who for personal gain will not admit the fact that the present government administration of the Democratic party has brought sunshine back to homes, the Democratic program for a fair deal, a decent price for products, is marching on.

If the "New Deal" is to become a political issue then those attacking it are doing no less than attacking the hand that has brought to your own county a resurrection in business, a reconstruction in morals of men and women. These attackers are doing no less than biting the hand that has been feeding the hungry, nursing them back to health and has given them a new hope. They are fighting a program, in vain, which has brought prosperity back to Chilton County. They are telling you that it is no good, even though every man and woman in Chilton County knows they are better off today than they were two years ago, and that the future is brighter for them and their children.

Truly, the "New Deal" for the average man is marching on, despite the attacks from those who do not want it to succeed.

R. W. TAYLOR OPENS MODERN BUSINESS HERE

Clanton Wholesale Grocery Occupies New Place On Main Street

Clanton's newest business concern is perhaps one of the most modern and up-to-date business houses in this part of the state. This new firm is the Clanton Wholesale Grocery Company, which recently opened for business in the two Wade buildings on main street next to the railroad.

At the head of this new firm is Roland W. Taylor, widely known througout Alabama as an able business man and an experienced wholesale grocery operator. He was formery connected with the Taylor Wholesale Grocery before selling his interests.

The Clanton Wholesale Grocery occupies two most attractive buildings, both having been completely remodeled and made ready especially for this concern.

Mr. Taylor has had many years in COOPERATION ASKED IN FIGHT ON MOSQUITO

Lily Ponds And Fish Ponds Should Be Looked After It Is Said

Attention is called to the fact that the mosquito control is becoming more important due to the fact of so many more cases of Dengue Fever having been reported in various sections of the State.

Dr. J. N. Baker, State health officer, states that 200 cases of Dengue Fever have been reported in Lanett, Ala., in Chambers County.

Mr. McKinney wishes to call attention particularly to the inspection of concrete fish ponds or concrete lily ponds. There are several such breeding places for this species of mosquito. He also wishes to stress the fact that the Aedies Egypti species of the Dengue Fever mosquito only breeds in places where water is not in contact with the soil and unlike his brother, the swamp mosquito. he does not sing and bites day and night.

Mr. McKinney is again asking the people in towns adjoining Clanton that do not have mosquito inspections to please look around their premises for tin cans, old automobile tires and any receptacle that will hold water to see that there are no mosquitoes breeding there, and by full cooperation from all, he hopes to keep Dengue Fever out of Chilton County.

Mr. McKinney reports that Thorsby, Jemison and Maplesville are cooperating with this work, having put trucks

Pastors To Meet At Baptist Church Here

The regular Pastors' Conference of the ministers of the churches in the Chilton and Unity Baptist associations will be held next Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the Clanton Baptist church, it has been announced.

Much important business will be transacted at this business session and all pastors are urged to be present. Plans will also be discussed for the promotion of keener interest in church work in the county.

NEW PROGRAM TO BE SET UP FOR RELIEF

Families To Be Dropped From Direct Relief Roll Says The Director

Preparing for the introduction of a new and much more extensive rehabilitation program, all relief families with a farm background were discontinued from the relief rolls of Chilton County October 1, according to an announcement by Miss Kittye Clyde Austin, director of relief.

Miss Austin stated that she received a telegram Monday morning from the State department ordering all farm families to be dropped from the relief rolls immediately. She said that she understands this to be the initial step in the introduction of a new program, which will tend toward the rehabilitation of farm families.

It is understood that under the new program farms will be secured for those wishing to enlist in the rehabilitation quota and an opportunity will be given

Taylor Dry Goods Store Displaying Fall Mdse.

The management of the Taylor Dry Goods Company, on Main Street, announce that a complete line of fall and winter merchandise has been stocked by this firm and is now being displayed at prices far lower than average.

This firm buys in large quantities and is thus able to pass on to its customers outstanding values at prices that would otherwise be impossible. In the fall and winter display will be found merchandise that is new, yet may be purchased for prices which compare favorably with those of a year ago.

The fall line includes ready-to-wear for both men and women, a complete line of dry goods, rain coats at specially low prices, latest patterns in woolens and silks, and hundreds of other items at prices which the management leclares is surprisingly low.

President Delivers Impressive Address Last Sunday Night

Chief Executive Carries Accomplishments Of New Deal Direct To People Of The United States Over Radio

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—President Roosevelt tonight appealed for an armistice in the year's recurring conflicts between capital and labor while the second, and still experimental, phase of NRA produces legislation permanently safeguarding the rights of each.

The Chief Executive again carried the accomplishments and purposes of the new deal directly to the people in an address broadcast to all sections of the nation asking for patriotic and whole-hearted cooperation.

The truce in industrial warefare, he said, is to be accompanied, within the next month, by conferences with employers and the spokesmen of organized labor, while a "full and fair" trial is given to the means already provided for adjusting such disputes.

"Accordingly," he said, "I propose to confer within the coming month with small groups of those truly representative of large employers of labor and of large groups of organized labor, in order to seek their cooperation in establishing what I may describe as a specific trial period of industrial peace.

"From those willing to join is establishing this hoped for period of peace, I shall seek assurances of the making and maintenance of agreements, which can be mutually relied upon, under which wages, hours and working conditions may be determined and any later adjustments shall be made either by agreement or, in case of disagreement, through mediation or arbitration of State or Federal agencies.

"I shall not ask either employers or employes permanently to lay aside the weapons common to industrial war. But I shall ask both groups to give a fair trial to peaceful methods of adjusting their conflicts of opinion and interest, and to experiment for a reasonable time with measures suitable to civilize our industrial civilization."

The President asserted that he counted, in the future as in the past upon the "driving power" of individual initiative and fair private profit. At the same time, he advanced the view that "private enterprise in times such as these cannot be left without assistance and without reasonable safeguards lest it destroy not only itself but also our

Arrests In County Hits Low Mark September

Business has been exceptionally slow in law enforcement circles during the month of September, according to Deputy James Gillespie, who stated that only 17 arrests have been made by the Sheriff's force during the month.

Although Deputy Gillespie expressed doubt that there is any general trend toward reformation among law violators, he said that he is unable to advance any theories for the comparatively low number of violations recently.

Often the number of arrests for one week greatly surpasses this figure, he stated. Ten were incarcerated for violation of the prohibition laws; one for petit larceny; two for assault and battery, and two for abusive, insulting and obscene language.

NEW TERRACING OUTFITS AT ISABELLA, JEMISON SCHOOLS

Realizing the advantage of proper terracing as an improvement to the farm, the Commissioners Court voted to place at the disposal of J. P. Montgomery, vocational teacher of the Jemisn High School, and Earle Thomas, vocational teacher of the Isabella High School, a new terracing machine for each school.

These machines are to be used under the supervision of Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Thomas in training the students in the vocational classes in the art of proper terracing and for general use in the county.

Deacons Of Baptist Church Ordained 29

Ordination services for the six new deacons of the Clanton Baptist church were held last Sunday following the regular preaching services. They were elected a week before in a special meeting for that purpose.

The new members are: J. Renfroe Mullins, Luther E. Little, John B. Deramus, W. L. Smith, Horsley White, and G. C. Armstrong. Others who were re-elected are: B. J. Sessons, L. C. Ross, J. Dr. Hinkle is one of the most widely known and admired men in the county and his friends are numbered by the hundreds. They will join with his family in wishing for him an early recovery.

MISS MERONEY CHILD WELFARE SUPERINTEND'T

Verbena Resident Has Been Recommended By The State Director

At the regular monthly meeting of the Commissioners Court Tuesday morning, Miss Nolen Meroney, of Verbena, was named child welfare superintendent of Chilton County to succeed Miss Mary Ellis, who resigned several weeks ago to accept a position as child welfare superintendent of Chambers County.

Miss Meroney was employed by the county board on the recommendation of Mrs. A. L. Tunstall, head of the State Child Welfare Depatrment, in Montgomery. For some time Miss Meroney has been engaged as a visitor on the Montgomery County Relief staff, where she has made an enviable record. In recommending Miss Meroney, Mrs. Tunstall stated that she has never known anyone to show more promise in this work than has Miss Meroney.

Commissioners Have Quiet Session Here 1-2

Members of the Commissioners Court voted in regular session Tuesday morning to donate $75 to the Vermont Junior High School to be used in purchasing desks and equipment for the new school building, which was erected by the CWA during recent months.

A committee composed of several patrons and teachers of the school appeared before the court Monday and presented a petition for aid, but action was not taken on the petition until Tuesday. Twenty-five dollars was donated to the Fairview school to make repairs on the building.

Numerous claims were presented to the court petitioning aid for persons unable to care for themselves, but action on all of these petitions was deferred until investigation can be made by the new child welfare superintendent, Miss Nolen Meroney. Aside from the naming of a child welfare superintendent and the hearing of several petitions, most of the session was devoted to routine business.

COTTON BEING PICKED FAST OVER COUNTY

Farmers Receiving Almost Three Times As Much For Fleecy Crop

The cotton farmers of Chilton County are fast gathering their crops, according to a statistical report compiled by W. L. Austin. This report shows that 3,633 bales were ginned in the county before September 16, compared to 3,503 for the same period last year.

This slight increase in the number of bales of the staple ginned this year is accounted for by the fact that the weather conditions have been exceptionally favorable for cotton picking this year. Extreme hot and dry weather resulted in the product opening much earlier than usual, it has been explained by County Agent J. W. Fant.

Cotton farmers in this section are enjoying greatly improved conditions. The crop in Chilton County, based on the county's quota under the Bankhead law, will bring approximately three times

TEACHERS HELD INSTITUTE HERE LAST MONDAY

Supt. Of Tuscaloosa County Is Principal Speaker On Program

Approximately 150 teachers in the various schools in the county congregated at the Chilton County High School building, in Clanton Monday morning for the annual meeting of the Teachers' Institute. The convening of the Institute also marks the opening of the several junior high and elementary schools in the county, which swung open their doors Tuesday morning for the beginning of the term.

An address by J. D. Dowling was one of the principal features of the day's program. Mr. Dowling is superintendent of schools in Tuscaloosa County.

Declaring that the school teacher has never received a square deal, Supt Dowling declared that it will be one of the aims of his administration as president of the Alabama Educational association to secure more desirable working conditions for the teachers. "I expect to do everything within my power to bring about the placing of teachers on a parity with other State agencies. I believe that the teacher should get his money just as regularly as the governor, and while I serve in this capacity I shall do everything withing my power to secure this recogintion of our teachers."

Mr. Dowling expressed the belief that Supt.-elect J. A. Kellar shares his ambition for these improved conditions for the teachers of this State. He declared

A Year Of The Bituminous Code

As one after another of the principal industries of the country complete a full year of operation under codes of fair competition, sufficient experience has been gained to form the basis for impartial judgement.

A year is a long enough time for both merits and deficiencies in codes to come to the surface. A 12-month peroid, reckoned backward, turns the minds of American busness men in retrospect to those chaotic conditions out of which the NRA was born. These considerations must be kept in mind in any effort to assess fairly the achievements of industries in their first year under the codes.

In specific terms this is all graphically set forth in the story of the bitumnous coal code, which has just attained its first birthday—it was approved by President Roosevelt on September 18, 1933. Few industries were in greater chaos a year ago than bituminous coal mining. In fact. Increasing chaos has been a problem for more than a decade.

After the war few mines were closed; competition became more intense until coal which had cost a dollar a ton to get to the mine mouth sold for as little as 25 cents a ton. Confusion became worse confounded when not fewer than 29 codes were submitted to NRA. The problem was to get one code. Everybody predicted that it simply couldn't be done. Here was one industry so complex that it was not amendable to codification.

Nevertheless all these conflicting elements were brought into unity; nearly 30 codes were melted down into one code for the entire industry. And in 1 short year order has replaced chaos and prosperity has been restored to a great basic industry.

Bituminous coal production, which has sunk to a new low level in the summer of 1933, came up 60 percent in the year just ended. Fair minimum market prices have been established, permitting a living wage to the miner and a reasonable profit to the producer. An entirely new system of adjusting labor controversies within the industry itself has been inaugurated and is in successful operation.

Perhaps the best summation of results achieved under the coal code was made by J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., who declared it to be "the practical answer for those who have money invested in the business and for those who are employed in the industry."

Education's New Deal

Editorial—Birmingham Post, Sat., Sept. 8, 1934

A new sense of values in education and a new view of the obligation of our schools toward society can be counted among assets salvaged from the depression.

It may be too early yet to count our gains, but as the school term opens we have many indications that progress is being made.

Speaking before the teachers of the Birmingham schools yesterday, J. A. Keller, who in January will become state superintendent of education, stressed the need of shifting class room emphasis from individual welfare to that of the community in general. Mr. Keller found reason to commend the objective theme of the Birmingham schools for the coming year and added:

"We have seen that rugged individualism too frequently becomes ruthless individualism. We have been sending out of our schools young people concerned only with self-attainment."

The new state superintendent is not unjust in his indictment of our educational system. Nor is Alabama alone guilty of the shortcoming which he charges. But, because leadership in our school system is conscious of the need for a realignment of values, there is cause for encouragement.

We have in Alabama too many outstanding men and women who cling to the old order of things. They are honest men and women earnest and sincere in their point of view but woefully lacking in their inability to grasp and to appreciate broad social values.

If this new day and New Deal in our schools insures future generations against such deficiencies we cannot count the cost of our experience too dear.

"Every Man Was Created Free & Equal"

The "New Deal" Opens A New Epoch In History. It Is Not Nearly So Intricate As Some Critics Would Paint It.

Speech of Honorable Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, House Majority Leader, over The National Broadcasting Company's Network, Monday evening, September 17, 1934, at 9:45 P. M., Easter Standard Time.

The New Deal, marking another step in the march of human progress, opens a new epoch in history. The Roosevelt administration which inaugurated this movement when it assumed control of the government eighteen months ago has created an era, and we who live in this day and time see history in the making. In spite of all that the critics may do or say; in spite of attacks inspired by partisan motives; in spite of legal technicalities invoked by clever lawyers, the people of this nation will not tolerate a return to what President Roosevelt has so aptly termed the "rule of fang and claw."

This New Deal, by the way, is not so very new after all, save in application. It has been defined as in reality an attempt to apply the Square Deal to business and to government. It seeks to make effective that principle, born with this nation, and set forth by Thomas Jefferson in those immortal words penned in the Declaration of Independence, that "all men are created free and equal" and "entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." To this principle, so clearly defined, we have ong given little more than lip-service, but Presilent Roosevelt and a Congress working loyally with him have sought to vitaize it, making it just as real for the man who tills the soil or digs in the mine as for the one who enjoy the fruits of another's labor.

This New Deal is not nearly so intricate as some of its critics would have you believe. It is made up of a number of factors, some of which are still cumbersome and which, in the light of experience, will call for modifications. These will be made by Congress from time to time and thus provide greater ease in operation and less cause for friction. It is not to be expected that we can ever hope to wholly satisfy those interests who profited unduly through the use of child labor, the payment of starvation wages and the exploitation of the less fortunate. I doubt if many of these will ever be reconciled to the New Deal and they will continue to sneer at it as "Utopian" and prate about their "liberties." WHOSE LIBERTIES? Not the liberties of the millions of men and women who have been enabled to get a job and earn an honest living. Not the liberties of the farmer, who is now enjoying a prosperity such as he has not had in many years. They cannot mean industry and business, which for the first time in several years has been taken out of the red and now earning a profit. Nor the banks which were saved from utter collapse and ruin. They refer to the favored few who in past years controlled legislation and policies of the Republican party and who built up great fortunes at the expense of the masses. They have enjoyed these special privileges so long that they have come to regard them as theirs by divine right.

This "New Deal" is designed to give the average man who has been too often forgotten in the past, or as President Roosevelt has described him "the forgotten man" a place in the scheme of government. It is intended to secure to him a fair opportunity in life—an opportunity to properly provide for himself and family. He has achieved this place under this administration and he will never wilingly surrender it or return to the old order of things. The "New Deal" constitutes no threat to wealth. It does not seek to confiscate it or to injure business—on the contrary, it seeks to improve it. It does not deny to any one the fullest opportunity to honestly and legitimately acquire wealth or to enjoy it. It seeks to give to everyone, including the average man, a greater measure of prosperity, peace and better living for himself and his posterity.

The country is marching on under the banner of Franklin D. Roosevelt and there will be no turning back. Industry will continue to govern itself, providing the traffic lights of business and protecting the many from domination and destruction by the few. Agriculture will continue to protect itself from exploitation in the markets and from unwieldly and prices-destroying surpluses. At the same time the government will protect the unwary from the financial tricksters and blue sky salesmen. Nothing so very revolutionary in all this, is there? Yet those three things constitute the main bearings on which the New Deal turns.

Republican spokesmen and some others have sought to create the impression that a "spinless Congress," as they term it, has frittered away the birthright of the American people and set up a super-government, violative of the Federal Constitution. This is not true and I am firmly convinced that most of the men who utter these charges know that. I have been a Member of the House of Representatives for twenty-five years and no one of the thirteen consecutive Congresses in which I have served has been actuated by higher motives, greater devotion to the interests of the people or fidelity to their oaths of office than the 73rd Congress.

Think back, all of you who are within the sound of my voice, and remember the conditions confronting us when President Roosevelt took his oath of office. Agriculture was prostrate; industry in collapse and financial institutions bankrupt. There is no use mincing words—that was the condition. At no time since the founding of the nation had Congress faced such a situation. Thank Heaven the man we had elected President was bold and courageous. More than that he was clear-headed and knew just what was needed to clear the track. In the crisis Congress accepted his leadership and I am proud of the part I had in the enactment of those measures which have brought about victory over the depression.

And there was no violation of the Constitution. That immortal document gives Congress certain designated powers. In times past and under far less stress it had delegated some of these powers to others, such as that of rate making to the Interstate Commerce Commission. In this emergency, and for the emergency only, we delegated these powers to the Chief Executive of the nation. He has exercised them and is now exercising them wisely and well. When the emergency which occasioned this action has passed these powers revert to Congress. The very laws themselves so stipulate. Why, some of the very men proteting so loudly now supported this course. There were 27 roll calls in the two sessions of the present Congress which the late Speaker Rainey selected as having either the support or opposition of President Roosevelt. On these the 115 Republican members of the House cast 1521 votes in line with the wishes of the Administration and 1467 votes against. Those votes, deliberately cast, I believe, are far more expressive than anything they may have to say now.

But some of our critics are now saying that all this costs too much. With a semblance of horror they point to the fact that the national debt has been increased some six billions of dollars. Even if this be true, Secretary Morgenthau insists the increase in national assets compensates for most of it. But still, suppose it were true, we certainly have something to show for it and that is more than the Hoover regime can say for the increase of four and one-half billion in the national debt which occurred during the last two years of that administration.

And what has been done with this money? It has gone to feed the hungry; to keep the worthy men and women, whose only fault was that they could not find work, from starving to death. It has been used to save farms and homes from being sold under the hammer to satisfy debts contracted in more prosperous times and which could be liquidated in no other way. It has been used to aid in reopening closed banks so that millions of depositors could obtain their savings. It has been used to start publice works, giving employment to hundreds of thousands of men. And in most of these cases the government now holds securities for such advances, the loans are bearing interest and while there may be some defaults I think we can say with assurance that this number will be small. The record already made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, liberalized and made a real instrument for ail by President Roosevelt, is ample proof of this.

As eanestly as I can I want to urge the election this year of men to Congress who will uphold the hands of President Roosevelt and who will see to it that when the emergency legislation erpires that permanent enactments, whatever form they may take, will not rob the common man of the benefits derived by him under the New Deal. We must see to it that conditions which brought the nation almost to the brim of ruin shall never be permitted to arise again and that the New Deal is indeed the dawning of a new day with a higher standard of living, a larger measure of prosperity, peace, contentment and security.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

—o—

A little girl brought a picture puzzle to me. I looked it over and said to her, "I see nothing here but a garden of roses and flowers." She informed me that there was a gardener in that garden and that the puzzle was in locating him. I looked again closely for the gardener, but could not find him. She replied, "Do you give up?" "Yes, my darling," I replied. Then she traced the gardener with her finger and pointed out his head, his arms, his body and his feet. After that I looked at the flower garden but I could see nothing much but the gardener. This world is God's flower garden. Too many of us see nothing here but the flowers and the beauty of the garden. We fail to locate the Gardener. Too many of us fail to see Gol who is the keeper of the garden. When our hearts have been changed and we have seen God, then it is that we forget to behold the flowers in the garden, for we see the Gardener. If we learn the solution of the Christian's puzzle so that we can see God as the Gardener of this world, both the garden and the Gardener become beautiful to us. We should learn to see God everywhere.

While visiting in a home we heard the cries of a little girl and mother and pastor ran out to learn the trouble. On reaching the yard the mother saw that the child had been too near the bee gum and a bee was circling around her head ready to strike. Without waiting a moment the mother ran to meet the frightened child and threw her apron over her head. As she did that the mad bee buried his sting in the arm of the mother. Never shall I forget the words of that mother, "Now hush my darling, the bee will not sting you, it has lost its sting in mother's arm." Sure enough the bee had no sting now for it had lost it upon the mother. the one who loved the babe and the one who was really glad that she could receive it that the child might not suffer. The mad bee of sin was buzzing about the life of the human race and Jesus saw us in great danger and he ran to us and threw Himself about our lives. We were delivered from the sting of sin, but it buried its sting in His hands and feet and in His side on Calvary. That is how much He loved us.

I strolled into a fine church where the pastor was supposed to be holding a revival meeting. On taking my seat I could tell that the atmosphere carried no revival symptoms. The time came for the sermon and the preacher spoke in strong language against religious enthusiasm and spiritual sentiment. He was not in favor of tears and shouting, and with very plain language he informed his audience that he did not propose to stir up any excitement. That was about like a poor old corpse in the cemetery pushing up his marble slab and sticking up his head and shouting to all the other tombstones in the grave yard, "Be quiet. We are going to have no kicking up of dust in this cemetery," and then dropping back into his own bed and letting the lid cover him over. Doubtless there had not even been a grunt in that church in ten years.

A collection of coins occupied the top of my desk. I looked down upon a penny, a nickel, a dime, a twenty-five cent piece, a half dollar and a dollar. I seemed to hear the coins engaged in a heated argument. The penny looked at the nickel and said that it would do nothing at all because it could not buy as much as the five-cent coin. The nickel looked at the dime and refused to enter trade because it was not worth as much as the dime. The dime refused to do its part because it was not worth as much as the quarter. The quarter said that it refused to enter trade because it could not buy as much as the fifty-cent piece. Then the fifty-cent piece growled about its worthlessness as it lay there beside the dollar. Each coin was made for certain trade and carried certain value, but each one refused to fill its place because it could not do as much as its neighbor. How human was the argument of those coins. We like to stand back because we are not as valuable as some other folks. Did you know that a nickel will pay a five-cent obligation as completely as a dollar will pay a dollar obligation? It is not how much you carry in the way of value, but how well are you filling your obligation with the value that you carry. Learn to put your value on the market and fill your own place one hundred percent. It is putting your full value into trade that counts.

Birmingham Post Is Forging Ahead

—o—

The Birmingham Pose has established an enviable record in the annals of Southern newspaperdom. This Scripps-Howard newspaper, established thirteen years ago, now has the second largest circulation in the state of Alabama and is known as the most thoroughtly read daily in the field.

This record-breaking progress is due solely to the vigor, fearlessness and independence of its editorial policies, the outstanding quality of its daily features and its presentation of the news.

Independent thought and action always engender respect, if not unanimous agreement. Thus it is that the Post has invariably won the strong approval and high regard of intelligence whereever found.

Its editorial independence is the foundation of its remarkable success. Its financial independence is a guarantee against outside influence, it has no axes to grind, no special interests to serve. To its editors "the sacred cows" of business are just so much beef on the hoof. The result is readability and believability.

With the addition during the years of many strong feature writers an increase in news content of 20,000 words a day and an expanded program of news pictures, it is now a greater newspaper than ever before.

Some Winter Legume

J. C. Lowery, Extension Agronomist

Ques.—What is the value of legumes in a cropping system and what is the influence of phosphorus on legumes?

Ans.—A plot in an experiment at Auburn in which both winter and summer legumes have been included in a rotation of corn, cotton, and oats has produced more than four times as much crn and cotton over a nine-year period as the adjoining land on which the same rotation is followed but legumes are left out. Both areas receive the same amount of superphosphate and potash. Phosphate and potash alone failed to increase the corn yield in this experiment and increased the cotton yield only 19 pounds of seed cotton per acre. Phosphate and potash, however, when used in the rotation which included legumes, resulted in an increase of 11 bushels per acre in the corn yield and 293 pounds of seed cotton per acre.

Ques.—How much nitrogen do the green tops of hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas contain?

Ans.—Green vetch tops averaged 1.0 per cent nitrogen and Austrian winter peas 0.79 per cent in analyses of a large number of samples at Auburn. Based on these figures hairy vetch that will cut 5000 pounds of green tops or Austrian winter peas that will cut 6000 pounds per acre will contain nitrogen equal to that contained in about 300 pounds of nitrate. Considerable valuable organic matter is added in addition to the nitrogen. It is recommended that vetch be turned when the green tops will average 12 to 14 pounds per hundred square feet and Austrian winter peas 16 pounds per square.

Ques.—What is the influence of stable manure, nitrate of soda, and hairy vetch on yields of cotton and corn?

Ans.—Cotton receiving 5 tons of stable manure averaged 1471 pounds of seed cotton per acre over a five-year period at the Alabama Experiment Station, compared with 1222 pounds from 325 pounds of nitrate and 1231 pounds from cotton planted after hairy vetch. However, monantha vetch on the cotton plot was destroyed one winter by cold.

Corn receiving 5 tons of stable manure annually averaged 38.7 bushels, and corn following hairy vetch, 30.9 bushels. Two crops of vetch on the corn plot were practically lost by cold and by rabbit damage. All plots received the same amounts of superphosphate and potash.

Ques.—How long do winter legumes increase crop yields or what is the residual effect?

Ans.—Light on this question is given by experiments at Auburn in which vetch residue on early-turned vetch produced more corn than 100 pounds of nitrate. The residual effect of vetch turned April 5 produced more corn than adjoining plots receiving 200 and 300 pounds of nitrate. The residual ffect of late-turned vetch produced twice as much corn as 200 pounds of nitrate and nearly as much as 400 pounds of nitrate. The residual effect of winter legumes gave an average increase of 224 pounds of nitrate. The residual effect of winter legumes gave an average increase of 224 pounds of seed cotton per acre. It is safe to say that the residual or carry-over effect of winter legumes will increase crop yields to the extent that all cost of planting the legumes at the beginning will be more than repaid.

Ques.—What is the value of superphosphate and lime to winter legumes?

Ans.—In experiments conducted by the Alabama Experiment Station applications of superphosphate increased the yields of green tops of winter legumes 8321 pounds at Andalusia, and 8533 pounds at Hackleburg. Lime increased the yield of green tops 7356 pounds at Andalusia, 3863 pounds at Hackleburg, and 5142 pounds at Prattville. Superphosphate was applied each years before planting the legumes while only one application of ground limestone was made and this at the beginning of the experiment. Many farmers apply basic slag to legumes. It supplies both phosphorus and lime.

Ques.—What effect does planting date have on yield of winter legumes?

Ans.—In an experiment at Auburn hairy vetch average on March 22, 2311 pounds of green tops from September 26 planting; 1633 pounds from October 26 plantings; 415 pounds from November 23 plantings; and 119 pounds from December 19 plantings.

Ques.—Should winter legumes be drilled or broadcast?

Ans.—Hairy vetch drilled September 30 averaged 3100 pounds of green tops per acre compared with 2393 pounds from broadcast seeding.

Austrian winter peas drilled September 30 averaged 6906 pounds of green tops per acre, whereas broadcast seedings averaged 5186 pounds.

Hairy vetch drilled October 26 averaged 1966 pounds; broadcast seedings, 1109 pounds.

Austrian winter peas drilled October 26 averaged 5061 pounds of green tops, broadcast seedings 3456 pounds.

Austrian winter peas in the southern half of the State are usually sown broadcast and covered by running out cotton middles with middle burster. This method has been very satisfactory.

Ques.—What rate of seeding is advisable?

Ans.—The yield of green vetch from 20 pounds of seed more than doubled the yield from 10 pounds on October plantings. Twenty pound seedings produced 70 per cent as much green matter as 30 pounds when planted in September. November and December plantings practically failed at all rates of seeding.

Thirty pounds of Austrian winter peas planted September 30 produced as much green matter as 60 pounds planted October 26. No rate of seeding was satisfactory when planting was delayed until November 23.

Plant hairy vetch at the rate of not less than 20 pounds of seed per acre and not less than 30 pounds per acre of Austrian winter peas.

Ques.—What legumes withstand cold?

Ans.—Observations show hairy, wooly the yields of gren tops of winter lepod, and Hungarian vetches and Austrian winter peas to be winter hardy at Auburn. Oregon vetch, red clover, and crimson clover were severely ininjured or killed by repeated freezes of January 1 to 6, 1928, with a minimum temperature of eight degrees F. The most tender toward cold over a six-year period at Auburn were horsebean, Canada field peas, purple vetch, and Scotch vetch.

Community Singers

The Community Singers met at the County Training School last Sunday. There were singers present from all over the county and a goodly number from adjoining counties.

A very interesting program was rendered, after which officers were reelected for another year. Under the leadership of such an able woman, Mrs. Lelia C. Woods, as president of this group, it has been an asset to this and other communities in Chilton County.

Big School Rally

At three o'clock in the same building a special drive was initiated to pay that long past due note of $280 at the Peoples Savings Bank. For the last three and on-half years very little had been paid above interest. Realizing that just paying interest does not pay a debt, the patrons and friends of the County Training School raised $50.00 last Sunday to be paid on the principal. Although everyone did not represent in this rally, the trustees, principal, faculty and student body take pleasure in thanking those who did their best in trying to put the rally over in a big way. The fifth Sunday in December has been set as the lay for another big rally. We hope to be able to wipe out this debt entirely this year, and be ready to erect a primary building another year.

School Opened Monday

The County Training School opened wide its doors to children from all over the county last Monday, October 1. A very interesting program was enjoyed by students, patrons and friends in the assembly room. A very brief adlress on "Sacrificing for Education" was delivered by Elder Mitchell of Montgomery, Ala., and father of Miss Blanche U. Mitchell, a member of the Training School faculty. Rev. E. W. Burt of Clanton responded very favorably to the above address.

We were also very glad to have with us on the first day our Farm Demonstration Agent. Mr. Worthy Hughes, who commented on the address and brought to us some helpful information concernin gthe Farmers Conference which will be held at an early late.

Adult School Opened

An adult school has opened up in the County Training School community. All negroes are urged to take advantage of this opportunity. Classes are being taught in the Lutheran School build- with Mrs. aVnilla Barbour as teacher. If you haven't started, start tonight.

These folks own the Bell Telephone System

It is truthfully said of the Bell Telephone System that it is owned by the public it serves.

Of the more than 800,000 holders of Bell System securities, 381,000 are women, 210,000 of whom are housewives; 90,000 are clerks and sales people; 30,000 are manual laborers; 115,000 are telephone workers. There are other thousands of doctors, lawyers, farmers and merchants. In fact, people in every walk of life, many of whom are doubtless your neighbors and friends.

Most of these folks are small investors. Eighty per cent own twenty-five or less shares of stock, while forty per cent of the total own five shares or less. No one owns as much as one-fifth of one per cent of the outstanding stock of the Bell System.

It is this vast army of small investors whose savings have financed the telephone business. Their savings have been attracted to the telephone industry because of their faith in the integrity of the management, and their confidence in the willingness of the public to pay a price for the service that will allow earnings sufficient to assure the best possible service at all times and to insure the continued financial stability of the business.

V.H.S. Eleven Shows Promise Good Season

o

The Verbena football eleven got off to a good start this season when they held the Isabella team to a score of 0 to 0, making several first downs and outplaying the Isabella squad throughout the game.

Although the V.H.S. boys are considerable lighter than the Isabella eleven, they are reported to have shown themselves able competition. Verbena completed three passes while the Isabella team failed to complete any, according to Coach N. B. Bryant.

Following is the V.H.S. schelule for this season:

Clanton, October 5, at Clanton.
Billingsley, October 12, at Billingsley.
Autaugaville, October 26, at Verbena.
Holtville, November 9, at Holtville.
Georgiana, November 9, at Georgiana.
Billingsley, November 16, at Verbena.
Marbury, November 23, at Marbury.

MEETING CONTINUES WITH GOOD INTEREST

o

Each night at the Church of Christ in Canton Mr. Ivison Boles continues to deliver sermons of the Gospel with simplicity and power. Many are showing their appreciation by their presence and such expressions as "That is the best I ever heard." Everybody is welcome at every service, 7:30 p. m., come.

W. A. Norris Connected With Game Law Force

W. A. Norris, who was formerly a deputy sheriff under Sheriff W. H. Gillespie, is now associated with A. L. Lightsey, district game warden, in the enforcement of the game laws in this section. Norris assumed his new duties Wednesday morning.

He is well known over the county, having lived most of his life in the vicinity of Verbena, where he completed high school several years ago, and for two years was associated with Sheriff Gillespie in the capacity of a deputy.

EASTVIEW

Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nelson attended services at Mt. Springs church Sunday. They assisted in the preparation of a program for a Home-Coming Day to be held there the third Sunday in October.

The Christian Endeavor rendered a good program Sunday night, led by Mr. Otis Coggins. The topic was on "Worth While Aims for the Year Ahead." There were several interesting talks on the topic and the services were well attended.

The C. E. will hold its annual business meeting next Sunday night and eect officers for the coming year. All members will please take notice and attend.

The C. E. is planning another social soon. If you don't attend C. E. regularly you may miss the social.

All who do not attend services elsewhere on Sunday night are cordially invited to attend C. E. here and worship with us.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Coggins had for their guests Sunday Mrs. Rosie Headley, Miss Alma Uptain, Mr. Milton Coggins, Mr. Cornelius Coggins, Mr. Osmond Nelson and Herman Nelson.

There will be preaching here next Sunday night by the pastor. Everybody is invited to attend.

On the second Sunday in this month the Sunday school will hold its annual business meeting and elect officers and teachers. All members are requested to attend.

Mrs. Clara Rushing and children were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Rushing.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Rushing were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Rushing.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Nelson visited Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gray Sunday.

Mrs. Dyphie Rushing was the week end guest of Mrs. Sallie Strength.

ROBINSON'S CAFE UNDERGOES CHANGE IN OWNERSHIP HERE

Robinson's Cafe, located on the highway in Clanton, will soon become Mahan's Cafe. This business, which has been operated by Miss Dessie Robinson, has been purchased by Hobson Mahan and his sister, Miss Mary Alice Mahan. Both Mr. and Miss Mahan have had considerable cafe business experience. Especially is Miss Mahan familiar with cafe work, having been employed by several of Clanton's leading restaurants.

22.4 MILES PER GALLON IS RECORD OF CHEVROLET CAR

An average of 22.4 miles per gallon over a 3,000-mile non-stop run is the record claimed by Ted Ellis, a veteran long distance driver, who piloted a Chevrolet knee-action sedan over a several hundred mile course between Coalinga and Sequoia National Park, in California. The total oil consumption is reported as 2½ quarts.

The route included desert and mountain tracks, deep rutted roads, and a wide range of altitude and temperature between San Joaquin Valley and Sequoia. Each circuit included a speed spurt of four miles on a track laid out in the desert near Coalinga. Ellis was at the wheel for 98 hours, being relieved only for short periods from time to time.

HESTER FAMILY REMOVES TO FLORIDA FOR THEIR HEALTH

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hester, Sr, one of Clanton's most prominently known couples, left Monday afternoon for Miami, Fla., where they stated they will likely make their home. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hester have spent considerabe time in Florida during the past few years in hopes that the climate will improve their health.

The Hester family has lived in Clanton for many years, where Mr. Hester was an agent for the L & N Railroad Company until poor health necessitated his retirement a few years ago.

Bill Hester and Miss Julia Ruth Hester, son and daughter of the elder Hesters, will leave for the Forida city Friday.

The Hester home has been leased by County Agent J. W. Fant.

H. B. Esco, prominently know restaurant operator announces this week that he has purchased the lunch stand located on the highway next door to the Little Fruit Store, and will be glad to have his friends come in to see him. Mr. Esco formerly operated this place, but sold out to O. O. Weldon about a year ago.

C. C. H. S. AND VERBENA HIGH ON LOCAL FIELD FRIDAY P. M.

The first game of the season to be played on the local field will be Verbena High School. This game should prove to be interesting because Verbena has a new Coach and the boys are working to defeat C. C. H. S.

The local boys are to be congratulated for the good showing made at Selma last Friday. Ten boys were lost last year by graduation and the places left open are gradually being filled with light but fast men.

Seven new boys participated in the game with Selma and looked good. It will take a great deal of ironing out, but our local team will make a good showing against all opponents this season.

If you don't want to miss one of the best games played here this season, come out next Friday afternoon. The boys need our support.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock. Popular prices.

YELLOW FRONT INVITES ALL TO INSPECT NEW FALL MDSE.

The management of the Yellow Front Store in this week's advertisement is issuing a special invitation to the people of Chilton County to visit the store and look over their large stock of fall and winter merchandise whether or not you intend to buy now.

Early buying and stocking in large quantities make it possible for this stoer to give exceptionally low prices, Mr. Blackketter, manager, stated.

To The Retail Merchants Of Clanton Trade Territory

We wish to say that for the past thirty days or longer we have worked hard toward perfecting our plans and arrangements for establishing a wholesale house in Clanton, for distribution of Groceries, Feeds, Flour, Notions, Work Shirts, Overalls—in fact, everything commonly sold by the most reliable and up-to-date wholesale houses.

We are proud that we now have this kind of a place ready to serve you with high-grade brands of merchandise in all lines, such as Stokely's canned food products, Libby's canned products, and the well-known Whitewater Flour Mill products.

We have a complete, clean, fresh stock, and we pledge ourselves to serve the merchants of the Clanton trade territory just as long as we can get your support to enable us to stay in business. We will cater solely and only to the needs of the retail merchants in the Clanton territory. We will not be in competition with you in a retail way.

Many of the leading local merchants have solicited us to establish an exclusive wholesale business in Clanton, not catering to retail trade. We expect to do this, and to give you the kind of service you need and want. We ask your support, and we will give you ours.

Each merchant who does business in the Clanton trade territory is invited to come to see us. We want you to inspect our goods, our prices, our location, and our facilities for serving you. We have some of the most modern advantages seldom found in a wholesale house. Among these we mention our facilities for cold storage.

We will offer you service and quality, with prices on a very close margin. As we were born and reared here, we feel it a duty to serve our fellow citizens and our neighbors, as well as to seek after profits.

We want your trade, your friendship, and your goodwill. Next week our salesmen will call on you, and we will appreciate any business you may place with us.

HOME-COMING AT MT. SPRINGS

The public is cordially invited to attend and bring well filled baskets which will be served picnic stye. The program will be announced later.

We are proud of our Sunday School at this place. We had a very nice attendance Sunday, all teachers and officers were present. We were very glad to have our teacher of the Bible Class, Mr. Johnnie Plier, who has been ill for some time. We were also glad to have with us the Rev. and Mrs. Nelson.

The Christian Endeavor Society was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Williamson.

Games were enjoyed, after which refreshments were served by Mrs. Williamson and Mrs. Lell. About 50 were present including visitors.

SPIGENER FUNERAL HOME HAS A NEW AMBULANCE

The Spigener Funeral Home, in Clanton, has added a new ambulance to its service to the people of Chilton County. The new ambulance, which is a meteor chassis motivated by a Buick Motor, is equipped with an air mattress, it was stated.

Farmers And Business Men Plan Lge. Meeting

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama's agriculture and its industry are getting closer and closer together.

For the purpose of discussing problems facing both agriculture and industry, a large meeting of farmers, farm leaders, and industrialists will be held in Birmingham the latter part of October, the exact date to be announced later.

Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the State Extension Service, Auburn, and Ashton B. Collins, manager of the Associated Industries of Alabama, are making the plans.

Bankers Supporting Vetch & Winter Peas

Auburn, Ala.—H. J. Whitfield, chairman of the committee on agriculture of the Alabama Bankers Association, has sent out an appeal to all bankers in the state to continue their campaign to induce farmers to plant winter legumes—hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas—for soil improvement.

A good crop of winter legumes adds to the soil as much nitrogen as 300 lbs. of 15-percent nitrate and as much organic matter as 5 tons of stable manure, according to Mr. Whitfield's letter to the bankers.

ANNUAL ALL DAY SINGING TABERNACLE SEPT. 9, 1934

The annual singing at the Tabernacle was postponed from the 4th Sunday in August until the 2nd Sunday in September on account of the Bibb County singing convention at Centerville. It is not known at this time whether the date of the singings will stand as they are or will be changed back to the old date.

The singing was called to order by Mr. J. P. Edwards with two songs. Mr. Marvin Doss led the prayer. Mr. J. Hudson Williams was elected chairman for the day and Mr. R. Olin Williams secretary. Then business took place on the old hill with an ideal day ahead.

The directors for the morning were as follows: W. G. Culp, of Clanton; Claude Kornegar, of Centerville; John Deason, of Eoline; Russell Scott, of Lawley; A. H. Glasscock, of Jemison; E. L. Glsscock, of Jemison; R. Oline Williams, of Billingsley; Arthur Deason of Brent.

Now we go to dinner, and you talk about a good one, it was fine.

In the afternoon Mr. J. Hudson Williams sang two songs and Mr. Akins I. Collins was added to the list of directors with several good songs. R. Olin Williams sang a bass solo, and folks, we had some good quartets, too. The Brent-Tabernacle quartet rendered several numbers during the day. The Girls Quartet composed of Misses Lonnie, Alma and Bernice Gentry, and Miss Sidney Cash get better every day.

This brings us to the close of the day with a good singing and a good time. We were dismissed with prayer by Mr. Jeff Hicks.

—J. Hudson Williams, Chairman; R. Olin Williams, Secretary.

FAIRVIEW DEMONSTRATION CLUB NEWS

The Fairview Demonstration Club met at the school building Tuesday, September 18, at two o'clock, with only six members present, but we hope to have all present next month.

The club was called to order by Miss Pardue, as the President was absent, and she gave us a wonderful lesson on how to control fowl pox; also how to improve the quality of eggs.

We will have as our next project, "How To Make Cheese." We will meet at the home of Inez McKee October the 16th. We especially request all club members to be present, and invite visitors to be with us.

IN MEMORY OF LEWIS HENRY GENTRY

One of Mt. Creek's most faithful and loyal citizens left his friends and loved ones for his eternal home on August 14, 1934. For the past few years his health had been poor, but he was a very patient sufferer. His Bible and religious literature gave him constant comfort. Mr. Gentry lived to be 70 years of age. He joined the church in 'teen age at old Friendship, which is now New Harmony, and he joined Mt. Creek church in 1911, of which he was an active member.

His influence touched many lives. He leaves a wife and five daughters and a host of relatives to mourn his going.

The loved ones should feel comfort in the fact that the influence of this Godly life will be lasting. — Written by his Sunday school teacher, Mrs. S. R. Hudson.

IN MEMORY

On September 15th Mrs. G. W. Mullins fell asleep in Jesus. When He comes to gather flowers for His Kingdom He not only plucks the buds, but the full open flowers as well. God must have thought when He saw her bright face that she would make heaven a more beautiful place. But, oh! how we miss her in every path we take in our daily life.

She was so loyal to her church and Master. She was always ready to stand up for His cause.

She leaves to mourn her a husband, mother, Mrs. Sie Culp, one sister, Mrs. I. B. Yeargan, two brothers, J. A. and J. O. Culp, and a number of relatives and friends. She was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sie Culp and had been a member of Mt. Pisgah Methodist church for forty years.

She was laid to rest in Mt. Pisgah cemetery Sept. 16, with Rev. Harvey Culp officiating. — Ethel Mullins.

OBITUARY

On November 29, 1867, God breathed into this world a new spirit in the person of Mr. N. G. Carroll. On September 17, 1934 God allowed that same spirit to pass to the world beyond from which none ever returns.

He was married in 1888. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, seven children, two brothers and four sisters. The children are Elzie Carroll, of Jemison; Louis, Ernest and Thomas Carroll of Canton; Mrs. Ida Messer, of Spigener; Mrs. Lovedy Wyatt and Mrs. Lela Mims, of Clanton. He also leaves seventeen grandchildren.

He joined the church at the age of 21. Burial was at Providence, with Spigener Funeral Home in charge. The funeral was preached by the Rev. Hughes, Nelson and Hightower.

Weep not dear ones. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord. To the family I extend my deepest sympathy.—A Neighbor.

IN MEMORY OF AUNT ISABEL WILLIS

The dreadful enemy, death, entered the home of uncle Napoleon Willis on the night of August 16, and took away the loving wife and mother, out of misery and pain for which she had suffered several days, to a place of rest.

All was done for her that loving hands could do. We miss her sweet face and footsteps in the home. She had a loving smile and word for all who were with her. To know her was to love her. Weep not, dear ones, as we all shall meet her again some sweet day.

—Written by her niece, Sadie Willis.

From the Editor of The American Boy

During the coming year, the boys of America will get a half-fare rate to adventure and fun! THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION, the nation's leading magazine for boys, formerly $2.00 a year, now costs $1.00. A three-year subscription, previously $3.50 costs only $2.00.

Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor of THE AMERICAN BOY, brings boys the hearty assurance that the new prices will in no way affect the editorial contents of the magazine. It will be as large, as beautifully printed, as full of high-spirited adventure as ever.

"THE AMERICAN BOY's leadership has been no accident," Mr. Ellis states. "We publish the magazine on the firm belief that boys deserve a magazine as good as any publication for grown-ups. So we use the best illustrators obtainable—well-known artists who work for the biggest magazines. We send our staff writers all over the country digging up the interesting facts of science, interviewing world-famous explorers, talking to coaches and athletes.

"We encourage and assist our writers to go everywhere for material—to Haiti, Africa, the South Seas, China—and bring back adventure for American boys. We hire experts on hobbies and boy problems to advise boys and young men. These steps account for our position as the quality magazine for boys and we shall continue to take them

Twelve issues of fun and excit for $1.00! Three years for $2.00. S the news among your friends—and your own subscription direct to TH AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd Detroit, Mich. Service on your sub scription will start with the issue yo specify.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. G. W. MULLINS

It was only a few days ago
We can never forget the day,
When came the silent reaper
And took our dear one away
We know she is waiting
With our Savior on high.
She is there ready to greet us
Where there is no more good bye
She was good, kind and true
While here with us below.
She is waiting in the land beyond the blue,
Where the silver waters flow.

State of Alabama

A PROCLAMATION

by the

GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the legislature of Alabama at an extraordinary session held during the year, 1932, ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held at the General Election in November, 1934, and

WHEREAS, the General Election in November, 1934, is to be held on Tuesday, November 6, 1934, as provided by law, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law, and by the provisions of the Act submitting the said amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each County in the State of Alabama once a week for eight (8) successive weeks immediately preceding the said 6th day of November, 1934;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 6th day of November, 1934; an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> The Legislature of Alabama hereafter from time to time by general or local laws, but subject to the provisions of Section 281 of the Constitution of Alabama, may fix, regulate and alter the costs, charges of court, fees, commissions, allowances or salaries be charged or received by the following county officers of Mobile County, Alabama, the Judge of Probate, the Tax Assessors, the Tax Collector, the Clerk of the Circuit Court, and the Register of the Circuit Court, including the method and basis of the compensation of such officers.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 6th day of November, 1934, in each County of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 19th day of July, 1934.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

Steel Executive Says Code Helps Business

New York.—The steel lode has not only increased the volume of business but has also eliminated destructive competition and protected the smaller units of the industry, in the opinion of D. D. Williams president of the Continental Steel Corporation.

In a letter to the stockholders, Mr. Williams, after citing improved conditions in the steel industry, continues: "There is no doubt that in making this favorable showing we were considerably helped by an increase in volume of business and the price-stabilization policy of the steel code. In spite of reports to the contrary, this feature in no wise penalizes the smaller units of the steel industry. It has however, eliminated destructive competition that had driven down wages and salaries to low levels and would, perhaps, have thrown some producers into bankruptcy. As stockholders, we urge you to support the present steel code."

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES HELD SUNDAY

Coosa County Church Is Scene Of Memorial Services

Hundreds of persons congregated Sunday at the old Bethesda Baptist church in the hills of Coosa County, near Equality, to join in the observance of the First Annual Memorial Services held in honor of the late Rev. Darius S. Martin.

The several-acre oak grove surrounding the little church, where the deceased minister worshipped for more than a half-century, was thronged from early morning until late afternoon with admirers who came from all sections of the State to join in the memorial services.

Not only was the services in memoriam of the late Rev. Martin, but tribute was paid to each of the forty-eight dead lying in the churchyard cemetery, when Nolen R. Martin, son of the Rev. Martin, gave a brief history of each person whose body is buried in the Bethesda cemetery .

J. Monroe Holley, Wetumpka attorney, presided. The services were called to order promptly at 10:30 o'clock and the program continued until late in the afternoon. J. Mell Martin, another son of the deceased minister, stated that services were splendid in every way and expressed his appreciation to all who aided in making the program a success.

The purpose of the memorial services was outlined by the Rev. Judson Martin, who spoke briefly on the subject "Why We Are Here." He paid tribute to the community, the church, and to those who have extended their efforts toward the upbuilding of the community and its citizenship. The Rev. L. D. Tyson read the scripture and commented briefly on the aim of the memorial service, and the Ref. C. J. Bentley delivered the Memorial Sermon.

One of the outstanding phases of the day's program was several numbers rendered by a quartet, composed of L. E. Sellers, W. O. Locke, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Scott. Ellis Adams was originally scheduled to appear in this quartet, and although he was present a throat trouble made it necessary for Mr. Locke to substitute for him.

Others appearing on the program were: The Rev. R. C. Eason, the Rev. John W. Dunlap, the Rev. R. C. Edye, Oscar P. Harris, Homer E. Hornsby, and the Rev. Earl B. Edington.

that he expects to work in harmony with the state department of education in his effort to realize his purpose.

Several other speakers appeared on the program, including Luther E. Little, superintendent of education of this county, J. W. Fant, county farm agent, Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist church, J. Roy aGntt, superintendent of schools of Elmore County, and others.

Mr. Little urged a closer harmony among the faculties and the parents of the schools, declaring that each pupil constitutes an individual problem, and to accomplish the most it is necessary for the teachers and the parents to work in harmony to insure that the ability of the child is thoroughly recognized. Another phase of the school work which was stressed by Supt. Little the need of cooperation between the faculties and the transportation department.

County Agent J. W. Fant spoke briefly on the subject of vocational activities in the schools, declaring that whenever it is possible that his office always stands ready to render assistance in this work.

Supt. Gantt, second vice-president of the A. E. A., was another interesting speaker on the afternoon program. He spoke on various phases of educational work. Mr. Gantt is superintendent of schools in Elmore County where he has made an enviable record.

as much money to the producers as the crop of 1932, the year before the curtailment program became effective. Farmers of this county will receive at present prices approximately $1,095,695 for the county's cotton crop this year, compared to $342,092 in 1932, according to recently compiled figures.

Although there has been some dissatisfaction expressed regarding the limitations of the Bankhead law, all farmers seem to think that without this legislation the staple would be bringing less than five cents per pound. Much of the criticism that is being heard is from persons who are thoroughtly familiar with every phase of the program, Mr. Fant explained.

The allotment to each farmer is based on the production on the cotton history of the particular farm which he is cultivating. This sometimes works a hardship on a producer when he is a good cotton farmer accustomed to raising big crops, if he happens to follow someone who is not a good producer. His allotment is made on the basis of the former production of the land.

Almost every farmer, when asked his reaction to the guaranteed-price of 12 cents per pound, is highly enthusiastic in his praise of the national administration for this step in his behalf. A majority of the cotton that has been ginned is either being held or the producer is taking advantage of the 12-cent loan from the federal government, it is found in a survey.

Many cotton farmers declare that this is the first time in history that the cotton farmer of the South has really been given any consideration by the national government.

RELIEF PROGRAM

these families to pay for these homes in surplus produce from their farms and in labor on various federal emergency projects.

This rehabilitation will be divided into two groups. Group 1 will consist of those considered capable of managing capital advances. This group will be largely drawn from former and owners and managing tenants whose status has been changed by the depression.

Group 2 will consist of those farm groups who have shown a lack of aptitude or ability for managing a farm. This group will be largely made up of the day laborer type and those dependent on seasonal employment. The change in status of this group has been merely a reduction in amount of employment.

Group 1—Regulations

Only family units will be accepted. Single persons and groups not forming a family unit will not be accepted. Families not having able-bodied members capable of doing general farm work wil not be eligible.

Group 2—Rehabilitation

This group will be largely concentrated on farms under close supervision. Work stock and equipment belonging to the Rural Rehabilitation Corporation will be used for the cultivation of these subsistence farms. This group will be furnished necessary food and may receive as additional compensation a share of the farm products in proportion to the amount of work they have performed.

No cash will be furnished them from ARA funds, but the local representatives of the Rural Rehabilitation Corporation will undertake to obtain private employment for members of this group. This may be done by arranging with farmers to hire this labor at at local wage rate, to build trraces, dig ditches, etc. The Rehabilitation Corporation can encourage this by furnishing the engineering work. It is believed that in most counties enough employment of this kind can be arranged to take care of clothing and medical requirements.

Reforestation is another field where this group may be usefully employed when they are not occupied in the growing of their subsistence.

processes of civilization."

Chides Critics

He chided critics just emerging "from storm cellars" and forgetting "there ever was a storm," who contend that new deal policies have inhibited the liberty of the individual and infringed upon the constitution.

To the latter he addressed a quotation from Chief Justice White, who presided over the Supreme Court in Woodrow Wilson's administration and who said:

"There is great danger it seems to me to arise from the constant habit which prevails where anything is opposed or objected to, or referring without rhyme or reason to the constitution as a means of preventing its accomplishment, thus creating the general impression that the constitution is but a barrier to progress instead of being the broad highway through which alone true progress may be enjoyed."

For those who contend the government has encroached to too great an extent upon the prerogatives of private business he was ready with a quotation from Elihu Root, secretary of state under Theodore Roosevelt. He described Root's words as "very significant." They were:

"Instead of the give and take of free individual contract, the tremendous power of organization has combined great aggregations of capital in enormous industrial establishments working through vast agencies of commerce and employing great masses of men in movements of production and transportation and trade, for great in the mass that each individual concerned in them is quite helpless by himself. The relations between the employer and the employed, between the owners of aggregated capital and the units of organized labor, between the small producer, the small trader, the consumer, and the great transporting and manufacturing and distributing agencies, all present new questions for the solution of which the old reliance upon the free action of individual wills appear quite inadequate. And in many directions, the intervention of that organized control which we call government seems necessary to produce the same result of justice and right conduct which obtained through the attritition of individuals before the new conditions arose."

Approaching the problem of NRA and of the entire relationship between employer and employe, the Chief Executive praised Gen. Hugh S. Johnson for "able and energetic leadership," in that agency's "formative stage."

While industrial recovery had been retarded by strikes, he said their extent and severity had been far less than in any comparable period. Both sides, he added, must share the blame" for not taking full advantage of conciliatory machinery provided by the government.

Vigorously he denounced the view, advanced by some economists, that the United States must be reconciled to permanent unemployment running into many millions.

On Unemployment.

"Demoralization caused by vast unemployment is our greatest extravagance," he said. "Morally, it is the greatest menace to our social order. Some people try to tell me that we must make up our minds that for the future we shall permanently have millions of unemployed just as other countries have had them for over a decade.

"What may be necessary for those countries is not my responsibility to determine. But as for this country, I stand or fall by my refusal to accept as a necessary condition of our future a permanent army of unemployed."

Claiming "substantial gains" in trade and industry under NRA, he said that the administration was rebuilding the "political and economic" system on lines that are "is complete accord with the underlying principles of orderly popular government which Americans have demanded since the white man first came to these shores.

"We count, in the future as in the past," he asserted, "on the driving power of individual initiative and the incentive of fair private profit, strengthened with the acceptance of those obligations to the public interest which rest upon us all. We have the right to expect that this driving power will be given patriotically and whole-heartedly to our nation.

"We have passed through the formative period of code-making in the National Recovery Administration and have effected a reorganization of the NRA suited to the needs of the next phase, which is, in turn, a period of preparation for legislation which will determine its permanent form.

"In this recent reorganization we have recognized three distinct functions. First, the legislative or policy making function. Second, the administrative function of code making and revision and, third, the judicial function, which includes enforcement, consumer complaints and the settlement of disputes between employers and employes

"We are now prepared to move into and between one employer and another.
this second phase, on the basis of our experience in the first phase under the able and energetic leadership of Gen. Johnson.

"We shall watch carefully the working of this new machinery for the second phase of NRA,, modifying it where it needs modification and finally making recommendations to the Congress, in order that the functions of NRA which have proved their worth may be made a part of the permanent machinery of government."

In a conversation with a News reporter Mr. Taylor stressed the fact that his business is exclusively a wholesale business, that he has spared no effort in arranging his warehouse so as to give prompt deliveries without confusion, and that his business is a home concern, operated by home people, and that his office equipment, which is second to none, was made largely by home people, being the handiwork of Archie Mahan, well known cabinet maker.

This concern has a most complete stock of flour, meats and lard, canned goods of best quality, work clothes, sugar, soap, patent drugs, and a separate department for notions, candies, tobaccos, etc. Mr. Taylor declares that it will be his policy to sell on a close margin of profit so as to better serve home merchants and merit their cooperation.

TWO PROJECTS EXPECTED TO GET UNDERWAY

Thorsby Waterworks And Clanton City Hall Are First To Come

Clanton's new $35,000 city hall seems a bit nearer realization, according to information received here by O. H. Stone, manager of the United States Re-Employment Office in Chilton County, who announced this week that he has been advised that work will begin on this project within the next six weeks.

No recent information has been had regarding the date when work will be begun on the new Clanton Post Office. However, Mr. Stone said that he believes that this project will also be underway before the first of the year. Work is expected to begin immediately on the $28,000 Thorsby Waterworks installation. Both the Clanton city hall and the Thorsby waterworks system will come under the PWA loans, but the Clanton post office is a direct grant from the federal government. Fifty-five thousand dollars have been allotted for its construction and the site has been purchased.

Mr. Stone estimated that more than 200 men will be given employment for a period of four or five months on these projects. Labor for all work of this type will be selected through the local office of the Unted States Re-Employment Service, and Mr. Stone urges everyone registered to see that his application is kept active by renewing it every sixty days.

CLANTON NOW UNDER EYES OF NEW MAYOR

Mayor And Councilmen Get Off To Fine Start At First Meeting

C. Fenn Jones, recently elected Mayor of Clanton, took the oath of office and officially took over the reins of the Town's government last week, succeeding Mayor J. Lee Smith, who has served Clanton as Mayor for two consecutive terms.

Mayor Jones was elected to this office by an overwhelming majority in the recent election, when he defeated his opponent, P. D. Wilson, by a vote of 374 to 109.

The oath of office was administered by W. D. Spigener, county register, and Mayor Jones assumed the duties as chief official of the Chilton County metropolis when he presided at the recent council meeting.

One of the County's most outstanding and influential business men, the people of Clanton are expecting his administration to be one that can be pointed to with credit and pride. For many years, before his retirement, Mr. Jones was one of the town's leading business men.

In commenting on his candidacy some time before his election, Mr. Jones stated that he has always had a keen interest in all movements that tended toward the improvement of the town and county and expressed the hope that he will be in a position to serve his fellow citizens better as Mayor of Clanton.

President Appreciates Message Of Thanks From Huntsville

Huntsville, Oct. 9—A card of thanks for Huntsville's bounteous share in the New Deal, sent to President Roosevelt by the Monroe Printing Co., brought prompt response from the chief executive.

The message to the White House read:

"Mill whistles blowing—12-cent cotton growing—banks all 'a goin'—profits will be showing, so we wish you a happy, prosperous new era."

Louis M. H. Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, replied that the chief executive "is deeply grateful for the good will which your communication evidences."

With the textile strike ended and farmers beginning to convert their 12-cent cotton into cash, Huntsville merchants did the biggest business Saturday of any day this year.

TWO CARRIED TO HOSPITAL WITH INJURIES

Man Found Unconscious On Railroad Tracks Here; Friend Is Held

Two young men are in the Central Alabama Hospital where they are being treated for injuries suffered in week end mishaps. They are: Joe Reynolds, of Clanton and Jimmy Waddell, of Tuscaloosa.

The man identified as Joe Reynolds, employe of the local textile mill, was found in an unconscious condition beside the railroad tracks underneath the overhead bridge in Clanton. Raymond (Blondie) Taylor saw the man lying below the bridge as he came to his work at the Gulf Service Station shortly after daybreak Sunday morning. He yelled at him and tossed stones near him in an effort to arouse him, he told officers, thinking the man was asleep. He then notified fellow-employes at the station and the man was taken to the hospital by Durwood Teel.

Waddell suffered a broken right leg when his car crashed into concrete guard rail posts in South Clanton late Saturday night. He was rushed to the hospital in a Martin & Sons ambulance. Waddell gave his age as 23 and said that his home is in Tuscaloosa.

Reynolds suffered a fractured skull and severe bruises about his head and body. Officers who investigated the case said that he was evidently attacked and struck on the head with some heavy weapon. Burnice Bond, a fellow-

Democratic Women To Meet Next Tues. P.M.

Members of the Chilton County Womans Democratic club will meet at the Wilson Hotel next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, according to an announcement from the president of the club this week.

This is to be one of the most important sessions of the club since its organization several months ago. With the date of the November election fast approaching, the Democratic women of this county are exerting every effort for a victory of the local Democratic ticket. In this way they believe that they will be lending aid to the perpetuation of the New Deal programs which the President of the United States has set into motion, bringing a fuller life for the average American man and woman.

The entire membership of the club is urged to be present at this meeting next Tuesday, when final plans for activities in the coming election will be discussed.

Regrets

The News regrets this week that due to a sudden over-run of advertising it was necessary to leave out several interesting letters of news from over the county. These letters have been saved and will be used next week.

GHOSTS AND GOBLINS

(AN EDITORIAL)

To one who is not familiar with conditions in Chilton County, the fact that the two political parties here are arguing about the "New Deal" and the Democratic government, would perhaps seem most foolish. In fact it possibly is foolish that certain branches of the local Republican party are attacking the program, claiming it is not accomplishing any good, when from all sides of the county everyone knows that it has brought life to stagnated business. And when you bring life to stagnated business in Chilton County, you first must give the farmer the money with which to create business here. That has been done and is being done.

The News has not attempted to paint for its readers any drastic pictures of streets flowing with gold, and will not. We fully realize that such a thing is impossible. However, attackers of the "New Deal" would have you believe that the "booze" is possible under a Democratic administration. Even the suggestion of such a thing is utterly ridiculous and a gross insult to anyone's intelligence, and it is difficult to understand how anyone making such statements could expect to hold the respect of intelligent people. However that is beside the point.

The issue at present seems to be whether or not the people of Chilton County like the recovery program of the present Democratic government, whether they find themselves in better circumstances since Democrats took over the reins of government, or whether they prefer the soul-trying, poverty ridden, bank failing years under the Republican regime.

Attackers of the Recovery program, known as the "New Deal" admit that conditions were bad three years ago, under the Republican reign, but they fail to remind the people of those conditions, and compare them with present day trends toward prosperity. The fact there still remains—which is the better? Which do you prefer? In connection with this they also want you to believe that prices of goods you must buy are higher now, but they fail to remind you that you are also being paid higher prices for what you sell, which makes the picture quite different to the man or woman who sets out to buy the necessities of life which they could not even do three years ago.

We understand there seems to be some doubt by those who are against the "New Deal" whether the News was correct in saying deposits in local banks had increased over two hundred thousand dollars in the past two years. The News too, wishes to correct that statement by saying that these deposits have increased over two hundred thousand dollars in ONE year under a Democratic administration. If there is still any doubt in anyones mind about that, we feel sure it can easily be erased. These increases simply mean that in Chilton County, for an example, the farmer and the working man are in much better circumstances than two years ago, and are able to bank a little money as well as buy the necessities of life for themselves and their families. When the News says that local Democratic candidates are in sympathy with the "New Deal" we mean simply that. But those who even now are reaping benefits from this program, and fighting it, would have you believe these men endorse such items as "open Saloons," unlimited spending of the government money and other such absurd and utterly impossible things, when they know better.

In spite of these attacks on the "New Deal" and lenghty articles written by those who have known all the time what the trouble has been with our country, saying this recovery program is all wrong, the News knows as well as every thinking citizen knows that the people of Chilton County are in far better circumstances today living and carrying on their business under a Democratic administration than they were back in those never-to-be-forgotten days of the quiet, say-nothing, do-nothing Republican Hoover "Prosperity." That is the kind of a program your local Democratic candidates DO NOT endorse.

:-: APPRECIATION :-:

Our vocabulary is too limited, our feeling too strong, for us to attempt to truly express our appreciation as we would like, to the people of Chilton County for the support and friendliness toward this newspaper during the past years.

With this weeks issue the News enters its thirteenth year, with renewed hope and courage. It has weathered the storms of past years, faced the hard knocks and the times of financial distress, coming out with a greater love for its fellowmen created by the trying times which have faced us all and are now in the background as history.

We fully realize the great value of friendship which makes it possible to accomplish worthwhile things. We realize that we owe our success to the friendliness and support of the people of Chilton County and surroundings, and we are thankful.

The News enters its thirteenth year this week with this feeling in its heart promising that the years to come will also see its columns upholding that which tends toward progress for our county and our people.

This Issue Marks 12th Birthday Of The News

This week's issue of the News starts it off on its thirteenth year of service to the people of Chilton County. Volume XIII, Number 1, is the position this issue will occupy in the files of this newspaper.

While the past year has meant a great deal to the News in the way of progress, friends and business, we look forward to the thirteenth year of serving our county to the utmost of our ability.

Thirteen may be an unlucky number and shunned by the superstitious, but the News will cling fast to that belief that fair play, hard work and clean ideas will ward off any bad omen which might be prevailing.

REHABILITATION SET-UP GETTING READY TO WORK

Applications Are Now Being Taken From Those Desiring Help

The new rehabilitation program in which Chilton County expects to share is beginning to get underway. Members of the local rehabilitation committee met last Thursday afternoon in the office of the relief director, Miss Kittye Clyle Austin, to select farm foremen for next year's program. Miss Austin explained that this is one of the first steps in the introduction of the extensive program which will be in effect during 1935.

Those named to supervise the rehabilitation projects in this county are: Dudley Collins, Glenn Sessions, and Marvin Durbin. These men are all experienced farmers of this county and it is believed that under their able supervision long strides will be made to enable underprivileged farm families to regain a foothold in the economical world.

Little definite information regarding the new program has been received by the local office, but visitors from the relief administration are busy now making an extensive survey of the conditions of the 200 farm families that were taken from the relief rolls a few days ago. Applications are being taken from those who wish to share in this rehabilitation and the work of classification into the four groups will be completed by November 1, Miss Austin

THREE PERSONS KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS CAR

Mother Sees Two Babies Lives Snuffed Out Last Thursday Morn

Three persons were killed instantly last Thursday morning when they were struck by the northbound Pan-American, Louisville & Nashville train, at the Kalona Crossing about three miles north of Jemison.

L. B. Northcutt, 21, and his small nephew and niece, Bobby Northcutt, 3, and Eleanor Northcutt, 13 months, were killed instantly when the fast train struck the car in which they were riding on the crossing about 6:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

The impact threw the bodies and the car several yards up the track from the crossing, but neither of the victims were thrown underneath the train wheels. Members of the crew and passer by worked for more than an hour extricating the wreckage from the rails.

Railroad officials notified Martin & Sons in Clanton and had the bodies brought here for preparation for burial. The youth's face was marred consider-

Flying Taking On New Interest Here

With several already signed up for flying lessons being given at the Clanton Airport by J. W. Allen, expert transport pilot, interest in the art of aviation promises to grow rapidly in this section. The droning of airplane motors over Clanton is fast becoming a regular part of the daily routine.

Mr. Allen is enthusiastic regarding the interest that is being exhibited in flying by the residents of Clanton and surrounding territory. Crowds visit the field every day and scores have taken trips along Clanton's skyways.

Dr. V. J. Gragg, local flying fan, and the first person in this section to purchase his own plane, will soon be a regular pilot, having his private pilot's license. Dr. Gragg made his first solo on October 3, which was his birthday.

Much has been accomplished toward the completion of the field within the past month. Work has been concentrated on the completion of the runways. Most of the stumps have been removed from the lower section of the field by Morris Jones and his T-Model stump puller, which incidentally is an ingeneous method of utilizing the old T-Model Ford.

Floyd Smith, works director, stated that he is going to make an effort, with the cooperation of several local citizens, to secure an appropriation for the erection of a rustic club house and modern swimming pool. He plans to submit plans of this project to the state department of the FERA within the next few days. Members of the Clanton Kiwanis club are interested in this program it is understood.

The field had its first visiting plane last Sunday when F. P. Lawrence, of Montgomery, one of the state's oldest pilots, landed and spent a few hours looking over the Chilton County Airport and visiting with his friend, J. W. Allen.

THE LEADER TO CELEBRATE 15TH BIRTHDAY FRI.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Lande Express Appreciation To Friends, Customers

The Leader, one of Clanton and Chilton County's leading mercantile establishments, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Lande, popular operators of this store, are celebrating their Fifteenth Anniversary in Clanton Friday, October 12. They invite the thousands of customers they have served down through the years, and new ones, to be their guests on this date—to visit the store and see the hundreds of bargains in fall and winter merchandise that are available at prices which are astoundingly low.

"It is with grateful hearts that, on this Fifteenth Anniversary of the founding of our business in Clanton, we extend to our friends and customers our appreciation for their loyal devotion in the past," Mr. Lande stated.

"Our gratitude to those whose patronage has enabled us to serve our customers and friends satisfactorily is exceeded only by the sense of humility and responsibility which we realize is ours for the future," he continued.

From an humble beginning, this establishment has grown to be one of the county's largest mercantile firms, and is known to thousands of customers throughout Central Alabama as "The Leader."

"Who Said Radicals?"

In last week's Union-Banner the "Man in the Moon' gallantly came to the rescue of the Republican program in a long-winded attack on the "New Deal" which he terms a reply to a recent editorial in the Chilton County News. With a mass of data which he would have us believe is authentic he attacks upon a wide front.

Now, lest there be a doubt in the minds of some as to the identity of the "man in the Moon", we would remind our readers that he is also quite well known as Chester (Jack) Mims, and that for a period of time last winter and spring he was on the CWA payroll, and that during such time his viciousness melted into meekness. We even remember one or two occasions when he nobly came to the defense of the local relief programs.

But in his most recent outburst he tells us that "The depression HAD to end some time" and calls attention to the fact that other countries are making progress along the road to recovery. We are not as familiar with the programs in other countries as he appears to be, but he says "they did it without sacrificing any of their people's personal liberties or property rights." He may or may not have been thinking about Facism under Mussolini in Italy, Nazism under Hitler in Germany or one of the five-year plans in Russia, but he cited England as an example to prove his point. Now we lay no claim to authority on English affairs, but under date of October 6, 1934, the Birmingham Post carried an editorial discussing how the English handled the depression, and it would seem the major difference between them and us is that they got a 20-year start. The Post's editorial follows:

> The conservative New York Times publishes on its front page an article by its London correspondent which tells how the conservative English are amazed that President Roosevelt's social reform program is attacked in the United States as radical or impracticable.
> England got a 20-year start. Unemployment insurance, pensions, workmen's compensation, health insurance and certain other items in the Roosevelt program have been in operation there since before the war. Child labor was abolished gradually in England, and long ago British employers recognized the right of workers to combine and bargain collectively.
> "They (British reforms) were attacked in this country, too, in the years before the war," reports the London correspondent. "Business men protested bitterly against unemployment insurance; physicians organized a nation-wide outcry against health insurance, and the Liberal governments which pushed the program through were denounced as socialistic and worse.
> "Today social legislation of pre-war days is accepted as part of every British worker's heritage and nothing would induce the working masses or the so-called governing classes to part with it.
> "Everyone in England recognizes, in fact, that if there had been no social security here in 1931, the depression would have hit this country with much more terrific impact than it did. As it was, the British people were fortified against shocks, and when the crisis came it was primarily a financial and budgetary emergency requiring only a few 'unorthodox measures."—Birmingham Post.

Real Music Enjoyed

That a large section of the American people appreciates real music was strikingly demonstrated at the Chicago Fair this summer, where delighted audiences reaching as estimated total of more than two million attended 298 open air symphony concerts.

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra, during an engagement lasting 13 weeks, played 160 concerts, 156 of which were conducted by Victor Kolar, which is believed to be an all-time record for a symphony orchestra conductor in a similar period. His programs included more than 600 different compositions.

A series of 138 concerts was played by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra of which Eric LeLamarter conducted 89, the remainder having been directed by a notable array of guest conductors drawn from America and Europe.

Kolar and DeLamarter are associate conductors of their respective organizations; their principals, Ossip Gabrilowitsch and Frederick Stock, being on vacation during the summer. Each returned, however, to conduct their orchestras in a few concerts before the close of the season

In every respect the 1934 Century of Progress Exposition is a great show, and in no department has it been more distinguished than in music. The attendance attracted by the offerings of these two magnificent orchestras should be reassuring to those who fear that jazz and crooners and hill-billy songs have hopelessly prevented the musical taste of America.

Democratic Party Is Protector of Rights of Many And Against Privileges of the Few Says Speaker

Address delivered by Honorable James A. Farley, Posmaster General, at Shrine Temple, Rockford, Illinois, Tuesday, September 18, 1934, at 7:30 P. M.

Always, my friends, it is a pleasure to come to Illinois. And particularly, it is a pleasure to come to this section of your State, and at a time and occasion like this.

I am happy to find here the leaders of the Democratic party who have helped to bring Illinois democracy back to its rightful place in the sun. I am happy again to be in the company of my good friends, Governor Horner, Pat Nash, Bruce Campbell, Mayor Kelly, and to greet the two distinguished Senators from your State, the Honorable James Hamilton Lewis and the Honorable William Dieterich. I say this with pleasure and with pride, that one of the most delightful friendships that I have formed since I became active in national political life is with your senior Senator. I have found his counsel sage, his experience broad, and his judgement sound. His has been a strong shoulder to the wheel. And to the years that lie ahead for your junior Senator, I trust I may be privileged to add my word of cheer, and to predict added laurels for him, laurels for service and work in the interest of his State and of the nation.

To your Democratic Congressmen, may I say a few words. In Washington, under the sound leadership of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, there have been many problems of a legislative nature. No state in the Union, may I say, has given to the service of the New Deal as diligent and loyal a Democratic contingent as has Illinois. In common with all official Washington, and the country as well, we mourn the loss of your distinguished citizen, the late Speaker Henry Rainey. We valued him for his wisdom; we cherished him for his courage. I know that President Roosevelt lost a valiant warrior and we all lost a tried and sympathetic friend.

As elections come around, whether it is a presidential year, or the biennial congressional elections, the political warhorse always becomes more active. And so perhaps I, too, feel the urge to be out and about, consulting with the great mass of people, trying to help and assist in organization work, and protecting the gains that have been made for our country and our destiny under the humane and far-seeing leadership of our great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In short, I come to you as a fellow-American, interested like you and with you, in the tremendously serious problem of economic recovery. We have as a nation gone down into the valley; as a people we faced the stark, dreary prospect of economic chaos in those never-to-be-forgotten days of late 1932 and early 1933. And I know those of you who listened in on the radio on Inauguration Day of 1933, and heard Franklin D. Roosevelt take the oath of office as the President of the United States, thrilled just as did those of us who stood near him and saw him raise his hand under the dull, ashen sky in Washington. Together we heard the promise of a real leader, giving us the pledge of a New Deal.

Let us not forget what has happened in the meantime. Let us not permit our opposition to belittle the efforts that have brought us well on the road to economic recovery. Let us not permit them to say: "well, we would have gotten along anyway."

Our fight is for the New Deal. A New Deal and a Square Deal, for you and for your neighbor, for the average man and woman of this country, for the farmer, for the laborer, for the merchant and for the banker. We are all one. We are all together in this serious fight that we are engaged in, and we must not let those of the old guard, of the old order of things, halt us on our way.

Their advice brought us only misery in the days of Hoover, and there has been nothing in the record that shows that their advice is any better now than it was then. They were the engineers of ruin then; what is your guarantee that they won't be the same now? I tell you frankly, and I speak with every bit of sincerity that I can muster: this old guard of the Hoover gang isn't in step with any measure of the New Deal. They are against relief—they cannot but understand the very vital problem of feedng the hungry, clothing the needy and housing the homeless, and yet they protest against the function and duty of the government to take care of its people. They are against recovery—for they protest and shout extravagance at every expenditure that is calculated to bring an ordered stability to the industrial and agricultural world. They are against reform—for they fight tooth and nail for the preservation of customs and practices that fed their greed for so many generations in a day that, I hope, has gone forever.

I count them like the Bourbons, of Napoleon's time; they cannot learn, neither can they forget.

When they set up their wails of unconstitutionality and usurpation of liberty and other high-sounding and equally meaningless protests, the real reason is not hard to understand. They are against the spirit of the New Deal; they are against the rights of the many as against the privilege of the few; they are against it without sincerity of purpose or honesty of mind.

Charges have been made recently that the Democratic party has taken away the liberty of the American people. Truly what a ridiculous label to place upon a party to which human liberty has always been a cardinal tenet. One hundred and forty years ago Thomas Jefferson first enunciated the liberal doctrines that definitely took form as the Democratic party organization. That party has survived. It has lived through one domestic and four foreign wars. It has lived through economic depressions; it has lived through periods of business prosperity. Wealth has not dulled its conscience, nor want subdued it.

The Democratic party stands today, more than ever before, protector of the rights of the many as against privilege for the few. As a party, it has lived because it has served. Woodrow Wilson used to say that the reason for the virility of the Democratic party has been because it had a heart under its jacket.

I rest content that the people of this country will decide for themselves whether they care to entrust their sacred liberties to the reckless crew of pirates who ran riot with the destinies of the people in the Hoover period of quicksand prosperity, or whether they will trust their destiny to the understanding leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Just a week ago today we heard a most important opinion voiced on the success of the New Deal. It didn't come from some high dignitary of the government; it didn't come from any political leader of this country; it didn't come from some industrial or financial big-wig. No, it came from a source whose judgement is supreme in this free land of liberty; it came for the sovereign people. I refer to the election that was held in the State of Maine a week ago yesterday. It was the most magnificient expression of the success of the New Deal that has come from the voice of the American people since the voters of this country in 1932 entrusted the reins of government to the progressive and inspired leadership of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Let me say a word about just what this Maine election meant. Here in the Middle West you are not likely to get the full and significant meaning of one of the most important events of the past eighteen months. Our large metropolitan papers are, to say the least, bitter in their antagonisms. Controlled by the same element that gloated in the reckless Hoover days of just a few years ago, the mendacious journalism of the Insull gang, the McCormicks and the Knoxes cannot be expected to give you a fair picture of either the operations or philosophy of the New Deal. Nor may we expect of them a fair unbiased recital of the movements or results of the Roosevelt program.

When this Maine campaign started, the Republicans said to themselves: "Let's make the New Deal an issue. We've always carried Maine. The state's ours, and we know there's always a let-down in the mid-term elections for Congress, which should make our victory sweeter. Senator Hale won by 82,000 majority when he was elected to his present term; let's tie the New Deal to his opponent, and when he wins, we'll call it a victory over the New Deal." Congressman Beedy, of Maine's first district, is unbeatable, they said. "Let's tie the New Deal to the Democrat running against him, and of course when Beedy is returned to Congress for his eighth consecutive term, we'll call it a victory over the New Deal." I can imagine how cheerfully the Republican high command approached these simple problems of political opportunism.

And they were right, these old guard politicians. Their old guard plans should have clicked. But they forgot to figure on the people. In their calculations they left out of consideration the fact that the people themselves, under the American privilege of the ballot, were to make the decision.

So these political buccaneers went on with their campaign; they poured money into the Pine Tree state. They swung their heavy artillery into action. They called upon that distinguished feather-brained statesman from your neighbor State of Iowa, the Honorable L. J. Dickinson, Senatorial campaigner. They called upon your distinguished journalist from Chicago, the heir-apparent to the Hoover establishment, Colonel Frank Knox. They made the usual deceitful gesture of parading in their behalf a distant relative and namesake of our President, in the person of Col. Teddy Roosevelt.

It was to be the downfall of the New Deal. The people were to speak out against it. Here was to be the ammunition for a successful Republican assault upon the Roosevelt program in the November elections. The banners were painted; the torches ready to be lighted, in a parade up and down the countryside to show the voters of Illinois and Ohio, Michigan and Indiana how the sturdy, liberty-loving people of Maine had pointed the way to the rest of the nation, and rejected, yes, rejected the New Deal. It was all over but the shouting.

And so the people of Maine went to the polls a week ago yesterday. No ordinary outpouring of people this. Farmers from the fields, artisans from the shops—it was going to be no every-day turndown of a political party; they were going to bury the Democratic party once and for all.

They failed to gauge the temper of the people; they failed to understand what was in the hearts of the average man and average woman. That's where their elaborate program slipped up.

And when the votes were tallied that evening, and into the early morning hours of Tuesday—a week ago today—the result was something entirely unexpected to the old guard who had laid their plans so carefully.

For the first time in its history Maine had re-elected a Democratic Governor, and by a majority bigger, I am told, than had ever before been given to any Republican Governor of the State. For the first time since the Civil War, a Democratic Congressman had been elected in the first Congressional district of the State of Maine Two out of three Congressmen had been elected in the State, and at the same time, a strange sort of fear overtook the Republican politicians when the votes were counted in the Senatorial contest. Here we find Frederick Hale, ruling member of a Republican dynasty that has held the people of Maine in its grasp for nearly fifty years, again appealing to the suffrage of the people Against him was a young liberal-minded and active Democrat, Harold Dubord.

Gradually the billows of ballots were counted, and as the precincts were tabulated, one by one, we saw the strange and weird spectacle of Senator Hale of Maine toppling from his impregnable seat. A 10,000 lead was cut to 5,000; it dwindled to three thousand; it sank to two thousand; and on the basis of the returns as now tentatively listed, a scarce thirteen hundred votes separates Senator Fredrick Hale from political oblivion.

Truly, from a political standpoint, the Maine election was nothing less than another nail in the coffin of the Republican party. It revealed the utter paucity of their leadership; it revealed the entire lack of issues which the once proud and arrogant party of wealth and plunder now displays. It is my confident prediction that after the November election the Republican membership in the Senate will sink to the lowest numerical level it has reached since James Buchanan was President, nearly seventy-five years ago.

I do not consider that it will be necessary for me to detail to you here the great strides that are being made in Washington to accomplish the economic recovery of our country's agriculture, of our country's business, of our country's industry and of our country's finance.

Of this you can be sure—that we are moving onward over the highway that leads to a sound and constructive future—onward to better times and better days.

As Postmaster General, I am naturally proud of the record of the Post Office Department during the past year. We had imposed a tax burden of some one hundred and fifty million dollars upon the American people for several years before 1933. Due to the economies that we effected through adopting sound business principles, and the splendid and magnificent co-operation of the vast army of employees, we were able to show, instead of a recurring deficit each year, a surplus of five million dollars. That's what can be done with loyal co-operative effort

The work of restoring the nation's economic health is no easy task. As the President told you himself the other day, the job has only been begun. It will be a long pull and a hard pull before the country is back to where it belongs. But with such a President as we have, with such resources as his courage, his wisdom, his humanity and his good old-fashioned horse sense, to direct things there isn't a doubt in the world of the ultimate outcome.

If the Roosevelt Administration had nothing to its credit but the Agricultural Adjustment Act—that in itself would be enough.

If the Roosevelt Administartion had nothing to its credit but the benefits derived to date from the NRA—that in itself would be enough.

If the Roosevelt Administration had nothing to its credit but the insurance of bank deposits—that in itself would be enough.

If the Roosevelt Administration had nothing to its credit but the Securites Exchange and Regulaton Art—that in itself would be enough.

If the Roosevelt Administration had nothing to its credit but the operation of its relief program for the alleviation of hunger and suffering of our people, that in itself would be enough.

If the Roosevelt Administration had nothing to its credit but the Home Loan Act—that in itself would be enough.

If the Roosevelt Administration had nothing to its credit but the recovery of the country from the pall of fear of those dark days of 1933—that in itself would be enough.

So I say, in summing up, let us as Americans, Democrats and Republicans alike, back up President Roosevelt in his splendid work. Let us unite in sending to Congress men who are eager to work and strive for the betterment of the economic well-being of the people of this country. Let us unite in sending to Congress men who are looking ahead to the dawn of a newer and better day.

I rest the case of the New Deal in your hands, not as an attorney pleading a cause, but as a fellow-American, with my own shoulder to the wheel, asking you to help along in a great cause, under the leadership of a great President, Franklin D .Roosevelt.

Judging NRA By Results

The National Recovery Administration from its inception has welcomed criticism. All of the codes of fair competition were formulated in that spirit. They have been administered from the first until now under the principle of trial and error, a principle which will continue to dominate NRA under the plans for reorganization announced by President Roosevelt.

One of the most constructive— and therefore most helpful—estimates of the accomplishments of NRA was voiced by Charles J Brand, executive treasurer and secretary of the National Fertilizer Association Executivès in Washington.

"It is unbelieveable," said Mr. Brand, "that the industrial and business community of the Nation would tolerate the scrapping of NRA. Even if industry and business consented to scrap NRA," he added, "It is my opinion that the scrapping would be impossible."

Speaking from the agricultural viewpoint in presenting his ideas on the question: "What will happen to agriculture, industry, and distribution when NRA and AAA are scrapped or modified?" before a body made up of distinguished trade association leaders from all parts of the United States, Mr. Brand went on to say: "For every person who has suffered disadvantage from the recovery program, it is conservative to say that at least 100 have benefited."

Significantly enough, Mr. Brand's highly laudatory summation of the achievements of the recovery program was uttered before President Roosevelt's announcement of plans for the reorganization of NRA. Constructive criticism, such as Mr. Brand's will be of immense value as the work of recharting the course of NRA proceeds.

"The recovery act and its developments," said he, "are very largely what American business, labor, and the Government, representing the consumer, have made it. If NRA were scrapped, we would have chaos for a time, but even so, we would have gained because certain vital benefits of cooperation that cannot be destroyed have resulted. Industry and business have arranged their affairs in accordance with their codal laws. Those laws were prepared in nearly all cases by the ablest and best men engaged in the particular business. The code that was carefully prepared, if now administered with the same care and with full consideration of employee, employer, and consumer is benefiting those that it was intended to help.

"Those industries and trades that have not set up adequate and functioning administrative agencies for their codes and those that have not in the past been able to work together are suffering, largely because of their own weaknesses and not because of the inherent faults of the recovery plan.

"My answer to 'What after NRA?' is 'NRA may be improved, subsided and rechristened, if necessary, but by saving all of the good that can possibly be saved, its advantages will far outweigh the bad points.'

"Mistakes have been made in the vast amount of work done on the codes," Mr. Brand concluded, "but this is reason for correction rather than scrapping. Every coded industry, should, even if the act were absolutely repealed, determinedly set its face toward the preservation of every useful feature within its code.' '

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

A friend of mine who was a nimrod of fame related to me an experience that came to him while in the woods shooting squirrels. He said that he entered the sport with great hopes for much game. The squirrels were eating the mass in the tree tops and he would lift his gun and aim with care, but no game ever fell to the ground. After many shots he knew that something was wrong and so he examined his amunition and discovered that he was shooting blank shells. His gun made much noise and smoke but the squirrels were not brought to earth. Going into a church I took my seat and watched a preacher as he tramped up and down the pulpit and with much noise and smoke, shot to the right and left, but somehow he never brought down any game. I left that church wondering if that preacher was not using blank shells. In hunting and in preaching it takes lead to bring down the game.

I was attending a match game of football and observed that a young man received the ball and dashed away like a deer. He ran thirty-five yards but was thrown to the ground five feet before making the touchdown. The ball was placed and the team behind it struggled with almost super-human effort to push it over the goal line. In the midst of that struggling, pushing, weltering humanity the cheer leader of the losing side leaped before the student body and shouted "hold that line" and the line was held. If the cheer leader had not lifted his voice in all probability the visiting team would have won. It is the word of cheer spoken at the right time that saves many a defeat in the game of life. We need cheer leaders in the church of God today.

I arrived at a country home late in the night. After being in bed for hours I awoke and peered out at the window that I might see something of my surroundings but it was still dark and I could not see. Waiting a few moments I saw a stroke of light coming from behind the eastern hills. A few moments later and the rising sun had driven back all the darkness and I saw clearly the lay of the land. I had slept on the top of a hill and all about me in every direction there was beauty that no artist could paint. It took the shining sun to reveal the beauty of that location. Before we are converted we are living in the dark.

When Jesus comes into our hearts with His heavenly sunshine then the darkness flees away and we have an outlook of beauty and glory that charms our very being. The world takes on a new beauty when the Son of Righteousness arises in our souls.

It was a blustery afternoon on the bay and five sail boats came out for play. They rode the waves in almost every direction. Under the power of the blowing winds the little boats would dash here and there as things of life. In the midst of the fun of the sailors the wind ceased to blow and the little crafts were left still, with sails drooping. Playing around over the waters of the bay there were several little boats driven with outboard motors and when the wind ceased those boats seemingly increased in speed. The sail boats were still but the motor driven boats were still dashing about like lambs at play. That is like unto a human life that is driven by feeling and principle. Many of us make good speed for a while under the power of our feelings. Should our feelings cease to function we droop and stand still. It is the man who moves because of principle on whom you can depend in all conditions of human life. Blessed is that man who has the outboard motor of principle to push him when feelings are at their worst.

I had a first class lawyer who was a member of my church. but he would have been overgraded if he had been rated as a tenth grade Methodist. I saw a first class businesn man who was a Baptist, but he was not one tenth what he should have been as a Baptist. I knew a first class doctor who belong to the Presbyterian church, but he was utterly no account as a church member. These are the kind of folks for whom angels have a contempt. If a fellow is no good as a lawyer, a business man, as a doctor, as a farmer, then there is some excuse for him not being any good as a church member. May the good Lord pity people who are good for everything else, but no good for God.

That, my dear friends, is why we, the student body of this outstanding institution of learning, are responding so tactfully and brilliantly, to the question and problems daily subjected to us by our respected and beloved teachers.

But seriously now, school is here. We are facing that fact five days out of every week and four weeks in every month. I don't mean to be sentimental or poetic but it's true that we, the youth of Clanton, at present, are its future citizens. We are forming our lives and character daily in school. Our future depends upon our present school life and its advantages, almost entirely. For this reason it is important that it be successful. Without the aid of the people in this town the success of this school is, obviously, impossible. I therefore, earnestly appeal to you for your aid and cooperation during the ensuing year. We expect it. But that's enough about that.

I feel that we are indeed fortunate in maintaining a faculty this year of which every teacher is specially prepared for his or her particular line of work. Besides Mr. Warr, principal, and Misses Kendrick, Gulledge, and Colley, and Mr. Varnell, and Mr. Searcy, who are old friends, we are glad to welcome Miss Alice Brooks of Andalusia, Miss Virginia Cook of Roanoke, Mr. G. G. Williams of Clanton, and Mr Murphy Bratton of Jemison. Also coming from various sections of the country are students to whom we willingly extend the glad hand of welcome. They are:

Reuben, Jr., and Perrin Reynolds, of Atlanta; Mary Solomon and Nina Ross of Bessemer; Margaret Davis of Greeneville; and others. There are a number of new students in the Sr. I class, which is always large, from various surrounding communities. Last, but of course not least, we greet the Jr. I class. They're extremely knowing and wise in ways of the world to be so small in age and statue. I look at them and blush to think how green I once was. Evidently we live and learn.

The Senior class has begun the year in a way, typical of it, the right way. It was organized far back in the first month of its existence as a Sr. III class, '35. Officers are: President, Philip Nelson, Vice-President, Dixie Johnson, Sec'y-Treas., Grace Plyler. With these able leaders and class sponsor, Miss Gulledge, I firmly believe this present class will surpass all others in achievements. We're planning big thing. Watch us!!

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the class of '34 for not only their deeply appreciated gifts to the school, which were a brick entrance at the south end of the campus, a sun dial and benches, and a picture, "Whistler's Mother," but also for their loyalty, devotion and love, expressed in their deeds, for this, their Alma Mater. Theirs was indeed a superior class. A larger number of their members are now attending college than any former class from this school.

We elected cheer leaders the other day and who could we have chosen that would have the pep, loyalty, spirit, ability of leadership, perserverance and numerous other fitting qualities that Sarah Hollis, Grace Plyler and Charles Foshee possess. Is it any wonder then, that the majority of the students chose them to lead the school in its yells and pep songs? They proved they were capable of their positions. Monlay afternoon of this week when Chilton played Verbena. Boy, was that a football game. Our first home game and a great one. Everybody was bubbling over with school spirit. We won, too. The final score was Clanton 6, Verbena 0. We're proud of everyone of our football boys who have as their captain Cecil Jones, and alternate captain Sydney Reynolds. Keep up the good work team. We're for you!

Miss Jessie Garrison, physical education worker in the state, favored our school with a short visit a week or two ago. It was thoroughly enjoyed by all. She gave an invigorating and inspiring talk in chapel. Her lively interest in everything and everybody is certainly contagious. I find myself getting interested in spite of myself. She helped the faculty and Mr. Warr organize a physical education program, which by the way, is being introduced into schools all over the state. The purpose of this program is to arouse interest in school activities, train the muscles and mind, teach cooperation and to awaken the student generally. But oh, those exercises!

The Sr. class members have just completed an interesting project in connection with Chancer's Cantlebury Tales, which they have been studying. The idea was to bring to class something illustrating this most interesting work or pertaining to Chaucer's time and life. The Seniors portrayed originality and skill in their serious contributions and conceptions. Posters, themes, plaques, dolls dressed as characters, illuminated manuscripts and other things were presented. Miss Gulledge stated that she was well pleased with this work.

Unique Vicks Formula Is Now Aiding Millions In Preventing Many Colds

Vicks Va-tro-nol, the unique aid in preventing colds, is now helping millions of adults and children to enjoy greater freedom from colds.

Va-tro-nol is especially designed for nose and throat, where most colds start. Va-tro-nol should be used at that first sneeze or nasal irritation—just a few drops up each nostril. Its timely use helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off colds in the early stages.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh)—Va-tro-nol penetrates deep into the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears away clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

Va-tro-nol is powerful yet absolutely safe—for both children and adults. It has been clinically tested by physicians—and proved in everyday home use by millions.

(Note: The remarkable success of Vicks Drops—for nose and throat—has brought scores of imitations. The trademark Va-tro-nol is your protection in getting this exclusive Vicks formula. Always ask for Vicks Va-tro-nol. Now in two generous sizes—30c and 50c.)

Va-tro-nol and its companion product, Vicks VapoRub (the modern external treatment for colds) form the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—fully explained in each Vicks package.

Mrs. W. F. Glenn and daughters, Elsie and Lera, had as their guests Saturday afternoon Mrs. R. J. Downs and daughter, Mamie.

Mr. Arnold Glenn spent Saturday afternoon with Messrs. Arthur and Evan Mitchell.

Farmers Should Rid Corn Cribs Of Weevil

Auburn, Ala.—Before storing their corn, Alabama farmers should be certain that their cribs and bins are free of insects, especially weevils, advises Prof. J. M. Robinson, head of the entomology department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"To rid an empty crib of insects, all old corn and shucks should be removed," he said. "The walls and floors should then be thoroughly swept and the trash and live weevils thus collected should be burned. It is sometimes desirable to fumigate an empty crib with sulphur dioxide, as the fumigation is more effective than the 'clean up' without the fumigation.

"To obtain the sulphur dioxide, five to six pounds of sulphur should be burned in a bucket or other metal container for each 1,000 cubic feet of content in the crib. Wood 'shavings' or chips should be placed in the bottom of the bucket and the sulphur mixed with additional 'shavings' should be added. A small quantity of wood alcohol or gasoline should then be poured on the sulphur and lighted cautiously.

"To reduce the danger from fire, the bucket of burning sulphur must rest evenly on a flattened mound of soil several times in diameter of the bucket. Asbestos or other non-inflammable material may be substituted for the soil."

We are very proud to learn that Mrs. J. S. Ogletree, who has been confined to her bed for several months, is able to set up some now.

Mr. Roy and Earnest Wilson had as their guest Saturday afternoon Messrs. Sanders Watkins and Bonnie Wilson.

Mrs. J. S. Ogletree had as her guest Saturday p. m. Mrs. Armstrong.

Messrs. Arthur and Evan Mitchell spent a while Sunday a. m. with Mr. Arnold Glenn.

Mrs. Arthur Mims had as her guests for a while Saturday night Misses Jessie and Pearl Davis, Esther Lee Dennis, Evelyn Johnson, Messrs. Sam and Alonza Davis and Cecil Dennis.

Miss Evelyn Johnson spent a while Monday night with Miss Lera Glenn.

Mrs. Arthur Mims and children spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Guy.

Several from here attended the singing at the Courthouse Sunday. They reported a real good singing and a very nice and enjoyable time.

Don't forget the services Saturday and Sunday. Come!

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a more natural movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It gently helps the average person's constipated bowels until nature restores their regularity.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use.

Baptist Revival Making Splendid Progress

Revival services at the Clanton Baptist church, which were begun last Sunday morning, promise to be one of the most successful series of meetings ever held here, according to Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the church, who is exceedingly enthusiastic regarding the beginning of the meetings.

Dr. Frank T. Woodward, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church of Birmingham and a returned missionary from China, is conducting the preaching, and Dr. Ezell stated that his interesting sermons have been heard by large and enthusiastic audiences. Three additions to the membership of the church were made during the first few sermons and other are expected to unite with the church before the meeting is closed.

Assisting Dr. Woodward is Mr. Fred Bond, evangelistic singer from Birmingham. He has charge of the singing. Mrs. Woodward and their three small children are here with Dr. Woodward.

The services will continue through next Tuesday night with morning services at 10:30 and evening services at 7:15. Following the close of this series of meetings, Dr. Woodward, with his family will return to his work in the Orient. This is made possible by the cooperation of two Baptist churches in Texas which are paying the salaries for both Dr. and Mrs. Woodward, and the Baptist association which is defraying the cost of passage back to China.

The public is cordially invited to attend these meetings, Dr. Ezell said, and enjoy the privilege of hearing a man who is so well versed and is so capable of rendering sermons that will leave with his listeners a conviction that will mean much to them in the battle of life.

Culp Makes Appeal To Taxpayers Of County

Please allow me space to make this final statement to the delinquent taxpayers for 1933 tax. I have kept this matter constantly before you through the newspapers and otherwise for several months and this tax is more than twelve months past due and the time has come when I am forced to make these collections.

It has been a pleasure to me and as I believe you know a policy of mine since I have been serving you as Collector to give to you every opportunity at my command to make your taxes as easy to pay as possible and if it was in my power to grant you more time I would gladly do so but since my duties are filed by statute I have come to the end of my ability to help you farther and on Thursday, October 18, every piece of property on which the 1933 tax has not been paid will go to the newspaper, advertising same for sale.

I am sorry that I am unable to help you farther in this matter but as I stated to you in my former letter, my power to grant further extension is exhausted and I am now pursuing the course which the law forces me to pursue.

I am hoping that as many of you as can will take advantage of the few days left and make your settlements as I have no desire to put extra cost on you but as I have already said I have done all I can do for you.

When I can serve you call on me.

Yours very truly,
W. G. CULP,
Tax Collector, Chilton County.

Thorsby Institute News

The first open meeting of the Hele Keller Literary Society was held Saturday night in the auditorium. Two plays, "The Release" and "A Likely Story" were given. Miss Mabel Alle, music teacher at the Institute this year, played a violin solo. Lucille Each presided as president of the society, and Lance Franklin was the secretary. The next open meeting of the society will be the first Saturday night in November.

Dr. Enoch Bell, editor-in-chief of the Missionary Herald, was a visitor at the Institute on Saturday. At dinner he spoke a few words to the boarding department, then played unusually well on the harmonica. Dr. Bell was at one time a missionary in Japan and while there played a great deal on the harmonica for the people. Mr. Ross Ensminger, President of Southern Union College, made a few remarks after Dr. Bell finished playing.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Martin Peterson presented the Institute with a bird bath which is placed between the campus cottage and dining hall. This gift is very much appreciated.

The school has been presented with a large flag by Mrs. S. E. Norton. This flag was given originally to her husband by Mr. Alvin Norton of Chicago. The Institute is very glad to have it.

Miss Elizabeth Glasson, a graduate of Ashbury College, Wilmore, Ky., is the new commercial teacher and office secretary in place of Miss Welch, who resigned because of her mother's health and the offer of a chance to teach in the city schools and be with her in Chattanooga.

The following girls have been chosen for the Glee Club: Lessie Rasco, Mary Frances Duke, Inez Jackson, Sarah Green, Margaret Bean, Mary Maud Knight, Louise Yeager, Jane Billingsley Mary Louise Reinhardt, Mary Frances Harris, Trudelle Swiney, May Pearl Sorrell, Mary Nell Pate, Catherine Morgan, Dora Holt, Louise Mims, Josephine Billingsley, Lois Rister, Ruth McKee, Blanche Morgan.

TO COTTON GROWERS AND BUSINESS MEN OF Chilton County

Cotton is moving into warehouses. New money is available in CHILTON COUNTY. Many a family is considering the purchase of a new automobile.

If you, or anyone you know, is considering buying a car, the facts contained in this advertisement will well repay careful study.

The purchase of an automobile is second only to the purchase of a home . . . An investment where you will want to look for satisfaction next year, and the year after, as well as now.

The first thing to do before you buy any car is to drive it . . . And the Ford V-8 welcomes this test.

You will appreciate its 85 horsepower V-8 engine. It is the only V-8 engine in any car selling for less than $2500. But performance can cost little or much. What are the facts on Ford V-8 running costs?

There you can rely on Henry Ford's statement that the new Ford V-8 is the most economical Ford to operate ever built. The Ford V-8 saves you money on gas—on oil. Further, in that distant day when parts may need replacement, remember that Ford parts are economical as they always have been.

You will want to investigate the added protection to your wife and children offered by the Ford welded all-steel body. You will want the safety and dependability of a strong front axle and welded steel spoke wheels.

You know that the Ford has always been an honest, dependable, economical car. It must have more value built into it because the records over past years show that its trade-in value has always been very high. And don't forget—Ford prices have not been raised this year—they have been reduced! Delivered prices are now at the low point for the year.

A V-8 is no longer the privilege of the wealthy. Ford has made V-8 performance available to almost everyone. Come in today and drive the Ford V-8. Test its performance, comfort and economy for yourself.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THESE THINGS

In the relations between Ford dealers and the car-buying public, it is desirable that all facts and statements should be presented clearly and without confusion.

The TRUTH About Wheelbase: The Ford V-8 comes to you in only one wheelbase—a full 112 inches. There is no doubt or question about this. When we refer to the Ford V-8, we always mean this car in this size . . . And it is important to realize—in addition—that because the V-8 is a compact engine, every Ford has added expensive-car roominess—V-8 construction saves engine space which becomes usable body space.

The TRUTH About Delivered Prices: At no time this year have Ford V-8 prices been raised. Instead, they have been reduced. When choosing a car you should consider and compare delivered prices—not merely advertised F.O.B. prices. And you should consider what equipment the delivered prices include.

The TRUTH About Equipment: The following equipment is included on all Ford DeLuxe Models without extra charge. It is part of the delivered price. Safety glass throughout; two matched-tone horns; twin cowl lamps; 14 gallons of gas in tank; colored wheels; cigar lighter and ash receptacles; fenders matching body; two adjustable sun visors.

The TRUTH About Economy of Operation: The New Ford V-8 costs less to operate than any other Ford ever built. It is extremely economical on gasoline and oil and its upkeep is slight also. You get Ford V-8 performance, faster pickup, and ability to get places without driving strain, but you pay no extra running costs.

Womans Col. Brings Art to Montgomery

The "Art Season" at Woman's College will bring to this section some of the most outstanding exhibits ever collected and displayed in the South, according to a letter of information being sent to the president of the Women's clubs throughout the state by Mrs. Georgia T. Rivers, director of art at the Montgomery institution.

One of the most outstanding features of the entire season will be the famous Italian exhibit of sixty paintings which can be seen at the college from October 21 through November 11. This collection is being loaned to the institution by Samuel H. Kress, of New York City, and covers the entire Renaissance period. A man famaliar with with the art of this period travels with the pictures and will render explanatory talks on the subject.

The Montgomery Federation of Women's clubs, the woman's clubs, the Woman's College Art Association, the Junior League, the Garden clubs, and the Parent-Teachers Association are Cooperating in this exhibition.

At the same time the Museum of Fine Arts is cooperating by exhibiting a splendid collection of 18th and 19th century English paintings, loaned by the Metropolitan Museum, New York, and containing paintings by Reynolds, Romney, and Gainsborough. A group of early American painters will also be included, represented by Sully, Gilbert Stuart, and other early American artists.

The Womans Club will display a lovely group of potraits by Mrs. F. I. Eglin, wife of Major Eglin, Maxwell Field. Mrs. Eglin is noted for her exquisite flesh tones and the marvelous portrayal of rich satins and velvets. Joshua Reynolds in her technique and She shows a decided kinship to Sir fine composition.

Black-Draught Brings Refreshing Relief of Constipation Troubles

Constipation produces many disagreeable sensations, several of which are mentioned by Mr. T. E. Stith, of Boonville, Ind., who writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught many years when needed for biliousness and other minor ills when a laxative was needed. I have a tight feeling in my chest when I get bilious. I get dizzy and feel very tired, just don't feel like doing my work. After taking Black-Draught, I feel much better. This is why I continue to use it when needed." . . . Thedford's Black-Draught is a good, purely vegetable laxative, obtainable for 25¢ a package.

Extension Course At Jemison; Begins 13th

An extension course from Auburn will be offered the teachers of the county at Jemison. The first meeting will be held Saturday morning, October 13th, at 9 o'clock in the Jemison High school.

Professor J. A. Peterson expressed a particular interest in the course in that it will deal with practical problems which confronts the teachers in their daily work.

"School and Community Problems" is the title of the course. It will carry 3 hours of college credit in Education or Social Science and may be used for both extension of certificates and raising the classification of teachers in the salary schedule.

Professor S. L. Chesnutt will give the course. Quite a number have expressed the intention of joining. Among them being five teachers from Autauga and Elmore counties.

HEXAGONAL STRIP SHINGLES

COLOR SCHEME HELPS TO SELECT BEST HENS

A simple plan of selecting the best layers in a farm flock is described by H. L. Shrader. of the United States Department of Agriculture, as the red-white-and-blue method. It calls for the use of 3 colors of leg bands for marking 3 desirable characteristics of hens in the breeding flock. The banding may be done on or near three easily remembered dates—November 11, March 4, and July 4.

The first culling date, November 11, provides a check on all pullets that have begun to lay. These are the early-maturing pullets and are marked with red leg bands. It is easy to determine an early layer, as she has a deep-red comb and wattles and a moist vent. If the bird belongs to one of the yellow skinned varieties she will show distince bleaching around the vent and on the beak.

The next culling period, in March, affords an opportunity to check the rate at which the pullets have laid during the winter. Those that have laid steadily will have lost, through the egg yolks, most of the yellow coloring matter assimilated from yellow and green feed. But birds that have taken a vacation during the winter will have some of this pigment, readily observable, in the beaks and shanks. All pullets with bleached beaks and shanks are marked with a white leg band.

The last period for culling comes after the hot weather has arrived. This is the time to detect the birds that take their vacation before they have finished their laying year. The molt is a good indication of the time these pullets have been out of laying. The bird with ragged, worn feathers may not look like a blue-ribbon winner compared with her sister that has bright feathers. But the bird with worn feathers deserves the blue leg band because she is a persistent layer and has kept up her production into the hot weather instead of molting a new crop of feathers. Leg bands are removed from birds that go broody.

The red-white-and-blue layers should be mated the next spring to males from flocks with trap-nest records that show heavy winter production of good-sized eggs of the proper color for the breed. A breeding program of this kind will not take much time from the farmer's regular duties and will aid greatly in developing a high-producing flock.

Profitable Cows Get Good Care

Auburn, Ala.—Dairying can be made profitable this winter if dairymen will take good care of their cows, declares F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist, who lists essential points as follows:

1. Well ventilated, dry stables insure health and good work on the part of the cow.

2. Do not require cows to stand in yards or fields on cold rainy days. It takes feed to keep cows warm.

3. Free access to clean water and salt should be had at least twice daily.

4. Reserve the best feed for fresh cows but do not let dry cows become thin. Cows that are thin at calving time never have a chance to do their best.

M. LANDE

To our Friends and Customers:

We started our business here fifteen years ago with a modest beginning and a big purpose, humbly endeavoring to be of worth-while service to the people who might choose to entrust their buying needs to us.

Today we are glad to say that we are proud of the success we have attained. We consider that our greatest asset acquired in these years is not the profits we have made in dollars and cents, but the friends who have been ours throughout these years.

We face the future better able to serve you with the experiences we have had, and we hold to the same feeling of humility and obligation for helpful service which we started out with.

This occasion of our fifteenth anniversary has been chosen in which to offer our friends and customers one of the greatest buying opportunities in our history. Our store is bigger than ever before, and is filled from cellar to attic with new and high class merchandise which we were able to buy at the right prices. We offer it to you at the same advantage in price which we were able to obtain in our purchases.

We sincerely invite our friends and customers to come to see us whether you buy anything or not. Let us clasp hands once more as we pass this fifteenth milestone and rededicate ourselves to a continued friendship and mutual service for what we hope will be a long and happy future for all of us.

At all times we want you to know that we appreciate your friendship. We want to serve you in exactly the manner you feel that your store should serve you.

Sincerely yours,
M. LANDE.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Lande's
Big Birthday Party
To Be Here Friday, Oct. 12

You Are Cordially Invited

WE WANT YOU TO KNOW:

It is with grateful hearts that, on this Fifteenth Anniversary of the founding of our business in Clanton, we extend to our friends and customers our appreciation for your loyal devotion of the past years.

Our gratitude to those whose patronage has enabled us to serve our customers and friends satisfactorily is exceeded only by the sense of humility and responsibility which we realize is ours for the future

It is not our purpose to express in mere words our deep and abiding appreciation to those whom we owe a debt of gratitude. We will demonstrate in our Fifteenth Anniversary Sale, starting Friday, October 12, our true appreciation by offering you values that will surpass anything offered in Central Alabama this fall.

A copy of our big Anniversary Sale circular has carried our extraordinary message of bargains to every mail box in Chilton County this week. We want you to read it and to realize it is our own friendly and personal message to you.

Remember our store is bigger and better equipped to serve you than ever before. It is packed with values, and we insist that our Anniversary Sale is the best opportunity you will have to buy your winter merchandise. We are looking for you to come to see us.

THE LEADER
M. LANDE

Mrs. M. LANDE

To our Friends and Customers:

Fifteen years ago we cast our lot with the people of Clanton and Chilton County, seeking and selecting a location in a community among people whom we believed would be our friends, and where we might hope for a reasonable measure of success in our efforts to render an acceptable service.

At this time Mr. Lande and I are glad to unite in one mutual expression of thanks for the splendid friendships that have been made for us by our neighbors and our loyal customers. We can truly say we are glad we cast our lot with you, and you have richly rewarded us in your noble response to our efforts.

We desired in the beginning, not only to achieve success in our business, but most of all to make friends with you, and to cause you to feel that you could have confidence in us.

Your treatment of us in these years has caused us to feel that you have trusted us constantly. We have tried all along to conduct our business in such a manner as to merit your confidence.

Now we want to let you know how happy we feel in looking back over the past fifteen years and reviewing our many pleasant contacts with each of you. We are satisfied that we could not find a place on earth that people would have been any better to us than you have.

Facing the future hopefully, we sincerely pledge ourselves to endeavor to make our future relationships more pleasant and profitable to our friends and customers.

You are invited to come to see us, especially during this Anniversary Sale. It will be a fine opportunity for us to renew our friendships and take a new start toward mutual service.

Respectfully,
Mrs. M. LANDE.

Vermont School News

The Vermont Jr. High School opened for the 1934-35 session on October 2 with an opening day enrollment of one hundred twenty-one students. A large group of enthusiastic parents were present for the informal opening exercise. Several presented encouraging remarks relative to the school activities for the forth-coming term.

Our parents-Teachers Association meets on next Thursday night, October 11. All members and friends are cordially requested to attend as the feature part of this meeting will be to elect new officers for the ensuing year. Many worthwhile additions were made to our school last year by the P.-T. A. organization, all of which the school and community are deeply grateful. We feel that through effective cooperation and a well directed leadership that this year accomplishments will be equal if not exceed those of last year. We have first installed a good lighting system for our auditorium and have now focusel our efforts upon placing durable shades in all the classrooms. This latter project is one of deep concern to the progress and welfare of the child. So we insist that all people give this move a generous response by adding their bit to its final completion.

Our principal, aided by a number of interested patrons, went before the Commissioners Court of Chilton County during their last session and presented a plea for assistance regarding our school desk obligation, and we are proud to announce that their efforts were fruitful. We take this opportunity to record our appreciation for the timely donation.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Johnson and Elementary teacher of our school attended the funeral services last Saturday of his good friend "Rip" Northcutt of Oak Grove community.

Those students within compulsory age limits and living within this school district, who have withheld enrollment for no reasonable cause are requested to enroll at once or their names must be submitted to the attendance officers as required by the Alabama School Code.

The girls and boys Atheletic Clubs have met and arranged their course to follow in carrying out their atheletic activities for the school year. The ball courts are being prepare by cleaning off of courts, erecting goals, etc.

The school does not yet have a convenient water supply. Those parents who are due to place wood for fuel upon the grounds, and have not yet taken care of this matter have caused us to have to depend upon some outside source for water. This condition is wholly unsatisfactory, very unsanitary and most inconvenient. We appeal to those who have not yet brought their quota of wood to please get this in at an early date as we may apply for funds due to dig a well and install a pump. So let's get this all important matter settled quickly, thus relieving our school from unnecessary delay and worry relative to said water supply.

We are proud to see a large number of new faces in our school this year.

Don't forget our P.-T. A. meets tonight (Thurs.). We'll be sein, you!

W. M. U. MEETING OF CHILTON COUNTY ASSN. POSTPONED

The W. M. U. of Chilton County Association was scheduled to meet last Friday, October 5, but the bad weather prevented the meeting. This is a very important meeting and we need every woman of Chilton County to help out in the October meeting as this is the day for nominating the officers. We are going to meet with the Thorsby Baptist church next Saturday, October 13. Miss Stalworth is plannning to be with us on that day so everybody go to Thorsby. We especially want the nominating committee to be there.

Don't forget the date, Saturday, October 13, at Thorsby Baptist church.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A party was given on Saturday night, October 6, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Culp at Jonestown, honoring their son, Preston, on his sixteenth birthday.

The guests were invited into the dining room to see the cake which held sixteen candles. Cake and hot cocoa were served.

Those present were Mary Charles Jones, Ruth Oden, Judson Calfee, Lena Mae Jones, Robert Calfee, Charles Griffin, Donald Calfee, John Henry Pill, Napoleon Jones, John Jones, Clyde Jones, Preston Culp and others.

Alabama Has Large Sweet Potato Crop

Auburn, Ala.—Within the next few weeks Alabama farmers will harvest one of the largest sweet potato crops ever produced in the state.

F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistician, estimates that farmers of the state are this year producing 7,392,000 bushels compared with a crop of 5,396,000 bushels last year. He estimates that farmers are growing an average of 88 bushels per acre.

At the same time, Julian Brown, extension horticulturist, Auburn, is advising all farmers to make special efforts to save all their potatoes and to dig them before the first frost. He reports that this is very important, as the potatoes will be needed this winter.

Mr. Brown has prepared a circular on properly digging, curing, and storing sweet potatoes which he will send free to any farmer in the state requesting it.

State of Alabama

A PROCLAMATION
by the
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the legislature of Alabama at an extraordinary session held during the year, 1932, ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held at the General Election in November, 1934, and

WHEREAS, the General Election in November, 1934, is to be held on Tuesday, November 6, 1934, as provided by law, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law, and by the provisions of the Act submitting the said amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each County in the State of Alabama once a week for eight (8) successive weeks immediately preceding the said 6th day of November, 1934;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 6th day of November, 1934, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> The Legislature of Alabama hereafter from time to time by general or local laws, but subject to the provisions of Section 281 of the Constitution of Alabama, may fix, regulate and alter the costs, charges of court, fees, commissions, allowances or salaries be charged or received by the following county officers of Mobile County, Alabama, the Judge of Probate, the Tax Assessors, the Tax Collector, the Clerk of the Circuit Court, and the Register of the Circuit Court, including the method and basis of the compensation of such officers.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks next preceding the 6th day of November, 1934, in each County of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 19th day of July, 1934.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

employe of Reynolds, was arrested by Sheriff W. H. Gillespie on a warrant sworn by a brother of the injured man. Bond is said to have been one of the last persons seen with Reynolds and members of the family believe that he struck Reynolds as they went along the railroad home, officers explained. plained.

The ground near where the youth was found was torn up considerably, but it was not possible to tell whether it was the scene of a struggle, or whether Reynolds had struggled after being hit. Bond denied that he is implicated in any way, but officers said that he will likely be held to await the outcome of Reynolds' injuries.

Reynolds had not regained consciousness late Tuesday afternoon, according to information from the hospital.

Another youth, Lee Roy Foshee, of Wetumpka, was treated Sunday night for slight injuries suffered in an automobile accident several miles west of Clanton. He was dismissed and permitted to go home after he had been given first aid.

Others being treated at the hospital are: Mrs. R. O. Williams and little son, of Billingsley; Mrs. L. R. Messer, Verbena; Mrs. W. M. Tinsdol, Billingsley; E. L. Sundberg, Thorsby; Miss Irene Baker, Calnton route 2; Mrs. W. A. Scarbrough, Clanton. Most of these patients are undergoing medical treatment or are recuperating from operations.

ably but the bodies of the children were not badly lacerated. They were the son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Northcutt, brother of the dead youth, and lived only a few hundred yards from the scene of the accident.

Mrs. Northcutt, mother of the two children, said that she had helped young Northcutt push the car down a slight grade to start the motor. He was driving across the railroad tracks to turn the car around. Her children were riding with him, but were to be taken from the car when he returned to the house.

Northcutt was planning to be married the afternoon of the day he met his death. Miss Loy Mae Glass, 17-year-old neighbor girl, said that they planned to be married either Thursday afternoon or night. The youth spent Wednesday night at the home of his brother and was preparing to go to his father's, W. J. Northcutt, a few miles away, and dress to go to Clanton for marriage licenses.

Tearfully the bride-to-be explained that she was watching the road for Northcut to pass her home before he went for the licenses when she heard the noise and learned a few minutes later that he had been killed. She and the youth had been keeping company for the past three years and had planned to marry for some time.

Northcutt was born and reared in the Oak Grove community and attended the Oak Grove school. He was working at time of his death on a farm owned by F. D. MacArthur, a Birmingham attorney.

Miss Glass said that she had been going with Northcutt since they both were little more than children. "Rip was almost the only boy I had ever had dates with," she explained.

The youth is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Northcutt, and several brothers and sisters. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Northcutt, survive the children.

The three bodies were buried Saturday in a single grave in Oak Grove cemetery. Martin & Sons of Clanton were in charge.

"Now I'm the Picture of Health," Says Lady After Taking CARDUI

Here is how Cardui helped an Alabama lady. . . . "I suffered from pains in my back and sides," writes Mrs. A. G. Gray, of Cusseta, Ala. "I was so thin and weak, I read of Cardui and decided to take it. I noticed at once it was helping me. I kept taking Cardui until I had finished five bottles. I gained. My health was much better. Now I am the picture of health. My color is good and my weight increased." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

LAND OF PLENTY DISCOVERED IN MONROECOUNTY

Farmer Income Trebled In Two Years, People Acclaim Bankhead Act

By Atticus Mullins in Montgomery Advertiser

Monroeville, Ala., Oct. 13.—More than 1,500 farmers in this favored section of the land of milk and honey, gathered in Monroeville Saturday, heard about the Federal Control of cotton acreage as prescribed in the Bankhead law, heard Senator Bankhead discuss the cotton situation with facts and figures and went away more than 98 per cent for a continuation of the legislation with certain modifications in administration which Senator Bankhead is seeking.

Here is why Monroe County is prosperous today, more prosperous than in any year in the last six or seven:

Cash from cotton and seed . . .	$.. 432,000
1934
Cash from cotton and seed . . .	$1,242,600

In 1932, the farmers of Monroe County were allowed to raise all of the cotton they wanted to. It was the last year before the New Deal stepped in to help. And in two years the value of the cotton and seed of Monroe County farmers has increased threefold or 300 per cent.

There was some kicking of a sporadic nature over the operations of the Bankhead bill two months ago in Monroe County. But the kickers have about kicked out.

"We expect to have it so that next year the small cotton farmers will be
